Two days before her coronation the Queen went by water from the Palace of Westminster to the Tower of London. The Corporation of the City and the great livery companies turned out in their States barges to mark the event: "The bachelor's barge of the Lord-Mayor's company, to wit the mercers, had their barge with a foist trimmed with three tops, and artillery aboard, gallantly appointed to wait upon them; shooting off lustily as they went with great and pleasant melody of instruments, which played in most sweet and heavenly manner."

On the great day, the Queen travelled from the Tower to Westminster through the streets of the City: along the route triumphal arches had been erected and pageants were performed. On arrival at the Abbey, Elizabeth put on "a mantle of crimson velvet, furred with ermine, with a cordon of silk and gold, with buttons and tassels of the same; a train and surcoat of the same velvet, the train and skirt furred with ermine; a cap of maintenance, striped with passaments of gold lace, and a tassel of gold to the same."

JOINT CROWNING

The crowning of the third Sovereign Queen, Mary II, in 1689, was the only coronation of joint Sovereigns in English history. When James II fled in 1688, Parliament bestowed the Crown jointly on his daughter Mary and her husband, William of Orange.

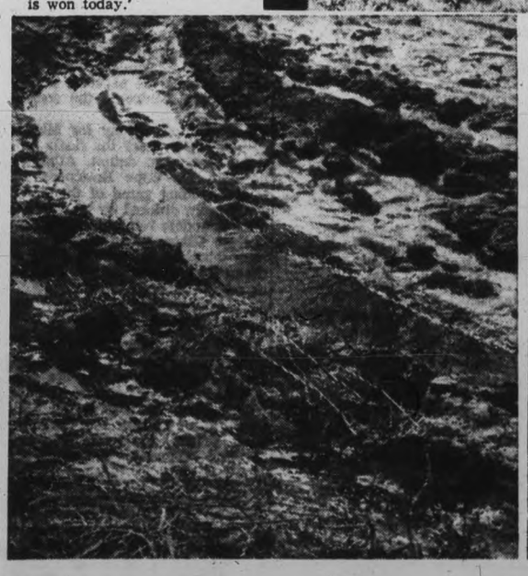
Spring Comes At Kawartha's Eastertide

EASTER COMES to the bare Kawartha countryside this year with few signs of spring to herald it in. Though the season is early, and Easter stands midway in the extremes of its annual movement through the calendar, there is little apparent growth in the woods and fields.

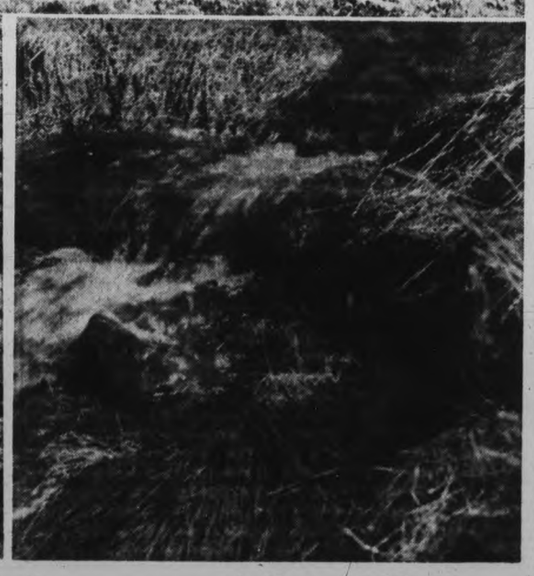
The farmer tinkers with his orange coloured tractor beside the sodden barnyard where young lambs bleat. Light clouds drift across the pale blue sky pushed by a stiff west wind that dries the rolling uplands. Behind the summer kitchen bees flex their stiff winter wings about a dozen uncovered hives under the gnarled apple trees. Pond water dots the low-lying fields and autumn furrows show their ribs in rigid pattern. A brawling brook sparkles through the pasture land and twists through bullrush borders by snake fences. It skirts a clean-trunked maple grove where no sap buckets hang this year. The "run" has been too light to bother with.

The farmer watches the mailman's car stop at his front gate and again as it drives off down the dutsy concession road and winds up the hill where the white gravestones of the village cemetery gleam under the dark threshing pines. His ancestors lie there, his father who had the farm before him and the grandfather who cleared the land.

To-morrow, Easter Sunday, the farmer will drive his family, in the car parked half way down his lane, to the village church. He can see the tip of its metal spire shining over the crest of the hill beyond the cemetery.



The pews, he knew, would be filled on Sunday. He could see the clergyman in his billowing gown greeting everyone at the door. The ladies in their new bonnets. Children squirming in the seats. And, over all, the multi-colored beams of light slanting through the windows.



He would thrill again to the Easter message and the hymns: hymns well-loved through many generations:

'Welcome, happy morning! age to age shall say;
Hell today is vanquished! Heaven is won today.'

Your Garden:

Give Roses Best Licks Now

By HENRY PREE (NEA)

This is the time of the year rose lovers get in their best licks.

Now is the time survey the rose garden and make preparations for the planting of more roses. Perhaps the past winter has been too severe for all of your plants to come through with firm good wood and stamina. If so, be ready to replace the weak plants this spring.

You can begin clearing away some of the surplus material that was used as a winter cover. Do not remove all of the excess soil that you had banked around your bushes, but leave about three or four inches to be removed in early April.

While the plants are dormant, give them and the ground around them a good soaking of lime sulphur solution. Get it at your seed store and follow directions as printed on the container.

Plan now to purchase necessary tools and spray materials, also commercial fertilizers. Buy now and you will have them on hand when you need them. If available get some cow manure or chicken manure and work into the soil, preferably a few weeks in advance of planting time. It must be well rotted, otherwise the roots may suffer injury.

Replace all weak rose plants early in the spring, and you'll have more luck with your plants blooming.

The analysis of well-rotted cow manure is approximately 0.32 nitrogen, 0.15 phosphoric acid and 0.48 potash. Cow manure is not a complete or balanced fertilizer and should not be expected to do all the work for your roses.

Additional use of rose foods or commercial fertilizers is recommended. The best available information gives us this analysis on well-dried chicken manure: 2.33 nitrogen, 0.86 phosphoric acid and 1.08 potash.

Check the climbers and cut out all dead wood or badly bruised canes. Paint the cut ends with pine tar, beeswax or any other solution that may be had at your dealers.

Now about making some rose labels so that when you show off your fine blooms in June you will not be apologizing for not knowing the blooms by their first names. Cheapest of all is the common wooden label with copper wire used for fastening. Write the name with a pencil then dip the labels in clear varnish.

After clearing away the winter covering check over your hybrid teas, polyanthas and floribundas. If any canes are broken, cut them below the break and at this time cut away some of the weak shoots and surplus wood.

We suggest two prunings. The second and final one should be given in early May when the plant is in leaf, thus disclosing the better flowering canes which should be retained.

Deep frosts have a tendency to heave some of the plants as much as two or three inches. Firm them into the soil with the heel of your shoe.

Gardening Questions

Q—We are clearing up a wood lot and wonder if poison ivy will cause dermititis although the plants are dormant?

A—Yes, even the smoke from burning poison ivy will cause dermatitis to folks allergic to the vine.

Q—What is Merion Blue Grass and do you recommend its use for the home lawn?

A—Merion is a strain of Kentucky Blue Grass selected by the United States Golf Association's greens section for use on tees and fairways. It is a slow, low-growing type grass that will make more growth in hot weather than Kentucky Blue Grass.

It has the further advantage of being tolerant to leaf spot diseases and is most tolerant of drought. Sow it, by all means, if you can secure some. A fine turf is obtained from two or three pounds of seed per 1,000 square feet of area.

Q—We are planning a trip south to include the U.S. capital. When are the Japanese flowering cherries expected to be in bloom?

A—Reports from Washington indicate that these delightful trees should be at their peak about the tenth of April.

1952 Fishing Contest

Ice-free lakes and rushing stream are putting us in the frame of mind for fishing these days. You can smell them if you are near the water and, if you are patient, can see suckers and pickerel resting in the eddies of dams on their way upstream.

What could be more interesting than to announce the winners of the 1952 Peterborough Examiner-Lucky Strike Bait fishing contest at this time? Nothing that I know of, so, fishermen draw up your chairs. Here are the lucky people:

'Lunge

(1) John Bruce Heron, 44 Grattan St., Weston, 43 pounds even, at Cameron Lake, trolling with plug.
(2) Floyd L. Paulus, 108 E. Hall St., Kent, O., 36¾ pounds, in the Trent River, with a Heddon Vamp.
(3) Allen R. Wood, 428 Simcoe St. S., Oshawa, 33 pounds, in Trent River near Campbellford, with a Pikie Minnow.

Pickerel (Walleye)

(1) John Shotton, Concession St., Havelock, 11 pounds, at Round Lake, with Silver Flash Plug.
(2) Walter Bruce, 634 Union St., Peterborough, 9 pounds, 2 ounces, at the Auburn Dam, Otonabee River, with worm.
(3) Bert Davis, 716 Park St. S., Peterborough, 9 pounds, one ounce, below Locks Bridge in Peterborough, with a Heddon Plug.

Large-Mouth Bass

(1) Charles Ellis of R.R. 2, Havelock, 7 pounds, at Round Lake, with a surface plug.
(2) Albert Solomon, 5884 Douglas St., Pittsburgh, 17, Pa., 6 pounds, 12 ounces, at Rice Lake, with a Creek Chub.
(3) Glen Osborne, Omemee, 5 pounds, 8½ ounces, on Pigeon River, with live frog.

Small-Mouth Bass

(1) Jack McEwan 475 George St., Peterborough, 7 pounds, 3 ounces, at Pine Lake, (Rose Is., P.O.) with crawfish.
(2) Jack McEwan, same address, at same lake and with same bait, 6 pounds, 14¾ ounces.
(3) George Weller, Warsaw, 6 pounds, 14 ounces, Stony Lake, casting with plug.

Speckled Trout

(1) Susanne Woolnough, Birch Lodge, Plevna, Ont., 5 pounds, 8½ ounces, at Mosque Lake, with Williams Wobbler.
(2) Bob McCabe, 91 Crescent St., Peterborough, 3 pounds, one ounce, on the Little Ouse River, with Half-Wave spoon.
(3) No entry.

Brown Trout

(1) Allen R. Wood, 428 Simcoe St. S., Oshawa, 6 pounds, 12 ounces, on the Canadian River with fly.
(2) Hughie Blair, Millbrook, 4 pounds, ten ounces, in Cavan Stream, with worm.
(3) Jim Meyers, R.R. 2, Ida, two pounds, four ounces, in Mount Pleasant Stream, with a worm.

Lake Trout

(1) H. P. Nayler, Marmora, Ont., 21 pounds, four ounces, at Salmon Lake, with copper wobbler.
(2) Elmer Vance, 590 George St. N., Peterborough, at Bay Lake (Bancroft), with Archer spinner.
(3) No entry.

The 1952 contest winners created many odd situations. Unlike other years when a good 70 per cent of the winners were American visitors, last year there were only TWO in the running. There were five winners in Peterborough and the remainder, except for Oshawa and Toronto, were from the immediate Kawartha district. We are very happy that district people are supporting the contest so well but, of course, they had to produce the big ones to win. There were more than twice as many entries in the contest last year as in many previous seasons. It was well patronized.

Two fishermen deserve special mention because they each won two prizes each. The first, Jack McEwan of Peterborough, took first and second place in the small-mouth bass class with fish caught in the same lake with the same bait, crawfish. The other, Allen R. Wood of Oshawa, took first and third prizes in two classes, brown trout and 'lunge, respectively. This is really a coincidence and a happy one.

A recap of district fishing waters tells of where entrants took the most fish. For 'lunge Stony and Buckhorn led the way followed by Chemong, Sturgeon and Pigeon Lakes, the Trent River and Deer Bay. Small-mouth bass spread from Balsam and Baptiste Lakes in the north to Trent River in the south while Katchewanooka, Buckhorn and Stony Lakes led the way for the pickerel entries.

The only fisherman who outclassed himself entirely was from Monongahela, Pa., sent in an entry for a 13-pound pike. We do not recognize this slim critter in the Kawarthas.

To the lucky ones listed above the prizes are:
First—a rod.
Second—reel and line.
Third—one dozen Lucky Strike baits.

Prizes may be obtained by application to the Peterborough Examiner.

Expect Dodgers Take Second Straight Pennant

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Improved pitching, backed by standout performers in all but one position plus a bench second to none, should carry the defending - champion Brooklyn Dodgers to a second straight title and crack a jinx that has plagued National League pennant winners since 1945.

Not since the 1942-43-44 St Louis Cardinals spun together three consecutive flags has a National League team been able to win two pennants in a row. The Dodgers, who failed in 1948 and again in 1950, could, just like the Yankees, have had four in a row today were it not for final-day failures in '50 and '51.

In each losing year it was the pitching weakness that hurt most.

The Brooks should come up with some effective hurling this year. They have three of the finest-looking rookie pitchers in Johnny Podres, Bob Milliken and Glenn Mickens. Podres, in particular, has allowed only one run, unearned, in 24 exhibition innings.

PITCHING AID

Another pitcher almost certain to help is Russ Meyer, the veteran righthander acquired from the then Boston Braves last February, just after the Braves had obtained him from Philadelphia. Meyer, consistent double figure winner, copped 13 decisions last year. He figures to be one of the big five along with Carl Erskine, Billy Loes, Joe Black and Preacher Roe. Black, who pitched all but two of his 56 games in relief last season, figures to serve both as a starter and reliefer.

Brooklyn's starting lineup is solid with the exception of left field where George Shuba, Don Thompson and Dick Williams are waging a three-way battle for the job. Shuba's knee, operated on last winter, is still giving him trouble. Thompson can't hit and Williams can't throw.

OUTSIDERS

The Giants, Phillies or Cardinals may be able to dislodge the Dodgers, but their admitted needs seem too difficult to fulfill, barring a miraculous showing by one or more first-year men.

For the Giants, third base or centrefield is a problem depending upon where Bobby Thomson plays. And nobody knows yet whether Larry Jansen has recovered from his back injury.

The Cardinals will be a contender, but they need someone substantial at first and third and they could use more catching. If Stan Musial is switched to first, there will be a deep void in the outfield.

The Phillies have two of the top pitchers in the league in Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons, but they lack hurling depth and are sadly in need of a second baseman who can go at top speed over a full campaign.

It would take a miracle for any other clubs to overhaul the Dodgers.

The writer views the National League pennant race this way: 1. Brooklyn; 2. New York; 3. St. Louis; 4. Philadelphia; 5. Milwaukee; 6. Chicago; 7. Cincinnati; 8. Pittsburgh.

CALUMET STARS—Here are two of the thoroughbreds which have helped to make Calumet Farms the world's richest racing empire. At top, Bull Lea, the exceptional sire of some of the greatest names in racing, takes it easy on Calumet's farm near Lexington, Ky. Jockey Eddie Arcaro is in the saddle with trainer Ben Jones and Mrs. Lucille Markey, Calumet owner and widow of Warren Wright, at the steed's head.

Flyers Take 2-1 Series Lead, Trim St. Mike's

BARRIE (CP)—Barrie Flyers Thursday night defeated Toronto St. Michael's 5-2 in the third game of the best-of-nine finals of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series. The Flyers lead the series 2-1.

The series moves back to Toronto today for the fourth game. The fifth is in Barrie Monday night.

Once again the Flyers took the lead in the first period. They showered goalie Ed Chadwick with pucks in the opening stages and came up with a two-goal margin. Orin Carver and Doug Mohns were the scorers.

But before the period ended, Bill Lee caught the Flyers napping on a face-off and combined with Murray Costello to narrow the margin.

PLAY BACKFIRES

In the second period Bob White made it 3-1 when a power play backfired during Skip Teal's interference penalty. Persistent forechecking set up Johnny Martan for an unassisted counter. The Flyers could have had four more as Orv Tessier, Don McKenney, Bob White and Tony Poeta all had unmolested breakthroughs on Chadwick, only to miss on each occasion.

St. Mikes made their final bid for victory at the start of the third when Jack Caffery slammed home a loose puck. But they tired fast under torrid Barrie forechecking. With less than four minutes remaining, Orv Tessier potted Martan's rebound for the clincher.

DO YOU OWN A CAR?

When the man who developed Bardahl Rad Conditioner brought his car to a garage for repairs, the garage owner phoned to ask him what on earth had he put in his radiator. He said that when they drained his radiator the water was so thick with dirt it would hardly pour. The Bardahl Rad Conditioner had removed rust, scale and dirt untouched by a popular brand chemical cleaner. The garage owner immediately placed an order for their own use. Since then hundreds of thousands of car owners in Canada and the United States have used Bardahl Rad Conditioner. If you own a car you should try it too . . . if your car is new it will keep your radiator in permanently new condition . . . if you have been running your car for a few years you'll be amazed at the dirt, rust and scale it will remove. Bardahl Rad Conditioner keeps radiators clean . . . eliminates rust formation which can insulate a motor, causing harmful overheating . . . and it also lubricates and stops squeaky water pumps. Bardahl Rad Conditioner costs only 80c. Ask for it at your Service Station.

Mishap Confuses Bicycle Racers

HAMILTON (CP)—The Hamilton Century Club's third annual Good Friday bicycle race ended in confusion when a contestant and an escorting police officer crashed and were taken to hospital for minor treatment.

Harvey Phillips, Belgian cyclist from Delhi's Norfolk Cycling Club, sprinted across the finish line before the mishap with a winning time of 51 minutes 58.4 seconds for the 20-mile course. Art Johnson followed closely.

A group a short distance behind was thrown into confusion when the officer swerved sharply to avoid a parked auto. Terry Moss of Toronto's Queen City Club, in fourth place behind Trevor Allen of the Toronto Cycle Club, crashed to the pavement.

Moss hit Allen's wheel but his momentum carried him over the line and he finished fourth behind Bill Whittaker of the Queen City Club, who got across unscathed.

Softball Group Names Executive

HAMILTON (CP)—W. G. Jacko was elected president of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association at the organization's 31st annual meeting Friday.

J. G. Brady of Oshawa was chosen first vice-president, Wilf Morris of Stratford second vice-president, and Roger Stewart of Grimsby third vice-president.

The executive committee includes H. Knott, Belleville and W. C. Perkins of Simcoe. Frank Feaver was re-elected secretary.

The delegates voted on some 50-odd amendments to the rulebook and constitution. A motion approved unanimously allows players to wear three-finger gloves. The meeting also agreed that a base runner will not be called out on a dead ball. Another decision was that a batter hit by a pitched ball shall not be entitled to a base.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Every once in a while along comes a real sports enthusiast who is in the position to help sports and has the drive to do so. We're thinking of a meeting in the "Y" just 20 years ago this month. A ball meeting called by Hugh Campbell to re-organize the senior game here. 'Twas a most successful gathering with Hugh elected president and a really strong executive set up around him. It had on it heads of most of our manufacturing firms, some prominent business and office men, professional men, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and so on. Such an outfit couldn't do anything but succeed. They brought in Knotty Lee as coach, went about reviving interest in other COBL towns, and we had a grand era of senior baseball for some years. We need such an enthusiast here once more to bring back the diamond sport.

* * * * * * *

Anyway, we'll have good junior and intermediate ball up this way in '53. Which bodes well for the future. It could well be the solid start of senior baseball along the comeback trail and the goal reached within a year or two. We note this item in the Port Hope sheet: "Howie Dalton will remain in the Lakeshore League after all. The skipper of last year's Cobourg Legion will coach the Petes' juniors this season. Dalton has been a big name in baseball over the years and, like many other veteran stars, has finally wound up in a bench capacity. The love of the game dies hard in the true baseball player, and many have just as good time directing the play of some kid game as they did in setting the world on fire in their own youth."

PMHA Night Monday

But a brief switch to hockey. It winds up here Monday night when the PMHA benefit evening is presented to a large crowd—officials hope. Proceeds go to pay off minor hockey debts for the season's play at Civic Arena. Shamrocks of Peterborough (OMHA bantam "A" champs this year) play the good Keene midgets at eight, and this tilt is followed by Port Hope juveniles against the local midget Aces. All of these teams went a long way into provincial playdowns within the past month, Aces losing out to Toronto Marlboros in semi-finals, for instance. The night will also feature skating races for bantam, midget and juvenile players, with good prizes up. And door prizes.

The high-riding Red Wings and Canadiens, who finished one-two in the NHL, schedule are currently trailing Bruins and Hawks by 3-2 in Stanley Cup semi-finals. They resume tonight in Boston and Chicago, the latter two teams needing but one more win to make cup finals. Wings had to hustle at home Thursday eve to yank out a 6-4 win o'er Boston, while Hawks took the Habs 4-2 right in Montreal. It's certainly the underdogs' series so far. However, it could be sewn up tightly on both fronts tonight, forcing both sets to the limit. Leaf fans who felt that the Wings let Hawks into the playoffs should now realize that the Chicago crew (who beat Toronto, Wings and Canadiens in important games the past several weeks) are plenty hot. So are the Bruins since playoffs started.

OASA Sticks To Rules

Bob Batley, Harold Dormer and John McPhee represented this city at the OASA annual in Hamilton on Friday. They'll report on the session at an executive City League meeting Tuesday at seven p.m. in the "Y" when entries will be accepted and umpires' applications taken. Local loop invited the OASA to hold its 1955 (two years hence) convention here. The Hamilton meeting turned down an amendment which would have given a batter a free base if hit by a pitched ball. Some of 'em argued that a windmill pitcher with that hard ball could injure a batter easily, but others insisted they didn't want to turn softball into baseball. Also they refused to let runners leave their bases with the pitch. They must wait till the ball crosses the plate. Spikes are permitted all the way from peewee up.

* * * * * * *

Returning to the subject of our junior ball entry in the Lakeshore League, we'd like to see this club pick a distinctive name. Just calling the squad the Peterborough team seems hardly enough to us, and if they become known as the Petes that could be confusing, what with our senior lacrossers, hockeyists and others already generally known by that monicker in provincial and district sports circles. Nor does Young Petes seem too appropriate. Some years ago our junior hockey club was known as the Colts, and we'd like to see some name along this line adopted by the 1953 local ballsters. Has anyone any suggestions in this respect?

Folks who have seen the midget wrestlers on TV tell us they're highly entertaining, being terrific acrobats . . . . Rumors persist that Detroit Red Wings will be sold when the Norris estate is settled, and some say that a group headed by Jack Adams will buy the club . . . . Jim Norris and Arthur Wirtz kicked in $210,000 to put Black Hawks back on their feet this year, and it now appears to be a paying proposition again . . . . Wrestling Ex-Champ, Referee Dies At 64

TORONTO (CP)—Jack Forbes, 64, referee of more than 7,000 wrestling bouts and undefeated world light heavyweight wrestling champion, died Friday night.

Born in Caithness, Scotland, he travelled with carnivals in Britain and the United States for about eight years as a professional wrestler and eventually won the world light heavyweight crown by defeating Steve Graft in Detroit in 1924.

Owner of the Forbes hotel, he was widely known in sports circles.

Senators Hitting Ball Hard, Change From '52

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

Unless the fences are mighty short and the scorers mighty generous, Bucky Harris must be feeding his Washington ball club power pills this spring.

At any rate something has put a potent wallop into the once punchless Senators.

Last year the Senators won more games than they lost and they hung in first division much of the season. But it was clutch pitching and sparkling fielding that kept them there. They were the worst hitting club in the American League.

Things are different now. Washington has been winning again, but by scores such as 13-10, 11-4, 10-7, and Friday's 9-8 edge over Cincinnati Reds at Greenwood, S. C.

Senator Hitters have slammed 28 home runs in 22 spring games. They hit only 50 all last year.

The figures are certain to sag a bit when the Senators reach Washington's Griffith Stadium, one of the largest in the country. But if Harris has an adequate supply of those pills, his ball club could be a real contender.

Cleveland Indians fell apart Friday after an eight-game winning streak and lost to New York Giants 13-8 in 10 innings at Lubbock, Tex.

The Giants broke a nine-game losing streak by scoring four runs in the ninth inning and five in the top of the 10th. The roof fell in on Cleveland in the 10th when shortstop Ray Boone and outfielder Jim Lemon watched a pop fly drop between them with the bases loaded and one out.

Two other exhibitions went into extra innings. Philadelphia Phillies edged Boston Red Sox 6-4 in 10 at Montgomery, Ala., despite a first-inning triple play by the Sox, and St. Louis Cardinals had to go 13 before downing New Orleans 4-3.

Five runs in the eighth inning gave Brooklyn a 9-8 edge over Milwaukee at Atlanta.

Decision Starts Series Afresh

HALIFAX (CP) — Glace Bay Miners and Charlottetown Islanders open a best-of-three Maritime Major Hockey League semi-finals here tonight as a result of a decision handed down Friday night by artitrator Hansen Dowell.

Dowell, a Middleton, N.S., lawyear and former president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, passed the fourth and final decision on the playoffs after hearing reports from Maritime Amateur Hockey Association, CAHA, MMHL and representatives of the three teams involved—Halifax Atlantics, Glace Bay and Charlottetown.

In a written decision, he ordered Islanders and Miners to finish the semi-finals on the ice. He ruled that Islanders take a one-game lead in the series, giving them credit for their final victory in the first series. Islanders won that game without the services of Erwin Grosse, centre of the controversy.

A semi-final victory for Miners will see them enter the finals facing a one-game deficit. Atlantics defeated the Cape Bretoners 6-1 in the opening game of the finals which were ordered by the MMHL after Islanders refused any replays against Glace Bay. If Charlottetown wins the series, the Halifax-Glace Bay game will be classed as an exhibition.

A complete report of the meeting will appear in Tuesday's Examiner, but today we have the complete list of prize-winners, not including open bonspiels. This is an important part of the program. May we add our congratulations to all.

Boston, Chicago Fans Hope To See Ex-Underdogs In Battle For Stanley Cup

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hockey fans in Boston and Chicago, wondering less than a month ago if the home team was good enough to make the playoffs, may see their underdog clubs fight their way to the Stanley Cup finals this weekend. The Black Hawks, riding a three-game winning streak, will try to put away Montreal Canadiens at Chicago Saturday night. On Sunday the Bruins, leading Detroit Red Wings by a similar 3-2 margin in their best-of-seven semi-final, will have a second chance to oust the National Hockey League champions.

The Wings, who wilted mysteriously after their 7-0 victory in the opening game at Detroit, rebounded just as suddenly after three straight defeats to whip Boston 6-4 Thursday night.

The Bruin defensive tactics that hobbled the Wings in the previous three games bogged down badly as Detroit struck for three quick goals in the first four minutes and went on to win handily.

ROLLINS KEY HAWK

At Chicago, the key man, as usual, will be Hawk goalie Al Rollins, whose tremendous showing has been the chief factor preventing a Montreal runaway. Outshot as usual by the Canadiens, the Hawks had Rollins to thank for their 4-2 victory at Montreal Thursday.

The week-end games represent by far the best chance Boston and Chicago have of making the finals. If they lose, they'll have to play out the string away from home, with the odds shifting heavily against them.

There was a marked increase in rough play in both Thursday night games. After being assessed a total of only 97 minutes in penalties in all previous meetings—an average of about six minutes a game for each team—the four clubs earned 105 minutes in the cooler as tempers became frayed under the playoff pressure.

The Hawks in particular were sizzling over the conduct of the Canadiens and their supporters during a third-period melee.

"We could never win another game at Montreal," one embittered Hawk said. "They'd never let us get away with it."

Easter Matches Make Few Soccer Changes

LONDON (Reuters)—British soccer Friday started a heavy Easter schedule with no upsets and division leader weres were unchanged.

First division leaders—Preston North End, Charlton Athletic and Wolverhampton Wanderers — all played 2-2 draws to remain separated only by goal averages

Preston drew with Burnley, Charlton with Manchester United and Wolverhampton with Portsmouth. Burnley, with 43 points, stayed one point behind in fourth place.

At the bottom of the table, Derby County lost again, 2-1, at Blackpool, and only a miracle will save them from relegation to the second division. The other relegation slot—with only seven games to play—is a fight between Middlesborough, Stoke, Chelsea and Manchester City.

Sheffield United and Huddersfield, leaders of the second division, were idle Friday, but third-place Luton lost some ground by losing 1-0 at Bury

Bristol Rovers downed Swindon Town 3-1 to stretch their third division lead to eight points. Runners-up Bristol City managed only a 1-1 draw with Bournemouth

In third division northern Oldham and Grimsby both won—Oldham over Accrington Stanley, 3-0, and Grimsby over York, 2-1, to stay tied for the head of the table. Wrexham drew 2-2 with Chesterfield to drop one point behind.

There was no play in Scottish or Irish leagues.

Bucceroni Wins By TKO In 8th

NEW YORK (AP)—Lanky Danny Bucceroni of Philadelphia took one round to warm up and then handed husky Dave Davey of Seattle a terrific shellacking to score an eighth-round technical knockout in the main 10-rounder at St. Nicholas Arena Friday night. Bucceroni, a 2-to-1 favorite, weighed 193½ to Davey's 208½.

Dr. Vincent Nardiello ordered the bout halted after examining the 24-year-old west coaster at the finish of the eighth round.

"He's too exhausted to continue" said Dr. Nardiello.

Under New York rules it was listed as an eighth-round technical knockout.

It was Davey's second straight defeat to the No. 8 heavyweight contender and it was the first time he failed to finish in 26 pro fights. The bout was televised across the country.

DISPUTED DRAW

DETROIT (AP)—Officials gave a draw to Wes Bascom, ninth-ranked light heavyweight, in his Motor City Arena fight Thursday night with Gordon Wallace, who claims the Canadian light heavyweight championship.

Most of the fans favored the Canadian and thought he had won. They booed the decision and threw programs, cushions and paper cups about the arena.

Attendance was 1,658 and gross receipts $2,180 for the televised bout.

Wallace, 167½, fights out of Brantford, Bascom, 173¼, out of St. Louis. They went eight rounds.

Bedlam reigned for 10 minutes after referee Lou Handler's card was read. It gave Bascom the fight, 43-37. Judge Joe Greenberg scored it exactly opposite, 43-37 for Wallace, while judge Joe Appleton scored it a draw, 40-40. The official decision was a draw.

Programs showered into the ring as Handler's decision was announced.

There were no knockdowns, but most ringsiders appeared to feel Wallace was scoring more often and heavier.

KITCHENER CAGERS WIN

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo YMCA Blues Thursday night ran away in the second half of the opening game for the all-Ontario intermediate basketball title to post a 90-57 victory over Sudbury White Eagles. The best-of-three series resumes here today.

JAHA PRESIDENT DIES

MONTREAL (CP)—George (Buster) Horwood, 49, president of the Quebec Junior Amateur Hockey Association for the last three years died suddenly at his home Friday night. U. OF ALBERTA WINS

EDMONTON (CP)—University of Alberta Golden Bears Friday night advanced into the Western Canada Senior men's basketball final as they edged University of Manitoba Varsity Grads 80-76 in the second game of a best-of-three semi-final series.

Flin Flon Plays Under Protest

FLIN FLON, Man. (CP)—Flin Flon Bombers announced Thursday night they will play the remaining games of their Western Memorial Cup semifinal playoff with Lethbridge Native Sons under protest.

The announcement was made shortly before Bombers, champions of the Saskatchewan Junior League, met Lethbridge in the third game of their best-of-seven series. Lethbridge won it 8-4 and leads 3-0 in games.

The protest was the latest development in one of the hottest hockey rhubarbs to develop in Western Canada in years. Centre of the dispute is 20-year-old Mid Houghton, all-star defenceman with Calgary Buffaloes, who was awarded to Lethbridge Native Sons as a medical replacement for three injured defencemen.

It followed statements by the Lethbridge board of directors and Jimmy Dunn of Winnipeg, vice-president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Bomber officials said they had received no "satisfactory reply" from the CAHA to a plea made Wednesday that the CAHA reconsider the awarding of Houghton to Lethbridge.

In Winnipeg, Dunn indicated another vote may be taken on the matter. He said George Dudley of Midland, Ont., CAHA secretary, evidently misunderstood and had given out that he (Dunn) approved the replacement.

Dunn added that Dudley informed him that a protest was in the mail from the Thunder Bay Association, and, due to many mixups, there was a possibility a second vote would be taken by the CAHA branches.

In Lethbridge, the Sons' board of directors said the club asked for three replacements because it thought no club should be asked to take part in Memorial Cup playoffs with three-fourths of its regular defence corps out with injuries.

Tri-Bells Edge Gunners 68-58

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont (CP) —Captain Glen Pettinger Friday night led Toronto Nortown Tri-Bells to the Ontario senior basketball title with a 68-58 victory over Sault Ste. Marie Gunners.

The victory, second straight for Toronto in the best-of-three series, advanced Tri-Bells into the Eastern Canada finals against Ottawa Brooks.

Pettinger potted 18 points—16 in a furious last-half assault that saw Toronto come from behind for the second time in two games Tri-Bells trailed 35-19 at the half and 50-42 at the end of the third quarter but outscored the Gunners 26-8 in the final quarter.

Ray Monnot with 10 points, Ray Thomas with nine and Umie Cooper with eight also helped overcome the Gunners. Larry Kozak, playing one of the best games, notched 18 for the losers. Jerry Kahle with 14 and Lou Lukenda with 10 also showed well for Sault Ste. Marie.

7-4 Favorite Wins Australian Handicap

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Backed down to 7-to-4 favoritism by a flood of £100,000 in recent weeks, Tarien won the Doncaster Mile Handicap at Sydney's Randwick race track today.

The victory of the imported English four-year-old mare heavily hit bookmakers. Not only was she heavily backed to win the Doncaster, but bettors also coupled her in doubles with Carioca, the favorite for Monday's Sydney Cup race.

Tarien, a chestnut daughter of Tehran out of Oriens, beat Tricilinium, a 100-to-1 shot, by 1¼ lengths. Iroquois, 14 to 1, was third another 1½ lengths back in the field of 23.

Tarien ran the mile in 1:35.2.

MANILA (AP)—A Roman Catholic priest collapsed in the pulpit on Good Friday while delivering a sermon on the last words of Christ and died shortly afterwards. Worshippers in San Sebastian Church and thousands of radio listeners heard Father Felix Martinez, 57, of Burgos, Spain, utter the words "consummatum est" (It is finished). At the moment he gripped the microphone and slid to the floor, victim of a heart attack.

Refuse Damage Award

HOOD RIVER, Ore. (AP) — A jury refused Friday night to award $120,000 damages to a man and his wife because they were bodily ejected from a Baptist church during a prayer meeting in 1951. The nine deacons, against whom the assault and battery suit was filed, contended that Sheridan Grant Delepine, 53, was guilty of moral misconduct in living for five years with the woman he later married.

Test Mine Safety Lamp

NOTTINGHAM (Reuters) — A new safety lamp for miners will be tested by the British government. The oil lamp not only shows red when gas is in the pit but also sounds an alarm bell when plugged into the pit alarm unit. Older models have flashed a red light indicating danger of gas, but a miner intent on his work was unlikely to notice it.

LONDON (AP) — More than 730,000 tourists spent £78,000,000 in Britain in 1952, the board of trade announced Friday. This compared with 712,000 tourists and £75,000,000 in 1951. U. S. tourists spent a record total of dollars—$82,000,000 —compared with $70,000,000 in '51.

Giants' Mound Star In '20s, Benton Dies

CINCINNATI (AP)—Larry Benton, 56, one-time pitching star for New York Giants, collapsed and died on a golf course Friday.

Benton was signed by Boston Braves in 1923. Four years later he went to the Giants where he enjoyed his greatest success. He won 25 games and lost nine in 1928 and led the National League in pitching that year.

Benton came to the Cincinnati Reds from New York in a trade for Hughey Critz, second baseman, in 1930.

Dutchmen Meet Sudbury In 6th

KITCHENER (CP)—Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen will use a little more caution and Sudbury Wolves will show a little more confidence when they tangle here tonight in the sixth game of the all-Ontario Eastern Canada senior hockey semi-finals.

The Wolves, at one time down 2-0 in the best-of-seven series, tied the third game and won the next two by slim margins to pull even. The seventh game will be played on neutral ice—either Toronto or Guelph.

The fifth game in Sudbury Thursday, won by the Wolves 5-4, was mild compared to the previous matches. Two of the three penalties went to Sudbury but all scoring was done with the teams at full strength.

Don Rope and Harry Psutka gave the Dutchmen a 2-0 lead in the first period but Sudbury roared back with three in the second. Red Barrett, Gordie Heale and Roly McLenahan were the Wolves' marksmen.

The persistent Dutchies again stole the lead in the third on goals by Jack McKenzie and Maurice Levesque. McLenahan fired his second of the night to tie it up for Sudbury at 14:10 of the final period. Tatter McLellan pulled the trigger 2½ minutes before the end of the game for the winning goal.

Free's Counter In Overtime Give C's Game

CAMPBELLFORD—(ENS)— In the best game of the current TVL hockey finals, Campbellford edged Wellington Dukes 8-7 in overtime last night in Belleville. This gives Campbellford a 3-1 margin in the best-of-seven series, the next game being Tuesday in Belleville.

Though minus Craig (out with an injury) and Payne, who was suspended one game for a fight in the previous tilt, the C's turned in excellent hockey against strong opposition before 1,839 noisy fans. Free was awarded a goal late in the second period when the rival goalie threw his stick at him in an attempt to stop a score. Doug Free also got the winner in overtime on a breakaway. He, Eady and Goalie Nelson starred throughout for the winners.

Eady scored first for Campbellford from Free, and Herrington later made it 2-0. Cousins counted one from Hatfield and Goyer for the Dukes before the frame finished. Wilson, Free and Herrington drew minor penalties in the initial inning.

Scott tied it early in the second but Jeffs came back with a neat marker from Simpson. Eady lengthened the lead on a solo and, after York scored from Hearst, Jeffs broke through with Simpson to tally, and Free was given a goal on interference by the goalie. Cousins and Hearst each drew two penalties, and Eady, Taylor and Herrington one each.

Wellington rolled for four in the third to tie it up, though Free counted one from Eady. Twigg, Scott, Goyer and Pettingill were the Dukes' marksmen, Hatfield, Pettingill, Hears, York, Scott and Goyer each earning one assist on neat combination plays. Wilson drew the lone penalty. At 9.50 of the overtime heat, Free broke away to tally the winner.

Home In Staples Family Since Built 130 Years Ago

By MRS. H. C. ARGUE

CAVAN — (ENS) —Sylvan Sward" the spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Sanfield Staples, lot 5, concession 9, Cavan, is situated on the farm which has been in the Staples name for approximately 130 years.

Mr. Staples' father, Richard Staples obtained the land from the Crown in 1823—250 acres in all.

He cleared a few acres and erected a small log house to comply with the regulations of the crown deed which called for a small dwelling house, to be erected within three years after the purchase of the land. He also built a log barn.

As time went on more land was cleared and a larger log house built. The barns were also enlarged and added to. Part of the old log house was moved over near the barn buildings where it still stands and is used from time to time for stabling stock.

IRISH ORIGIN

The Staples family originally came from Wexford, Ireland. "Young" Richard Staples, as he was called, was the first member of the family to came to Canada, some few years prior to 1818. He settled on the west half of lot 15 in the 9th concession of Cavan.

Through his glowing descriptions of the country in letters to his friends back home, others were induced to come over and seek their fortunes in this new land. Among them were members of the Swain family. They were accompanied by Young Richard's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Staples and other members of the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Staples were then over 70 years old and the long, hazardous journey was so trying on Mrs. Staples that she became very ill and died at sea. Her husband and family, not wishing to have her body cast overboard, kept her death a secret and on reaching land she was buried in a quiet spot on the Canadian shore.

It was Young Richard's son, Richard, who moved a few miles to the southwest and bought the land where his son, Mr. R. Sanfield Staples now lives.

Mr. Staples and his four sisters grew up on this farm and attended Matchett's School.

Two sisters, Mrs. Ralph Richardson (Margaret) and Elizabeth, a trained nurse who practised in Victoria, B.C., for a number of years before retiring and moving to Toronto, are deceased. Two sisters are living in Toronto. They are Belva, who trained for a nurse in Chicago, later going to New Mexico where she nursed till she retired a few years ago, and Mrs. J. S. Woodsworth, whose husband was national leader of the CCF party for a number of years. Mrs. Woodsworth lived in many parts of the prairie provinces and later in Ottawa while her husband was a member of the House of Commons.

BUILT IN 1891

In 1891 Mr. Staples helped his father build the splendid white brick house which now stands on the farm. It is surrounded by fine old spruce and maple trees which afford plenty of cool shade in summer.

It was to this home Mr. Staples brought his bride, Ethel M. Sharpe, a daughter of pioneer settlers of Cavan and a school teacher by profession. She spent several years in Texas before their marriage which took place on June 5, 1901.

They had four sons who grew up on the farm and received their early education at Matchett's School. Richard Osborne Staples is a teacher on the staff of Toronto Normal School. Ralph Sharp Staples, who has been superintendent of the Co-operative Life Insurance Co. of Canada for six years, was recently appointed president of the Co-operative Union of Canada with head office at Ottawa. At present he and his wife and their three children are living in Toronto.

David Neville Staples is superintendent of ten of the Dow Chemical plants at Sarnia and he and his wife make their home there.

Gordon, who received the degree of BSA at OAC, Guelph, is managing the farm. He married Muriel Hanna of Bethany and they and their three boys occupy part of the house which has been divided into two apartments. It is fully modernized with electricity and running water.

GOLDEN WEDDING

On June 5, 1951, Mr. and Mrs. Staples celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, when their children, grandchildren and close relatives held a family gathering in the afternoon. In the evening Open House was kept when friends from far and near called on this esteemed couple, who have always been known for their gracious hospitality and their help in Cavan United Church and community affairs.

They are both in excellent health and Mr. Staples takes great interest in the affairs of the farm where dairying and mixed farming are carried on. They have a choice herd of Jersey cows and also some Holsteins.

About 220 acres have been cleared and there is a splendid wood lot of 30 acres where fuel is obtained for heating the house. There is also a fine trout stream running through the wood lot and part of the farm where tired city friends try their luck.

HUDDLED TOGETHER in ill-assorted clothing, Kikuyu tribesmen sit quietly in a police compound in Kenya after more than 200 of their number were identified by survivors as having taken part in last week's mass killing of 150 loyal Kikuyus, mostly women and children, at Lari on the outskirts of Nairobi. The massacre was one of the most brutal in a long series of acts of violence by the Mau Mau, a secret organization pledged in blood to drive the white man from the East African British colony.

Outline Fields Of Finance

What sort of opportunities the banking field and trust companies have to offer high school graduates was outlined to the PCVS students Wednesday in vocational guidance lectures given at the school.

Wilson M. Gemmell, manager of the Royal Bank, said there were unlimited opportunities in the banking business today. For banks now offer to all their employees special courses in all phases of banking. It was no longer considered the job for a quill pusher and the drudgery of the routine work is now done by business machines operated by trained stenographers.

The banking business today said Mr. Gemmell is considered to be a profession.

What opportunities the trust companies have to offer to high school graduates was outlined by C. A. Burton, personnel director for the National Trust Co. He described the four phases of business of trust companies: executors of private estates, transfer agents for large corporations, trustees of large issues of bonds to the public and the commercial banking field.

Both Mr. Burton and Mr. Gemmell emphasized to the students the need for matriculation before entering the trust or banking business.

Rev. G. D. Smith To Begin Ministry In Canada, Sunday

The Rev. D. Gilbert Smith who has been appointed to the pastoral charge of Peterborough South and Knox Presbyterian Church, Keene, will commence his ministry on Sunday. Mr. Smith, a native of Ireland, arrived this week from his homeland. In Ireland he has for the past 10 years been minister Magheragall Presbyterian Church, Lisburn and in Canada is under appointment of the Board of Missions of the Presbyterian Church.

The congregation of Peterborough South commenced holding services in Confederation School last October. Since then the congregation has been worshipping in the kindergarten room but now has found the space not large enough and on Sunday the service will be held, for the first time, in a much larger basement room.

Along with the special music which will be provided by the choir on Sunday, the string ensemble will be heard commencing at 10.45 a.m.

The service at Keene is called for 9.30 a.m. and Confederation School at 11.00 a.m.

In Lisburn Mr. Smith took a keen interest in youth work both in the church and with youth movements not directly connected with the church. Before going to Magheragall he served in Agnes Street Church, Belfast and Trinity Church, Bangor. He is also well known in the world of sport, having played hockey for Lisnagarvey for several years and represented Ulster on many occasions. Although he never played for Ireland he was sub on three occasions for the famous triple crown team of 1938-39. He was also selected to play for the British Universities against the European Universities. He is a double Blue of Queens and Edinburgh. He also played cricket for Lisburn and was captain of the First eleven when they won the senior cup in 1946.

Mr. Smith was educated at Foyle College, Trinity College, Dublin and the University of Edinburgh (New College).

Before leaving Ireland Mr. Smith was honored by the Lisburn Cricket Club and the Lisnagarvey Hockey Club at which it was said he had raised the standard of sport in Lisburn "for he approached it from the proper angle that it was the game that mattered and not the result."

His own congregation in Lisburn presented him with a cheque and paid tribute to his work there especially among the young people.

New Sewer Line Proposed For South, West Confirms Prediction Of Former Mayor

The south reach of the west-side main sewer project is already completed and in use. It extends down Monaghan Road from the vicinity of Braidwood Ave. to McKellar St., and there turns east to Park St. in the trunk sewer ending at the sewage disposal plant on the Otonabee side of the river.

City Engineer Chalmers doesn't take much credit for that foresight when he was planning the sewer connections in the first stage of the development of the McKellar housing subdivision. To him it was an accomplished fact when he was recently outlining to the council the route of the sewer job that has yet to be done from Western Avenue through an old creek bed up beyond the end of Weller St.

Estimated cost of the work that remains to be done was recently reported as being approximately $100,000.

Instead of scanning the westside sewer from its north end, it can be just as readily approached on the draft board and from the layman's point of view from a point on Monaghan Rd. south of the CNR and Edison Ave. The course of the sewer has not yet been decided, but in the preliminaries at the last meeting of the board of works it transpired that the city owns a strip of land westerly from Monaghan Rd. to the CNR in the neighborhood of the end of Edison Ave.

BEGIN AT BRAIDWOOD

So, the route would begin, according to that proposal, about the end of Braidwood, turn west south of the CNR, cross under the railway and continue westerly to Erskine Ave. A map of the city shows an unopened street named Borden Ave., paralleling Lansdowne St. There is a little nest of four streets in the property north of the CNR. opposite the end of High St.

Greer and Bell Sts. run north and south, Borden and Laurier east and west. It might be that Borden would be opened and extended from Erskine Ave. easterly to the CNR near Monaghan Rd.

That is a detail route which has yet to be decided. Coming out at Erskine and turning north, the sewer would be laid to Lansdowne St. past the north end of the city's industrial sites property, which used to be owned and used by the late John Williams. The next link would be from the north end of Erskine to Western Ave., then up Western to the present end at Chamberlain St.

From Chamberlain to Highway 28 or Clonsilla Ave. an intervening link of the entire project has been built. The new Clonsilla sewer turns south at Western, and continues along Chamberlain St. to Monaghan Rd.

The completed pipe line on Western was laid as eventually an integral section of the main west-side sewer.

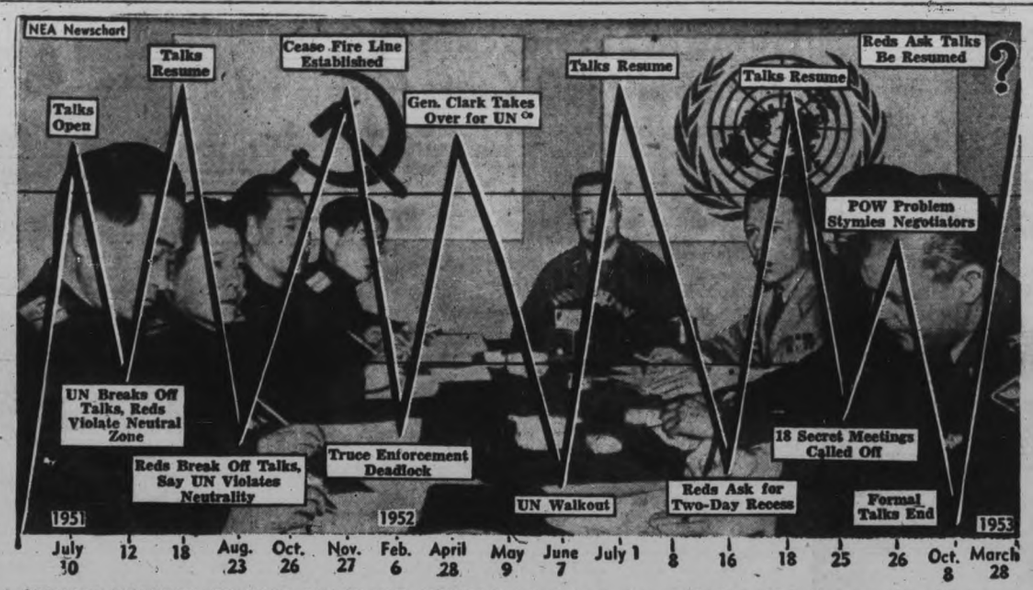
FOLLOW CREEK

The remaining stretch to be laid starts from Highway 28, crosses Sherbrooke St. and would generally follow the creek bed along the east side of Hugh Stewart's Hilltop Farm. Finally it migh be projected further to the extension of Parkhill Road.

Conception of the main sewer along that west side of the city goes back to the mayoralty of Roland Denne. He was so impatient for the expansion of Peterborough that he visualized the sewer as an encroaching necessity. Mr. Denne used to argue that if that work was done the residential movement of the city would certainly be out and over the Weller St. hill.

Roy H. Parsons as city engineer endorsed that long view, as it then appeared. For further confirmation, Mr Denne had the late John W. Pierce, OLS, drive out and look over the topography for his opinion. To them that route was a natural course.

However, in the Denne days there was no immediacy of demand. Urgency drowsed until Mr. Chalmers became city engineer and the wartime surge of subdivision development applied pressure for sewer, water and other services east and west of Park St. and south of Lansdowne St.



FIRST STEP

As the mapping of sewers looked across the market garden fields from Park St. to Monaghan Rd., one of the first demands for conveniences in new homes was in the McKellar subdivision. That was when Mr. Chalmers, with council approval, took the first step of building for the future sewer service along the west front of the city and up through the little valley at the foot of the Civic Hospital slope.

The Monaghan Road sewer was fitted into the scheme, and it may be that the route will open up Borden Ave. as it is outlined on the engineer's map. North of Highway 28 several details of property acquisition remain unsettled; that was the intimation at the recent meeting of the board of works. One parcel also remained doubtful on the north side of Sherbrooke St.

However, disposition of the council was in favor of expropriation if owners were determined to hold out for their level of values of the land which used be nothing more than a swale in North Monaghan township.

Incidentally, property owners on Lansdowne St. between High St. and Western Ave. have petitioned the council for a sewer. Another request is from two service stations at Monaghan Rd. and Lansdowne. That would require trenching in considerable depth if a sewer is laid from Lansdowne south on Monaghan Rd. to Edison.

"TRUCE-OMETER" TRACES PULSE OF KOREAN PEACE TALKS—The recent Chinese Communist move to reinstitute the Korean peace talks has caused hopes of the free world to rise, but before you become too optimistic, you had better have a look and see how previous hopes were dashed. Newschart above shows how world aspirations have soared to optimism and plummeted to pessimism and crisis with each turn of the Korean truce negotiations.

DETROIT (CP) — A mother and two children were rescued Friday after their old model car went out of control and plunged into nearby Lake St. Clair.

Rescued were Mrs. Sue Cole, 24, Marlene, 5, and seven-months-old Emilie. The younger child was trappen inside the car five minutes before being rescued.

Mrs. Cole said she doesn't know how the accident happened. "All of a sudden we were in the water," she said.

Michael Gates, 34, jumped into the water and pulled the mother ashore. Others rescued the children.

Proper Working Levels Ease Women's Back Kinks, Aches

Many a woman who has complained about kinks in her back and who "always felt tired" has eventually found relief, not in pills and nostrums but in getting her plumber to adjust the levels of her sinks and wash tubs.

Obviously, different persons require different working levels. And, if the working levels of the various plumbing fixtures in a house are right for one person, they are wrong for another of a different height. If these surfaces are too low for a tall woman, she has to stoop uncomfortably to her work. Conversely, if they are too high for a short woman, she has to lift the dishes or clothes awkwardly and with strain. Yet, if the variation from correct height is not extreme, many persons will suffer for years without realizing what is causing the trouble.

If the existing levels are too low, get your plumber to raise them. If they are too high, get him to lower them. But if, and this is the case in many homes, they are too low for one person who uses them and too high for another, then get the plumber to adjust them for the tall person and let the shorter person use a low step or stool when working.

Survey the Plumbing

But before you call your plumber to adjust your working levels, make a survey of your household plumbing and heating so that, if there are other adjustments needed, he can do them all at the same time and so save precious hours of skilled labor so urgently needed.

With replacements of plumbing fixtures rather difficult every householder should exercise a little extra care in helping to keep enameled plumbing fixtures in good condition.

The first rule to remember is that enameled surfaces should never be scraped or cut. Such surfaces are made of the same material as glass, whether white or colored, and should be treated the same as though they were glass. Scratches will not only mar the surface, they will invite acids to cut deeper and eventually eat away the enameled surface itself. Always think of your enameled surfaces as you do of your teeth. One little cavity, such as caused by a scratch, chip or gouge, can lead to real trouble. The point is that the surface not the "below the surface" is resistant.

When preparing vegetables, don't shred greens, slice fruits, etc., on the enameled drainboards. Don't drag or scape pots, pans or dishes.

Then There's the Laundry

Your home should have a modern laundry, laid out and equipped for efficiency, located and furnished for dryness, well-lighted, well-ventilated, cheerfully decorated, easy to clean and maintain, and supplied with plenty of hot, soft water. Here are a number of points to check in planning an efficient laundry room:

1. Tubs located so that waste and supply pipes are readily available.
2. Sorting tables or bins located near entrance door or chute.
3. Other equipment arranged in order of use to save steps.
4. Natural light available, and artificial light provided.

Plenty of electric outlets available.

6. Indoor drying or plenty of space for pulling out racks if drier is used.
7. Cabinets for mending and laundering supplies.

The laundry should be immediately accessible to drying yard, kitchen, telephone. Pieces of equipment should be placed in order of use. Minimum-essential equipment will include: two-compartment tub with swinging, water-mixing faucet and no surface or finish to rust; drying racks or lines; ironing facilities. Next in order of importance and as you can afford them will come: washer, storage cabinets, ironer, drier—and finally, toward perfection, sorting tables and bins, additional storage space, hot plate, siphon pump for emptying washer and receptacles, clock, ventilating fans, and extra tubs.

Tubs should be installed at correct height, and corners and rims should be rounded so that dirt won't accumulate and corners will not tear clothing or cause personal injury. Swinging-spout faucets with hose connections will distribute water to tubs and washer without bucket-lifting.

2 Couples Flee Burning Car When Doors Jam

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — Two Peterborough couples escaped burning when they managed to pry open the door of their car which overturned in a ditch one mile south-east of here about 4 p.m. Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald McNeil, 108 Aylmer St., and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Martin, 513 Sherbrooke St., were taken to Campbellford hospital by Bennett's ambulance and treated for shocks and bruises by Dr. W. K. Taylor before being released.

The car, which was driven by 29-year-old Mr. McNeil, was proceeding north on the Stirling road towards Campbellford when it apparently struck a soft shoulder. It rolled over in the east ditch and landed on its roof against a fence facing the opposite direction.

The car took fire and when the passengers tried to get out they found that the doors had jammed but they managed to pry open one of the doors before anyone was burned. The 1941-model car was a total loss.

OPP Constable Archie Eedie of the Campbellford detachment investigated. No charges will be laid.

39 Earlier Coronations

William and Mary walked through the Abbey side by side with the Sword of State between them. The Queen's sister, Princess Anne, who was on bad terms with the Queen, remarked: "Madam, I pity your fatigue." "A Crown, sister, is not so heavy as it seems," answered the Queen sharply.

Anne herself became Queen in March 1702. She was then only thirty-seven, but gout and child-bearing (she buried sixteen) had taken their toll, so that on the day of her coronation she had to be carried to Westminster Hall in a sedan chair at about eleven o'clock in the morning. During the ceremony the two supporting Bishops got more than they bargained for: it is said that not only did they have to support the heavy Crown, but, when she was standing, the Queen herself.

MAGNIFICENT GEORGE

One of the most magnificent of coronations was that of George IV in 1821. "Prinny"—as Prince Regent he gained the title of "The First Gentleman of Europe"—personally supervised the details of dress and ceremonial. The occasion was remarkable for the fact that the King announced he would not let Queen Caroline either be crowned with him or attend the ceremony. The unhappy Queen did, however, make an undignified attempt to gate-crash the Abbey.

One even more unusual aspect of "Prinny's" coronation was that more than half of its cost was defrayed by France. Since Parliament voted only £100,000 for the occasion, the Government appropriated a further £138,238.0s.2d. "out of Money received from France on Account of pecuniary indemnity, under Treaty, Anno 1815." One item in the coronation bill was £8,205.15s. "for Snuff Boxes for Foreign Ministers."

2,000 CANDLES

The day of the ceremony was very hot and in the Abbey "Prinny's" great weight of clothing all but overpowered him. At one point in the service he retired out of sight and took off all his finery in an attempt to cool himself. At the banquet that followed, two thousand wax candles added to the general discomfort. "The very great heat," wrote a witness, "was nowhere more visible than in the havoc which it made upon the curls of many of the ladies..." Great drops from the wax candles fell upon all and sundry.

When it was all over, "Prinny" was advised to return home to Carlton House by a detour, in order to avoid a hostile crowd that had gathered upon the advertised route. This he did, the cavalcade taking in its stride a bridge that had been condemned many years before as unsafe. During this return drive the King "was horribly nervous, and kept continually calling to the officers of the escort to keep well up to the carriage windows." It was a fitting end to a memorable day.

Solving Problem Utility Room Noise

Utility room noise in modern, one-floor, basementless homes, can be prevented or reduced in two ways, authorities point out. First, careful attention to the location of the utility room as a preventative measure is suggested. Second, where utility room noise is transmitted to other parts of the house, some degree of sound absorption using acoustical materials reduces annoyance.

With the coming of the basementless house and utility room often placed next to or adjacent to living or bedrooms, complaints are sometimes made that some heating equipment noise is being heard. The reason for this new noise source is evident. Previously the furnace or heating unit was placed in the cellar surrounded with thick cement walls and covered overhead with wood flooring. While some noises could be heard it was low enough intensity not to bother the occupants.

If good construction materials and efficient heating units are used they should not be blamed completely for this noise. It may be simply a matter of placement. In trying to make everything as compact as possible to save valuable space, sometimes the utility room may have been located too close to the living quarters.

Unfortunately we cannot brush off the problem by saying don't put it there. It is there and it will stay there because of space limitation. The question is what can be done about it. The use of acoustical materials on the ceiling and dividing walls will help absorb much of the sound. Usually it will absorb enough to bring the noise level down to a point where it is no longer annoying. It won't cut out all the noise but it may solve the problem.

If it isn't possible to place the utility room away from the living quarters and to use heavier construction around the room, then the use of sound conditioning materials is the only solution.

ORPHANAGE FIRE—A portion of blazing wall starts to collapse as firemen battle the fire that swept through St. Joseph's Home for Boys in Englewood Cliffs, N.J. Cameramen below were unaware of the falling debris, but none of them was hurt. Police said that all of the orphanage children as well as personnel were removed safely from the building which was completely destroyed.

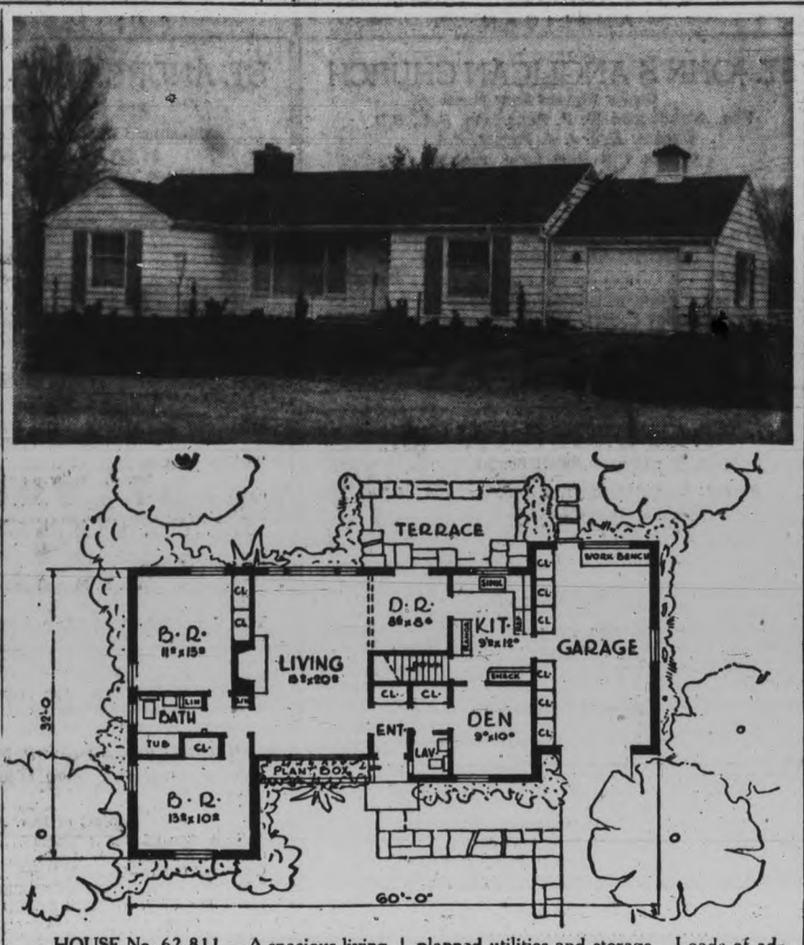
Easter Brings Immortality Close To Men

Immortality and life after death is crowded out of our minds and lives every day of the year. But on Easter it is brought strikingly before us. For Easter is the pivot on which the whole Christian word is based, said the Rev. Gordon Maxwell Thursday, addressing the Kiwanis club.

There is nothing totally Christian about immortality, Mr. Maxwell went on to say. "Our faith and belief is that we were made for tomorrow, the after life in the Kingdom of God."

"Science cannot prove to us that there is a God. But they have given us hints that this world of ours is a slow process of evolution guided by God's hand.



"The instincts that we possess and the marvels of nature in the spring, seeing life slowly awakening after being asleep all winter and the creation of new life is surely proof that there is a living God."

"Paul said that we brought nothing into this world and we will take nothing when we leave it. All that we will take with us is ourselves. The life we will enter will never end and we should make this life a preparing one, fo the life to come.

"Christ said we should be busy accumulating the spiritual things in life, not material gain. 'Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven.'"

The Bible is very hazy on how it describes heaven, and Jesus says there are many rooms in my father's house. But does not say what these rooms are like. For knowing God, is life after death.

Charles Huffman introduced Mr. Maxwell and Max Kaye thanked him.

Red Troops Stationed 40 Miles East Of Canadians

Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff correspondent with the Canadian forces in Korea since 1950, has spent three weeks in Germany with the 27th Canadian infantry brigade. In this story, one of a series, he describes the brigade's position in the over-all scheme of western defence, and its training program.

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HANNOVER, Germany (CP)—Brig. John Pangman of Toronto, commander of the 27th Canadian brigade here, says his unit's only target is to be ready to fight on a moment's notice.

"That must always be our first consideration," he said. "Because we're close to the border, we're always conscious of our responsibility."

Communist troops are only 40 miles east of the brigade position in this part of lower Saxony, adjacent to the Iron Curtain.

UNIQUE ASSIGNMENT

His troops are part of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization force in Western Europe. Their assignment is unique in Canadian military history.

Never before has Canada had a garrison brigade in peacetime, either at home or abroad. Never before have so many Canadian troops been concentrated so long under peacetime conditions near a big city.

Even when he's off duty, the Canadian soldier here is on parade. Unless he has rank of sergeant or higher, he must always wear uniform and live in an artificial atmosphere of military urgency.

Alone among NATO troops, the Canadian brigade is geared to the idea that "the balloon may go up tomorrow."

WITH BRITISH TROOPS

Grouped with the 6th, 7th and 11th British armored divisions and the 1st British infantry division in a British corps, they chafe under restrictions, imposed by Canada, which do not apply to their British comrades.

During my three weeks with the brigade I heard the same refrain possibly 100 times from officers and other ranks. There is reason to believe Brig. Pangman shares the feeling. Within the limitations of policy directives from Ottawa he is easing the restrictive regulations he inherited with the command last December.

Essentially the Canadians' job is to train against the day when they may have to fight. Unlike the other troops in their corps, they have no occupation duties.

The Canadians are in an otherwise all-British corps, commanded by Lt.-Gen. Sir James Cassels, former commander of the 1st Commonwealth division in Korea and a familiar figure to the 25th Canadian brigade there. His corps is part of the northern army group commanded by Gen. Sir Richard Gale. Gale can use the Canadians as he sees fit.

They are reputed in good fighting shape. Every commanding officer says he would have no hesitation in taking his men into battle. British divisional commanders compete to have the brigade exercise with their formations.

"They are as good as any other brgades in this zone," said Pangman.

But the forced pace at which the brigade has functioned, compared with other formations with which it is grouped, is reflected in its attitude toward its work. The men complain about the monotony of their drills, lectures and exercises, and about the restrictions which isolate them from normal off-duty-hours social life.

One battalion commander said: "What are we doing here? If it's operational duty, why isn't everyone else doing it? If it's garrison duty, the soldier should be free to do as he wants between 5 p.m. and reveille."

The brigade's winter-training program has ended. It saw the formation absorb 1,800 replacements, and brush up on basic drills and small-scale exercises.

Spring training began April 1, when units began reviewing company and battalion training. Later they will exercise with the 7th British armored division, the famed "Desert Rats" with whom Canada's Berlin battalion entered Berlin July 4, 1945, and stress battle drills.

Beginning July 1, Canadian battalions will exercise at Sennelager in the Ruhr, and perhaps corps exercises will begin Sept 1 to stress the counter-attack and the containing battle.

The fall program, beginning Oct. 1, will see the brigade prepare for rotation with fresh troops from Canada.

During the fall, too, the brigade will move to a new area in the Ruhr bounded roughly by the towns of Soest, Werl and Iserlohn, with lovely Lake Mohne just west of centre. The units will be dispersed among four major sectors, where barrack camps now are being built by German labor at German cost.

Col. H. A. Phillips of Halifax, commander of Canadian base units in Europe who is responsible for the project, said:

"One advantage of these camp sites is they're in the country, away from the city atmosphere. When men are near a city like Hannover all year round, they think in terms of the immediate area only. We have men who don't even go away on leave. In the Soest area, to get away from camp they'll have to go some place."

Phillips said he thinks that in Soest the men will spread among hundreds of villages and make friends as the Canadians did in England during the Second World War after they got out of Aldershot.

On Lake Mohne, Phillips is trying to provide a Canadian club where soldiers can relax near their units. He said possibility of inviting the Canadian Red Cross to help is in the "thinking stage."

NEAR IRON CURTAIN — The first peacetime garrison force in Canada's military history is based at Hannover, Germany, just 40 miles from Communist troops behind the Iron Curtain. Field exercises are held in surrounding districts. Here at Putlos ranges, 175 miles north of Hannover, officers and men of the 1st Canadian Infantry Battalion hear a lecture on tactics by Lt.-Col. G. M. C. Sprung of Ottawa, officer commanding.—(CP Photo.)

Paint Your House When Weather Warms

By MR. FIX

After the weatherman turns off the April showers, many home owners are bound to step out in the glowing sunshine full of good humor and ambition to paint their houses.

Whether they still have their good cheer when the job is done depends, for one thing, upon how good a job it is. A few timely tips may preserve their house-painting humor.

First of all, don't paint until the weather is clear, dry and the temperature is above 40 degrees F.

Paint only the shady side of the house when the weather is excessively hot, especially when painting wood trim, is the advice of one paint manufacturer. The hot sun may cause rapid evaporation of paint solvents, which results in a "skin" forming on the surface, trapping the remaining solvents beneath it. This eventually causes "gas blistering."

Don't paint over a surface that is wet or damp, and stop painting before late afternoon dampness sets in.

On previously painted houses, apply one or two coats of exterior house paint. On badly weathered surfaces, apply a coat of wood primer and a finish coat.

But prepare all surfaces before starting. They should be as clean as possible; nail down loose boards; putty nail holes after applying first coat; remove loose or checked paint with wire brush or scraper; sandpaper glossy areas to give "tooth" for finish; sand and dust previously painted surfaces that have weathered normally; remove loose putty on window lights, prime the exposed wood and apply fresh putty.

To paint, use a brush about four inches wide on large areas, a two-and-a-half-inch to three-inch brush for small areas and a sash tool for window sash. Don't submerge the whole length of the bristles in the paint bucket.

Start at an upper corner of one side of the house and work down, trying to finish one day's work at another corner or window to avoid laps or streaks when you resume painting the next day.

In painting clapboard siding, cover about six feet in a sweep before moving down to the next board.

Save painting shutters and trim until last. Remove shutters and place them on boxes or saw horses to paint. Use shutter paints, for pigment of house paints is inclined to wash down over surfaces below and cause streaks.

Use a wire brush to remove loose paint and rust from metal roofs, gutters, downspouts and flashing and apply a metal primer to cover the exposed metal before brushing on the finish coat.

Good paint-brush care pays off, so it is always wise to suspend brushes in enough linseed oil to cover the bristles when your painting day is ended. The brushes shouldn't touch the bottom of the container.

Cover the paint can tightly to store paint overnight. If a film forms on top of the paint, remove it—don't stir it in.

FIX-IT FORUM

Q—What is recommended as a heat-resistant paint coating?

A—Silicone resins are among the best, according to the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association. They may be applied by brushing, silk-screening, spraying, dipping or roller coating.

PREPARATION OF THE SURFACES is more than half the battle of house-painting and important to the durability of the coating.

Easter In The Churches Easter In Soul Different

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, DD.

I have chosen my title in the belief that Easter in the soul may be something different from, and something more than, Easter in the churches.

On Easter Sunday many churches that ordinarily have a single service will have two services to accommodate the crowds with all pews filled at each service.

Yet on the following Sunday in many of these same churches congregations at the usual service will have dwindled in many cases even below the normal attendance. I am not speaking from conjecture or from hearsay, but from what I have observed in long association with churches both in Canada and in the United States.

What, it might well be asked, lies back of this discrepancy? Is that abnormally large church attendance on Easter Sunday which is ostensibly a recognition of the Resurrection of Jesus and rejoicing in that supreme event, actually a matter of faith, or a matter of custom?

The name Easter has its origin in a pagan festival of Spring. Is the joy of Easter for many, little more than a pagan quickening to the Spring revival after the grimness of winter, with its symbolism in Spring bonnets and colorful apparel?

One does not wish to appear a cynic or pessimist; nor should one underestimate the number of people for whom the Easter celebration is a matter of deep sincerity.

Yet even for the sincerely religious there is a difference between the celebration of the Resurrection of Jesus as a far-off event in history, significant as that may be, and the celebration and recognition of the fact of an ever-present and living Christ.

If Easter were truly in the souls of the many for whom churchgoing on Easter Sunday is a formal matter, one cannot but reflect that their lives would be different in relation to the church, the Christ, and their fellowmen throughout the year.

Everything we celebrate in connection with the life, death, and Resurrection of Jesus is not to be limited to one day or season, but should be extended to every day and every season. I remember some years ago selecting for an ordinary service, one of the hymns more commonly sung at Christmastime. My organist, a very good and thoughtful organist, objected "But it's not Christmas."

My reply was, "It is always Christmas." And that is true. Unless the fact of Christmas, the coming of the Christ, is in our hearts the year round, our celebration on December 25 has little reality in Christian faith.

This is true of the Resurrection. Its vital message is not only that Jesus rose from death but is also in the words and promise of Jesus: "Lo, I am with you always" (Matthew 28: 20).

That promise, of course, was made to those whom He was sending out to spread the Gospel. If we were more concerned about the work of Christ and about living in His name, our Easter celebration would have the glory of communion with a living Lord. It would be an Easter in the church; but being Easter in the church, it would also have all the reality and richness of Easter in the soul.

Lovely Chinese Slave Girl Beloved By All People

By JEAN E. STENTON

PUEBLA. — One of the most beloved figures in Mexico is the Chinese princess who was brought to this country as a slave and whose home was in Puebla. Reminiscences of her graceful costume can be found across Mexico.

* * * *

The China Poblana was the daughter of a king or prince in far-off China. While in transit from her home to another land by ship, her vessel was seized by pirates and she was taken to the Manila slave market which was the centre of that trade in the Far East then.

* * * *

A merchant bought her and she was brought to Acapulco on Mexico's Pacific coast. There she was purchased from the merchant by Don Miguel de Sosa, a wealthy capitan who lived in Puebla. He recognized that she was no common slave and made her a present to his wife Dona Margarita de Chavez. She soon loved the Chinese princess and obtained her freedom.

* * * *

Mirra (Bitterness) gained her freedom in exchange for becoming a Christian and she was baptized with the name of Catarina de San Juan. Keeping alive memories of her homeland she had someone embroider on the broad hem of her skirt Chinese legends in mysterious, graphic forms. After that she was known to most of the city's inhabitants as the China Poblana.

* * * *

LOVED BY PEOPLE

Because of her kindness and goodness, the common people loved her so well they wanted to dress as she did and thus come nearer to her. The women began to imitate her garb and today whenever the daughters of Puebla wish to recall tradition they wear a replica of her gown.

* * * *

When Mirra's benefactors died, they left her the sole heir of their wealth. She became a nun and spent all her fortune to help the needy. When she died in 1688 it caused deep mourning. Her body was buried in La Compania Church, opposite my hotel, where it still rests.

* * * *

The other building opposite my hotel is the University of Puebla which has 1,400 students. Formerly a Jesuit college it is distinguished by spacious inner patios, pyramidal columns and simple classic fountains. Its library has some priceless volumes. The university was founded in 1551 and it had a tumultuous career as its fortunes rose and fell with that of the Jesuit order. It became a state college after a long time and on May 5, 1937 it was changed from a state college to a university.

* * * *

Two of the most famous things in Puebla are the Santa Monica convent and the Santa Rosa kitchen.

* * * *

SECRET CONVENT

The secret Convent of Santa Monica was founded in 1686. When the Reform Laws of the Constitution of 1857 were put into effect they forebade the continuation of convents all over the Republic. This convent continued to exist in violation of these laws and it was kept hidden for 77 years, only being discovered in 1934. The convent has now been made a Museum of Religious Art.

* * * *

The Santa Rose kitchen is one of the most original and interesting kitchens of the colonial epoch. It is all that is left of the convent in Santa Rosa. The famous dish "mole poblano" was cooked here for the first time by the nuns of Santa Rosa. Today it is the Museum of Ceramic Art.

* * * *

The largest of the towns near Puebla, Cholula was formerly the centre of the Toltec kingdom. The famed pyramid there is larger at its base than Cheops in Egypt. Recent excavations have uncovered that it is formed by seven pyramids one over the other and the age of which has not yet been determined. The pyramid was formerly dedicated to Quetzalcoatl. After the Spaniards captured the town they built a church on top of it.

* * * *

It is claimed there are 365 churches within a close radius of the town. When the Spaniards took the great religious centre they vowed to build a Christian Church on the side of every temple. They came near to completing their pledge because churches can be seen in every direction..

THROUGH THE NIGHT AND EARLY MORNING HOURS 28 Toronto and Peterborough cars took part in the first Peterborough Motor Sports rally. It was held primarily to test the drivers' abilities and the over-all efficiency of the cars. The route, about 350 miles, went from Peterborough to Kaladar to Golden Lake to Bancroft to Bobcaygeon and then Peterborough. Fred Thompson of Peterborough (right, above checks in Alan B. MANY HOLIDAY VISITORS

Crowds on the sidewalks, in stores and restaurants and also in traffic lines reflected today the festive spirit of the Easter weekend. Many familiar faces were an indication of holiday visits to former homes here in Peterborough and the district.

CHAIR DESTROYED

Fire, believed to have started from a misplaced cigarette butt, early Friday morning destroyed a chesterfield chair at the home of Joseph G. McFadden, 542 Rose Ave. The McFaddens took the chair outside where it smouldered away harmlessly. There was no smoke damage to the inside of the house.

TOT GETS BRUISED HEAD

Daniel Foster, 12-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Foster, received a bruised head when he was carried by his 13-year-old sister Olive into the side of a passing car on Thursday afternoon. Both were bowled over and the baby's head broke the window on the right front door of the car being driven north on Water St. by Nick Sullivan, 461 McDonnel St. Olive walked out from the curb carrying her baby brother and did not see the oncoming car. Constable Ed Patterson investigated.

Youth Burned Stamping Fire

A 14-year-old Millbrook district youth is in Civic Hospital today recovering from burns suffered when he attempted to stamp out a grass fire.

Reginald Gilmour, RR 2, Millbrook, saw the fire from his father's farmhouse and dashed off, alone, across two fields to see if he could extinguish it.

Attempting to stamp it out, he suffered burns to his hands and legs.

On his return to the house, a passing car driven by Charles Dew was hailed. Dew took the youth to a Millbrook doctor, who ordered him into Civic Hospital for treatment.

Meanwhile, district men attending a sawing bee nearby hurried to the scene of the fire and extinguished the flames. No cause of the blaze has been determined.

28 Cars Race Through Night In 350-Mile District Rally

By JOHN WYNNE-JONES

Twenty-eight cars, ranging from low slung convertible sports cars to more conventional type Canadian cars, speeded through the night on a 350-mile circuit north of Peterborough in the first sports car rally of the Peterborough Motor Sports Club. The cars started off from the City Hall parking lot Friday night from 10 o'clock on, the last ones came in today at the Exhibition grounds at 2 p.m. The results of the rally will be announced Wednesday after a careful checking of the complex scoring system.

There were 14 entries from Toronto and the rest were comprised of Peterborough fans and club members.

The Peterborough Motor Sports Club was founded last November by Dennis Williamson, Arnold Kelbrick, Chris Kallay, Fred Jones, Bill McKinnon and Bill Wesley. The motives for forming the club was to promote a bigger interest in motors, airplanes and boats and to increase the driving ability and improve the habits of drivers.

The object of the 350-mile road test was to test the drivers' ability and the over-all efficiency of the cars.

TWO TYPES CARS

The cars were placed in two categories. Cars up to a motor displacement of 2000 cc started at two-minute intervals from 10 p.m. on. These cars consisted of MG Midgets, Morris Minors and various other smaller English sports cars.

Larger cars with a diplacement over 2000 cc followed the smaller cars at two-minute intervals starting at 11 o'clock.

The rules of the contest were that there would be two drivers to a car. Drivers were given a limited time to reach each check point. If the driver failed to reach his check point on the time allotted him or he arrived three minutes early points were counted against him.

At each check point there was a 20-minute interval to give the drivers a chance to refuel and have something to eat. At the third check point at Bancroft they were given an hour for breakfast and a chance to make any major repairs to their cars.

The first scheduled stop was at Kaladar and the car that I was travelling in with Dennis Williamson and his co-driver Jack Warnel was a 1952 Monarch sedan. We arrived at Kaladar at 12:38 and checked out for Golden Lake, the second check point on the trip, at 12:58.

The talk at these various check point stations which were run by garagemen—who had kept their

Unable To Spend Money On Centre Until Get Site

Until City Council find a site for the proposed Memorial Centre the Memorial Centre Committee can't spend any money on construction.

That is the gist of a letter by Joseph A. Jebson, chairman of the committee, replying to a criticism voiced by the Peterborough Trades and Labor Council (TLC-AFL). The labor council proposed that work be gin on the Memorial Centre this year or the funds collected should be returned to the donors.

The labor council also suggested that Coronation Day would be a suitable day for the sod-turning ceremony.

In his reply Mr. Jebson points out that organized labor themselves have a representative on the committee. He is Harold Dormer of Local 248, International Typographical Union (TLC-AFL), who was appointed by the now-defunct Allied Labor Council.

A partial text of Mr. Jebson's letter of reply follows:

"I feel that your request is a natural one and I also feel that the public have been very patient in this matter but you have overlooked the main issue and one other fact.

"1. Your Private Bill reads that the City Council must provide a site for your building. Your committee is not allowed to spend your money until this is done.

"2. A man representing labor has from the very start, and still has, representation on your Memorial Committee in the person of Mr. H. Dormer (Peterborough Examiner).

(Mr. Dormer was appointed by the Allied Labor Council some time after the original committee was set up.)

"I have taken a lot of abuse and friendly criticism for many years but at the same time have worked hard in a quiet gentlemanly manner to see our job completed.

"In conclusion, may I impress upon you that you should address our City Council in this matter which I agree should be started—yes, started —in an atmosphere of enthusiasm and goodwill."

Last Hockey Tilt Set For Arena

Two OPP teams will likely provide the wind-up hockey at Civic Arena Tuesday night, Walter Smillie reported today.

Whitby and Peterborough districts of the Provincial Police move into the last spotlight of the long season on the Park St. ice. With all that access of authority, and perhaps a background of some of John Thompson's force, it should be an exemplary performance.

Then there is Monday night with a lot of door prizes and two games and the proceeds are a gift of the arena management to the local Minor Hockey Association.

Peterborough's Ontario champion Shamrock Bantams meet Keene Midgets, and Port Hope Juveniles hook up with the local Midget Aces.

This is a final chance for the fans to show their interest in Minor Hockey. As arena manager Smillie indicates, the Monday and Tuesday programs terminate the winter. After that, the arena will be promptly defrosted.

Man's Fall From Bike Proves Fatal

Thomas Tyler, 71 Dies In Minutes Of Fractured Skull

Thomas Tyler, 71, of 710 Orpington Rd. died of a fractured skull within a few minutes of falling from his motorbike to the pavement Thursday afternoon. The fatal accident occurred on Concession Rd., just west of Johnston's greenhouse, in North Monaghan township.

Grace Dilauro, 13, of 11 Lloyd Ave., the only witness to the accident, said she saw Tyler go by on his motorbike, driving east in a normal manner. Suddenly he doubled up and fell to the pavement, striking the right side of his head.

He lay for about 10 minutes in a pool of blood and was dead before he arrived at hospital.

What caused the elderly man to fall is not known.

Miss Dilauro told police that he seemed to reach down as though to adjust something on his motorbike and then he toppled off. There is also the possibility that Tyler was groping for some pills he always carried in case of a sudden weak spell.

HAD BAD HEART

For the past three years he had a bad heart condition and he could have been trying to get the pills after a seizure.

Dr. C. B. Waite, provincial pathologist, performed a post mortem late Thursday night. Coroner Dr. Harry G. Carleton said the post mortem showed that death was caused by a fractured skull which was caused when Tyler's head hit the pavement.

No inquest has been ordered.

Tyler was formerly a security policeman at the Canadian General Electric Co. in Peterborough, but he had to quit about three years ago because of ill health.

He had been out for a motorbike ride and was going home when the fatal accident occurred about 2.30 p.m. Provincial Constables Tom Armitage and Harold Armstrong investigated.

He had been a resident of Peterborough for 10 years, coming here from Trent River.

Born in Percy township, Thomas Tyler was the son of the late Albert Tyler and Jane Dicky. He farmed for many years in the township and lived for some time in Campbellford.

He was married twice: to the late Beatrice Glenn and the late Mary Mann. Left are two sons—Albert of Peterborough and Percy of London, Ont.

The funeral will be at 2 p.m. today at the Nisbett funeral home with the Rev. E. W. Rowland officiating, assisted by the Rev. I. G. Pollock. Burial will be in the Trent Valley cemetery, Hastings.

George Zwicker Represents 50th At Coronation

Representing the Canadian Army's reserve force and also Peterborough's 50th HAA Regiment, RCA, at the coronation in June will be WO2 George Zwicker.

WO2 Zwicker is the second Peterborough reserve army soldier chosen to attend the coronation. Cpl. Max Green, 26 Edgewater Blvd., will represent the city's second reserve unit, the 28th Technical Squadron, RCEME.

Both men will leave later this month for intensive training for a month prior to the coronation. This training will be given mostly in England. For his part in the coronation, WO2 Zwicker will temporarily be demoted to a sergeant.

In the Peterborough reserve for the past three years, WO2 Zwicker joined the 50th Regiment as a sergeant, later earning promotion to a Warrant Officer second class.

He was born in Mahone Bay, Nova Scotia, and while attending school joined the militia there when 16. He served with the West Nova Scotia Regiment Company in Mahone Bay.

During the Second World War, WO2 Zwicker joined the West Nova Scotia Regiment (active) as a private, later transferring to the 4th Princess Louise Dragoon Guard of Ottawa while in England.

SAW ACTION

He saw action in Sicily, Italy, then in France, Belgium and Holland. When the war ended, he was a sergeant.

After the war, WO2 Zwicker came to Ontario, living for a while in Toronto, then moving to Peterborough. He worked with the CGE and is now with Cherney Brothers.

SEVEN MORE NEEDED

W. Sutton of Otonabee, chairman of the Ontario Farm Radio Forum, needs assurance of seven more passengers to Toronto Thursday April 9. C.P.R. requires 25 as a condition of securing a $3 return fare. City people may go if they wish. The annual Forum conference Thursday at the Royal York Hotel includes in its program an address by guest speaker Wilson Gemmell of Peterborough.

Rambling Reporter

Rain that fell early today put an end to the outbreak of grass fires during the last few days in the city. One was reported Thursday afternoon at the rear of 543 Park St., and four were reported Friday: at Stewart and Wolsley Sts., rear of 12 Armour Rd., Bellevue Ave. west of Donegal St. and Lansdowne and Monaghan Rd. On Friday rubbish fires were put out on a lot, opposite 644 Walkerfield Ave., and in a back yard at 218 Wolfe St. A bonfire was also left burning on the boulevard in front of 647 Charlotte St.

Car Hits Tree Driver Hurt At Lakefield

May Be Charged Police Investigate Hit-Run Crash

A charge of drunken driving will be laid against 36-year-old Davis Ellis of 49 Lafayette St. as a result of an accident late Friday night in which he crashed his car into a tree in Lakefield.

Additional charges of leaving the scene of an accident and dangerous driving may follow, Crown Attorney John Bradshaw, QC, intimated today.

At present Ellis is in Civic Hospital with scalp cuts, shock and bruises. His condition is satisfactory and he will probably be discharged Tuesday.

Police are also investigating his route of travel Friday night to see if there is any link between the movements of his car and that of a car that is reported to have struck a parked car on Hunter St. about 9.40 p.m. and shortly afterwards sideswiped another car on Highway 28, two and a half miles south of Lakefield.

Ellis crashed into a large maple tree some 10 feet off the paved road surface near the entrance to Grove School, inside the northern limits of Lakefield. The accident occurred about 10 p.m., Chief Constable Price Morris reports.

THROWN FORWARD

The Ellis car was northbound at the time and failed to turn on a bend in the road. It ran onto the shoulder of the road and hit the maple tree. Ellis, alone in the car, was thrown forward against the windshield and cut his head.

He was treated by Dr. Lloyd Bailey of Lakefield and then taken to hospital by ambulance.

The front end of the 1947-model car was heavily damaged.

City police were first alerted to be on the lookout for a car at Monaghan Rd. and Chamberlain St., about 9.30 p.m. Ten minutes later a hit-and-run accident was reported in front of 264 Hunter St. The hit-and-run vehicle is reported to have struck the parked car of James O'Neil of 264 Hunter St., causing $80 damage.

Guards of Ottawa while in Eng- a 1947 Pontiac, was next reported to have sideswiped the southbound car of Murray Pollock, 38, of Highland Rd., two and a half miles south of Lakefield. Damage was caused to the left side and rear fender of Pollock's car.

Provincial Police were also informed that the northbound Pontiac nearly hit a third car, two miles south of the village.

City Constable William A. Scott investigated the collision in Peterborough; OPP Constable George Louth the sideswipe-accident on Highway 28; and Chief Constable Morris the crash in Lakefield.

ALL THE WAY FROM CHICAGO without any trouble, Peterborough pilot, Harry Oakman, was flipped over in his plane Thursday while landing at Skyway. After circling the rough runway, Oakman attempted to land, but the landing gear bogged down in the soft soil and the plane flipped over. The plane's safety belt held Oakman firm and he stepped out only shaken up. Later when he started to repair the damage (above) with friends, Oakman received only a gash on his thumb.—(Examiner Staff Poto)

Plan To Renovate Noted Indian Poetess' Home

BRANTFORD (CP)—Six Nations Indian council Thursday night passed a resolution calling for steps to restore and renovate Chiefswood, homestead of the noted Indian poet, Pauline Johnson.

Chiefswood is located about 12 miles southeast of Brantford on the banks of the Grand river.

The council also approved plans to beautify the grounds of the homestead.

Chiefswood, a century-old white house with identical front and back has long been one of Western Ontario's best-known historic landmarks.

The story is told that chief G. H. M. Johnson, father of the poet, built his home with identical front and back, one overlooking the Indian highway—the Grand river—to please his Indian mother, and the other—overlooking the white man's road—for the pleasure of his English wife.

Historical groups and historical-minded citizens have long been urging restoration of the famous old home which stands in a grove of towering walnut trees.

Harvey, the boy was missed at two p.m. and his body was found in the six-foot-deep water at 6:30 p.m. after hours of search by neighbors.

Wide Reputation For Leadership In Field Of Co-operative Enterprise

By JACK BEST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ANTIGONISH, N.S. (CP)—St. Francis Xavier University starts its second century with a wide reputation for leadership in the field of co-operative enterprise.

The motto of the Maritime university is "quaecumque sunt vera" ("Whatsoever things are true"). It stands as a sound basis for the institution's belief in man's inherent ability to improve his lot in life.

Founded in 1853 as a theological college, the university's success has been due to the efforts of a group of talented and devoted men of rural stock well acquainted with the economic conditions they set out to improve.

POSITIVE APPROACH

The philosophy behind its adult education movement has always been, essentially, a dynamic and positive one.

"Our idea was to stress the positive approach," says Dr. Moses M. Coady, the rugged, silver-haired director emeritus of St. FX's extension department.

When Dr. Coady started out in September, 1929 to organize Maritime fishermen for the federal government they needed nothing so much as leadership and a plan of action.

He started at Canso, N.S., where Dr. J. J. Tompkins of St. FX had planted the seeds of group enterprise seven years earlier. Roused by officials of the fisheries department the people gathered 600 strong to hear what Dr. Coady had to say.

January found him in New Brunswick working a schedule of four meetings and 35 miles a day all by horse and sleigh.

SUCCESSFUL START

After 10 months the job was finished, and in June of 1930 about 200 delegates gathered in Halifax for the first meeting of the United Maritime Fishermen. Today the UMF, minus Prince Edward Island which broke away early to form its own organization, is a vast enterprise with a $3,500,000 annual business turnover. A $45,000 federal grant for organizational and educational work is administered through the St. FX extension department.

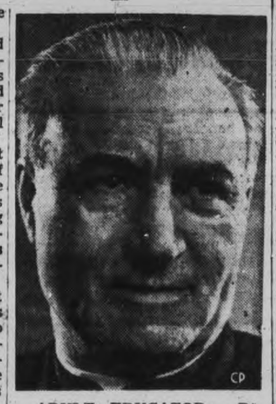
The study group is the nerve centre of the co-op movement. Today much of the educational program is carried by radio, with discussion literature being provided by the university. St. FX faculty members daily grind out thought-provoking programs like "Life in These Maritimes," intended for rural study groups, and the "People's School of the Air," designed for industrial workers.

The influence of the Antigonish movement—as the adult education program came to be called—has extended into many foreign lands, notably Latin America. Rev. H. J. Somers, St. FX vice-president who recently visited several of these countries, says: "The techniques we use are apparently quite applicable down there."

WIDE INFLUENCE

Credit union legislation similar to Nova Scotia's is in effect in Puerto Rico and Trinidad. St. FX-style study clubs are operating in Colombia, San Domingo and the Dominican Republic.

Dr. Coady, who in 1949 addressed the United Nations assembly on development of backward areas, says the same system could be applied in Pakistan, Ceylon and other countries where "feudalism" still holds sway.



Dr. Coady becomes eloquent when he speaks of the future of the Maritime fishing industry. He likes to point to recent progress of the little Nova Scotia fishing village of Port Bickerton as evidence of the golden era he sees dawning on Canada's Atlantic seaboard.

Co-operative organization at Port Bickerton began only five years ago. Last year the fishing co-op had a business turnover of $300,000, and the credit union flourished. A new $45,000 cold storage plant has been erected. New homes have been built, and many fishermen own new cars.

"As long as there are fish in the Atlantic and people to eat them," says Dr. Coady with a far off look in his eye, "the people of Port Bickerton will have the most inspiring, the most rewarding vocation of any people in this country."

CAMPUS CHAPEL.—This Georgian-style chapel is on the campus of St. Francis Xavier university at Antigonish, N.S., founded in 1853 as a theological college but which has gained international fame for its leadership in the field of co-operative enterprise. Accommodation for 750 worshippers is provided in the chapel, completed in 1948. The basement is used as an auditorium.

ADULT EDUCATOR — Rt. Rev. Moses M. Coady of St. Francis Xavier university, Antigonish, N.S., was chosen by the federal government to organize the fishermen of the Maritimes into co-operative groups. He finished the task in 10 months, then took over as director of the university's extension department which provided dynamic and positive-leadership and adult education for farmers and fishermen. This is a Karsh photo of Dr. Coady who stepped down last year to become director emeritus of the extension branch.

Take Slaying Suspect To Query In Montreal

TORONTO (CP)—Police said Friday the two men arrested here for questioning in connection with last week-end's slaying of Charles Waggoner in Montreal were taken to Montreal Thursday.

Police here said the men, Frank Battaglia, 37, and James Rogers, alias Smith Poirier, 26, were arrested Thursday on a coroner's warrant at the request of Montreal police.

Believed the victim of gangland vengeance, Waggoner was found shot through the head, his body weighted and thrown in a creek.

A gambler, he was well-known to Montreal and Toronto police.

Dies After Fall

TORONTO (CP)—John Ballinger 72, died Thursday after falling off a ladder in the kitchen of Birch Cliff United Church in suburban Scarborough and striking his head on a gas stove. He was caretaker at the church. The gas was turned on by the impact. However, investigators said they do not know if Ballinger's death was caused by the gas, by the fall or by a heart condition from which he suffered.

Airlines Policy Change Possible Howe Declares

OTTAWA (CP)—There has been no change in the government's policy of non-competitive airline services in Canada, but this could be changed as Canada grows and the volume of air traffic increases.

That was the answer Trade Minister Howe—acting prime minister in the absence of Prime Minister St. Laurent—gave in the Commons Thursday in reply to questions about government airline policy.

Mr. Howe said he thought the policy was a sound one at the moment because Canada was thinly populated and the volume of air traffic was light and did not provide room for competition.

"If sufficient (air) travel develops to the point where competition is warranted," he said, "then certainly we are entitled to competition."

The discussion came as the Commons considered amendments to the act governing Trans-Canada Air Lines, which enjoys a virtual monopoly on trans-continental air services.

AMALGAMATE TCA

The two TCA companies—the domestic Trans-Canada Air Lines and the overseas company, Trans-Canada Air Lines (Overseas) Limited—are to be amalgamated. Mr. Howe said this will allow the domestic company, which operates at a profit but pays the deficits of the overseas operations, to avoid its present heavy income tax.

The amending measure—which got first reading before the Commons adjourned for a four-day Easter holiday—also provides for some internal financial readjustment. The board of directors is being increased to nine from seven.

Final approval was given legislation ratifying the Canada-United States-Japan fisheries treaty covering the North Pacific ocean along with a measure empowering the government to contribute up to 37½ per cent of the cost of water conservation projects entered into with the provinces and municipalities.

Other legislation introduced and given first reading included bills to increase the aid given marginal gold mines, extend the Prairie Farm Assistance Act to some northern Saskatchewan and Manitoba areas not now covered, and provide Canadian jurisdiction over servicemen who break the laws of a foreign country where agreement has been reached with that country.

"Prove" Stepinac Was War Criminal

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (Reuters)—Politka, Belgrade newspaper, Friday gave readers details of a recently - finished "documentary" movie allegedly proving Roman Catholic Cardinal Aloysius Stepinac to be a Nazi collaborator and traitor.

Stepinac was tried by Yugoslavia as a war criminal and jailed. Though released, he is not allowed to leave the village of Krasic, where he lives as a parish priest.

Politka said the movie showed the cardinal blessing the Fascist "Ustasha" groups organized by Quisling Ante Pavelic during the Second World War.

It is said to show Stepinac celebrating a special mass for the Ustasha movement and show him shaking hands with Pavelic, who later allegedly gave him two Ustasha decorations.

Gasoline Lamp Explodes Three Brothers, Sister Escape Death In Fire

CAMPBELLFORD— (ENS) — Four teen-age brothers and a sister narrowly escaped death early Friday evening when a gasoline lamp exploded in the kitchen of their farm home on the English Line, about four miles south-east of Campbellford.

The youngsters, Clifford 19, Kenneth 17, Fred 13 and Beverly 15, all children of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Bedell, were preparing supper in the kitchen when the lamp exploded, showering flaming gasoline over the room.

HURLED LAMP OUT

Clifford, showing great presence of mind, hurled the remains of the flaming lamp through the window, into the yard, and in doing so possibly saved the lives of his brothers and sisters.

The only injuries received were to Clifford who was burned about his arm when he threw the lamp outside and Beverly whose left leg was burned by the shower of flaming gasoline.

PARENTS AWAY

Mr. and Mrs. Bedell were absent at the time, having left earlier in the day to visit another son, Roy, who is stationed at Aylmer with the R.C.A.F.

The Campbellford Fire Dept. responded in record time to the call for help and by use of the booster pump were able to save the one-storey stone house from total destruction.

Neighbors and volunteers drew water from a nearby pond to assist the firemen. The kitchen of the house was almost a total loss and the other rooms suffered heavy smoke and water damage.

Another son, Donald was in Campbellford at the time of the outbreak and rushed home to help firemen battle the fire. Firemen gave first-aid treatment to the burns received by Beverly and Clifford and neighbors are taking care of the children until their parents return.

College Professor Kills Family Of 3, Suicides

NEW YORK (AP)—A family of four was found dead Friday and police said the college professor father apparently stabbed himself after strangling his wife and their two children.

The four were reported to have met death sometime Wednesday in a sudden emotional outburst by the otherwise quiet father, Harold A. Conner.

Conner, 52-year-old New York University associate professor of marketing, was found sprawled in blood in his kitchen. There were knife wounds on his neck and upper left arm. He wore only underwear.

His wife, Thelma, 43, and the children—Jane, 13, and John, 11—were found strangled.

Police said Conner apparently had stabbed himself after choking the others to death.

The bodies had lain undisturbed for about 48 hours, a medical examiner said. The tragedy was discovered after friends became alarmed at the failure of the family to answer the telephone.

Conner, described as quiet and well-liked by his friends, had suffered a nervous breakdown three years ago. He recently had been under psychiatric treatment.

Will Trap Muskrats To Pay Drunk Fine

COBOURG (ENS)—Magistrate R. B. Baxter deferred action when Eldon Smoke, Alderville Indian, appeared before him on a drunk charge.

Smoke asked the magistrate if he could let him go for a week or so because he had just started trapping muskrats.

"I got about 60 traps out and if I could be remanded out of custody for a week or so, I would have the rats in and be in a better position to pay my fine", Smoke said.

With a smile the magistrate laid the case over the April 10.

Peace And Quiet

KARACHI, Pakistan (CP)—An active campaign against noise by the Karachi traffic police resulted in a big change in Bunder street, one of the busiest streets of this capital. Only a few bicycle bells disturbed the silence as bus-drivers, motorists and truck-drivers refrained from using their horns.

Wanderers Take First Place In Top Division

LONDON (Reuters) — Wolverhampton Wanderers today took over sole possession of the leadership of English soccer's First Division today, with a 3-0 win over lowly Stoke, breaking a three-way tie for the top position.

Preston North End fought Sunderland to a 2-2 tie to go into second place and Charlton lost its first home game of the season to Manchester City 2-1 to drop to third slot.

Only three points separate first and sixth clubs in the division. Wolverhampton's position is highly precarious, as it has only four games to play, compared with six for Preston and Charlton. Arsenal, in a three-way tie for fourth place, has seven to play.

At the bottom of the table, Derby drew 3-3 kith Middlesborough and appeared headed for relegation to Division II. Stoke also appears likely to drop into the Second Division after the end of the season.

Sheffield United retained a five-point lead in the second Division with a 2-1 home win over Notts County. Second-place Huddersfield, with a game in hand, blanked Leicester 1-0 to stay in the running.

Bristol Rovers dropped a surprise decision at Southend, 1-2, but still are well out in front of the Third Division South. Runners-up Bristol City, who have played one more game than the leaders, could do no better than a scoreless tie with Aldershot.

Oldham drew 1-1 with Port Vale and eased into the lead of Third Division North. Grimsby, level with Oldham after Friday, was blanked, 2-0 at Hartlepools to drop a point behind.

Today was the second day of the tough Easter holiday schedule in which most teams play three games in four days—Friday, today and Monday.

Rangers today beat Hearts in the semi-finals of the Scottish Cup 2-1 but Aberdeen and Third Lanark drew 1-1 to force a replay.

East Fife retained a slim lead in Scottish League A with a 7-0 win over St. Mirren. Hibernian drew 1-1 with Partick Thistle to drop two points behind.

Scottish B leadership changed hands when Hamilton Academicals downed Stenhousemuir, 2-1, to take over from Stirling Albion, which lost 4-1 to Dunbarton.

CHARLES F. PAYNE

Victim of a heart attack, Charles Frederick Payne, 67, of 260 McKellar St., died suddenly Friday afternoon while working outside at his home.

Mr. Payne, a stationary engineer for 17 years at Canada Packers, had gone out into his yard about 3:45 p.m. to do some work. Half an hour later he was found lying in the laneway by his wife who went out to ask him if he wanted an early supper.

Canadian, U.S. Game Men At Odds Over Lame Goose

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP)—Canadian and Connecticut game officials were at odds today over a crippled Canada goose, down in the waters off nearby Point Byram in Long Island Sound. Both claimed the famous bird.

The Canada goose now is in a game bird refuge maintained in Greenwich by the Wildlife Restoration Foundation.

About two weeks ago, Capt. Amos L. Horst, executive secretary of the foundation, said he saw two flight mates try to lift the cripple and fly it to northern Canadian breeding grounds.

Canadian interest has been aroused and one Canadian newspaper (the Montreal Gazette) reported receiving funds from Canadians eager to help the bird join its mate in northern Canada.

A Canadian airline was reported to have offered to fly the cripple north in time for Canada's National Wildlife Restoration Week which begins April 12.

Horst said he had received permission from the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service to trap the famous cripple and fly it north. On the way to the refuge with the trap, he called on the Connecticut state board of fisheries and game officials informing them of his intentions.

That's where the trouble started. Dr. Russel P. Hunter, superintendent of the Connecticut board, said the Canada goose belongs to Connecticut and it should stay there until it flew away of its own choice.

Thomas Rose, chief game warden, agreed. He insisted the bird is one of a flock of Canada geese that winter off Point Byram and migrate only 50 miles north-northeast of Greenwich to Bantam lake for the summer.

Horst and Canadian officials then called up Ray Lawson, Canadian consul-general in New York. Lawson got nowhere. He then appealed to an aide to Governor John Davis Lodge, but the aide said he was powerless to interfere. Lodge himself was on a holiday.

But the consul-general sent a telegram to the governor urging special authorization for the project. Lawson also planned to call Lodge personally Monday.

The great 15-pound Canada goose himself (or herself) was reported to be in excellent shape, except that he (or she) cannot make it off the water.

Game warden Rose reported that it suffered from a healed gunshot wound that had destroyed its rudder feathers. He said the fowl was perfectly all right and insisted that it was happier in Greenwich than it would be in Canada.

Greenwich is a town about 35 miles northeast of New York city.

Gets Three Dollars, One Day In Jail With Smooth Talk Of Baseball And Mother

COBOURG (ENS) — Clifford Boucher, 57, no fixed address, who talked three local businessmen out of a dollar each, pleaded guilty to a begging charge Thursday and was sentenced to one day in jail.

Boucher had a unique method for making a touch—and it worked.

When he first came to town he nosed around a bit and discovered who used to be active in baseball circles a number of years back. Then he looked up a few of the old players and told them he remembered how good they were. Then came the touch.

Boucher proved he was just as fast a talker in police court too.

"I wasn't insulting anybody and I wasn't drunk," he told the magistrate, but he said he had been trying to pick up a few bucks to visit his 80-year-old mother in Quebec for Easter.

Boucher said he had applied for jobs in Toronto and elsewhere but was pretty well crippled by a silver plate in his leg. The magistrate wasn't interested when Boucher hoisted his trouser leg to show His Worship the silver plate.

"I think you know your way around in court," said the magistrate. "However, I will sentence you to a day in jail, dating back to yesterday, which means you're free to go. But if you ever show up in Cobourg again and come before me. I'll give you not one day but six months."

places open for the rally—was the jargon the sport car fans used. How many RPM's their motors were giving them. The trouble in making the hills and the sharp curves and the acceleration their engines were giving them on the straightaways and their different accounts of the trip so far. It was Greek to a layman's ear.

There were about eight or nine Morris Minors entered in the rally and all of them completed the course.

My drivers were kept busy studying the road map and giving me a thorough outline of the club's history and their future hopes for a bigger and better sports rally to be held next Easter.

Dr. R. W. Ford and Dr. Yule of Peterborough both entered the rally and made the trip in a Morris Minor.

TROUBLE EARLY

The first person to run into difficulty was the club president Arnold Kelbrick who had to replace his volt regulator at Kaladar the first check point.

The second car to have trouble was driven by Ron McGee and his co-driver Chris Kallay. Their MG midget was the first car to leave the city hall. They blew a tire just this side of Kaladar, but were able to replace it in time to keep up with their schedule. Five miles after they had checked out of Kaladar their spare tire went on them and they were stranded. Another similar touring MG. sports car came along and lent them their spare tire.

This time they thought their luck would hold out, they were able to reach Golden Lake without breaking their schedule. But they blew their third tire 15 miles from Killaloe and were forced to throw in the sponge. The car I was driving in gave Chris Kallay a ride on into Bancroft the third check point to see if he could have the tire repaired and left Ron McGee to mind the car.

The route to the second check point took them over highway 41 to Eganville, then to Golden Lake and our car checked in there at 3:24 and were on our way after refueling and waiting our 20 minutes at 3:44.

BREAKFAST

The trip to the third check point at Bancroft took less than two hours to reach. We travelled through Barry's Bay then west to Combermere and then swung south to Maynooth and reached Bancroft at our allotted time at 5:40. Most of the drivers in the smaller cars had reached the breakfast point and there were many great sighs of relief to know that they could settle down to a good feed.

I asked my driver Dennis Williamson and his co-driver if he felt tired. And his reply like everyone's, was that they would like to do it over again.

The cars started to pull out of Bancroft about 6:30 for their final check point. This was just a sign-in station at Bobcaygeon. The exhibition grounds in Peterborough was the finish point, where they had to try tests of accelerating and stopping, backing up and parking to help determine the winner.

Wally Mason who competed in the 1952 Sports Car Rallies in Europe was in charge of the checking-out station and was on hand to check the cars as they started to come in this morning at 9:27.

The course was gone over six weeks ago and last Sunday and the road were in much better condition Friday night than when the averages were set.

The only difficult part of the course was the 40 miles of unpaved road coming out of Bancroft and it rained for about an hour around six o'clock.

Mrs. Rachel Nelson

Free Dental Service Dropped By Counties

COBOURG—(ENS)— Free dental examination of children three years old and under, instituted some time ago by the Northumberland and Durham Health Unit, has been discontinued, it was announced by the medical officer of health, Dr. Charlotte Horner. The Board of Health cancelled the plan in order to effect economies.

This plan has been in operation since November 1, 1952, in cooperation with the practicing dentists who report their findings to the medical officer of health. Payment had been made from health unit funds.

Arrangements have been made to honor cards which parents have received from the health unit so that those children may still receive benefits offered under the scheme.

When the plan was inauguarted, it was thought that the most practical method of improving the dental health of the children in the united counties would be to offer some incentive to parents to take young children to the family dentist.

2 Bulls Bred By McConkey Bring $12,000 At Sale

Norman W. McConkey must have looked with considerable feeling of pride on the two Holstein bulls that accounted for $12,000 of the gross receipts of $50,225 at the sale of 64 head of the Romandale herd at Oakville Tuesday. He had owned the dams of both of them—Re-Echo May Burke and Liftloc Macabar Re-Echo, each a world champion producer.

Houckhome Re-Echo Champion, a senior yearling son of Re-Echo May Burke, sold for the top bid of $9,000 to W. F. Young, of Terrace Farm, Titusville, Pa.

The other was a year-old son of Lifloc Macaber Re-Echo, for which Essex Cattle Breeding Association of Essex, Ont., paid $3,000.

The owner of Romandale Farm at King, Ont., is Stephen B. Roman.

Most of the story of the Re-Echo cows at Lifloc Farm here in Peterborough has been told before, particularly when their world championship ratings were announced. Mr. McConkey sold May Burke to John E. Houcke, of Brampton, and afterwards parted with Macaber Re-Echo to Mr. Roman. The latter was so impressed with the Re-Echo line that he in turn purchased May Burke from Mr. Houcke.

HIGHEST AVERAGE

The highest Holstein average price since 1950 was an encouraging feature of the Romandale sale.

It was $784, and the total for the 64 head was $50,225. The highest individual pirces since the fall of 1951 were paid with the top figure of $9,000 being reached twice.

John Powell, of Brantford, writes that buyers from Argentina, Colombia, Mexico and the U.S. bid against the large crowd of Canadian breeders who were attracted to this sale. Six head were taken by Henry Martin, of Martin Bros., Buenos Aires, three by Guillermo Villa, Medellin, Colombia, two to Garcia Valesca, Mexico, and three to the United States.

TOOK CHOICE

The two $9,000 bulls were Rockwood Revelation, consigned by Townsend and Millington, of St. Norbert, Man., and Houckholme Re-Echo Champion. They were brought into the ring together, and the winning bidder was permitted to take his choice. Henry Martin, of Buenos Aires, was the top bidder at $9,000, choosing Revelation. Later, Champion was sold to the runner-up in the original bidding, also for $9,000, going to Pennsylvania.

Henry Martin also bought the top female at $3,600. This was the highest price for a Holstein female since the fall of 1951. Martin also paid $1,000 for a yearling son of Rockwood Rocket Tone, now owned by the Quinte Cattle Breeders' Association at Belleville.

Essex Cattle Breeding Association claimed for $3,000 a year-old son of Rockwood Revelation, out of the world champion maternal sister of the $9,000 Re-Echo Champion. This year-old's three nearest dams have an average production of 20,136 pounds of milk (1,006 lbs. fat) average test 3.78 butterfat.

Eight bulls averaged $2,990; 40 milking females $375; five bred heifers $417; nine open yearlings averaged $860; two heifer calves $242.

3,120 SOLD IN MARCH

George M. Clemons, secretary of the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada, reported Thursday that exports of purebred Holsteins to the U.S.A. in March totalled 3,120 head as compared with 1,249 in March, 1951, or a gain of 160 per cent. In March last year, exports from Canada were barred by the foot and mouth disease.

The 3,120 head went to 25 different Sstates with New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Michigan and Vermont leading.

Africans Turning To West Want Self-Government James Wharry Finds on Trip

Africans are more and more turning to the West so they can learn how to live a more abundant life.

James G. Wharry, vice president in charge of sales and general manager of the Quaker Oats Co., has just returned from a 20,000 mile air trip that took him through the heart of Africa, and that is his chief impression of the so-called dark continent.

"While the Africans are still preserving their own culture and tribal customs they are turning more and more to the West for education and culture. . .They are reaching out for a more abundant life—to get some of the things they deserve."

SELF-GOVERNMENT

The influence includes adopting Western-style clothing and learning Western technology, he said. One of the highlights as far as Mr. Wharry was concerned was the desire for self-government among the native peoples (whom he designates simply as "Africans", not natives, negroes colored people).

Recently the Gold Coast got its independence and others are trying to follow suit.

"They're trying their best. Seriously making an attempt to get over the usual difficulties when a people get self-government."

Mr. Wharry twice crossed the equator on his business trip which was to find markets, mainly for Canadian, American and British companies. This was chiefly flour business for Canadian mills, and cereal business for Canadian, American, British and European mills.

His 70-day flying itinerary took him to London and his first stepping off place in Africa was Tripoli. Then he flew to Kano and Lagos in Nigeria (on the under side of the bulge on the west coast), north to Accra on the Gold Coast and south to the Belgian Congo.

In Nigeria he noted that the 26,000,000 black inhabitants are increasing 25 per cent every 10 years, the people are anxious to govern themselves and they have the example of the Gold Coast (to the north) where the people have their independence.

In the Belgian Congo (which has a short sea coast and is located mainly in the heart of Africa) he stopped at Leopoldville, Elisabethville and N'Dola.

URANIUM IN CONGO

"The Congo is growing faster than perhaps any country in Africa. It has uranium—America's principle source—and great mineral wealth. They have plenty of dollars."

From the Congo Mr. Wharry flew north to Kenya and landed at Nairobi, the largest city and near the scene of Mau Mau terrorism.

Raids by the Mau Mau go on in the suburbs of the city and there is a great feeling of apprehension among the whites. At first sight things look calm in Nairobi, said Mr. Wharry, because there are no attacks on the urban centre itself. However it is common to see whites walking about carrying revolvers.

The situation has worsened since he left. He would offer no on-the-record comments on how the terrorism could be dealt with.

His next flight landings were successively Khartoum in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan and Cairo.

"Naguib, at the moment at least, seems extremely popular," said Mr. Wharry. "The people don't talk about Farouk.

"The Egyptians feel very strongly about the British evacuating the Canal Zone. They argue that if the British want to defend the Suez Canal they can do it from a distant base."

Mr. Wharry was appreciative of the consideration shown him by Egyptians. He said they are also anxious to increase their tourist trade as they are short of dollars. A good deal of money is spent on wheat and flour to feed the people.

KEY PART

Leaving Africa he flew up to Beirut in Lebanon. He described it is the "key port" of the Arabic countries. Lebanon may also be the key to Arab politics too, he inferred, but he avoided any comment on the subject.

Beirut, apart from being a prosperous port, has the third most beautiful university in the world, he said. That is the American University. Another feature of the city is that it is a "freemoney" port; all currencies are readily convertible there.

On the last leg of his jorrney Mr. Wharry then flew to Rome, back to London and did the trans-Atlantic crossing by way of Iceland. He arrived back in Peterborough on Tuesday.

Rev. G. S. Maxwell Addresses Easter Meeting

Trinity Women's Federation meeting was on Wednesday evening in the church parlor, and was addressed by the Rev. Gordon S. Maxwell. The Easter theme was carried throughout by the speaker who touched on what Calvary has done for the church. He stressed that eternal life begins here and now and people should be preparing their lives for the fine and the strong things. He remarked also that people are inclined to lay up treasure on earth but rather they should lay up treasures in heaven and deepen their knowledge on Christian stewardship. "Easter should mean that we ought to be getting ready for life anew," said Mr. Maxwell.

Call to worship was given by the president Mrs. Vern Skitch. Mrs. W. H. McGee and her group were in charge of the worship service and a poem on Easter was read by Mrs. McGee. Scripture passages from the book of Mark were read by Mrs. J. R. Turnbull. A poem "Meditation" was read by Mrs. W. A. Coyne, and a poem by Mrs. A. Neal was titled "Not of Mary alone." Prayer was offered by Mrs. H. Moebus and a poem read by Mrs. O. Jamieson was "Prayer on Easter."

The junior quartet of the church choir gave two delightful Easter selections. The girls are Jane Skitch, Norma Crowe, Joan Henry and Joan Kennedy and they were accompanied by Mrs. R. R. Baker. Afterward, Mrs. Baker played a lovely piano selection "My heart ever faithful."

All of the guests taking part were thanked by Mrs. McGee.

A luncheon table was attractively arranged with Easter lilies and the group in charge served dainty refreshments at the close of business.

Teen-Agers Best Turned-Out By These Rules

Teen-agers, do you put as much imagination into the wearing of your clothes as the designer put into the fashioning of them?

Now, while you are young, is the time to begin developing that dash and flair which will make you outstanding. Assuming you have chosen the best lines and colors for your particular needs, what gives you this dash and flair?

Let's start with the way you carry your coat. Do you carry it with hemlines uneven and arms flopping? That makes a sloppy picture. Fold it with the two shoulders even before draping it over your arm. When you get into it, adjust the shoulders of your dress perfectly into the shoulders of your coat. Lift the coat up so that the collar fits snugly about your neck. Then the coat will hang well.

Do you swing a bag alongside your knee as though it would fly away any minute? Or do you tuck it smartly under your arm or slip your wrist though the handle and carry it close to your body? The latter ways look quiet and neat.

Do you jam a hat on your head any old way, or do you study the fashion magazines to see how they are being worn this year?

Gloves, crumpled in your hand should be straightened out and laid palm to palm, as they were when you bought them.

Before you sit down, smooth your skirt to prevent wrinkles and then arrange it nicely.

Your clothes must be comfortable and perfectly fitting before you can wear them with the ease that is preliminary to style. So make sure of these things first.

Finally, and most important, the grace with which you stand, sit and walk are all fundamental to having your clothes look pretty in motion.

Handbags Tall, Handsome

By GAILE DUGAS

Black patent, as important to springtime as violets and sunshine, leads off the handbag parade again this year. It's the No. 1 leather, either alone or in combination with brilliant color.

Many of the new patent bags are lined in glowing leather or fabric — turquoise, daffodil yellow, lipstick red, cream, peacock blue or amber. Some are saddle-stitched in the samec olor. And shiny patent even keeps company with denim in pastel pink or blue.

Shape of the handbag this year is tall and narrow, long and slim or just plain huge. Bags generally are more streamlined to pair off with the slender look in ready-to-wear.

Color dips deeply into the brighter, clearer shades to produce vivid reds and blues, golden beiges, a lovely shade of off-white.

Handle treatments and trims are worth noting this year. Emphasizing streamlined simplicity, there are rigid or semirigid self-leather handles in wide circular or bracelet design.

There are tall, semirigid contoured handles and double, semirigid squarish ones. A single luggage type is used, too.

Sleek underarm bags are longer than ever before. Some of these have no handle at all.

Whopping big handbags are designed specifically to balance the arrow-slim look of suits and dresses. Many of these can double as travel bags for weekends in the country, and some may be used as plane luggage.

Exercise To Take Sitting Down— For Complexions

Clear and lovely . . . that's not a weather forecast, it's a forecast for complexions this coming season. To flatter fashion's trend toward the ultra feminine this spring, every woman must have a flawlessly clear, translucent skin

And now's the time to work on it. A little concentrated "homework" on your complexion will pay off in beauty dividends in the Easter Parade, and after!

To tone up skin that has lost its freshness after the winter siege you'll need to use a skin exerciser. Use firm, lifting upward strokes as you cleanse your face, remembering that you can discourage wrinkles by smoothing them out instead of pushing them in when you perform your daily beauty ritual! A rich soothing cream for massage will not only remove old make-up and soil, but will ease away chapped patches of scaly skin, leaving your face smooth and radiantly clean.

After you have removed the cleansing cream, apply the skin exerciser liberally. Concentrate on all the sluggish neglected areas, where the gentle stimulant will help "whip up" the circulation. The neck, expression lines, and around the eyes are the most important areas. It is not necessary to pat the skin, but rather to press the saturated cotton firmly against the skin.

Perfume Develops 4th Dimension Of Personality

Change your perfume every so often, so that neither you nor the man in your life is a victim of olfactory fatigue. If you wore the same hat at all times, you'd get tired of it, and he'd stop noticing it.

Beware of becoming immune to fragrance, too, by changing from your "steady scent" to a different type of perfume. A wardrobe of perfume keeps a sparkle in your fourth dimension, that quality of charm and loveliness with which a woman greets her world.

Here are a few tips on how to develop the fourth dimension of your own personality through the use of fragrance. Make them a daily habit and gain the compliments of charm which give a woman such self-confidence in her own womanliness.

Tuck a perfumed cotton pellet in your bra.

Scent a piece of cotton and pin it on your shoulder pad.

Spray perfume all about you just before you go out with that man.

Saturate a cotton pad with perfume and fasten it to the inside hem of your skirt with cellophane tape.

Carry perfume in your purse to renew your fragrance whenever you replenish your lipstick.

Spray cologne or toilet water on the electric bulbs of your lamps so the heat will diffuse the scent into the room.

Always apply perfume to the pulse spots where the heat of the body keeps the fragrance "alive".

Change your perfume from time to time to avoid fragrance immunity.

Aid To Composers Earns Jean Howson N.Y. Citation

JEAN HOWSON

TORONTO—Jean L. Howson, director of art music publications for the Canadian performing right and music publishing organization of BMI Canada Ltd., Toronto and Montreal, is to be given a citation for her work on behalf of contemporary Canadian composers at a Town Hall concert in New York on Easter Sunday.

The citation is to be presented during a concert of contemporary music conducted by Franz Allers, and sponsored by the Composers-Authors Guild, the U.S. National Association of Composers and Conductors, the Canadian League of Composers and the Music Performance Trust Fund of the American Federation of Musicians.

The citation being given the Toronto music publisher reads: "For her insight as mentor and friends of Canadian composers, and her role in promoting performances of Canadian musical works throughout the English-speaking world."

Miss Howson, who leaves this morning for New York, has been associated with contemporary Canadian art music for the past eight years, first with CBC and latterly with BMI Canada Limited (an affiliate organization of Broadcast Music Inc. in the U.S.), which she joined at the time of its activation in the summer of 1947.

Born in Peterorough daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Howson 548 Aylmer St., and a graduate of Trinity College, University of Toronto, Miss Howson joined the CBC in 1942 as a writer and editor in the Press and Information Division. She immediately became interested in the attempts of a group of composers in Toronto to get a wider hearing for their works; and by 1944 she was devoting much of her time to promoting their interests and publicizing any performances given. In BMI Canada her work widened to include talented creative musicians from coast to coast—or, as she put it "from Jean Coulthard and Barbara Pentland in Vancouver, and John Beckwith of Victoria, to William Keith Rogers in Charlottetown."

There have been stops between, Miss Howson said, for Midwesterners like Eugene Hill and Dorothy Cadzow; Walter MacNntt of Windsor; the eminent Dr. Healey Willan of Toronto, Harry Somers, Gerald Bales and Patricia Blomfield Holt; Ottawans like Kenneth Peacock, Frederick Karam and William France; such celebrated Canadien names as Dr. Claude Champagne — the father of music in Quebec— Jean Papineau-Couture, Maurice Dela, Soeur St-Jean du Sacre Coeur, CND, and Marvin Duchow; and Robert Charlton Bayley of Halifax, to name a few.

Miss Howson has worked to secure orchestral, instrumental, choral and vocal performances of Canada's serious or art music in many of the chief cities of the U.S., in Britain, France, Italy, Germany and Yugoslavia, as well as in Australia and across the Dominion. She provided all the music through her organization for an official U.S. State Department "Salute to Canada" broadcast to Europe and North America by the Oklahoma City Symphony Orchestra in March of 1950, during which the Hon. Lester B. Pearson accepted the symphonic "Salute" on behalf of Canada.

The publications issued by Miss Howson's department of BMI Canada Limited now total close to a hundred works, by some 35 composers of Canada. They have been sent to Canadian embassies and broadcasting centres all over the world; and some of them, Miss Howson states, have become "best sellers" in their field.

"To get performances you have to put scores directly in the hands of conductors and performers nowadays," Miss Howson says. "And you can't do that, obviously, or get them seen by many artists, unless the music is readily available. BMI Canada set out to solve this problem for the Canadian composer by publishing good works as fast as possible, or reproducing orchestral scores, in order to make them available internationally. Tens of thousands of dollars have been poured into this work, and it's getting bigger every year."

LEVINE'S LADIES' WEAR

Give Bride Practical Gift That Is Something Special

Sure sign of summer days ahead is the rustle of wedding invitations in the mailbox. Nothing gladdens the heart like a strain of Lohengrin. Whether it's an announcement of a "family only" service, or an invitation to a grand ceremony, I like to give a little something to the bride.

Finding a "little something" for a little price is the trick these days. That's why I grasp at any ideas that puff up the importance of modest gifts. More economical, and for sentiment's sake more endearing, is the gift that bears your personal touch.

A bit of hand sewing, for example, transforms plain towels, sheets, pillowcases and table linen into cherished one-of-a-kind gifts. If the hand-sewn touch points up the bride's new status, she'll be thrilled. Monograms or a single initial are popular.

Clever new variation of the monogram is a script-embroidered copy of the bride's and groom's own handwriting to trick up household linens. Good quality, unadorned turkish towels and washcloths, for example, are not very expensive and you can add the fancy flourishes yourself to make a standout gift.

The bride's first name is written on one towel and washcloth, the groom's on the other. You'll need to get a sample of their signatures, which can be copied in pencil on crinoline. Crinoline is basted to towel or other linen and the embroidery stitched on the penciled outline. After the name is finished cut away the crinoline.

Embroidering the names can be done by hand. It's also a cinch to do it on a sewing machine. The girl who showed me how, just set the dial to the numeral four on her zigzag stitch machine and "wrote" her name in therad.

Even with these up-to-the-minute machines, however, you still have to drop the feed bed and remove the presser foot to guide the fabric without bunching or tearing when monogramming.

If you know the bride's color scheme in advance, your color choice can be keyed to it. If not, I think it's hard to go wrong with white towels embroidered in black, dark blue or red.

I'd avoid the wild or unusual colors unless you know they'll fit into her scheme. I still have some bright pink gift towels which lie unused on the shelf because they clash with the other towels.

You can also forge the happy couple's signatures on many things, such as place mats for honeymoon breakfasts, along a satin binding for a blanket, or a sheet hem or pillowcase edge.

In the case of fabrics sheerer than towelling, it's a wise idea to stretch the area to be sewed in embroidery hoops for hand or machine stitching.

THE BRIDE AND GROOM'S FIRST NAMES, copied from their own signatures and embroidered on this towel and washcloth set, make a wedding gift that will thrill the happy couple. Plain color towels were inexpensive but of good quality.

DOROTHY DIX:

Self-Invited In-Laws Week-End Squatters

DEAR MISS DIX: Perhaps I am the selfish one in the case, perhaps I have just been foolish. If you think I need a scolding, don't hesitate to give it to me.

My husband and I are bothered with "week-end squatters." My husband's only brother and his family call on us every weekend—not just for a meal, they come Saturday evening and stay until 9 or 10 o'clock Sunday. We are never able to accept invitations for those two days without being stopped dead in our tracks by having them arrive just as we are about to leave. We live in the same town, so my husband and his brother see each other frequently. We have two married daughters, and now that our family is raised, we'd like to get out together more often.

MRS. A. B.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your only fault is an excess of hospitality and a deep regard for other people's feelings, and in both respects it's better to have too much than none at all.

BE FIRM

However, no one likes to be imposed upon, which is certainly what your in-laws are doing to you. Fortunately, there are many ways to stop their inconsiderate visiting. Some firmness is needed, so brace yourself to get into action.

Next week-end when they are bringing their visit to a close, inform them that you have accepted an invitation for dinner at so-and-so's the following Sunday. Better still, line up invitations for both Saturday night and Sunday afternoon. Perhaps they'll be back the following week, in which case present your plans for the next week-end.

No one's feelings should be hurt by this tactful maneuvering and it should insure some free weekends for you and your husband.

Just don't be so easy; think of yourself once in a while and don't become a "taken - for-granted hostess.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a 17-year-old girl with one major problem. I have no trouble in getting dates, but after I've gone out with a boy once, I lose interest in him. This seems childish, I know, and, though I've tried to be sensible about the matter, I can't seem to change. Even my mother scolds me and says I'm too particular.

FRAN

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Since both you and your mother recognize your trouble, the solution lies in taking stock of yourself, why you become tired of the boys, and what there is about them that disappoints you. Being discriminating is, in itself, no great fault, but the motives underlying your fussiness may be wrong. If you look for surface qualities only, while deprecating the personalities of the boys, you are being shallow. If you seek more expensive entertainment than most of the boys provide, it's a sign of selfishness and greed. With Mom's help, make an analysis of your disposition and see what you can do to improve it before you become friendless.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I enjoy writing to bedridden people, but have one question. When writing to someone I don't know personally, should I sign my name or say, "Someone who is interested in you?"

WONDERING

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: By all means sign your name. If you do an individual a favor, he would certainly like to know the identity of his benefactor; if you are writing to children, their parents would like to be able to thank you.

Foot Health Important To General Health

"Bad feet can be blamed for many types of disability and disease of the body," the chairman of the Shoe Information Bureau of Canada has stated. "Too many people are unaware of the effects of bad feet."

Many of the headaches and much of the fatigue experienced by people in business, by housewives and industrial workers could be traced to bad posture. In turn, bad posture could often be traced to poorly fitting shoes. For instance, it is estimated that a salesgirl walks eight miles a day, a housewife over seven miles, a policeman 14 miles and a postman 22 miles. A golfer, during 18 holes, walks eight and one-half miles. It is only reasonable then that the feet, in order to take this punishment without ill effect, should be given adequate support.

In many cases the fault of a poorly fitting shoe is not the fault of the shoe, but of the person buying it. Care should be taken in choosing the right shoe for the right foot, and if people were more cautious in the selection of the type of footwear best suited to them, there would be many less aching feet.

Parents were strongly urged to give more thought and consideration when buying shoes for their children. As children's feet are continually growing, it is essential that their shoes be checked at frequent intervals in order to avoid any damage at the growing stage.

Readers' Saturday Column

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I love your recipes because they are so precise. . . . have been watching for your Hot Cross Buns that appeared years ago. Mine got lost during the process of moving. They were so easy to make, you even explained how to roll the dough and exactly how many pieces. . . . I am going to enclose the recipe for homemade chocolates . . . years ago we bought meat pies from an English delicatessen . . . as I remember they were not make from ground meat, more like flank steak with gravy The crust was tender but not especially flaky or thin. They were the best meat pies I have ever had. I would also like a recipe for individual chicken pies. . . . when chopping a quantity of hard-boiled eggs for sandwiches or salad a pastry blender does a grand job in jig-time.

HOME-MADE CHOCOLATES

(Contributed by Claire E.-

One-half tin condensed milk, ¼ lb. butter, 1½ lbs. sifted icing sugar. Cream the butter and milk. Add sugar.

VARIATIONS: Peppermint — Add a few drops of peppermint and shape into patties. Orange: Add grated orange rind. Cherry: Chop several maraschino cherries and add a few drops almond extract. Chocolate: Melt 1 square bitter chocolate and chopped walnuts. Cocoanut: Add vanilla and cocoanut. Butterscotch: Add butterscotch flavoring and chopped nuts.

After adding flavorings more sugar must be added to make the fondant of right consistency to shape. This amount makes approximately 90 chocolates.

DIPPING: Six squares unsweetened chocolate, ¼ cake parowax, 2 tablespoons icing sugar.

HINTS: Coat hands with icing sugar to shape. Melt wax first, then add chocolate. Let centres set before dipping. Use large darning needle for dipping. Keep chocolate in pan of hot water while dipping. To dip centres have chocolate in deep bowl over hot water and just stick darning needle in centre and dunk. Place on waxed paper on large cookie sheet.

ANSWER: Thank you, Claire. I gave you Hot Cross Buns on March 26. The pastry for the pies you want to make follows:

ENGLISH PASTRY

Four cups stirred but unsifted flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 cups shortening, 1 cup hot water, 4 teaspoons lemon juice, 1 egg yolk. Sift together dry ingredients, cut in 1 cup shortening. Dissolve the remaining shortening in the hot water, add lemon juice and egg yodk to them. Add slowly to flour mixture, mixing well. Knead 3 minutes. This is a delicious crust for meat, fish, poultry, and game pies—both large or individual.

FILLING: If uncooked meat is used it must be good quality meat such as baby beef round, or mature beef sirloin, cut in ½-inch cubes and mixed with well-seasoned thickish gravy flavored with a little minced onion. If cooked meat is used mixture is the same but flavor is not as good. Baking time for uncooked meat is 2 hours with oven at 425 degrees Fahr. for half hour.

Chicken pies are made the same—but use cooked or uncooked chicken in highly seasoned medium white sauce or chicken gravy.

BROWN—In loving memory of a dear father, Leonard Brown, who passed away two years ago, April 3, 1951.
His faint last wish
We would like to have heard

The pain in our hearts
By not saying farewell
—Sadly missed by daughter and son-in-law, Gladys and George Pinch.

The world can never fill.
—Sadly missed by mother, father, sister Frances, brother Carroll.

VALOIS—In loving memory of my sister, Mrs. Ida Valois, who passed away one year ago.
Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
The world's weary troubles and trials are past,
In silence she suffered, in patience she bore,
Till God called her home to suffer no more.
—Ever remembered by Gladys.

Do You Know?

An old fruit basket will make a handy and practical kit for sewing things if it is lined and covered with plastic material.

☆ ☆ ☆

You should never shake varnish or enamel products to mix them. Shaking creates tiny air bubbles, resulting in pin-prick bumps which mar the finished job.

☆ ☆ ☆

If your button box contains some tiny white buttons, they may be the very thing to lend an air of elegance to an ordinary pair of dark gloves. A row could be sewn up the centre or along the edge of the cuffs.

☆ ☆ ☆

You can make candles last twice as long by giving them a coat of clear varnish. They'll not only burn longer but the finish keeps the wax from dripping.

☆ ☆ ☆

Chewing gum can be removed from different materials by soaking them in turpentine. Dry ice can also be applied to the gum which will then chip off.

The pinkish cast which often appears in nylon garments may be the result of washing them with hosiery or colored nylons. Even when the stockings are reasonably fast, the slight excess of dye can be picked up by white or pastel nylon. Nylon is unusually sensitive in this respect.

☆ ☆ ☆

Iron or rust stains can be removed from garments by sprinkling salt over the stain, moistening it with lemon juice and then exposing to strong sunlight renewing the lemon juice occasionally.

☆ ☆ ☆

Utilize that collection of various sized buttons you have accumulated by making yourself a button belt. Shiny black, gilt or silver buttons in an alternating pattern on a strip of felt or velvet make a really glamorous belt.

Paste wax has many other uses besides polishing floors and woodwork. Have you ever tried waxing your dustpan, waste basket or garbage can liner, so the dirt will slide on and off easily. Wax also prevents sticking if applied to the tops and bottoms of drawers.

What To Do With Children During Easter Holiday?

By NANCY CLEAVER.

"On Easter let your clothes be new,
Or else be sure you will it rue."
—Old English Rhyme.

Wearing new clothes to church on Easter Sunday morning is a custom in many lands. But what to do with the children during the holidays is just as much of a problem to busy mothers as trying to make the money stretch to cover the clothing needs of the family. Here are a few suggestions which can be used either at a children's party or for the "small fry" when their chums come indoors to play on rainy days in the vacation period.

EASTER BONNET PARTY

The new Easter hat is a real event in even a "little" woman's life. If your daughter belongs to a club, perhaps she would like to have the members in for an Easter Bonnet party. If you can find a milliner who is willing to be a special guest and demonstrate some principles in choosing and trimming a hat, this is sure to be popular.

If this is not possible, why not get several rolls of crepe paper in spring shades, and have a competition for the prettiest crepe chapeau? Small girls can make a charming little hat using a large size paper pie plate as a brim, with the crown cut out to fit the head, and crepe ties under the chin, and crepe ribbon or flower trimmings.

ALWAYS MAKES A HIT

A newspaper fashion show never fails to make a hit. Divide the players into groups of three. Hand each group four or five newspapers and a package of ordinary pins. Give them 10 minutes only in which each group will choose which one will be the "model" for a newspaper dress and hat, and then have the other two players fashion the most original newspaper outfit they can design. Warn the amateur dressmakers in their haste not to prick their model with a pin, and not to copy any other group's pattern. Award copies of a weekend newspaper to the three members of the team who create the most effective outfit.

There are two Easter hat circle games. In the first, two old hats are passed around the circle to music. When the music stops, the persons holding a hat drop out—so the object of the game is to pass the hat along to the player on the left as quickly as possible. In the other game, the players stand in a circle holding each other's wrists and walk around an old felt hat. Each player attempts to pull the player on either side toward the centre so that he must step on the hat. The players who touch it are eliminated until only on player is left as winner.

CHANGE OLD FAVORITES

Many old favorites in games can be changed slightly for Easter fun. Instead of "Hide the Thimble," why not hide a tiny chocolate bunny wrapped in tinfoil? A "Peanut Hunt" can be converted into a search for small, colored, candy Easter eggs. Substitute "Put the Ears on the Rabbit" for "Pin the Tail on the Donkey," which is outlined on a big sheet of paper. A ring-tossing game with ordinary embroidery hooks or mason jar rings can be called "Bunny Ring Game." Each player tries his luck at ringing an upright cardboard bunny's ears, mounted on plywood or tacked to a large carton.

In a home where mother is in the background, willing to cooperate by helping to find the necessary equipment for handcraft and games, the boys and girls usually become quite expert at making their own good times. This is an important part of training them to be independent, happy adults who will know what to do with their leisure....Knowing this gives parents more patience during vacation days when, in Burns' words: "The mirth and fun grows fast and furious."

Canadian Women Golfers Plans Tour Of Great Britain

By JOAN BARBERIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—When is the genial golf star, 60-year-old Ada Mackenzie, going to hang up her clubs?

Probably never, and right now this energetic, grey-haired woman is preparing to face one of the most gruelling competitive golfing trips she's ever taken.

Since that day in 1919 when Miss Mackenzie first won the Ladies Open championship, title has followed title to make the stocky, ruddy-complexioned golfer a legend on Canadian links.

Sitting in the office of her sportswear shop in the swank section of Toronto's Bloor street, it needed only a word of inquiry and enthusiastic Ada Mackenzie teed off about the forthcoming trip.

SETS A PRECEDENT

"We'll be the first Canadian women's golf team to ever play officially outside the country," she said.

Accompanying Miss Mackenzie at the end of May will be: Marlene Stewart and Mary Gay from Ontario; Mrs. Graeme Pyke and Daintry Chisholm from Quebec and Mrs. J. H. Todd and Babs Davies from British Columbia.

"We're going to play matches in England, Wales, Scotland, Ireland, take in the Coronation and enter the British Open and a special Commonwealth match," said Miss Mackenzie.

"Young Canadian golfers should have more opportunity to play in competition abroad," said this booster of young players, and then she launched on another favorite topic.

EYES CURTIS CUP

"My ambition is to see Canadian women play in the Curtis Cup match along with American and British women." Determination that they shall fairly crackles from Miss Mackenzie. She herself has many times been the only Canadian at international matches.

Taking a pencil from a silver trophy cup on her desk, she tapped punctuation.

"Money is the main barrier," she said. "I figure it would cost us $5,000 or so—for Britain that is—it would be less in the United States."

Miss Mackenzie, who has won some 18 or 19 titles, said that the Canadian Ladies Golf Union has given up-and-coming young golfers opportunity to play competitively in all parts of Canada.

"Four from each province play annually in different parts of the country and their expenses are paid," she said.

FOUNDED CLUB

Miss Mackenzie was one of the founders of the Ladies Golf and Tennis Club of Toronto, owned, controlled and operated by women, for women—the only course of its kind in the world.

This sort of information doesn't come from Miss Mackenzie. Titles and such must be looked up in sports' files. If it's the prowess of other women golfers you want, she'll go on forever.

Tangy comments attributed to Miss Mackenzie are legion among women golfers.

Following a tournament near Hamilton, the story goes, women were under the showers and flitting about scantily draped in towels when suddenly a deep voice bellowed:

"Where the hell's the soap?"

Women squealed and ducked for cover. But it was only the forthright Miss Mackenzie on the hunt for an elusive cake of soap

FAVORS BLUE SUITS

Miss Mackenzie wears beautifully tailored suits, preferably of a soft blue, often as not touched up with a small bunch of artificial flowers.

In fact, she wouldn't look out of place pouring tea and suggesting that you try some of her home-baked chocolate cake.

Miss Mackenzie said the golf team won't have uniforms but will take green blazers with a badge on which there are crossed golf clubs and a wreath of maple leaves topped by a beaver.

Apparently tireless, Miss Mackenzie will play in the Bermuda Open soon, just to warm up for the matches in Britain.

As to Canadian chances in the coming tour she said:

"The British will practice in any kind of weather. It doesn't mean a thing to them what it's like. We tend to be fair weather players and the British practice is going to count heavily."

ANSWER: Betty, you can see I have shortened your letter drastically. That is because I have answered some of your questions in previous columns. I am sending you copies of them. On mature thought I believe you should not try to restore the marmalade that is a flop. Use it for the fruit and liquid and some of the sugar content in drop cookies or as the fruit part of steamed puddings. It also makes a good ingredient as a sauce on cottage pudding. Dollar Reserve Slips $22 Million In Two Months

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's official reserves of United States dollars and gold slipped to $1,845,000,000 on March 31, a drop of $22,000,000 in two months.

The finance department Thursday announced that the fund, built up to protect the exchange rate of the Canadian dollar from what has been described as "excessive short-run fluctuations," eased from its monthly peak of $1,867,000,000 on Jan. 31.

The major drop came during February when the reserves declined by $30,000,000 to $1,837,000,000. The decline probably resulted from a Bank of Canada move to sell some of the reserves on the market to bolster the exchange value of the Canadian dollar.

During that month, the Canadian dollar which had been running at a premium of about three cents eased to a premium of less than two cents.

The trend changed in March when the premium on the Canadian dollar rose fractionally and the reserves—expressed in terms of U. S. dollars—increased by $8,000,00 to $1,845,000,000.

Recover Paintings

CHICAGO (CP)—Two men were arrested Friday in connection with the theft of nine oil paintings including three old masterpieces from St. Joseph's Cathedral in Bardstown, Ky., last November. Authorities picked up Norton I. Kretske, 47, a lawyer, and Gus Manotelli, 52, a ship steward, as they were carrying four paintings on busy Michigan avenue. Five other paintings were recovered from a dealer. Rt. Rev. James H. Willett, pastor of St. Joseph's, said the recovery was a "wonderful Easter gift."

Bomb Customs House

LONDONDERRY (Reuters) — Terrorists Friday night hurled a home-made bomb through the window of a British customs house on the Ulster-Republic of Ireland border and tried to set fire to two others. Police believe they were members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army. All the windows and a door were blown out of the bombed building in the border town of Moleahean. The attacks were regarded as a demonstration to mark the anniversary of the Irish Rebellion of Easter Monday, 1916.

Winnipeg Video To Be Cut To Fit District

By ART BRYDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Programs from Western Canada's first television station, scheduled to be opened here by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation later this year, to some extent will be tailored to the area.

Winnipeg productions will let viewers in on the secret of the origins of the West's dry cold in winter and dry heat in summer. Telecasts will be made of the folk dances and other activities of Greater Winnipeg's numerous ethnic groups. Then there is the Royal Winnipeg Ballet and the square dance will also come in for attention.

A mobile unit will provide football, hockey and basketball coverage. Curling, a big spectator sport in the West, will come in for major attention from TV crews.

There will be a single studio in Winnipeg, about 40 by 60 feet. The studio and 250-foot transmission tower will be located in west-central Winnipeg where a building is now being remodelled for the CBC.

R. D. Cahoon, Prairie regional engineer for the CBC, says that the first offerings will be modest. The tentative plan is to begin broadcasting about 6:30 p.m. with a children's program. This will be followed by recorded music and then a feature show.

The local TV staff will consist of about 36 persons at the start, some chosen from CBC personnel, others from outside sources. Some of the 18 Winnipeggers in the Toronto studios will be returned.

Football, a major TV drawing card, may be represented by the Blue Bombers, Winnipeg's entry in the Western Interprovincial Football League. The University of Manitoba also may field a team or an intercollegiate basis but officials are non-committal.

Approached as to TV possibilities, tight-lipped Blue Bomber officials cast a wary eye at Winnipeg's new 15,000-seat stadium and said they have not been approached by the CBC.

The stadium, a city-backed project, will raise by 6,500 the number able to view a football game. It will be ready for service in the 1953 season, about the same time CBC say telecasts will start.

NEW YORK (AP)—Charles E. Bohlen left Friday by plane to take over his post as new United States ambassador to Russia. He declined comment when asked if he carried any personal message from President Eisenhower to Soviet Prime Minister Malenkov. He expects to be in Moscow in about a week.

Civilian Casualties

BONN (Reuters)—More German civilians than soldiers were killed in the Second World War, a West German government bulletin said today. It listed 3,300,000 civilians and 3,250,000 soldiers killed. Throughout the world about 25,000,000 civilians and 27,000,000 soldiers died in the war. The Soviet Union lost about 13,600,000 soldiers and at least 7,000,000 civilians.

Christians All Over World Commemorate Crucifixion

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Christian nations around the world Friday commemorated in Good Friday services the death of Christ on the Cross.

Whether or not the coming Easter would be the landmark of another great rebirth of hope and peace, the abiding faith of Christendom rested in the promise held forth in the Resurrection long ago in Jerusalem.

There, 5,000 pilgrims from many countries trod again the narrow, twisting, cobblestoned Via Dolorosa —Way of the Cross—from the square where Christ was condemned by Pilate, up to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre where He was buried the first Good Friday.

Thirty men carried two huge crosses the entire distance, and prayers, sermons and chants were recited in different languages at each of the 14 stations on the way. Jerusalem's hotels were packed with tourists.

At Vatican City an estimated 500,000 persons visited St. Peter's Basilica where Federico Cardinal Tedeschina officiated at the solemn mass of the presanctified host.

By night, sputtering torches lighted for Rome's pilgrims another Way of the Cross, with its wooden crosses, up Palatine Hill.

In Canada, Christians of all denominations attended special Good Friday services.

Weather generally was warm and sunny across the country and many persons left the cities on long-weekend trips through parts of Nova scotia. Manitoba and Northwestern Ontario were cloudy and had some rain or snow. There was light snowfalls in eastern Quebec.

Hundreds of iron miners at Bell Island, Nfld., were unable to get home for the holiday because one ferry broke its rudder and the other cannot get out of St. John's harbor because of ice. Islanders may become short of food during Easter unless a ferry can make the trip.

In London 20,000 persons packed Westminster Cathedral to hear a Good Friday sermons by Roman Catholic Bishop Fulton J. Sheen of New York. The "television bishop" told his crowded audience to remember, if they were uncomfortable, that "Christ himself hung in a more uncomfortable position nailed to a cross for three hours."

From Formosa, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, a Methodist, broadcast to the Chinese mainland to have faith it would be "delivered from the satanic rule of the Communists."

Both hope and doubt were reflected in a Good Friday press conference by State Secretary Dulles, who said the United States will continue to need strong defences and Allies despite the current series of Soviet peace hints. These had not lessened the peril from a heavily-armed, totalitarian Soviet Union, he said.

CANADA'S LEGATION at Berne, Switzerland, has been raised to the status of Embassy and the Canadian Minister, Victor Dore, above, elevated to the rank of Ambassador, the External Affairs Department has announced in Ottawa. Mr. Dore, 73, a native of Montreal, was formerly Amabassador to Belgium from 1946 to 1950. He has served in Switzelrland since 1950.

UNEASY REST—Exhausted medics of the 1st Marine Division in Korea take a breather in the Vegas Hill area while they wait for new casualties in the fighting. Trinity Church WMS Takes Easter Theme OMEMEE (ENS)—Easter was the theme at the April meeting of Trinity United Church WMS. Mrs. M. Jones led the members in a responsive worship service, interspersed with Easter hymns.

Mrs. S. H. Moyer gave a devotioned talk on "Proofs of the Resurrection." A meditation on resurrection morning and publishing the good news was given by Miss Jessie Lamb. Scripture was read by Mrs. J. M. Sandy and Mrs. E. A. Corneil sang "Christ the Risen King."

Miss C. Connell reported for Christian stewardship and Mrs. A. Rutherford for Christian citizenship. The WMS Sunday evening thankoffering service was announced for April 12. The Rev. I. G. Pollock of Peterborough will be guest speaker. The WMS ladies and mothers of Baby Band and Mission Band children were asked to meet in the basement before the service in order to attend in a body.

Sewing for the bale was distributed by the supply secretary, Mrs. Moyer.

A social half hour was spent after the meeting, with Mrs. Jones' group as hostesses.

Story Of Cobalt Industry At Deloro Told To C Of C

MARMORA — (ENS) — The story of the cobalt industry at Deloro from 1907 was told by R. G. Walsh, general manager of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company at a well-attended dinner meeting of the Marmora District Chamber of Commerce Thursday.

Unlike gold, silver or copper, cobalt is never found in its crude state as a native product but is always associated with other minerals. Its original use was for coloring such articles as vases and turning out ceramic ware. Its color as a rule is deep blue.

It was first mined in Germany as far back as 1470. By 1474, 176 mines of various sizes were opened in that country. It is even used as a dye in the manufacture of linen in Ireland.

Iron ore was first mined in Ontario in 1820 and gold was discovered in 1868. The speaker referred to gold mining activities in the Marmora district and said that the Gatling vain on the present Deloro Smelting and Refining Company's property was doubtless the richest in the immediate district. Deloro was the first plant to extract gold by use of bromo cyanide. The gold mine at Deloro closed down in 1903.

Deloro's part as a cobalt producer and the various stages of development to keep pace with competition were portrayed by the speaker with the use of statistics and samples of Deloro products were passed around.

Introduced by Don Marett, Mr. Walsh was heartily thanked by Reeve Irwin McCoy on behalf of the chamber. Various guests present were welcomed and introduced to the chamber by president R. E. Neal.

Prior to the royal toast, a minute's silence was observed in memory of the late Dowager Queen Mary.

PICTURES OF MINE

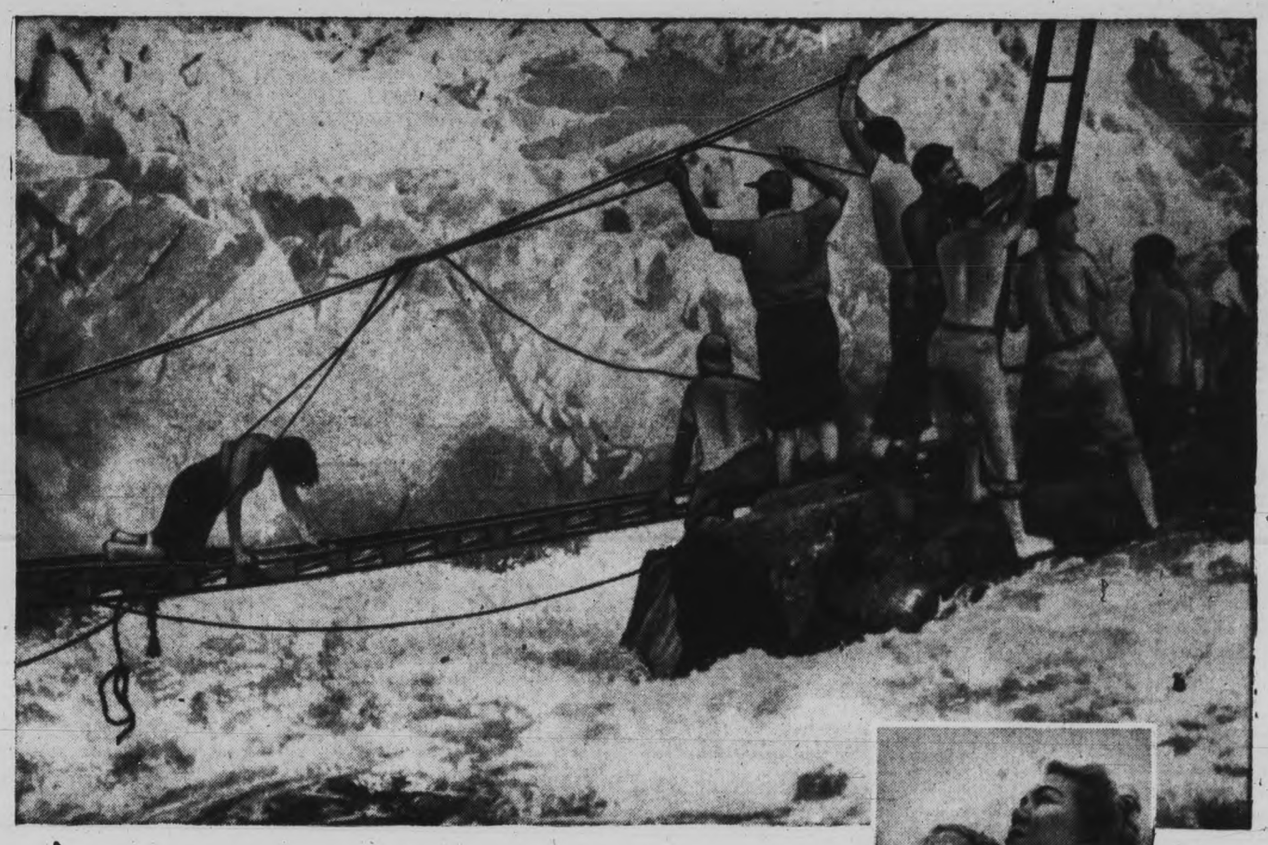
The president displayed a gift which the chamber received at its last directors' meeting. It was a handsome inscribed album of enlarged pictures of the visit of Premier Frost to the iron mine December 22. It will be loaned to the Marmora Public Library. Harold Olsen, general manager of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation mine, was heartily thanked for the gift. The president mentioned that Mr. Olsen and McCoy of the office staff of the company contemplated publishing a monthly bulletin and would appreciae co-operation of the members.

Alex Fraser, reporting progress of the Artificial Ice Fund, said the canvass for subscriptions was well under way. Approximately $6,000 had been received in cash and pledges. Former residents, wholesalers and suppliers were also being contacted.

Bruce Smith of Belleville, member of the Moira River Conservation Authority, told of stop logs being placed in the new dam across Moira River above Deloro that afternoon at which event himself, Reeve C. H. Buskard of Deloro and Reeve Irwin McCoy of Marmora and Lake township had been present.

Concerning the lake which had been formed, Deloro Lake was the name decided on. Mr. Smith asked that the chamber forward a letter to Col. Roscoe Vanderwater betokening their approval of this name.

Warden Jack Kincaid of Hastings County spoke briefly, as did Cliff Baker of Hastings Chamber of Commerce.



Colored movies of the Royal Tour which had been shown in the Public School in the afternoon, were shown.

"Oh dear!
I wonder what happened?"

Suppose you had been watching this tense scene, just as this woman and child did . . .

Even though you watched and watched, chances are you'd have to do what she did – get a newspaper to get the full story.

Then, for the first time, you'd learn that the girl on the ladder had fallen into the Potomac River, narrowly escaped being swept over the falls, and had clung to a rock for three hours. Then the firemen rescued her.

Being on the spot is not much better than seeing one or two photographs of the action, or seeing a headline about it, or hearing a brief announcement.

All of these can whet your appetite for news, but they cannot satisfy your hunger for the whole story . . . the way you want it . . . right away . . . in all its local color.

• This goes for advertising, too. The brief message that hangs in the air . . . or brief headlines here or there . . . may indeed have a momentary interest.

But the newspaper ad carries the firm-tacks quality, the urgency of the newspaper itself.

Like a news item, the ad can be examined and re-examined. Can be read any time. Anywhere. Can be clipped and carried in a pocketbook.

Add to all this the fact that the newspaper reaches just about everybody in town, and you know why the newspaper is the nation's most effective advertising medium.

The newspaper is always "first with the most"

What cynics called "a threat of peace" sent prices downward on the Toronto stock market this week.

Signs of a more peaceful attitude by Russia pushed the exchange's indexes of base metals, industrial and western oils an average of 3.75 points lower on the week. Golds—often regarded as a good stock to buy when other prices are falling—rose 3.75 index points.

Most observers pointed out, however, that any great change in the international situation knocks prices down. Investors sold parts of their holdings because of a changed situation.

Canadian markets resisted the "peace-scare" selling better than did United States markets. There was no large rush of selling on the Toronto exchange. As prices fell, the volume of shares dwindled until it reached its lowest point of the year Thursday.

CREDIT FOR BOOM

Credit for the greater buoyancy in Canada was generally given to the many new developments now under way. For example, at least five new mining regions are opening up: northern Saskatchewan; Bathurst, N.B.; North Bay, Ont.; Fort Frances, Ont.; and Quebec's eastern townships.

These and other long-term expansion programs are not expected to be halted by what may be a short-term market movement.

Both Toronto and Montreal markets weakened Monday while golds resisted the trend. Losses continued Tuesday in both centres, but Toronto staged a small recovery Wednesday. Montreal continued lower Wednesday and turned mixed Thursday. Toronto slipped lower Thursday.

All markets closed for Good Friday.

In New York, peace moves Monday tumbled prices. Selling pressure continued Tuesday but eased slightly Wednesday. Quiet selling Thursday kept losses rolling.

From Friday to Thursday, the Toronto exchange's indexes showed industrials down 3.71 at 315.97, golds up 3.75 at 80.89, base metals down 4.22 at 168.62 and western oils down 3.33 at 123.46.

In the Montreal averages, banks were down .21 at 33.35, utilities down .5 at 95.9, industrials down 4.0 at 200.2, combined down 2.9 at 165.4, papers down 6.81 at 695.94 and golds up .16 at 62.48.

On the New York market, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks was down $3.50 at $111.30.

Circulation Up By 2,198 Books

The adult circulation of the Peterborough Public Library increased by 2,198 books during the month of March chief librarian William Graff reported to the board of directors Wednesday evening.

In the juvenile section there was an increase of 2,350 books. The auditorium was used 13 times and the committee rooms 25 times during the month.

The Peterborough film board reported that there were 156 showings for the month and 299 films were borrowed for private use.

Architects Stewart Cauley and Bob Servos of Toronto were interviewed by the board about renovation of the building.

First Ship Docks

MONTREAL (CP) — Captain Thomas Quinn made port history Thursday when he docked his ship, the Canuk line's Seaboard Star, at 3:15 p.m. The earliest date on record. He beat the previous mark by five days, a record set in 1949 by another Montreal-owned ship, the Mont Alta. The Seaboard Star sailed from the United Kingdom.

LADY NANCY ASTOR, acid-tongued former member of the British Parliament, plunges a knife into a cake at a Red Cross luncheon in Washington, and remarks in a joking vein: "Let's pretend it's McCarthy." She was referring to Senator Joseph P. McCarthy. It all started when she remarked of the Senator at a recent party: "While the world rocks, he talks," adding, of his drink, "too bad it isn't poison."

Taken For Ride, Losses All Cash

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Police are searching for three youthful hoodlums who assaulted and robbed a Londoner early Friday, then dumped their victim out of a car near Fanshawe dam.

Irwin Cameron, 31, told police he was "taken for a ride" by three youths after he accepted a lift home about 4:30 a.m. He said they stole his wallet, $41 in currency and his wristwatch, then pushed him out of the car on a concession road near Fanshawe.

Cameron trudged more than two miles back to the city's northeast limits, where he roused occupants of the nearest house to call police.

Turkish Officials Jail Skipper After Sub Sinks

ISTANBUL—(CP)—Turkish officials today jailed Capt. Oscar Lornstzon, skipper of a Swedish freighter which collided Saturday with the Turkish submarine Dumlupinar and sent it to the bottom of the Dardanelles, drowning 81 crew members. Lornstzon denied that his 4,000-ton freighter Naboland was to blame for the collision. He said the submarine had violated international navigation rules and he planned a court appeal for his release. after colliding with the Naboland in the Dardanelles and carried the struggling crew to their deaths 228 feet below the surface of the straits.

Rescue teams labored until late Sunday night on the slim chance of rescuing some of the men

A communique said the dead included seven officers, 35 petty officers and 39 seamen.

TRANSFERRED IN 1950

The 1,526-ton submarine formerly was the U. S. S. Bumper and was transferred to Turkey in 1950 under the mutual aid program. All her crew had been trained in the United States.

The collision tore a gaping hole in the bow of the Naboland but she remained seaworthy and was anchored at Canakkale pending completion of an official investigation.

Rescue operations at first spurred by telephone contact maintained for six hours Saturday with 22 men then still alive and trapped in the submarine's stern.

Later Saturday this contact was lost.

The armed services information office Saturday listed 96 officers and men aboard. But the defence ministry communique in Ankara Sunday night gave the figure as 81. Five men, including the Dumlupinar's skipper, were saved. These five were on the conning tower at the time the Dumlupinar was rammed.

Truce Talks Fail To Stop Line Skirmishes

BY WILLIAM C. BARNARD

SEOUL (AP)—Marines slugged it out with 175 Chinese Reds today just east of Panmunjom, where United Nations and Allied liaison officers opened talks on an exchange of sick and wounded prisoners of war.

The bloody skirmish erupted a scant half-mile from the neutral corridor—the route which Allied armistice officers took to Panmunjom a few hours later.

The 1½-hour battle left 19 Chinese counted dead, 16 estimated killed and 28 estimated wounded.

The Reds pulled back after fresh marines rushed forward to join the original patrol.

ACTION FLARES

Fiery patrol actions flared elsewhere on the western and central fronts.

Bad weather grounded most 5th air force planes, but some swept through overcast skies and blasted Red positions.

On the western front, Allied soldiers threw back 40 Chinese Reds who attacked a UN outpost east of T-Bone hill. The Allies killed an estimated 19 Reds and wounded 13 in a 15-minute battle.

On the eastern front Sunday night, counter-attacking troops of the Third Republic of Korea division failed to recapture an outpost east of the Pukham river which the Reds had captured Saturday night. The RoKs were forced to fall back after a four-hour battle.

In aerial action Sunday night, 14 Superforts dumped 140 tons of bombs on two Red supply areas, one 18 miles southeast of Pyongyang, North Korean capital and the other 10 miles north of Sariwon on the Korean west coast.

New Rocket Developed In US

WASHINGTON (AP) — Development of a rocket missile achieving a speed four times that of sound was disclosed in House of Representatives appropriation hearings today.

Dr. Jerome C. Hunsaker, chairman of the national advisory committee for aeronautics, mentioned the army achievement in requesting funds for added research on rocket development.

There was no indication of the rocket's specific speed. The speed of sound varies between 760 miles an hour at sea level and 660 at high altitudes. That would make the speed between 2,640 and 3,040 mph.

The German V-rocket travelled at four times the speed of sound in the Second World War, but sometimes exploded in mid-air because of heat generated by the speed of its travel.

School Building Costs Too High

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. J. G. Althouse, chief director of education for Ontario, said today "salaries of Ontario teachers will be endangered" unless expenditures on school construction are cut in the next three years.

He was commenting on the Ontario government's action in cutting off grants for gymnasiums and other non-classroom construction.

Dr. Althouse told the men's physical education section of the Ontario Educational Association that if school boards co-operate, "we can have normal school construction again after the three years are up."

R. Cruickshank of Blenheim, past president of the physical education section, said members are "unnerved" over the future of physical education in the province.

2-Mile Tieup As Bridge Repaired

TRENTON (CP) — Traffic was lined up for two miles on each side of the Trent river bridge today when half of the structure was blocked off for a three-week repair job.

Highways department officials are expected to reroute light trucks and cars, but heavy transports will have to wait their turn to cross the bridge, due to half-load restrictions on sideroads.

Traffic congestion was reported far worse than during busy summer week-ends.

Open Dam Gates To Clear Ice

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) Seven gates in the compensating dam across the St. Marys river will be opened today to allow jammed ice in the upper river to escape over the rapids and relieve pressure that is slowing lake traffic.

Clifford Aune, superintendent of the United States canal system, said opening the gates is a temporary measure to flush broken ice that is delaying 24 vessels in the upper river.

Opening the gates, still frozen in their sockets and with ice jammed against them, will be an all-day job.

Commander T. A. Dahlburg of the US Coast guard station here, said the vessels are fighting heavy slush ice towards the canals. Nine upbound freighters are waiting at the locks. The ice breakers Mackinaw and Mesquite are working in the upper river to keep the slush ice moving down.

Circles Four Hours, Crash Lands Plane

HONOLULU (AP) — Hundreds held their breath Sunday as U S. Air Force Capt. Robert B. Mancib crash-landed a B-29 superfort at Hickam air force base after circling the field for four hours with a locked landing gear.

None of the 11 crew was injured.

The big bomber landed on its left landing wheel and nose wheel, pancaked and veered off the runway.

The Superfort was enroute to the Far East from Travis air force base, northeast of San Francisco.

Test Mice And Monkeys In New Atomic Blast

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — An atomic blast, designed to test flying mice and monkeys, was set off today at the proving ground near here.

Fourth in the current series of nuclear explosions, today's was the first this year to be set off in daylight. The flash flared to the northwest at 7:30 a. m. PST (10:30 a. m. EST).

As in last week's third test, no troops were in the field today.

The shot was plainly visible from Las Vegas, and to seasoned observers looked high in the air, as if it might have been dropped from a plane. Previous tests this spring have all been of devices set off from 300-foot steel towers.

Despite a ground haze, the familiar white cloud started forming within three minutes. It was high in the air and grew rapidly, a contrast to last week's small fluffy cloud, one of the smallest yet noted here.

Observers noted many planes in the air before the flash. The U. S. Air Force has said it might have as many as 74 craft aloft at one time.

The shock wave—with more strength than noted here yet this spring—was felt clearly at 7:37 a. m.

As usual, the atomic energy commission wouldn't discuss the type of weapon it is testing, but it did disclose plans for carrying animals through the atomic cloud by plane.

Mice and monkeys were used in earlier blasts this year, but how they withstood radiation on the ground was not made public.

Today, the AEC said, two pilotless AQ-80 jet drones, each carrying 60 mice and two monkeys for bio-medical research, were to fly through the cloud, guided by radar.

Another test of automobiles—donated to the federal civil defence administration by dealers and manofacturers throughout the country—also was scheduled today.

Bomb Blast Kills 5 In House

Bottle Of Gasoline Hits Hot Stove Flames Sweep Home

BASSANO, Alta.,—(CP)—A bottle of gasoline was tossed through the window of an Indian home Saturday night and five persons were killed when it exploded on a hot stove. Police arrested an Indian whose wife and child were among the victims.

A six-year-old boy, Gary Bow Bear, was burned to death in the house, on the nearby Blackfoot Indian reserve, when the bottle exploded. Four others died from burns in hospital Sunday. There was only one survivor.

Police arrested Alex Standing-at-the-Door, about 35. They said they believe Standing-at-the-Door's 26-year-old wife had refused to let him in the house. The bottle was thrown through the window shortly after the argument.

Bottles of gasoline are kept in front of homes on this southern Alberta reserve for filling lamps.

LIST OF DEAD

Dead are: Mrs. Standing-at-the-Door; her six-year-old son, Clifford; Mrs. Ben Ironhead, 65; Mrs. Joe Little Chief, 50; and her adopted son, Gary Bow Bear

The three-room frame house, owned by Joe Little Chief, was located near Cluny, about 15 miles west of here and about 70 miles southeast of Calgary.

Mrs. Clarisse Tallow was the lone survivor. The others were critically burned and unconscious—most of their clothing burned from their bodies—when taken to hospital by a passerby.

The nearest neighbor to the gutted house, Anthony Pretty Face, ran from his home when he heard the explosion, but the house, 20 yards away, was already enveloped in flames.

BUNDLED IN BLANKETS

As the victims staggered from the building, neighbors bundled them in blankets.

Witnesses said the building was destroyed within 20 minutes. Mrs. Tallow's escape was attributed to the fact that she was seated nearest the only exit.

An inquest opened Sunday and was adjourned pending further investigation.

"DIB" DERBY AT CONFEDERATION PARK for Y.M.C.A. Juniors and Pioneers takes place today, Tuesday and Wednesday. It is one of the ways school children are spending their Easter holidays this years and if the weather stays dry others may think of hikes and bicycle rides into the country. If it rains, there are always movies to attend even though they may have seen the current offerings more than once. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Arson Reports Discounted In Hotel Fires

FORT FRANCES (CP) — Police today discounted earlier reports that arson was suspected in two fires that broke out early Sunday in Fort Frances' hotels.

Two-storeys of the three-storey, 41-room Emperor hotel were destroyed, but a small blaze in the washroom of the Fort Frances hotel was quickly extinguished.

One man, Bert Snow, previously reported missing in the $100,000 Emperor hotel fire, now is reported unharmed. In the confusion of the fire, he left the hotel and registered at another.

ROUSE 40 GUESTS

Some 40 guests in the Emperor were quickly roused by police and firemen.

An onlooker, Art Johnson, 60, manager of the Rainy Lake hotel, died from a heart attack at the scene.

The blaze, believed to have started in a third-floor linen closet, had a good start before a passerby noticed the flames belching from the top storey. It spread to the second floor, but the main floor, including a restaurant and beverage parlor, was saved.

Police Recover Slay Bandit

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A drug store bandit disarmed and threatened to kill two detectives, but lost his own life when the officers made a swift recovery Sunday night.

Detectives Charles Klug and Robert Walker, answering a holdup call, split up when they saw a man entering an alley near the store.

The man hid briefly, however, then stepped out, shoving a pistol against Klug and taking his gun. With Klug as a shield, the man forced Walker to give up his weapon.

He ordered both officers to the ground saying "I'm going to kill both you lousy . . ." but the sound of a police car siren apparently changed his mind.

He told the detectives to start walking, then fired once at Walker who slipped, escaping the bullet. Klug promptly swung at the man's face, grabbed a gun and fired six times. Walker jumped forward, took the other gun the man held and fired twice.

Sight Missing Schooner

Contacted by radio, members of the three-man crew reported they were well.

Adenauer Pays Visit

NEW YORK (CP) — Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany arrived today for a round of important conferences with President Eisenhower and other U. S. government officials, to be followed by a brief visit to Ottawa.

Series Of Waterspouts Smash Across Bermuda

HAMILTON, Bermuda—(AP)— A series of waterspouts cut across Bermuda during a heavy rainstorm Sunday, ripping off roofs, washing away cars and doing other serious damage. One child was reported killed and a dozen persons injured. The tubular columns of water whipped up from the ocean and struck without warning, slicing narrow paths of damage. The roofs of Heyls drugstore, a Hamilton landmark, and other business buildings in the heart of the city were blown off.

A wooden building was flattened, and others were badly battered. A falling tree caved in the roof of one house and trapped six occupants until rescue workers could dig them out.

WASHED INTO SOUND

The whirling wind and water washed two cars into Harrington Sound.

Eyewitnesses reported the spouts hit with a loud roar. Flashes of lightning and debris fell from the sky as though "an airplane had exploded."

The weather station said the wind blew in gusts to more than 85 miles an hour. The waterspouts cut swathes about 100 feet wide, leaving other areas undamaged.

Dump Explodes Death Toll 43

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—An ammunition dump five miles south of here exploded with an earthquake-like jolt today, killing 43 persons and injuring an estimated 500.

The blast took place as workmen were removing explosive, intended for blasting purposes, from old Japanese torpedoes.

A factory next to the dump collapsed like a house of cards.

Farmhouses in the vicinity were levelled.

The explosion shook Taipeh as though the city were jolted by an earthquake.

Seven of the dead were factory employees.

The disaster was the worst of its kind since the ammunition ship, the Chungli, blew up in Kaohsiung harbor in the summer of 1949, killing more than 100 persons.

Russia, Red China Return Fishermen

TOKYO (AP) — Russia and Red China have returned without notice 171 Japanese fishermen and five fishing boats captured by Communist vessels last year.

Three ships, carrying 147 fishermen, arrived this morning at Nagasaki, North Kyushu, from Shanghai. Two other vessels, with 24 fishermen aboard, arrived Sunday at Wakkanai, northernmost Japanese port, from Soviet-held Sakhalin Island, north of Japan.

The Tokyo newspaper Asahi reported from Nagasaki that the arrivals there apparently had been "brain washed." The dispatch said they shied away from reporters and port authorities.

One engineer told Asahi "I forgot my name. My group was captured last August, some other men still earlier."

The newspaper Yomiuri reported from Wakkanai that the 24 fishermen were arrested by the Russians near Sakhalin last October and charged with spying.

Carioca Wins, Costs Bookmakers Million

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Carioca, a 9-to-4 favorite, won the Sydney Cup with ease today, costing bookmakers nearly $1,000,000.

Carioca, who scored by 2½ lengths over Advocate (14-1) with Friendly Feeling (9-1) third, was coupled with Tarien in the big autumn racing double. Tarien, an imported English four-year-old, won the Doncaster Handicap, first leg of the double, Saturday and bookmakers said approximately £400,000 Australian ($900,000) had been bet on the pair.

Carioca, covering the two-miles under 121 pounds in 3:22½, won a purse worth £10,278 ($23,125).

Report Progress At Conference; 9-Point Program

MUNSAN, Korea—(AP)—United Nations liaison officers today handed the Reds a nine-point program deisgned to start the exchange of sick and wounded prisoners of the Korean war seven days after agreement on procedure is reached. The exchange would be at the rate of 500 a day. The UN group, headed by Rear-Admiral John C. Daniel, presented the UN nine-point proposal at a 45-minute meeting at Panmunjom of liaison groups asisgned to arrange the exchange of sick and wounded.

The Reds made no reply.

Other provisions called for captured personnel to be exchanged at Panmunjom in groups of 25 each, registered by nationality, name, rank and serial number. The UN promised to deliver 500 captured personnel daily until the exchange is completed.

The UN also proposed that a termination date be specified in the exchange agreement.

Rail and highway convoys carrying the prisoners to Panmunjom would be guaranteed freedom from air attacks.

UN liaison officers reported "distinct progress" with "very objective" Red officers. A smoothly accomplished trade could pave the way for an armistice in Korea.

The UN also asked the Reds for the number of Allied prisoners they are willing to return. The Reds said they would supply the number but they took no immediate action on the nine-point plan.

The officers will meet again at Panmunjom 11 a.m. Tuesday, (9 p.m. EST Monday).

OBJECTIVE ATTITUDE

Rear-Admiral John Daniel, chief UN liaison officer, said:

"The attitude of the Communists was very objective. "I'd say distinct progress was made in that we met and exchanged views. I feel that we have made progress."

But the Reds raised two points that were not fully explained.

North Korean Maj.-Gen. Lee Sang Cho said that before the Reds supplied the number of Allied PoWs to be returned, both sides "must establish the category of prisoners who may be exchanged before an armistice." UN officers said he did not explain what he meant.

The Reds also indicated they may want some prisoners returned to their homeland and some sent to neutral countries. There was no elaboration on that.

The Allies have assumed that all disabled prisoners would be sent back to their own countries as a matter of course, providing the prisoners wanted it that way.

NOT GOOD START

While Daniel said progress was made he would not say the talks were off to a good start.

3 Men Killed In Collision

HAMILTON (CP)—Three Hamilton men were killed Saturday night when their car smashed head-on into a heavy oil truck on Highway No. 20 near Elfrida.

Dead are Ignace Jarja, 43; Louis Toth, 33; and George Nikula, 29. Police said they were recent immigrants from Hungary.

The trio was sitting in the front seat when the car failed to negotiate a sharp bend in the road. It careened across the road and collided with the oil truck. Driver of the truck, Robert Billock, also of Hamilton, was not injured.

Returned To Syracuse To Face Charges

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—Albert Hazleton, 25, was returned here from Canada Saturday night to face charges in connection with the shooting of a fellow worker who lunched with Hazleton's wife.

Hazleton was arrested early Saturday at Brockville, Ont.

Raymond Oakes, 33, was shot Friday night in the parking lot at the General Electric Company's electronics park plant here as he and Mrs. Hazleton returned to the plant after supper at a nearby restaurant. He is reported in fair condition in hospital.

Frank Del Vecchio, assistant district attorney, said Hazleton would be arraigned in Salina on charges of first-degree assault and illegal possession of a gun.

Will Keep Monarchy

Mossadegh Tells Shah To Mind His Own Business

TEHRAN, Iran (Reuters)—Premier Mohammed Mossadegh today disavowed any intentions of establishing an Iranian republic with himself as president but warned the shah to keep his nose out of government business.

The premier made the statement in a nation-wide broadcast on his embittered relations with the Iranian monarch.

Mossadegh pledged his loyalty to the shah and the present constitution. But he added:

"In constitutional monarchies, the sovereign has no responsibility to govern. The shah should reign and not rule."

He appealed to the Majlis (lower House of Parliament) to approve a committee report recommending that the shah must steer clear of any conduct of state affairs. This, he said, would remove all differences between the court and the government.

The premier said he never had any intention of ending the monarchy despite such reports during last month's demonstrations which prevented the shah from leaving Iran for "a health pilgrimage." Mossadegh's foes claimed then the premier planned to keep the shah out of the country for good.

Sunday night, the government disclosed it will replace Hussein Ala, the shah's court minister for many years, with a man closer to the Mossadegh regime.

The shah and the queen now are on a vacation at a Caspian Sea resort.

Rail Workers Lose 3 Cents On Hourly Rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Falling retail prices in the United States today clipped three cents an hour from the wages of 1,300,000 rail workers.

The government announced that on Feb. 15 its old-style cost-of-living price index stood at 188.6 per cent of the 1935-39 average, enough of a drop in the cost of living from last November to require the three-cent hourly wage reduction.

Rail wages are adjusted each three months to correspond to rising or falling living costs. Today's three-cent loss is the biggest since rail wages were first tied to the cost of living. It leaves employees with 10 cents in accumulated cost-of-living pay from previous raises based on rising index figures.

BIG SAVING

The three-cent pay cut means a payroll saving for U. S. carriers estimated at $7,500,000 a month. It all but wipes out a four-cent increase awarded virtually all rail employees last month by a government referee. That increase was based on higher productivity—output per man hour.

Rail wages averaged around $1.90 an hour before today's adjustment.

An estimated 50,000 cotton textile workers will also take a pay cut of two cents an hour because of the sharp drop in the index between November and February.

Obscure Official Blamed By Reds

MOSCOW (AP)—Pravda today put the finger on an obscure deputy minister of state security as the culprit who faked the murder case against 15 Russian doctors. It also blasted the security ministry's former chief for being taken in by the false evidence.

The Communist party organ said the culprit, identified as one Ryumin, was arrested. It charged the former minister of state security, S. Ignatiev, with "political blindness and gullibility" and denounced a commission of medical experts in the case for making "incorrect conclusions."

The prominent doctors, accused last January of plotting against Soviet leaders and having caused the deaths of two, were ordered freed Saturday in a surprise move by the new internal affairs ministry headed by Lavrenti Beria, first deputy premier in the Soviet government.

(This was the first word the West had that Ignatiev had been security minister early this year. He was not further identified by Pravda, but it is possible that he is Semyon Ignatiev, recently elevated to one of the highest positions in the Soviet hierarchy—a seat on the five-man secretariat of the Communist party's powerful central committee. If such a ranking leader is under attack, a purge already may be stirring within the Kremlin.)

No Gov't Assignment In Sight–Windsor

NEW YORK (AP) — The Duke of Windsor said today he is still available—as always—for a post in the British government, but no such assignment is in sight.

"I was always available and I am still available," the duke said in an interview on his return aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth from England where he attended the funeral of Queen Mary.

Since her death there has been speculation that the Duke might return to England to live or to take a government job. However, he said there has been no change in his plans.

The Duke said he saw Prime Minister Churchill—"an old friend of mine"—during his three-weeks stay in England, but there was no specific discussion of any government assignment for him. Unofficial London reports had said the Duke asked Churchill for such a job.

Slash Prices For Seats At Coronation

LONDON (Reuters) — Choice seats for the Coronation procession next June now are selling for as low as £16.

The demand for tickets has suddenly backed up and agents have slashed prices for the best grandstand seats.

You now can get a seat in one of the bleachers not too far from Buckingham Palace for £26. That includes a first-class view of the whole mediaeval pageant, breakfast, a champagne lunch and tea.

Some of the £26 places are in store windows along the route. Some offer television, too, so you can follow Queen Elizabeth right into the inner sanctum in Westminster Abbey.

IN DIFFERENT CATEGORY

The £16 bargain seats definitely are not in the "orchestra" category. Some of them catch the procession from a bad angle. In others you have to look down at the top of the Queen's and other royal heads from second- or third-floor windows.

These "gallery" seats also carry no promise of champagne and such amenities, although the agents mention that there will be "refreshments." That could mean just tea, a scone with a pat of margarine and, perhaps, a slice of veal and ham pie.

The reason for these cut-rate offers is that many Londoners simply could not pay the stiff prices, despite their great desire to be there June 2.

Easter Service Draws Crowd

COLDSPRINGS (ENS). — A large congregation attended the Easter service at St. Paul's church on Sunday.

The Rev. V. M. Gilbert chose for his address, "Youth! Easter."

The choir, with Miss Edith Hoskin at the organ, sang the anthem "He Is Risen." Mrs. P. Harris at the piano and Miss Hoskin, organ, played a duet, "The Holy City."

The church was decorated at the front of the pulpit with Easter lilies, ferns and tall lighted candles in gold candelabras.

Several Candidates For Commissioner

OTTAWA (CP) — Several persons are being mentioned here as prospects for the job of commissioner of the National Film Board, soon to become vacant.

The post, paying about $15,000 a year, now is held by W. Arthur Irwin, former editor of Maclean's Magazine. He is going to Australia early this summer as Canadian high commissioner.

A cabinet official said during the weekend that many persons are being considered but that no choice has yet been made. The NFB, federal picture agency, has a budget of around $3,000,000 for the current fiscal year.

Among those mentioned in speculation here are two university presidents—Dr. A. W. Trueman, of the University of New Brunswick, and Dr. Norman MacKenzie of the University of British Columbia.

A former secretary to the film board, Dan Wallace of Ottawa, also is said to be among possible choices.

Will Reopen Talks In Swift Dispute

STRATFORD (CP)—Talks aimed at settlement of the wages strike by 60 workers at the Swift Canadian Company plant here are scheduled to reopen Tuesday. The strike started a week ago today.

The company's latest offer calls for a 7½-cent hourly increase with no provision for retroactive pay. The union is pressing for adoption of a majority report of a conciliation board which recommended last February a nine-cent increase retroactive to last November and an additional 4½ cents retroactive to February, 1952.

145,000 Prisoners Pawns

WASHINGTON—(AP)—More than 145,000 prisoners in the Korean war—3,198 of them Americans—were the pawns today in what appeared to be a giant new peace offensive directed from the Kremlin. It isn't particularly surprising in the light of past events. Early in the Korean war, the Chinese Communists said they placed a high political and propaganda value on their Allied prisoners. It remains to be seen whether the Reds will try again, at the truce talks which resumed today at Panmunjom, to exploit their captives. The first indication of their attitude came in November, 1950, shortly after the Chinese entered the war to support the North Korean army shattered by the United Nations forces.

The North Koreans had used their prisoners cruelly. Americans generally were treated brutally and many were massacred.

REPORTS TRUE

There was nothing phony about massacre reports out of Korea. I saw massacre victims myself near the little town of Sunchon in North Korea. Survivors who crawled out of the hills told us the story of what had happened.

A prisoner-of-war train stopped in a lonely tunnel at dusk . . . Red guards told the Americans they were to be given food . . . The prisoners walked into the fields and huddled in little groups and the guards opened fire without warning, killing 68.

The Chinese, apparently wanting to reverse the bad propaganda effects of the atrocity stories, did a turnabout.

Late in November they released 27 Americans after trying to indoctrinate the soldiers against "American imperialism." The Chinese told them to return to their lines and spread the word that the Chinese didn't want the war which they said was started by the "no-good capitalists."

FIGURES RELEASED

The Reds have said they are holding 3,198 American prisoners of war, 1,000 other nationals, and 9,000 South Koreans. The UN reports holding 132,000 Chinese and North Korean prisoners, among them 51,000 who don't want to return home.

During the first months of the war, the hard-core Communists were penned together in prisoner stockades on Koje Island, off the coast of Korea. Here again the Communists exploited prisoners for propaganda by stirring up bloody riots.

The truce talks broke down over the Red insistence on forced repatriation of all prisoners, regardless of whether they wanted to return home or not.

The Allies would not agree to this. They said to return prisoners against their will might be sending them back to certain death.

Report Progress

"Our attitude," he said, "is to take the Communists in good faith, and this liaison group will continue to do that until we have reason to the contrary."

In brief, the nine points he proposed govern an exchange.

1. Repatriation of sick and wounded captured personnel of both sides at Panmunjom.

2. The exchange would begin within seven days after the procedure is agreed upon.

3. The UN would deliver 500 captured personnel daily at Panmunom until the exchange is completed.

4. The captured personnel to be exchanged would be divided into groups of 25 each, registered by nationality, name, rank and serial number.

5. A representative of the receiving side would sign a receipt for each group accepted.

6. Motor and rail convoys would be guaranteed freedom from air attacks while moving toward Panmunjom.

FREE ACCESS

7. Liaison groups would have free access to the Panmunjom neutral area, but would be limited to 300 personnel on each side, including the prisoners being delivered.

8. Officers would be appointed to arrange for administrative procedure.

9. A termination date for the exchange would be set when the head of each liaison group signs the agreement.

Can't Trace Patient's Past

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A 70-year-old amnesia victim, identified as only "John Doe No. 1" lies sick in bed in Victoria hospital today while attendants try to establish his past before he was picked up by police in downtown London last Thursday.

Authorities say the elderly man thinks his first name is Samuel and that he lived in Essex county but he still has given no reliable clue to his identity since admission to hospital for observation.

Neatly dressed and clean, the man had only 26 cents when found. He had no papers in his possession to give any clue to his identity.

Although unresponsive to questioning today, patients sharing the same room said he had talked freely earlier. At that time he said he was born in 1881, had lived for a time in Essex county and had worked for a number of years in the Delhi area and in various states of the United States.

The patients said he had mentioned being married and separated, had brothers and sisters living and had served in the army in World War 1.

Burlington Bridge Paralyzes Traffic

BURLINGTON (CP) — Traffic was tied up for two miles in two directions at times Easter Sunday at the crippled Burlington bridge.

The motor traffic uses a Bailey bridge and half of the lift bridge which is raised to permit lake ships to pass to and from Hamilton harbor. When the lift bridge is up, cars must stop and wait.

No relief is in sight for motorists until about 1956, when the Ontario highway department hopes to complete a $12,000,000 by-pass highway and high-level bridge which will eliminate the ship-auto snarl and do away with the narrow two-lane route for about five miles through the community of Hamilton beach.

The by-pass will be a four-lane highway linking the Toronto-Burlington and Burlington - Niagara Falls stretches of the Queen Elizabeth Way. Its completion will give motorists an unbroken four-lane highway from Toronto to the Falls.

Crowds Battle Police At Irish Festival

DUBLIN (Reuters) — The Irish gathered in O'Connell St. Saturday night to open a three-week festival welcoming strangers to their friendly green land.

The goodwill party ended up in a knock-down, drag-out battle with the police, sent four Irishmen to the hospital and 12 to jail. Cause of the violence was unexplained.

Crowds poured out from saloons during the evening into Dublin's main street, overhung with lanterns and draped in bunting of the Republic of Ireland's tri-color flag.

Just after midnight people began smash store windows, batter autos and throw stones around.

POLICE CHARGE

Forty Dublin police charged in and met a rain of flowerpots, pop bottles, stones, sticks, fists and elbows.

When the police began to get the worst of it, some of the crowd pitched in to help them and the battle ended.

Officials Suspect Arson In Fires At 2 Fort Frances Hotels

FORT FRANCES—(CP)—Arson is suspected in two fires of unknown origin that broke out in Fort Frances hotels early Sunday. One man is missing. The three-storey, 41-room Emperor Hotel was gutted but a small blaze in the washroom of the Fort Frances Hotel was quickly extinguished. All available fire apparatus had barely left for the Emperor fire when the call came in for the other hotel blaze. Quick action by police and firemen working with the two owners of the Emperor roused the guests. But one man was still missing after the blaze was extinguishd. A search of the burned-out rooms failed to reveal any trace of the man registered as Bert Snow, address unknown. It was not known if he was in the building when the fire started.

STARTED IN CLOSET

Firemen said the blaze in the Emperor originated in a linen closet and had a good start before it was reported by a passer-by who saw flames belching from the upper storey. Owners William Kalichuk and Henry Kliner joined police and firemen in awakening guests.

The two men bought the hotel in 1950 and estimated their loss at more than $100,000.

900 Employees Cancel Strike

HAMILTON (CP) — More than 900 workers in the Canadian Cotton Mills here who staged a wildcat strike in the plant Friday were back at work today as arrangements were made to resume talks between union and management.

Sydney Emmerson, administrator of the greater Hamilton area joint board Textile Workers Union of America (CIO), said today the five workers over whom the strike took place are to be retained in the plant until the talks are complete. They had been given notice to leave at the weekend.

Mr. Emmerson said a negotiating committee from the plant would resume talks this morning. The dismissals were said to have taken place on the grounds of economy.

It was decided to meet the first Wednesday of each month, the May meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Earl Dafoe. An all-day quilting will be held at the home of the president, Mrs. Arthur King, next Thursday and a bake-bingo will be held May 13 at the township hall.

Urge Walkie-Talkies Help Catch Poachers

BARRIE (CP)—Game wardens today suggested walkie - talkies might help them catch many poachers they say are getting away with illegal catches of fish in the Lake Simcoe district.

Wardens have seized more than 50 illegal catches of pickerel, rainbow trout and pike in the last week and they say district courts soon will be full of men answering charges. Fish are so thick in the streams "you could walk on them," one warden said.

A scarcity of game wardens has meant many are working almost around the clock.

Grain Elevator Strike Now Settled

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister Gregg announced Saturday that a settlement has been reached in a threatened strike of grain elevator operators at the Lakehead.

He said in a statement that the disputants have agreed to a four-point settlement involving the application of the 40-hour week and whether such hours should be spread over a five-day or a six-day operation.

The dispute was between 25 grain elevator companies, represented by the Lakehead Terminal Elevators Association, and some 1,600 employees, represented by the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees, at Port Arthur.

The statement said settlement followed a conference at Ottawa the previous week where terms were reached and subsequently were ratified by the companies and employees.

STRIKE PREMATURE

It recalled that during the Ottawa talks Frank Hall, Canadian vice-president of the brotherhood, described as premature a strike vote of the employees. The strike, set for today, was considered premature.

The four-point settlement:

1. Employees shall not be required to suspend work on Monday through Friday to avoid the payment of overtime on the sixth day which is Saturday.

2. If an employee is off work voluntarily during the week, he shall be paid straight time for work performed on Saturday.

3. If a plant is closed during the week, employees shall be paid time-and-a-half for work performed on Saturday.

4. If work is performed on Saturdays in the meantime, such work shall be paid for at the rate of time-and-a-half and employees undertake to work on Saturdays as required, and the union undertakes to set up a committee with the operators to investigate the practicability of establishing a shift system.

Did Stalin Die Natural Death?

Suggest Doctors Held As Handy Scapegoats

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

The fantastic Soviet about-face in the case of the "doctors' plot" raises a serious question whether Joseph Stalin died a natural death.

By fitting pieces of the Kremlin jigsaw puzzle together, it is possible to discern what appears to have been a careful laying of the groundwork for announcing the death of Stalin.

There is a madness in this new development that defies all logic. After six weeks of the most violent press denunciation of the arrested Soviet doctors, they disappeared from the press at the time of Stalin's death. Now they are proclaimed innocent.

In attempting to find explanations for such a giddy zigzag—which, incidentally, must leave the Soviet public sorely puzzled—it is necessary to go back over old ground. Having done this, one comes up with the startling suspicion of intrigue in the Kremlin involving the cold, calculating Georgi Malenkov, Stalin's successor as premier, and his ruthless, cold-blooded sidekick, police czar Lavrenty P. Beria.

The Soviet "doctor's plot" burst into print in mid-January.

Clearly detectable at this time was a hint that Stalin already had lost his control of the Soviet government and had become nothing more than a symbol and figurehead. The spy plot, with its overtones of violent anti-Zionism and anti-Semitism, was strong and dangerous medicine for the Kremlin to play with, and must have been dictated by the most urgent of considerations.

Then, curiously, the Soviet press departed from custom Feb. 14, with the death of Lev Z. Mekhlis, a Jew and an old Bolshevik who once had headed the ministry of state control where he answered to Beria.

In reporting on his death, the press published a long and detailed communique on how the death occurred, what doctors were in attendance, and the step-by-step treatment. This was something new. But it was repeated, in more detail, when Stalin's illness and death were announced three weeks later. It was as if the Mekhlis case was a trial run for what was to come later.

HANDY SAFEGUARD

If Malenkov, with the aid of Beria, actually plotted the death of Stalin—or at least, if they plotted to hasten the Soviet dictator's death—the arrested doctors would have constituted a handy safeguard for them. If something were to go wrong, if something accidentally were discovered, if the plans went awry in any way, the doctors would have been ready as the scapegoats.

The doctors already had been given a tremendous buildup as the foulest criminals of all time. They had, according to the assertions of the entire party press, caused the death of Andrei Zhdanov, Malenkov's one-time rival for power, in 1948, and the deaths of others. If something had gone wrong with the way Stalin died, it would have been a simple matter to blame them for that, too.

Stalin was the last obstacle in the way of Malenkov's succession. Perhaps Malenkov became impatient at Stalin's ruggedness. Stalin's visitors constantly were reporting him in robust health.

It seems unlikely that the release of the doctors is involved in a current struggle for Kremlin power. It appears more likely that the struggle is over and that Malenkov and Beria are the hands-down winners—at least for the time being. The doctors are no longer needed.

Mother Admits Drowning Three Children

GASTONIA, N. C. (AP)—A quiet-spoken 26-year-old mother who said she didn't want her children "brought up like I was" showed no remorse today in the Easter drowning of her three little girls.

The bodies of the girls, all under four years, were found floating in an abandoned 60-foot-deep quarry near here Sunday night, five hours after Mrs. Irene Hullett told police she had pushed them over the edge.

Mrs. Hullett talked freely with reporters. She told them she had quarrelled with her husband, Eugene, a 27-year-old textile worker, late Sunday.

"I thought I would just get us all out of the way," she said. "It's a terrible thing to have done but what's been done can't be undone."

LOST HER NERVE

Sheriff Hoyle Efird said he was holding Mrs. Hullett without formal charge pending autopsies on the three children. He quoted her as saying she had meant to drown herself but lost her nerve.

Officers said they had to restrain her from throwing herself into the lake when they returned to the scene with her.

Mrs. Hullett, who said she had a miscarriage last week, said her "nerves had been going down for about five years."

"I just couldn't see them brought up like I was." She added that her mother died when she was three and she had "lived here, there and everywhere."

A volunteer life-saving crew found the bodies of Margaret Jewel Dixon, 2, Bertha Dixon, 3, and eight-months-old Pauline Hullett. The Dixon girls were Mrs. Hullett's children by a previous marriage.

Collide On Curve Six Men Killed

PRINCETON, W. Va. (AP) — Two automobiles collided on a curve near here Sundayp killing six men—four of them servicemen home on Easter furlough. Three other persons were injured seriously.

Police said one car, apparently travelling at "terrific speed", skidded on a curve into the path of the second vehicle.

Bodies and the wreckage were scattered over a 75-square-foot area.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Brig. J. V. Allard left here by air Sunday for Tokyo to take over command of the Canadian 25th infantry brigade in Korea.

Brig. Allard, replacing Brig Pat Bogert, will inspect brigade reinforcement centres in Japan before going on to the Korean battlefront.

Accompanying him on the flight was Maj.-Gen. W. H. S. Macklin, adjutant-general of the Canadian Army.

A medic holds a bottle of plasma while helping hands wait to carry the wounded man down. He was one of the casualties in the First Marine Division in the renewed fighting near Vegas Hill.

Russian Moves Leave British Papers Confused

LONDON (AP) — The British press today took a long-distance stab at sizing up the bewildering events of the last fortnight behind the Iron Curtain. The result was complete editorial confusion.

Many observers waited, meanwhile, to see if other Soviet satellites would join Romania in announcing sweeping amnesty for persons serving relatively short prison terms or awaiting trial for less serious crimes.

Prime Minister Georgi Malenkov's regime ordered such clemency for Soviet prisoners March 28. Romania announced a similar amnesty Saturday night. Persons whose crimes represented "great danger to the state" were not freed either in Russia or Romania, however.

DIFFERENT IDEAS

The meaning of this and other recent samples of Communist "moderation" found almost as many interpretations today as there were London papers. You paid your money and took this choice:

The Daily Express—The generals of the Soviet Union, fearing war with the West, have forced Malenkov to seek an end to international tension.

The Daily Sketch—The battle for power is raging between Malenkov as leader of the managerial middle class and his No. 2 man, deputy premier Laurenti Beria, as champion of the labor man.

The Daily Mail—Malenkov has decided to repudiate the Stalin regime and wipe the slate clean at home and abroad.

The Daily Telegraph—The prisoner amnesty may mean Stalin's successors will rule the Russian people "with a looser rein."

The Times—Somebody cooked up the now-discredited "doctors' plot" for a purpose, "but Stalin died before the purpose had fully unfolded and now perhaps it never will."

ONE PAPER FRANK

The News Chronicle came right out and admitted it has no idea what is going on behind the 12-foot-thick walls of the Kremlin. In a front-page open letter to Malenkov it urged him to let the world in on the secret.

"If there is a new policy of conciliation and accommodation would not it help a lot to say so?" asked the paper, adding, "who can say so but you?"

The letter said the whole thing so far is like watching a Russian movie with no English subtitles.

Pope Receives 10,000 Pilgrims

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—The Pope today received more than 10,000 pilgrims in a mass Easter Monday audience in the halls of the Vatican palace.

Groups from the United States, Britain, Germany, Austria, The Netherlands, France, Italy and Denmark were among the pilgrims packing the great halls.

The Pope spoke briefly in six languages—Italian, French, English, German, Spanish and Portuguese. Then, replying to the applause and cheers, he spoke haltingly a few phrases in Dutch and Danish.

Experimental Farm Agrees, Winter Mild

The affirmations of the man on main street, sifting and searching his memories, agreeing with his fellows that he had never seen such a mild winter, are endorsed by the records at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

It was the most lenient winter in the 63 years since they wrote the first page in the Farm's weather book. More confirmation of the common opinion that Canadian winters are becoming milder turns up in the Farm's annals. During the last ten years, seven winters were milder than the normal, two years were normal and one was below that lenient level.

In the ten-year period preceding 1943 there was by contrast a succession of nine years when the temperatures were below the Canadian normal for winter. Included in that group was Ottawa's coldest, the winter of 1933-34.

Both in snow and thermal conditions Ottawa is farther than Peterborough in the snow belt. The following records are cited at the government's Farm: Total snowfall this last winter 27.3 ins. or 56 below normal and 68.2 under the snow depth of the preceding winter. It was also 19.2 inches below that of the previous all-time low in 1936-37.

The mean temperature as shown in the latest winter entries was 21.8 degreees for December, January and February.

Capacity Crowd Sees Play To Help Church

NORWOOD (ENS)—A capacity crowd welcomed the three-act comedy play, "Meet The Husband," presented Wednesday evening in the Norwood Town Hall by the WA of Grace United Church, Peterborough, and sponsored by the 50-50 Club of the United Church.

The president, Jack Stewart, was the chairman for the evening and introduced Mrs. Close, who introduced the cast.

Messrs. Johnson and Farr entertained on the piano and violin before and between acts. Mr. Farr also sang a solo "One Alone."

Candy and soft drinks were sold by the 50-50 Club between acts. Lunch was served the cast following the play. Proceeds from the play are for the building fund of the United Church.

Find Argentina Back Again

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters)—Argentina has bounced back into the Antarctic South Shetland Islands only a few weeks after Britain evicted her.

The Argentine navy landed in strength last week with materials for a fully-equipped building to house 12 persons and a second building. They even plan to have a library and a movie house for a permanent base of six Argentine "scientific research men."

Rear-Admiral Caslos Suasez Dorjga presided over a ceremony inaugurating the base Wednesday in Luna bay east of Livingston Island.

In February, a small British force descended on Deception Island in the Shetlands, ripped down two makeshift huts put up by Argentina and Chile, and removed two Argentine explorers.

The South Shetlands lie about 500 miles south of Cape Horn and are claimed by both Britain and Argentina.

Miss Eleanor McMurdo, Burnley, was guest soloist and sang two vocal solos, "The Old Rugged Cross" and "The Rose of Tralee," Mrs. Les Tucker playing piano accompaniment. Readings were given by Mr. Wheeler and Mrs. Ernest Burrison, Mrs. Les Tucker contributed a humorous number; two contests and a quiz were conducted by WA members.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherwin were asked to come to the front of the school, an address was read by Mrs. Reginald Timlin expressing the regrets of those present at losing valued workers from the community, and Mrs. A. Woodruff, on behalf of the gathering, made the presentation of an electric tea kettle. Mr. Sherwin replied briefly. The National Anthem was sung. The ladies served refreshments.

At the end of the single-ring ceremoney, the bridegroom planted a kiss soundly on his bride's lips.

Neither would discuss the spat that interrupted their romance on Easter Sunday in 1890.

Cantata Performed By Lakefield Choir

LAKEFIELD (ENS) — At a special Good Friday service, the choir of the Church of St. John the Baptist presented the sacred cantata, "Olivet To Calvary," by Maunder. The rector, the Rev. L. J. Delaney, conducted a devotional service.

The cantata was under the direction of the organist, Mrs. Robert Neale. Tenor recitatives and solos were sung by Ronald Burgess, those of the baritone by William Rashleigh, and Mrs. J. Cocks was soprano soloist. The part of Pilate was sung by Fred Dainton.

Both choirs and soloists were capably supported by the organist. Deserving special mention was Mrs. Neale's organ interlude, "The March to Calvary."

Mr. Delaney welcomed those attending from other churches and expressed his appreciation and that of his congregation to Mrs. Neale and the choir for their splendid effort.

Is A Coalition Likely?

The knowledge that sooner or later this year we shall have a general election has brought forth the customary confident predictions and gloomy forebodings. The Conservative party is sure—as it has so often been sure before—that the country will no longer submit to the high-handed governmental methods of the Liberals. The Liberals, according to the president of their National Federation, Mr. Duncan MacTavish, believe that Canadians will wish to be governed by "the only party which attracts popular support in all parts of Canada".

* * *

This widespread support is the great strength of the Liberals. They can put candidates in the field and draw votes (even if not victories) in sections of the country in which the Conservatives and C.C.F. are powerless. Nevertheless, there must at some time be an end of Liberal rule; eighteen years under one party is a long time even for the canny people of Canada. It is true that the present prosperity will work in the Liberals' favour; it is in bad times that governments topple. But a party in power always makes enemies and always makes mistakes, and it is not impossible that the next election will be so close a contest that the Liberals will be unable to form a government unaided.

* * *

What sort of coalition would be likely? It is very difficult to believe that the C.C.F., which has been dwindling in power since 1940, would command enough seats to hold the balance of power, but if, by some strange chance, it did so, a Liberal-C.C.F. coalition would work. Liberalism has been advancing toward socialism for a quarter of a century, and the C.C.F., which was never a strongly leftist party, could make an arrangement with the Liberals without any great sacrifice of principle. A Conservative-C.C.F. coalition is less probable, but it would be a very bold man who would say that it was impossible. For the Conservative party has broadened its sympathies very greatly during its long spell in Opposition, and it could scarcely contract them now.

* * *

The fact is that all three parties are much nearer in character than they can publicly admit. The truly Tory section of the Conservative party is not the largest part of it; there must be almost as many true Tories among the Liberals as among their traditional enemies. The C.C.F. is now little more than left-wing Liberal in belief. The strong lines of party opinion have been broken down in Canada, as they have broken down everywhere since the First Great War. Canada, as a country dominated by the middle class, necessarily has middleclass politics; no Canadian dares to proclaim himself a member of a privileged and ruling class, and no Canadian wants to call himself a member of the proletariat (and if he does, his wife won't let him). It is to this social situation, as much as to anything, that we owe our present political position.

* * *

What is that position? We want a capable government, fully conversant with the expertise which is now such a vital part of government. It is risky to put men in power who do not fully understand the intricacies of international politics, and the kindred intricacies of ruling this large and rapidly-expanding country. We are in an extremely important period of national growth and we cannot risk any amateur bungling at Ottawa. More and more the real power in the state has been taken from Parliament and concentrated in the Cabinet, and there are times when it looks as though what we had here was government-by-committee.

* * *

Canadians are political realists—which is to say that they adhere to policies of self-interest. Whether they will think it worth while to revenge themselves on Liberals for certain slights and exhibitions of high-handedness by turning them out of power, or whether they will endure Liberal hauteur for another five years in order to gain the benefits of Liberal know-how in national affairs, remains to be seen. But we do not think that a change of government will mean any important changes in Canadian national and international policy. Canada has been too long on the road toward a moderate welfare state for any party to change its course now. That is the trend of the times, and the next government, Liberal or coalition, will obey the trend. What remains to be seen is the degree of skill it will bring to the task.

The Price Of Peace

More than two years ago a dramatic recital was given by Mr. Charles E. Wilson, then Director of U.S. Defence Mobilization. Mr. Wilson said that the U.S. could arm itself more powerfully than all other nations in the world put together, and in a few years, would be able to continue indefinitely this high rate of re-armament without interfering at all with civilian requirements. This was heartening at the time; the statement is less cheering in today's peace crisis.

Mr. Wilson's few years have passed. The U.S. can now arm itself as heavily as it wants out of the surplus of its productive capacity. American industry and economy are geared to provide both guns and butter. If the need for guns is relaxed, what are factories and workers directly or indirectly engaged in defence production going to do for business and jobs? What will happen to profits and pay envelopes? The stock market slump of the last several days reflects this question. The condition of peace would be further aggravated if hundreds of thousands of Americans now serving in Korea, Japan, Germany and elsewhere could be called home and released for civilian jobs.

Canada will feel the price of peace, too, though not as hard as the U.S., for a while at least. But we have to remember that twelve per cent. of the Canadian national income is going into defence and that more than a million and a half Canadians are directly or indirectly engaged in military service or defence production. How are this million and a half going to profit from peace, if their services and work are no longer required in preparing the defences of Canada and her allies?

These glum reflections go oddly with the happy international news. Actually, peace or a threat of peace will not cause any great immediate dislocation in Canada. There is not going to be immediate disarmament. The western nations will not throw away their arms just because the Communist world has decided to try sweet reasonableness for a while. One reason for the new attitude of Russia and China is that the West has become strong. The West is not going to forego that strength which has become the guarantee of its freedom.

Should international tensions be permanently relaxed, Canadian, American and other western governments would have no military and protective reason for continuing re-armament at the present heavy rate—two billion dollars a year by Canada alone. Thus military orders to factories would not be enlarged, the demand for war planes, ships, bombs and guns would be less, and the services of more men in the armed forces would not be required. These releases of goods and labour from the military into civilian channels would no doubt be accompanied by some rather difficult adjustments.

Canadian governmental officials in 1944, foreseeing an end to the war, prepared plans to deal with a post-war depression. There was unemployment insurance (extended to men in the services who had been insured before). There were works projects. But, happily for all, one of the Canadian Government's great miscalculations of those years was its prediction of a post-war depression. The growing Canadian economy was able to absorb all the returned men, and at the same time to convert its factories from war to peace-time work, and provide domestic and foreign markets for all the goods produced. Canada did not need the Korean war to take it out of a slump. Unlike the U.S., Canada had no post-war slump. The Korean War helped the U.S. economy out of a hole into which it was sinking; it merely made Canadians busier than ever, as prosperous as ever.

We said above that the price of peace would not likely be as high to Canada as to the States. The reason is that Canada is still developing and this expansion and new exploitation of our natural resources, are apart from the Korean war. Canada is on the march, and it is not to war-drums. What might impede her progress would be a permanent slump in the U.S., reducing our U.S. markets.

One of the calculations behind the Communist moves toward peace may be a hope that the U.S. and the Western world will be given an economic tumble thereby. Communist doctrine is that capitalism has the seeds of its own destruction and will crack, unless it has wars to keep it going. The peacetime challenge now apparently offered is a challenge western capitalism will joyfully accept, if it is a sincere one. Our economic system is infinitely adaptable and has strength. It is more secure and viable than the U.S.S.R. system. The West will be eager to demonstrate that if any system cracks because of peace, it will be Communism.

NOTE AND COMMENTS

Some people may be shocked to hear that of 195 young couples questioned by an American poll, 155 were receiving some form of help from their parents. But others, who have a sense of history, will recall that it was a good pioneer custom to help newlyweds with money, goods and labour, and it didn't seem to sap their independence; instead, they did the same for others when their time came.

Musical Notes

By PETER PIPER

A friend of mine suggested whimsically that Bach should have tried his hand at opera: the implication being that he deliberately shut himself up, as it were, in a sort of mental organ loft and it would have been a good thing for the old boy to get some fresh air. It is well known that Bach wrote no opera (some of his secular cantatas, such as the Coffee Cantata, have been staged, but they are not operas), though he wrote a good deal of secular instrumental and choral music. He was by no means a recluse, for he led a busy and active life until his failing eyesight overtook him.

It might therefore appear as though he deliberately refrained from writing operas in the same way as Brahms 150 years later. Yet the main reason for his abstention becomes quite clear if we take the trouble to examine the circumstances of Bach's career in relation to the times in which he lived. The eighteenth century composer was expected to produce music to order in much the same way as any other craftsman. Printed music was scarce, and in any case the public wanted to hear the latest in music. They were not interested in venerating the classics: the present-day tyranny of the "masterworks" meant nothing to them.

Just as we like to be au fait with the latest novels and plays the eighteenth century liked novelty in music also. In his various official positions it was Bach's duty to write music for the various functions, both ecclesiastical and secular, with which he was concerned. It happened that in none of the centres where he worked, Arnstadt, Lueneberg, Goethen, Weimar or Leipsic, was there any opera. German opera, like English opera, had made its first timid beginnings in the early half of the seventeenth century, but it had soon been swamped by the triumphal progress of Italian opera.

The only important operatic centre in the whole of Germany in Bach's time was in Hamburg. It will be remembered that Handel went to Hamburg at the beginning of his career. If Bach had ever settled there the story of opera might have been very different, for he would assuredly have written a large number of operas. As it was, there was no demand for his services in this respect.

I wonder, though, whether it was not really a happy chance that Bach never wrote an opera. Opera in Bach's time was in a bad way. It had become stifled with meaningless convention, and though much of the music was delightful it was dramatically very stilted. Handel's operas are a case in point. One or two of them have been revived in recent years, but most of them are known to a handful of musicologists. I have seen one of them, Julius Caesar, performed in Brussels, and though I have very pleasant memories of the music I cannot recollect a single detail of the story.

Handel was content to take for granted the operatic conventions of the day, and this is why his operas have failed to live. It needed a Gluck to undertake a bold reform of the lyric stage. Bach, like Handel, was not an innovator, and it is highly questionable whether he possessed "stage sense." He would have had to shed the elaborate contrapuntal style so typical of him; in fact he would have been compelled to reveal a facet of his genius that never came to light. The polyphonic style is essentially static, and as such is unsuited to opera.

Bach was contemplative and more than lightly tinged with mysticism. Deeply religious at heart, he found the greatest drama in the story of the Passion and the doctrines of the Church. Yet it is not the dramatic moments of the Passion that move us most. True, the inhuman shout of "Barabbas" on a fortissimo diminished seventh and the questioning of the apostles "Lord, is it I?" are effective enough, though to tell the truth I cannot see that they reveal titanic genius; any other reasonably competent composer of the period would do much the same thing when setting these words. No, the greatness of the Passion music lies in the arias and choruses where Bach ruminates on the mystery of the atonement and the sufferings of Christ. The action freezes up while the chorus reverts to its original Greek role as commentator on the action.

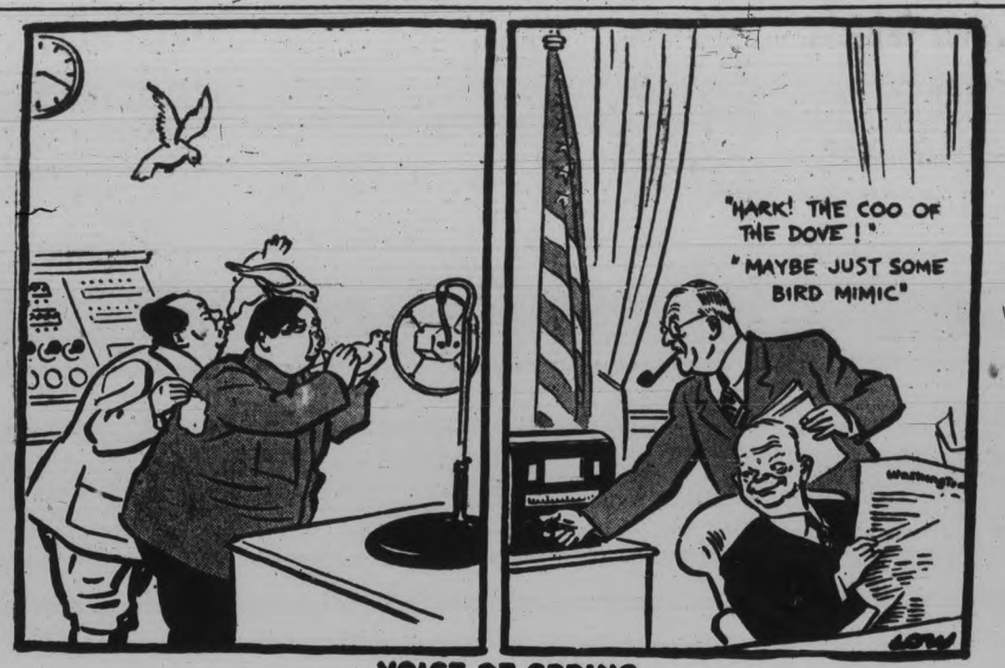
THE other Saturday I was listening to a broadcast performance of Mussorgsky's Boris Godunoff. The Metropolitan, once considered as the last bastion of conservatism, is stepping into the vanguard of progress. Not only did they revert to Mussorgsky's original version instead of the doctored-up revision of Rimsky Korsakoff, but also it was sung in English.

It was truly a memorable performance, and I longed to be transported on some magic carpet to see it in the flesh. "Wasn't he good," remarked a friend afterwards. "Who? Mussorgsky?" I queried, for I felt that he was the real hero of the afternoon. My friend was of course referring to the young bass George London, born in Montreal, who has made a sensational success in the title role.

I am not sure whether I can entirely subscribe to this viewpoint, for the role of Boris must be one of the easiest to act in the whole repertoire of opera. There are no half-lights, no subleties, just the big gestures of "ham" acting. It remains to be seen whether London will prove his versatility in other parts, for given the right voice and a modicum of acting ability the music of this strange and rambling masterpiece that seems to epitomize the very soul of Holy Russia cannot fail to carry conviction. It is indeed strange that this most Russian of all operas should prove so popular in New York in the middle of a "cold war"; yet paradoxically enough its very Russian quality finds an echo in humanity everywhere. Suffering, tyranny, the qualms of a guilty conscience are universal phenomena, and Mussorgsky's music, with its rough-hewn directness, strikes with tremendous impact.



✧ ✧ ✧

I have just been reading a book by the American composer Aaron Copland consisting of a series of lectures given by him at Harvard University during the academic year 1951-52. He writes lucidly and revealingly, and with a perception of tendencies other than his own rare in a composer turned critic. He devotes much of his space to an analysis of the musical scene on the North and South American continents, speaking of Chile, Brazil, Mexico and Cuba as well as of These United States. But of Canada—not a single word.

VOICE OF SPRING

France Acts Against Drink Toll

By DENNIS BLOODWORTH

PARIS—A French Interior: the barman of a bistro (small cafe-bar), in trousers and waistcoat, is scanning a newspaper whose headline begins "Invrogne (drunkard) . . . stabs wife and child: drunkard shoots mistress; drunkard burns home: three die." Beyond the bar, two workers—one young, one middle-aged — are clutching glasses. The larger glass contains cheap red wine; the smaller, brandy. The shadows and a clock on the wall indicate the time; nine—in the morning.

No artist has painted this ugly "problem picture," but Madame Poinso-Chapuis, spokesman of the French Parliamentary Health Commission, was able recently to shock deputies here into giving whole-hearted support for a stringent anti-alcoholic law by sketching the facts behind this daily Paris scene.

Northern countries have for a long time fought systematically against the spread of drunkenness, but in Latin France the growth of alcoholism has been more insidious and the State has remained relatively inactive. Yet already in 1939 there was a flourishing bistro for every 67 Frenchmen (a swimming pool for every 79,000), and thousands more have opened since—and prospered. The consumption of alcohol is higher in France today than anywhere else in the world.

In Paris, where the budget for psychiatrical institutions was negligible before the war, eight thousand million francs (approximately eight million pounds or twenty-two million dollars) are being spent this year on homes for mental cases provoked, in the majority, by alcoholic excesses. The death rate is rising steadily with the increased consumption of drink which, in some parts of France and the French union quadrupled during 1952 alone.

There is a mounting tally of violence and killings, of babies starved and children crazed through drunken brutality and neglect, of wives, demented with fear, waiting for the man due home at seven who has not turned up by eleven o'clock. Madame Poinso-Chapuis's account drew strong speeches from the deputies: "We are no longer the spearhead of progress, but of drunkenness," "If you do not build more homes for incipient inebriates, then start building more prisons for hardened ones," "We have allowed this thing to develop through our impotence and cowardliness."

The French are nothing if not self-critical and the result is a sane and practical Bill to provide graduated cures for inebriates, to ensure early medical examination of suspected cases and internment of dangerous ones, and to mobilise police, medical and social resources to limit the ravages of the man who habitually has one too many.

"SNOWBALL" SALES

France's Senate has meanwhile tackled another scourge of the age—the claim of certain shops that they can supply one milliard sewing machines at cut prices.

Among the bills and final notices that the postman slips into your box you may at some time have received an infuriating epistle which read: "Make twelve copies of this and send them with half-a-crown to twelve friends. In umpteen months you will receive x-thousand half-crowns when the lucky chain has come round to you."

In France a number of firms reduced this system to a fine commercial art by attaching to it coupon sales which earned suspiciously large profits. One firm, for example, would approach favoured customers with the following closely-reasoned argument: "We will sell you a sewing machine at one quarter of the market price if at the same time you buy four coupons from us at 500 francs apiece. You sell these coupons to your friends (thus getting your money back—nothing up my sleeves, you see.) Your friends they buy three more similar coupons each from us, upon which we deliver your machine. They then sell their sixteen coupons to sixteen further persons, and so the chain contiues."

But while the purblind adult first approached sees himself getting something for almost nothing, every schoolboy knows at once that the customers sixteen times removed from the original salesman will require 1,073,741,824 sewing machines. Which, as Euclid would doubtless have protested, Is Absurd.

However, as schoolboys do not sew much, thousands of simpler humans have been caught by such schemes which are manifestly fraudulent. The vendor relies on the inevitable break in the chain which enables him comfortably to pocket the proceeds of the coupon sales and retain his modest stock of machines in a small basement room.

This month, condemning the "snowball" sales system as "nurturing in the spirit of Man hopes of chimerical events," the Conseil de la Republique declared its operators liable to fines not exceeding two million francs (approximately two thousand pounds or 9,600 dollars)and not payable in sewing machines either.

THE FINALY CASE

There are, however. some French affairs that cannot be ordered by the application of simple arithmetic. It is five weeks now since two young Jewish boys, Gerald and Robert Finaly, were smuggled into Spain on the instigation of Catholic priests so that their Catholic foster-mother, Mademoiselle Brun, would not be forced to surrender them to their relatives from Israel who had been awarded their custody by a French court.

Mlle. Brun, who fondly brought up the boys after their parents were killed in 1944 by the Gestapo, has deliberately kept them out of sight since their Jewish relatives began looking for them in 1945. In the past month some fourteen priests, nuns and others have been arrested here for conniving at their disappearance following the court's ruling.

The rumblings of the storm that this "cause celèbre" evoked have not subsided. Catholic has been pitted against anti-Catholic, Jew against Christian, Basque Nationalist against Frenchman. The devotion of Mlle. Brun, the mission of the Catholic Church, the affection of the boys' relatives and the morality of the kidnapping have been held aloft and cast into doubt by turns. At one time it seemed as if a bargain would be struck and the boys returned to France against the release of the Basque priests. But the priests have been freed and the boys are still in Spain, where ecclesiastics keep their whereabouts a closely-guarded secret.

The French Cabinet, the Grand Rabbi of Paris, the Spanish Foreign Office and the highest officials of the Catholic Church in France have all intervened. It is yet to be seen what judgment of Solomon will decide whether the boys return to Mlle. Brun or to their relatives. But as long as they remain beyond the granite heights that guard the approach to Navarre and Castille, there is always a third possibility, for they are in the hands of a Church that, by tradition, does not give up its Catholic sons to the heretic world outside.—OFNS—Copyright.

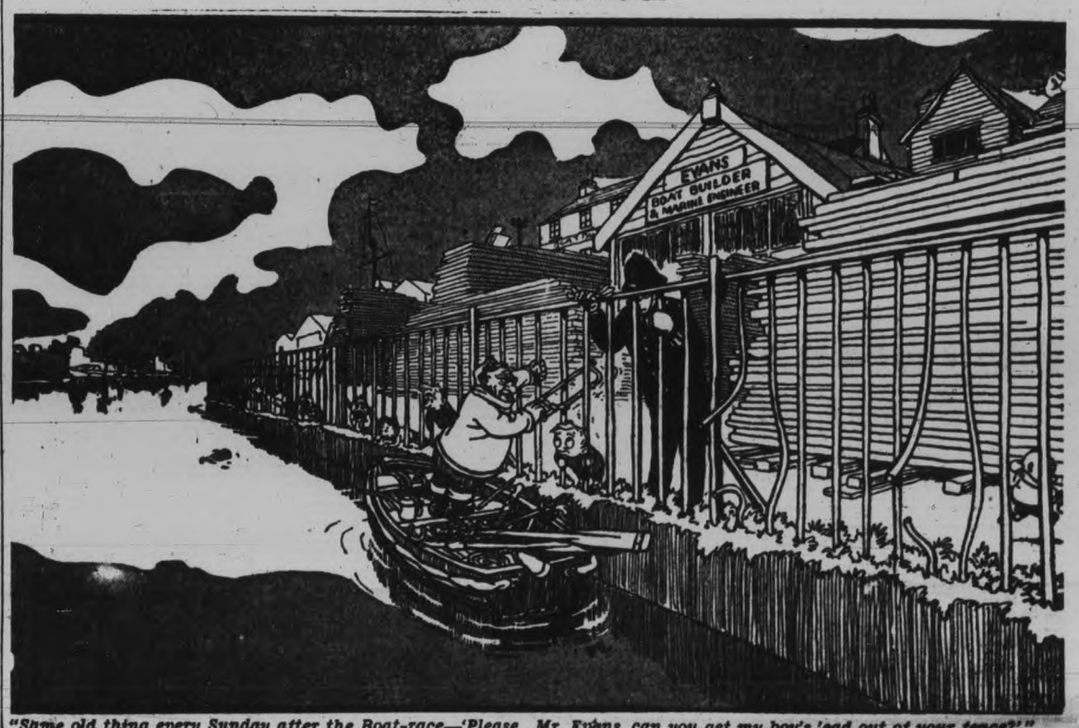
Letter To The Editor



APPRECIATE LOCAL KINDNESS

Sir: On Thursday of last week during the course of the OMHA Bantam Division Final game between Peterborough and Guelph one of the Guelph boys was injured and had to spend a short while in the Peterborough hospital.

The Guelph Minor Hockey Association executive has requested me to write to you and thus make public our gratitude for the attention given to the injured player by the doctor, ambulance, attendants and the hospital. In particular our thanks are due to the local representative of the OMHA, Mr. Albert Watkins who spent a great deal of time and went to infinite trouble in attending to the player's welfare. It is no exaggeration to say that though we were defeated our disappointment was to a large extent alleviated by the solicitude and kindness of some of the people of Peterborough.

Yours faithfully,
DON SINCLAIR,
Secretary,
Guelph Minor Hockey Assoc.

Spirit Of Co-operation Permeates Every Phase Of University's Life

By JACK BEST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ANTIGONISH, N.S. (CP)—When a student at St. Francis Xavier University needs books or cigarets, he gets them from a co-operative store. He gets his hair cut at a co-op barber shop and his clothes go to a co-op dry-cleaning service.

If he's from one of the 10 foreign countries represented in this year's student body chances are he is studying co-operative leadership and belongs to St. FX's International Co-Op Club.

The spirit of co-operation permeates every phase of life at this university which celebrates its centenary this year. There was a time, in the 1920s, when it threatened to overwhelm traditional university life. Then St. FX took stock and decided the movement could be only as strong as the university itself.

Ever since, the extension department and the academic program have marched forward in fruitful and harmonious co-existence. The cost has been heavy: To a large extent the university has had to carry the extension department while shouldering its own financial burdens.

JUNIOR COLLEGE

The ultimate manifestation of St. FX's policy of taking education to the people—known as the Antigonish Movement—came two years ago when it sent one of its top men, Rev. M. A. MacLellan, 150 miles to Sydney to head the newly-founded Xavier Junior College. There Cape Breton students can take their freshman and sophomore years while living at home, thus avoiding residence fees.

It was not the first time St. FX had set a precedent in higher education. In 1894 the university, founded 100 years ago as a seminary, affiliated with Mount St. Bernard College—the first North American Roman Catholic institution to offer bachelor's degree courses for women.

In 1899 St. FX established the first engineering department in the Atlantic provinces.

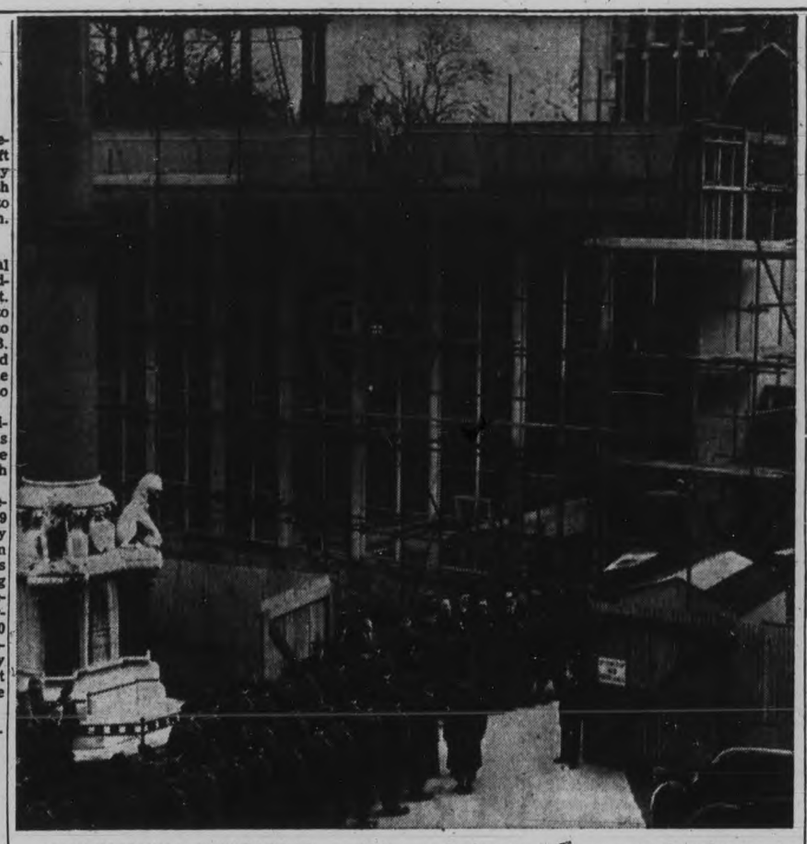
The Antigonish Movement had its beginnings in 1912 when farmers in the district were organized to buy fertilizer co-operatively. In 1914 Dr. Hugh MacPherson, who now lives in retirement on the St. FX campus, teamed with a federal agriculture department expert to jack up the dormant wool industry.

PROFITABLE VENTURE

They taught proper shearing, rolling, bundling and grading methods, and persuaded the farmers to sell collectively. Marketed on a highest tender basis with a Montreal firm, the wool brought 28 cents a pound. The previous year it sold for 10 cents at Antigonish stores.

In 1915 the same system was tried in marketing lambs, with similar results. St. FX had purchased a farm in 1908 to demonstrate scientific methods of raising crops and cattle. Today herds throughout Cape Breton are well stocked with top quality cattle from Mount Cameron farm.

After the First World War, when the rest of the country was enjoying prosperity, depression struck the Maritime fishing industry. Fishermen by the hundreds pulled up stakes and went to the United States. In Nova Scotia the total value of fisheries fell from $15,145,066 in 1919 to $9,778,623 in 1921.



A row over a proposed merger of all universities in Nova Scotia indirectly helped relieve the situation. St. FX's frail but fiery vice-president, Dr. J. J. Tompkins, left at the height of the controversy and was appointed to the parish of Canso, where he began to preach the gospel of co-operation.

NOTABLE FEAT

Six years later, following a royal commission investigation, the federal government appointed Rt. Rev. Moses M. Coady of St. FX to organize Maritime fishermen into a co-op. With the help of Angus B. MacDonald and others, he finished the job in 10 months, the same time it took the commission to write its report.

The fruit of this labor, the United Maritime Fishermen, has grown into a huge co-operative doing a $3,500,000 business each year.

When the St. FX extension department was established in 1929 Dr. Coady became its director. By the time Rev. M. J. MacKinnon took over in 1952 the department's staff had increased to 25, including 12 fieldworkers. The co-op movement in the Maritimes had snowballed to a membership ot 35,000 doing a $50,000,000 annual wholesale and retail business. Nearly 100,000 people belonged to credit unions which in 17 years had made loans totalling $45,000,000.

CORONATION REHEARSAL — 550 Troops of the Royal Artillery went to Westminster Abbey today to test the seating arrangements for the Coronation. This is the first of a series of such tests during which such things as air currents, draughts, temperature, accoustics, etc., will be calculated and tested in preparation for the great event in June—the long and crowded session in the Abbey would be made intolerable unless adequate preparations are first made.

Libya's Experiment In Gov't Makes It Focus Of Interest

By EDWARD POLLAK

TRIPOLI (AP)—Once a battlefield and for centuries a desert, the fledgeling nation of Libya today finds itself in its second year a centre of great strategic importance and a focus of interest to many countries.

Flanking the vital Mediterranean shipping lanes, Libya guards the approaches to the Suez canal and to the continent of Africa itself.

At Wheelus Field, near Tripoli, the United States has carved a huge new air base from the desert. Based there, the biggest and fastest U. S. bombers could strike close to the heart of a potential enemy.

Britain has big military stakes in Libya, too. Should Britain evacuate the Suez zone, some military quarters believe it would choose to move into eastern Libya. Already a British military mission is helping to recruit and train a new Libyan army.

EXPERIMENT IN DEMOCRACY

But in addition to these matters of strategic import to the West, Libya is an absorbing experiment in democracy.

As the youngest of the free countries sponsored by the United Nations, Libya is faced by great natural difficulties. Its 1,150,000 people are largely clustered along the North African coast. There is little fertile land in its 1,100,000 square miles. There are practically no minerals, no forests, no rivers which might create irrigation or water power.

Despite these difficulties, infant Libya has toddled a few steps and cut a tooth or two since the UN granted it a birth certificate as a constitutional monarchy in December, 1951. Its king, Idriss I, rules through a cabinet leaning on a two-house parliament. This represents the "federal government." Libya's three provinces—Tripolitania, Cyrenaica and Fezzan—have local governments each headed by a "wali" or governor.

The prime minister and holder of its foreign affairs portfolio is Mahmoud Muntasser. Here are some of his problems:

United States—Talks are under way to make the U. S. presence at Wheelus Field a permanent agreement. The base, still expanding, gives hundreds of Libyans good jobs.

Britain—British troops have been stationed in Libya since 1943. Today the garrisons are relatively small. But they might be greatly increased if Britain had to pull out of Egypt and the Sudan. Britain has undertaken to make up the annual deficit in the Libyan budget, estimated at around £1,000,000. British advisers also help Libyans in government administrative problems.

FRANCE — Feeling toward the French generally was neutral until the eruption of anti-French sentiment in the neighboring protectorate of Tunisia. Now French garrisons in the southern province of Fezzan—a vast and little-known desert—are viewed with suspicion in some quarters. The French occupied Fezzan during the last war. A desert area of 150,000 square miles, it has a population of about 50,000, mostly nomads.

50,000 Rhodesians To Give Verdict On Federation

By LLEWELLEN COOK

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (Reuters)—Nearly 50,000 Southern Rhodesians will give their verdict on the proposed Central African federation of Northern and Southern Rhodesia and Nyasaland when they get to the polls in a referendum April 9.

Federation, on terms worked out at a London conference in January, would give the self-governing colony of Southern Rhodesia and the two British protectorates a virtually autonomous federal parliament and prospects of ultimate dominion status in the British Commonwealth.

Two African representatives from each territory would sit in the parliament. Only where an African affairs board, as a standing committee of the federal parliament, felt that legislation was detrimental to native interests would royal assent be required.

Controversy over the federation proposals contained in a White Paper issued at the end of the London conference have left doubt about what the decision of Southern Rhodesia's 49,032 registered voters will be.

CAMPAIGNED VIGOROUSLY

Sir Godfrey Huggins, Southern Rhodesia's prime minister, and Roy Welensky, leader of the unofficial members in Northern Rhodesia's legislative council, have campaigned vigorously for federation. Substantial European opinion still opposes it, mainly because it lacks essential native support. But Huggins has assured the voters of Southern Rhodesia that if they accept the plan it will be passed by the House of Commons.

The legislative councils of Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland will debate the proposals after the referendum has been held in Southern Rhodesia. The final decision will be taken on their behalf by the British government.

The future of Central African federation rests largely with the voters of Southern Rhodesia, now sharply divided.

MUST COMBINE QUICKLY

The United Central Africa Association, organized several years ago to promote federation, argues that apart from obvious economic advantages of federation, the three territories must combine quickly and adopt a progressive racial policy. The alternatives they offer to Southern Rhodesia are ultimate absorption into the Union of South Africa or domination by two predominantly native territories to the north.

Sir Godfrey emphasizes that it is essential to form a strong British bloc in Central Africa.

He believes Britons in Southern Rhodesia have evolved a racial policy which will eventually enable people of different races to live and work together in partnership.

BASICALLY SOUND

The absence of serious native trouble in Southern Rhodesia since self-government was attained in 1923 indicates that Sir Godfrey's racial policy is basically sound.

Opposing the United Central Africa Association is the non-political Rhodesia Association. Its leader, Ray Stockil, is also leader of the opposition in the Southern Rhodesia Parliament. He claims it is impossible to federate three states with such differing constitutional status.

Also against federation is Alderman Charles Olley's White Rhodesia Council, an organization which advocates "apartheid" (segregation) on the South African pattern.

Native opinion, where vocal, is opposed to the federation plan in all three territories.

On Southern Rhodesia's common voters' roll there are only 429 registered native voters. A former chief native commissioner, J. Judson Beck, estimates at least 5,000 Africans are qualified to vote if they wish to register.

Some African leaders are opposed to federation because they feel Southern Rhodesia is their country and they should be allowed to run it.

Most of the natives do not know what federation means and suspect it as they suspect any white-sponsored innovation.

In the two northern territories, African nationalism is far more advanced. There, they have direct representation in the legislative councils. Statements by the former labor colonial secretaries, Arthur Creech Jones and James Griffiths, give them reason to believe they have only to hold out long enough to win self-government on the same lines as the Gold Coast.

Modern Economic Methods Saving Maoris

By R.A. KENNER

AUCKLAND (Reuters)—Modern economic methods and intelligent dissemination of disease control are saving the Maori race.

The Maoris, New Zealand's native Polynesian race who some 50 years ago had dwindled to a mere 36,000 and seemed doomed to extinction, now are thriving under the example set by their own "bright young men" and before another 50 years go by may number 500,000.

The earliest estimate of the native population, when European settlement began over 100 years ago, was somewhere between 200,000 and 500,000.

By the late 1890s, the Maori wars and epidemics arising from the impact of European customs on the Maori way of life had caused a shrinkage to 36,000.

TOOK UP CHALLENGE

Then youth took up the challenge and formed the Young Maori Party.

That party, in co-operation with tribal and government leaders, inspired a steady racial revival through the adoption of more hygenic methods for combatting disease, land reforms and better economic conditions.

Now the Maori population is estimated at 120,000, and is still increasing.

Out of the party have come brilliant leaders—Sir Apirana Ngata, who served for a term as acting-prime minister of New Zealand; Sir Peter Buck, later director of the Bishop Museum in Honolulu and foremost authority on Polynesian anthropology and ethnology; and Sir Maui Pomare, another able minister of Maori affairs and island territories.

INSPIRING EXAMPLE

All died after long service leaving inspiring examples for the new generation of leaders now guiding the native race.

The prediction of a population of 500,000 by the end of this century was made by the Very Rev. J. G. Laughton, at a recent convention of the Maori section of the National Council of Churches at Tikitiki.

One of the new Europeans who have entered the inner-most sanctuary of Maori thought and aspirations Mr. Laughton came to New Zealand at the age of 12 and in 1921 married a member of the Maori race.

When he went to England two or three years ago, as chairman of the Maori Bible Revision Committee, she accompanied him and assisted in the final work of revision.

SEPARATE UNIT

The main points made at the Tikitiki meeting were that the Maori race will continue to exist as a separate unit and that in the economic sphere the Maori has an urgent problem to live in predominantly European communities under their complicated professional, commercial and industrial standards of life.

The conference also stressed that while there is fairly free intercourse between the races in sport, there is an inner place in European society which is not open to many Maoris.

Cold War Less Simple Seen Through Historian's Eyes

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Seen through the historian's spectacles, the cold war may appear less simple than it does to those preoccupied with the current struggle between Soviet Russia and the Western world.

The average Westerner sees the issue in simple terms of black and white. A longer view is taken by one of Britain's most respected historians, who has tried to "slip out of his native Western skin" and look at the West as others may see it.

The result, for Professor Arnold Toynbee, is this unexpected conclusion:

"When we look at the encounter between Russia and the West in the historian's instead of the journalist's perspective, we shall see that, over a period of several centuries ending in 1945, the Russians have the same reason for looking askance at the West that we Westerners feel we have for looking askance at Russia today."

Toynbee's "Historian's Perspective," first outlined in a series of lectures, now has been published in the book "The World and the West." His main point, briefly, is that in the encounter between the world and the West, which has been going on since the West's sudden conquest of the oceans at the end of the fifteenth century, the West has been the active force.

"It has not been the West that has been hit by the world," says the 63-year-old Toynbee, who as a schoolboy stunned teachers by his voracious reading of history. "It is the world that has been hit—and hit hard—by the West." (Russia, the book notes, has been invaded overland by Western armies in 1610, 1709, 1812, 1915 and 1941. The Poles, the French and the Germans were among the aggressors).

Toynbee's analysis has not gone unchallenged. Many critics, though enthusiastic about the book as a whole, consider his portrayal of Russia as on the receiving end of an outpouring of Western vitality as a little out of focus. The economist, for instance, says Russia's "interweaving" in Europe's 19th-century history debars it from appearing simply as a sufferer at the hands of the West.

"This account of Western impact in Russia leaves the Russians in too passive a role," says the economist.

Some measure of disagreement has also been expressed by Earl Russell, the eminent 80-year-old philosopher and author. Bertrand Russell, as he is better known, finds Toynbee's long-range views invigorating, but suggests that in drawing morals from history Toynbee pays too little attention to the growth of science in the 20th century.

One of the points in "The World and the West" is a comparison between the expansion of the Western world since the 15th century and the counterpart growth of Graeco - Roman civilization after the generation of Alexander the Great in the fourth century B. C.

This Graeco-Roman culture spread to the fringes of the globe but broke down in the end. Toynbee implies, because it gave only its technology and lost its spiritual basis. Possibly the same thing may happen, he suggests, in the unfinished story of the Western world.

Lord Russell disagrees with Toynbee's point that the end of the Graeco-Roman world was a result of the victory of Christianity, that is to say of forces bearing an idealistic message.

"What really happened," says Lord Russell, "was that the barbarians beat the Romans in battle . . ."

Coach Threatens To Sue Over Playoffs

WINNIPEG (CP)—A Vancouver basketball coach said Sunday his sponsor will sue the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association if the Canadian women's senior amateur basketball championship is not played in Toronto starting April 8.

Gordon McDonald, coach of the Vancouver Ellers, who captured the Western Canada championship for Winnipeg Dominos Saturday, said Vancouver Jeweller Walter Ellers is prepared to take legal action to recover the costs of the trip east for the team and the expenses involved to members of the team for time lost from work.

The battle started when McDonald learned the final series was set for April 13 which would mean his team, already away from home for two weeks, would have to wait another week for the series to start.

CAN'T AFFORD IT

"With travelling time, it would mean a month away from their jobs for these girls and they just can't afford it," said McDonald.

McDonald says he is leaving with his team for Toronto tonight. "We will stay in Toronto a reasonable length of time, but not later than the night of April 13," he said. "If the series is not complete by then, we will return home and our sponsor will take legal action."

WITH THE YORKS—Terry Gordon, of Orillia (who played for the Petes some years ago) is expected to line up with the Orillia Yorks in OLA senior "A" play this season. He starred for the Orillia senior "B" champions last season.

DO YOU OWN A CAR?

When the man who developed Bardahl Rad Conditioner brought his car to a garage for repairs, the garage owner phoned to ask him what on earth had he put in his radiator. He said that when they drained his radiator the water was so thick with dirt it would hardly pour. The Bardahl Rad Conditioner had removed rust, scale and dirt untouched by a popular brand chemical cleaner. The garage owner immediately placed an order for their own use. Since then hundreds of thousands of car owners in Canada and the United States have used Bardahl Rad Conditioner. If you own a car you should try it too . . . if your car is new it will keep your radiator in permanently new condition . . . if you have been running your car for a few years you'll be amazed at the dirt, rust and scale it will remove. Midget Wrestlers In Team Match Here Wednesday

Peterborough has seen all the celebrities of the mat pastime, from European greats down the scale, and about everything to be seen in the wrestling world. Now comes the tiny tikes of the mat, the world-famous midgets, making their city debut at the Brock Arena Wednesday night.

Promoters unite in saying they are better than the grappling giants in speed and acrobatics, while they are as vicious as little savages in their desire to win and impress patrons. As boy-for-boy in stature, they stage a rip-roaring show. As tag-team, they are said to be simply terrific, which is what they present here Wednesday. It is Little Beaver, the Indian and Prince Salie Halassie versus Major Tom Thumb and Mighty Schultz.

The Beaver is a sensation. He is a flash in the ring and very deadly with drop kicks. Tom Thumb stands 46 inches and is rated the "hercules of midget wrestlers." Salie Helassie stands 42 inches, weighs 93, but is such a natural that he can jump five feet high with ease. Mighty Schultz is a noted athlete in the "little giant" ranks.

A super card is being offered for Wednesday's show with Timothy Geohagen meeting the Red Mask in the main event and Larry Moquin taking on Bert Ruby in the opener.

Local mat fans who have witnessed the world-famous midgets on television will wish to see them in action at the Brock and they'll likely cater to the biggest turnout of matdom in the history of the city.

Dutchmen Edge Sudbury 3-1, Leading Series

KITCHENER (CP) — Sudbury Wolves must win tonight to stay in the running for the Allan Cup.

Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen defeated the Wolves 3-1 Saturday night to take a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven all-Ontario senior hockey final. One game is tied.

Saturday's encounter was a battle of netminders. Bobby Gillson, drafted by the Wolves after regular netminder Andy Anderson was injured, let only three shots by him. The imported netminder, who played the regular season with Owen Sound Mercurys of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series, turned away 31 shots. Keith Woodall, at the other end of the ice, handled 27 drives.

DUTCHMEN AHEAD

After a scoreless first period Maurice Leveque sent the Dutchmen ahead 1-0 while Sudbury's Gordie Heale was sitting out a hooking penalty. Bobby Schnurr drew an assist. Four minutes later Leveque repeated the feat to increase the lead to 2-0 and Schnurr again was in on the play together with Doug Verity. Charlie Brooker took a Howie Lee pass to make it 3-0 before Mauno Kauppi replied for Sudbury with a long, screen shot. That was the end of the scoring for both sides.

Of the 15 penalties handed out, the Dutchmen drew eight, including a misconduct to Clare Martin for arguing about a penalty to Lee in the second.

Scott's Corners Win In A Midget Playoff

MILLBROOK— (ENS)—Scott's Corners midgets staged a successful defense of the Olan Cup when they took a 7-4 win over Millbrook midgets in Civic Arena. Millbrook picked up a one-goal lead in the first period and hung on to this margin until the 17-minute mark in the third when Scott's Corners rammed in four goals to sew up the contest. In the first, Carr got a marker for the winners and Olan and Friar tallied for Millbrook. In the second it was Carr again for Scott's Corners and Palmer for the villagers. In the last heat it was Thompson scoring for Millbrook and Carr (2) Minnie, Stevens and Blodgett lighting the lamp for the Corners.

For Millbrook, F Anderson did a great net-minding job and Gary Carr rated top billing with the victors for his four-goal scoring effort. There was considerable bickering during the affair and six goal judges saw service durthe game.

Albert Olan, son of the cup's donor presented the trophy to Gary Carr in a short ceremony following the game.

Scotts Corners —Goal, Seymour; fence, Johnston, G. Fair; forwards, Carr, Stevens, Ball, Alternates, C. Sargeant. Larke, Blodgett, Minnie, Moore, D. Sargeant, Bochwell, Hewitt.

Millbrook: Goal, F. Anderson; defence, Guthrie, Kennedy; forwards, Thompson, Lowery, Olan. Alternates: Palmer, Friar, E. Anderson. G. Fallis, T. Fallis, Argue.

Referees: Edmonds, Smith.

LOOK, MOM, NO HANDS!—Glasses taped on, Jimmy Dailey swept through the air like a ballet dancer helping Erie, Pa., Cathedral Prep edge Buffalo's Canisius High at Erie, 42-39. The victory put Cathedral Prep in the Eastern Invitational High School Tournament final.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Civic Arena will be defrosted Wednesday until next October. Thus marketh the end of another long winter season hereabouts. Provincial Police will provide the puck swan song in a game tomorrow night to wind things up. Meantime, it's minor hockey night at the arena this eve, proceeds going to take the PMHA off the financial hook — so 'tis hoped a hefty gallery will view proceedings. Local OMHA bantam "A" champion Shamrocks play the classy Keene midgets at eight, followed by Port Hope juveniles against the Peterborough midget Aces. Also skating races for bantam, midget and juve players, with a lot of prizes up. A door prize, too.

* * * * * *

Some folks never seem to grow old, even though advancing years thin and bleach the hair, and wrinkles do appear. But they remain young in heart, and often have more physical energy than youths. Such a man lives in Port Hope. He is Billy McMillan, a 77-year-young chap who all through the past winter took his regular turn on skates each Monday night (skating night) at the Peter Campbell Memorial Arena. Quite good on the blades, too, but then he ought to be after 70 years of skating. He played hockey on a Port Hope club which won the Midland League title three years in a row, once tying the Canadian winner in a game in the late 90s. They were too good for such teams as Peterborough, Belleville, Queen's and North Bay, finally going into Eastern Canada playoffs. He recalls a game against Peterborough in 1913 when they played from 8.30 p.m. till 1.30 a.m. The good old days.

Scribe On Zany Names

In somewhat similar vein to the song "That's Me Without You," Doug Vaughan has a play upon Big League ball names in the Windsor sheet. Of the National League he says: "There's a Cole but no oil, a Jolly but no sad, a Liddle but no big, a Wall but no ceiling, a Crowe but no bluejay, a Roe but no boat, a Wade but no swim, a Bridges but no tunnels, a Walker but no runner, a Fear but no brave, a Rush but no slow, a Smalley but no biggy, a Ward but no hospital, a Sauer but no sweet, a Church but no steeple, a King but no queen, a Smith but no shoe, an Adams but no Eves, a Bell but no ring, a Post but no pillar, a Bowman but no arrow, a Hiller but no Daler, a Katt but no dog, a Dark but no light, a Rhodes but no streets, a Fox but no hare, a Wolfe but no sheep, a Reeder but no writer, a Rand but no McNally, a Rice but no potatoes."

In zany style he mentions the American League. "There is a Flowers but no trees, a Freeman but no slave, a Hudson but no Mississippi, a Boiling but no billiards, a Goodman but no badman, a Byrne but no salve, a Wright but no wrong, a Feller but no girl, a Boone but no bane, an Easter but no Christmas, a Lemon but no orange, a Jordan but no Red Sea, a Madison but no Jefferson, a Batts but no gloves, a Stone but no rock, a Baker but no candlestickmaker, a Coan but no ice cream, a Wood but no tree, a Porter but no bellboy, a Friend but no enemy, a Hatfield but no McCoy, a Priddy but no ugly, a Ford but no Chevrolet, a Miller but no thresher, a Sain but no crazy, a Collins but no martini, a Mantle but no cupboard, a Byrd but no swallow, a Hamilton but no Washington, a Cain but no able.". Midgets Coming Here

Those amazing midget wrestlers come here Wednesday for the first time in this borough to strut their streamlined stuff at the Brock. Four of the mighty mites go in a tag team bout, and we're told that they're terrific. Much faster and more acrobatic than the big guys, and they climb ropes like monkeys. Muscular little men who have performed in Europe and the States in circuses ere turning to TV and touring wrestling. One's an Ethiopian, one a German, another an Indian and the fourth may be an American, for all we know. The Brock card also pits Timothy Geohagen, the Irish strong man, against the rough Red Mask. Another bout sees Larry Moquin tackle Bert Ruby. By the way, Geohagen downed Killer Kowalski last week in Toronto, a feat which Yukon Eric failed to do.

Move over, your Leafian mourners, some of us Detroit rooters want to join you. The amazing Bruins of Boston ousted the Wings 4-2 last night to earn their way into Stanley Cup finals. Knocked out the NHL champs and a real powerful club, doing it in most convincing style. The Patrick men deserve full credit for a real hot showing in semi-finals and we hope they take it all. We'd sooner see Boston beat the Detroiters than any other team—if the Wings had to be beaten. The latter didn't have it when the chips were down, while Boston played championship hockey in this set. Meantime, Montreal Canadiens tied up their series with Hawks, and that'll be settled tomorrow. We'd now like to see Bruins and Canadiens in finals.

COAN BREAKS ANKLE

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Gil Coan, the heavy-hitting outfielder Washington Senators hoped would spark them to a fast getaway this spring, fractured his right ankle Sunday. Team officials said he probably would be out for two months. Coan, who had been sparking the Senators in spring exhibitions with a .375 batting average, was chasing a fly ball when his spikes caught on a small board sticking out in the fence and he tumbled to the ground.

BIG FIGHT POSTPONED—The April 10th heavyweight championship boxing match between Champion Rocky Marciano and contender Jersey Joe Walcott has been postponed until sometime in May. Marciano (right), nose bleeding, is shown sparring with one of his training partners in Chicago. It was a nose injury during training that caused his request to have the bout postponed.

Washington Suffers Setback As Gil Coan Breaks Ankle

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

A man in blue will bellow "play ball!" in Cincinnati and Washington next Monday and the 1953 major league season will begin.

The first man to bat in the first inning of the first game will make a little bigger mark in baseball history than usual. If present schedules are carried out, that man will be Bill Bruton of Milwaukee Braves. Bruton, a rookie outfielder, will be the first player to bat for Milwaukee in a major league game since 1901.

The Braves, moved from Boston to Milwaukee during the training season, will be guests of Cincinnati Reds for the single opening game on the National League schedule. In the American League, the defending world champion New York Yankees visit Washington where vice-president Richard Nixon will toss out the first ball.

DUE FOR ACTION

All 16 clubs are due for action the following day. In the American League it will be Philadelphia at New York, Washington at Boston, Chicago at Cleveland and Detroit at St. Louis for a night game. In the National League St. Louis will be at Milwaukee, Cincinnati at Chicago, Pittsburgh at Brooklyn and New York at Philadelphia.

Washington suffered a serious setback Sunday when Gil Coan broke his right ankle trying for a circus catch in an exhibition game against Cincinnati at Charlotte, N.C.

St. Louis Browns lost one of their best players Sunday when catcher Clint Courtney went after a foul ball and broke the middle finger of his throwing hand. Hank Sauer of Chicago Cubs, the most valuable player in the National League last year, also is out with a broken finger.

YANKEES BEATEN

The Yankees were beaten 4-3 Sunday by Atlanta of the Southern Association.

Two home runs by Dee Fondy helped the Cubs edge the Browns 9-8 at San Antonio, Tex. Cincinnati beat the Senators 6-2 at Charlotte with Clarence Podbielan going the route for the Reds. Second baseman Davey Williams singled five straight times for New York Giants, who whipped Cleveland for the third day in a row, this time 7-2 at Austin, Tex.

Dick Williams, subbing at first for the Dodgers, doubled off the wall in Nashville, Tenn., with two on base to give Brooklyn a 3-1 decision over Milwaukee.

Brooklyn Releases Johnny Rutherford

An Associated Press report from Nashville, Tenn., says that Brooklyn Dodgers of the National Baseball League have released John Rutherford to Mobile of the Southern Association on option. Rutherford won seven and lost seven last year for the Dodgers, and has recently returned from Detroit where he underwent treatment for a torn ligament in the right shoulder. He suffered this injury late last season but came back and eventually won the game that clinched the pennant.

Johnny was born in Belleville, Ont., after his father moved there from Peterborough. The family later went to live in Detroit, and the youngster went on from sandlot baseball to finally make the major league.

Bruins Slaughter Red Wings 4-2 With Pickup Line

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A forward line made up of misfits wrought the ruin of the mighty Detroit Red Wings Sunday night. The killer threesome that boosted Boston Bruins into the Stanley Cup finals was made up of Johnny Pierson, a right-winger playing left wing; Eddie Sandford, a centre playing right wing, and Fleming Mackell, a right-winger playing centre. Each of them contributed a goal to Boston's 4-2 victory. While the three DPs were ushering the National Hockey League champions to the sidelines, rookie goaltender Jacques Plante was accepting the plaudits of his Montreal teammates for racking up a shutout in his first playoff game Saturday night as the Canadiens whipped Chicago Black Hawks 3-0.

The performance of Plante, who took over from a discouraged Gerry McNeil at the latter's request "for the good of the club," enabled the Montrealers to square their best-of-seven semi-final at three games apiece. The deciding game will be played at Montreal Tuesday night.

PERSONAL TRIUMPH

Boston's six-game victory over the power-packed Red Wings, top-heavy favorites to win their second straight Stanley Cup, was a personal triumph for Coach Lynn Patrick.

Apart from concocting the unlikely Mackell - Peirson - Sandford combination, the Bruin pilot dreamed up the veteran trio of Milt Schmidt, Woody Dumart and Joe Klukay to ride herd on the top Detroit line of Gordie Howe, Ted Lindsay and Marty Pavelich.

While Schmidt and his mates shackled the Red Wing marksmen, the Bruin forwards played a waiting game, let the champions come to them most of the way and broke away on deadly sorties when they caught their opponents out of position.

Sunday night's game was typical. Not till the Wings lost Tony Leswick on a penalty did the Bruins launch a serious offensive—and then it produced a goal by Sandford, his sixth in as many games. In the second frame Peirson stabbed at a long shot by Sandford and steered it into the corner for the second tally, which Reggie Sinclair matched before the period ended.

Mackell restored the two-goal lead early in the third period, Lindsay cut it to one two minutes later, and rookie Leo Labine, a farmhand from Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League, sewed it up on a breakaway. In the entire period Boston fired only five shots at Terry Sawchuk while Bruin goalie Jim Henry handled 18.

It was the first time in seven years that Boston has made the finals and only the second time in six seasons that Detroit has missed.

At Chicago young Plante, who spent most of the season with Buffalo Bisons of the AHL, took over much as McNeil had done three years earlier, when the great Bill Durnan made way for his younger understudy as he ran into a streak of tough luck.

Young Plante wasn't worked too hard Saturday night, but he handled 29 shots like a veteran while Bernie Geoffrion, Maurice Richard and Ken Mosdell looked after Montreal's scoring in the first two periods.

Chicago coach Sid Abel praised the 24-year-old youngster but added that his Hawks had given their worst performance of the year.

St. Mike's Down Barrie 6-4 To Tie Series

TORONTO (CP)—St. Michael's College Saturday night showed some of the scoring power that made them known around the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A circuit earlier in the year and downed Barrie Flyers 6-4 to tie the best-of-nine league final 2-2.

The fifth game of the series—an easter Memorial Cup semi-final playoff—is slated for Barrie today.

St. Michael's took a 2-0 first-period lead on goals by Murray Costello, made it 3-0 on Bill Dineen's goal in the second and scored two more when Dick Duff and Mike Ratchford tallied in the third. It was not until the 7:10 mark of the third frame that Flyers notched their first goal, Bob White clicking on a pass from Don Cherry. Within 10 minutes the Flyers were one goal away from the Collegians lead, as Don McKenney, Doug Mohns and Tony Poeta connected.

CLINCHES WIN

Ed Plata clinched the victory for the Irish with less than two minutes to play. Plata's goal brought a shower of tomatoes, programs and papers to the ice from the fans. The crowd also showed their displeasure previously in the period following a Dick Duff-John Martan tussle. The battle started when Paul Knox bodychecked Barrie netminder Bill Harrington who had come far out of his crease to clear the puck. Duff and Martan each drew five-minute major penalties.

In the intermission after the first period, Joe Primeau, former Toronto Maple Leaf hockey coach, presented Art Clune with the St. Michael's Old Boys Trophy for being the most valuable player to the team during the season.

Bower Records Third Shutout

CLEVELAND (AP)—Goaltender Johnny Bower hung up his third shutout in five playoff games Saturday night as Cleveland Barons blanked Pittsburgh Hornets 2-0 in the first game of the best-of-seven series for the American Hockey League's Calder Cup.

Ray Ross, rookie Baron centre, and Jack Gordon, Cleveland captain, scored the two goals at 7:02 and 14:32 of the second period.

Bob Bailey, Cleveland centre, was taken to hospital for observation after being carried off the ice on a stretcher late in the second period.

Bailey went over backwards, striking his head, as he was trying to guard Bob Solinger of the Hornets. Bailey had a four-stitch gash in the back of his head.

Make 2 Changes In Soccer Rules

WINNIPEG (CP)—Two major changes in soccer statutes were made Sunday by the Football Association of Canada as 25 delegates from all provinces considered constitutional changes.

The FAC, formerly the Dominion Football Association, started a three-day annual meeting Saturday.

A rule which required teams to exchange line-ups at least 72 hours before game time was dropped and managers now will be allowed until just before starting time to provide lists of competing players.

The substitution rule was altered slightly. Each team is still limited to three substitutions but an injured player now may return to the game after he has been replaced by a substitute.

Treasurer Sam Davidson of Winnipeg told the meeting Saturday the association made more than $24,500 on the tour of Tottenham Hotspurs last summer.

CCF Changes Tactics

Shift Election Campaign To International Problems

TORONTO (CP)—The CCF will campaign at the next federal election on two main planks—international problems and "a mastery of the whole economy."

Delegates to the party's 19th annual provincial convention heard their leader, E. B. Jolliffe, say the time has come for the party to shift its emphasis away from welfare problems because Canada has reached a relatively high standard of living. Welfare has been its main concern since the Regina manifesto was first framed.

One of the 10 major national campaign planks outlined at the Easter-weekend convention was a demand for national health insurance. Delegates also asked for an extension of existing social security program and higher rates for old age pensions and family allowances.

OTHER POINTS

Other points on which the CCF will fight the next election are: A demand for an end to discrimination in freight rates; 100,000 new homes a year and low rental housing; Canadian leadership for peace to eliminate the hunger and poverty on which communism thrives; support of collective security and the United Nations; parity prices for primary producers; marketing agencies for farm and fish products expansion of overseas markets, and reduced taxes on low incomes, higher taxes on corporations and excess profits.

The convention also noted that the Social Credit party may become a political force in the next election. The Halton CCF club put forward a resolution saying the Social Credit party "will seek to capitalize on a false religious appeal."

This was deleted by the convention, but the party said it will emphasize more strongly than in the past the moral and ethical basis of the CCF.

TO PREPARE CASE

The convention also: Decided to have its national research committee prepare the case for and against the nationalization of banks; criticized the practice of cutting unemployment insurance benefits when jobless workers are taken ill; charged that corporations "buy" contracts from governments by giving large sums of money to campaign funds; and went on record in favor of the sale of colored margarine in Ontario.

The party promised that when in power it would set up a "department of co-operatives." Other resolutions affected rent controls, minimum wages and the sale of land for cemetery plots.

The decision to consider nationalization of Canadian banks came after several delegates said they felt that there are adequate safeguards in existence because of the power held by the Bank of Canada, the government's central bank.

DEPARTMENT WHITEWASHED

The convention said the national defence department has been "whitewashed" and demanded a royal commission to investigate it.

A rigid enforcement of the Criminal Code provision which makes it an offence for a person or corporation to contribute to a political campaign while holding a contract with a government was called for by delegates.

The meeting asked that this be investigated by a House of Commons all-party committee and that it be given full publicity.

Although it endorsed a resolution favoring the sale of colored margarine in Ontario, the convention asked for a public inquiry into the problems of competing edible oils and dairy products. It also said it would regulate such products and assure the farmer of stable markets.

The lifting of rent controls March 31, 1954, was criticized in a resolution which warned that the result will be great hardship to families with children and bring about confusion and injustice. Municipalities, the resolution said, have neither the funds nor the facilities to administer rent control themselves.

ASK MINIMUM WAGE

The convention demanded a 75-cent minimum hourly wage in Ontario. Delegates were told that there is no minimum wage legislation for men and the minimum for women ranges from $11.50 a week in rural areas to $16.80 in cities.

Delegates asked the provincial government to protect Ontario citizens from "free enterprise sharks" by limiting the cost of cemetery plots and by requiring that up to 50 per cent of the sale price be set aside for perpetual care.

25 Fatalities Occur Over Holiday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Twenty-five persons died violently in Eastern Canada during the Easter weekend.

A survey early today showed that of the total, 17 were traffic fatalities. Ontario recorded 14 dead, seven in traffic accidents. New Brunswick had five deaths, Quebec and Nova Scotia three each.

Investigation of the deaths of Mrs. Alvin Lewis, 42, and her two children, Shirley May, 14, and Mildred Jane, 11, found dead in their farm home near Ailsa Craig, has almost come to standstill. Authorities are awaiting the result of examination of the stomach contents of the three persons before proceeding with their inquiry.

They were found by Alvin Lewis when he came home from working in the bush. His wife was on a couch, the younger girl on a divan and the elder one on a bed in another room. The bodies bore no marks of violence.

OTHER DEATHS

Other Ontario deaths: Heather Hill, 3, of Toronto, when she dashed out behind a moving car into the side of a truck; Joseph Langlois, 80, of Ottawa, struck by a car; Ignace Jarja, 43, Louis Toth, 33, and George Nikula, 29, all of Hamilton, when their car smashed head-on into a heavy truck near Elfrida; Willis Morgan and his wife, Mae, both in their late 50s, of Roblin, when their car was struck by a freight train; John Carson, 2, of Burlington, suffocated when he fell head first into a post hole his father had dug; Mrs. Verna Philps, 35, of Long Branch, of asphyxiation in a fire in her bedroom; Jack Mullen, 29, of Niagara Falls, after a fall downstairs; Francis Coyle, 48, of Windsor, by a dynamite explosion while blasting tree stumps on his farm.

In Quebec, Angelbert Lafontaine, 36, his wife, Beatrice, 32, and their son, Alain, 7, of Maniwaki, were fatally injured when their car was struck by a train at a level crossing at Ste. Rose.

AFTER MAU MAUS — John Timmerman, a former RCMP corporal from Winnipeg, is one of the top men in the drive to catch Mau Mau terrorists in Kenya where he is assistant police commissioner. Of Netherlands descent, he served in the RCMP for roughly seven years. In the Second World War he was a security officer with the Canadian army overseas. When peace came he helped the British occupation forces maintain security in West Germany. From there he went into Colonial service and was posted to Kenya.

Thomas Tyler

The funeral service for Thomas Tyler, 710 Orpington Rd., who died when he fell off his motorbike Thursday on Concession Rd., was held Saturday at the Nesbitt funeral home.

Officiating at the service were the Rev. E. W. Rowland of George Street United Church and the Rev. I. G. Pollock of Grace United Church. Burial was in Trent Valley Cemetery, Hastings.

Honorary pallbearers were Tom McQuigg, George Rorke, H. Bedford, Gordon Bicky, Jack Thompson and Williiam Kitchen.

Active pallbearers were A. Parker, Roy Juby, J. Cuffe, C. Nixon, G. Clark and W. Forsythe.

Puebla Citizens Ready To Give Help To Tourists

PUEBLA. — As I mentioned previously Puebla is one of the friendliest places in Mexico and you will find the citizens most anxious to help you see the interesting spots in their city.

* * * *

Sr. Brito, who is director of the Comision de Turismo and who also lectures at the university, deserves a medal for his help. For 4½ hours he took me through the old section of the city giving me much information and interesting stories. This was no sinecure.

* * * *

With his Spanish and few words of English and my English and few words of Spanish, there were complications. When that broke down we tried a few words of French. When all else failed he wrote it in Spanish so that I could read. I am sure he felt as if he were conducting a kindergarten class. But his patience was unfailing.

* * * *

Puebla is a very interesting city and every one of its old streets has a story. The Spanish Renaissance cathedral, on one side of the Zocalo, is ranged as the second in Mexico. Its construction was begun by order of King Philip II in 1575 and was finished in 1649 before the Cathedral of Mexico City. The paintings of the 14 stations of the Cross were done by Miguel Cabrera, a fine Zapotecan artist. Each altar has its individual beauty, especially one of colored Puebla onyx.

* * * *

The exquisite carving found in the choir loft is by Pedro Munoz and Flemish tapestries by Rubens were given to the Cathedral by Charles V. The main altar done by Tolsa in different marbles, silver and golden bronzes is very fine.

* * * *

CENTRAL DOME OF TILES

The central dome is made of pumice stone and covered on the outside with beautiful tiles. Notwithstanding the fragility of the construction it has not suffered damage through the years. The cathedral towers, which are 210 feet high, top those of Mexico City.

* * * *

Often called the "eighth wonder of the world," the Rosary Chapel next to the temple of Santo Domingo is one of the architectural gems which has given fame to Puebla. It is the culmination of Puebla barroco style, notable for its decoration in fine gold, its marble and its tile.

* * * *

It is said there is nothing in America that can be compared with the sculpture representing the Saints in the dome. The gold covering the walls and graceful tracery make it unlike anything to be seen in Canada.

* * * *

COLORFUL ARTISTS QUARTER

One of the most colorful parts of Puebla is the Barrio del Artista. This is somewhat like the Bohemian quarter for painters around Notre Dame in Paris. Along this street, artists have their work displayed in small cubicles and they also have their studios here. If you are interested you can buy some nice paintings.

* * * *

Sr. Brito took me to the Casa de Los Velasco, a former residential palace done in the Spanish colonial style with patio and fountain of tile. It is owned by the Velasco family, descendants of the viceroys of New Spain when it was a part of the Spanish empire. In this home there are still relics, of the Maximilian era, too.

* * * *

The early church was not favorable to the theatre and fought every attempt to establish the legitimate theatre in America. However, shows were performed in private dwellings for those who dared to violate the church edict. In 1701, one hundred years after the application was filed, a permit was granted to build one. It was completed in 1759 and is the oldest that exists in North America.

* * * *

It was built to resemble a small colosseum in Rome. The theatre's box seats were built so that there is not one which does not have a view of the stage. The acoustics were controlled by large water jugs and broken glass placed under the stage. The plaza in front of this theatre was at one time second in importance only to the Zocalo.

THE CATHEDRAL OF Puebla is second in importance only to the Cathedral of Mexico City. This 17th century building has paintings of the 14 stations of the cross which are attributed to the Zapotecan Indian Miguel Cabrera. —(American Airlines Photo)

Young Family Burned Out Seek Shelter

Mother In Hospital From Shock Get Red Cross Help

His home burned out Saturday noon by fire, Cyprien Majeste of 739 Monaghan Rd., his wife and three young children, are badly in need of a dwelling. Even three rooms would do.

At present they are in crowded quarters at the home of his brother, Peter Majeste, of 651 Chester St. The Peter Majestes, living in a five-room bungalow, have just one bedroom to spare.

The family lost nearly all their furniture and possessions, valued in all at $1,000. They were not insured.

The Peterborough Red Cross branch swung into action immediately after the fire to help the family. They provided blankets and clothing for the children and also clothing for Mrs. Majeste. Coats however are still needed for the children—Evelyn, age four; Roger, two; and Peter, one.

Another complication: Mrs. Cyprien Majeste is in bed with shock; she is expecting her fourth child soon. To look after the children and her sick sister-in-law, Mrs. Peter Majeste has had to stay home from work. As she is the only one in her family working at present Mrs. Majeste is finding it heavy going financially.

SECOND FAMILY

The Red Cross have also offered to help the family of Donald L. Post, upstairs residents at 739 Monaghan Rd., which was gutted by fire causing $1,500 damage to the building. At the time of the fire the Posts were away and it is not known where they stayed during the weekend. Their loss is expected to be as high as the Majestes.

The Majeste family came to Canada from France in 1951 and Mr. Majeste is employed by the city. Mr. Post is a Bell Telephone lineman.

Record Crowds Fill Churches For Easter

Record Easter Sunday attendance was reported today from all the churches of Peterborough.

Rev. H. G. Douglas, president of the Ministerial Association, said that the congregation at Knox United Church was the largest in his ministry here.

"The general picture Sunday was of record crowds, manifesting a deepening of religious interest and worship," Mr. Douglas said. "From my own experience and from all accounts this was an evidence of a growing desire of the people to get down to realities of life. It was a recognition of the significance of Easter as the basis of our hopes as Christians, commemorating the resurrection of Jesus Christ."

Mr. Douglas said the response of the people was most gratifying as a bright sign of their faith in God and in their prayers for the return of peace to the world and the hope of international understanding and brotherhood.

OVERFLOW

George St. United Church had to accommodate an overflow of 225 worshippers at the Easter morning service, said the Rev. Arnold Mathews.

"We've never had the like of that before in my own pastorate and in the years past. Extra chairs were placed in the body of the church and upstairs, but that was not enough. We had a large congregation itself in the Sunday School basement.

"My assistant, the Rev. E. W. Rowland, joined that congregation and by means of our intercommunication system we all worshipped together. It was most inspiring. In the evening, the attendance was approximately 500 or more, a beautiful choral service featuring "The Messiah" of Handel. Our great assembly and those at the other churches of the city were an indication of the conviction of the people in Easter's essential message of hope."

Assurance of the eternity of life was the theme of the celebration of the feast of the Resurrection of Christ at the Roman Catholic churches. Large numbers of people received holy communion.

Communion services beginning at 7 a.m. at St. John's Anglican Church were attended by congregations of Easter proportions, and similar reports were received from the other Episcopal churches of Peterborough.

NEW MINISTER

At the Presbyterian church in the southend of the city where services are held in Confederation School the new minister, the Rev. Gilbert D. Smith, who recently arrived from Ireland, was welcomed and took charge of the service. There was an overflow congregation. A 10-piece orchestra provided an Easter recital and accompanied the singing during the serviced.

At St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Mr. Smith preached at the evening service and an overflow choir filled the choir loft when special music was provided by the Boys' choir, the Girls' and the senior choir.

JACK NICHOLLS, 22, of 479 Park St., received head lacerations Saturday night when his car skidded 150 feet into a tree and telephone pole on Highway 7, just east of Fowler's Corners. He was pulled unconscious from the car just as the motor started burning by Gordon La Plante (background) of R.R. 2, Peterborough, and Lou Irwin, also of R.R. 2, Peterborough.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Valedictorian Grandson Of Gen. Botha

A grandson of General Louis Botha, first premier of South Africa, Theunis Botha of South Africa will be valedictorian at the graduation exercises Friday in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church of the Eastern Pentecostal Bible College.

This will be the second graduating class to leave the college since it moved here from Toronto.

Thursday night in the Peterborough Pentecostal Church, the general superintendent of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada, the Rev. Walter Elmo McAlister of Toronto, will deliver the baccalaureate address to the 27 graduates.

Other student speakers at Friday night's convocation will be Mary Lou Rice of Collingwood, and Wesley Edwards of Toronto.

NOTED STATESMAN

General Botha was one of South Africa's and the British Commonwealth's most distinguished generals and statesmen. He was born in 1862 in Natal of Boer parents and became a minor official as the district organized into the New Republic. In 1888 the New Republic joined the Transvaal and Botha became field cornet and in 1897 was elected a member of the government.

When the Boer war broke out in 1899, he became an officer and in a short time was in command of the Transvaal forces. He fought a delaying action and then engaged in guerrilla warfare. But when he saw that further fighting was useless, he welcomed the chance of making peace in 1902 and was scrupulous in observing the conditions and spirit of the peace.

When the Transvaal obtained responsible government Botha was elected first premier. And in 1910 when the Union of South Africa was proclaimed he was invited to become the first premier of the union. He started out to demonstrate that a Dutch government party could deal fairly with both Dutch and British.

In 1913 he succeeded in working out a compromise solution of the problem of Indian settlers with Gandhi, who represented the Indian settlers in South Africa at the time.

The same year he was forced, against his will, to call in Imperial troops to settle a strike of white miners on the Witwatersrand. In a more serious strike the following January, martial law was declared, and nine of the labor leaders were deported without trial. Although there was some criticism of this action, the South African parliament endorsed it.

IN WORLD WAR

Contrary to the view of many of his Dutch supporters, Botha declared that South Africa was at war when the First World War broke out in August, 1914. While he was preparing to invade German Southwest Africa a revolt was staged by some of the army leaders. Employing Dutch commandos of his loyal followers in order to avoid racial feeling, he took command himself and put down the uprising.

He also personally led the invasion of German Southwest Africa and obtained the final surrender of the German forces on July 9, 1915. After this Botha took no further active part in the fighting, though with Smuts he helped to organize the South African Brigade for service overseas as well as the expeditionary force sent to German East Africa.

He attended the peace negotiations at Versailles in 1919 and impressed everyone by his moderation towards the conquered foe, never forgetting that his own people had been conquered.

He landed at Capetown on July 24 after signing the treaty. He was already a very sick man and died at his beloved farm, Rusthof in the Transvaal, August 28, 1919.

He had done all in his power to weld into one harmonious nation the British and Dutch elements in South Africa.

"You in England," he said in 1911, "have given us the hand of friendship and we have taken it and shall not let it go."

Unconscious Driver Pulled From Burning Crashed Car

Jack Nicholls, 22, 479 Park St., was pulled unconscious from his car when the engine caught fire after striking a tree and clipping off a telephone pole about a mile east of Fowler's Corners on Highway 7 about 6 p.m. Saturday. He was taken to Civic Hospital by Nesbitt ambulance, suffering from shock and lacerations to the back of his head. His condition was reported improved today.

Gordon La Plante, RR 2, Peterborough, was driving east from Fowler's Corners when he saw Nicholls' car approaching swerve twice and then skid 150 feet across the highway to the opposite ditch. Nicholls, who was the sole occupant of the car, was thrown out the front door which was sprung open by the impact but his foot was caught in the framework of the front seat when the cushion was thrown clear.

HELPED RESCUE

Lou Irwin, who was just driving out of his farm lane opposite the scene of the crash, ran over and helped La Plante disengage Nicholls from the wreckage.

Irwin's son Harold, who was in the barn with his mother, saw the flash of the burning engine through the window as it hit the tree and rushed out while Mrs. Irwin phoned police and brought out blankets to cover Nicholls.

The left front tire, which was torn to ribbons when it blew out, caught fire. Shovels were obtained from the Irwin house and gravel was piled on the flames but the engine was still spurting flames when the 1941-model car, which was a total wreck, was towed away by Arthur Gilders of Peterborough.

OPP Constable D. K. Ross, who investigated, said that a charge would be laid against Nicholls.

Toronto Drivers Winners In Rally Classes

D. Brailey and J. Taylor of Toronto in their Morris Minor were announced the winners today in the smaller class of sport cars with 99.9 points in the first rally sponsored by the Peterborough Motor Sports held Friday. In the bigger car class, T. Watson and G. Robarts of Toronto in their Jaguar Mark 5, walked away with first place with 100.2 points in their class.

The overall winner with the least number of points was D. Brailey and J. Taylor of Toronto in their Morris Minor, and will be presented with a winning cup.

The winners in both classes will be presented with a silver tray and all contestants who finished the course will receive an engraved plaque. Several of the merchants in town also donated prizes.

F. Jones and Miss C. Hopkins in their Chevrolet with a 111.5 points in the big car class came second, Dennis Williamson and Jack Worrall of Peterborough in their Monarch sedan with 114.3 points came third, Rob Roy and R. Scott of Peterborough in their Rover were fourth with 114.7 points, D. Wilson and A. McDonald of Peterborough came fifth in their Hudson Jet with 116 points, R. Jameson and L. Cunningham in their Dodge came sixth with 117.1 points, R. Lawrence and T. Bennett of Peterborough were seventh in their Dodge with 117.7 points, R. Titshall and J. Loucks of Peterborough in their Chevrolet came eighth with 124.8 points, E. Brailsford and W. Swayne of Peterborough in their Studkebaker, ninth with 128.4 points, president of the Peterborough club, Arnold Kelbrick and H. Pulcine in their Meteor came tenth with 131.6 points and G. Steers and C. Collitt were 11th in their Ford with 140.5 points.

In the small car class E. Willis and A. Larkman in their MG TD came second with 100 points, C. Eden and A. Sands of Toronto (MGTD) third 104.6; P. Dilnutt and P. Haddon fourth (Austin A-30) 105.1 points; N. Bryson and F. Hayes fifth (Morris Minor) 109.8 points; D. Anderson and B. Davies (Morris Minor) sixth 110.6 points; E. Larkman and J. Nictoladdes (MGTD) seventh 111.1 points; N. Casey and N. Perryman (MG Y series) eight 112.7 points; Boudreau and Jonassen ninth (AustinA-40) 113.1 points; P. Fairclough and T. Whittaker tenth (MGTC) 117.2 points; D. Albertson and E. Kubbinga in their Austin A-40 eleventh 120.9 points; Dr. H. M. Yule and Dr. R. W. Ford (Hillman Minx), Peterborough, 12th 122.5 points; J. S. Webster and E. Stevenson (Morris Minor) 13th 129.6 points; J. M. Gear and G. Simmons (Morris Minor) of Peterborough 14th 130.7 points; C. Abbott and J. Fitzpatrick of Peterborough (Morris Minor) 15th 136.4 points, and R. MacGee and Chris Kallay, Peterborough, (MG Y series) came 16th 462.8 points.

The Peterborough club was formed just last November. Contestants entered the rally from Toronto and Oshawa along with Peterborough club entries.

Some high-lights of the tour showed the sportsmanship of the contestants. At one point on the trip one of the drivers chased after another competitor when he took the wrong turn, to point out his mistake. On another occasion one contestant lent his spare wheel so he could carry on in the race.

The Peterborough club is holding their next meeting Wednesday in the Public Library and a film of 24-hour Le Mans race will be shown.

The Toronto contestants stole the show in the small car class. Their greater experience was aided by the mechancial refinements which were added to their cars.

Fell Off Horse Girl Dies In Hospital

Thrown Friday Rushed To Toronto Dies Sunday

TORONTO (CP) — Nancy Ann Bounsell, 19, who fell from a horse Friday morning near her parents' home at Haliburton, died Sunday in hospital here.

She had been riding alone. Her horse returned home riderless and the girl was found unconscious by neighbors.

Miss Bounsell, an accomplished horsewoman, left home on Friday morning for a ride. Some minutes later a neighbor, Miss Winnifred Miller, saw the riderless horse pass her home and proceeded to investigate. She found the girl lying at the side of the road, seriously injured and unconscious.

MET BY TRUCK

While hurrying to her home to bring help, she was met by Mr. Bounsell in his truck. He had seen the horse return to the stable. Mr. Bounsell placed his daughter in his truck and started for the Lindsay hospital. Provincial Constable Gordon Langton, of Haliburton made radio arrangements for an escort and brought the truck to the Victoria County boundary. Another cruiser took over there, and still others on the way to Lindsay. Dr. Carroll, of the Ross Memorial Hospital staff, pronounced the girl in grave condition when she reached here and arrangements were made for Welch's ambulance from Minden to take her to Toronto.

Another escort was formed and proceeded toward Toronto. Five Provincial officers were used between Lindsay and the city limits where Toronto police took up the job and rushed the ambulance the rest of the way to the Western Hospital.

Millions Observe Resurrection Across World

By REUTERS NEWS AGENCY

Christ's Resurrection was celebrated by millions of Christians throughout the world, on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

One of the most impressive Easter Sunday services was held in war-torn South Korea, where thousands of UN troops and civilians attended a sunrise service on a mountaintop near Seoul.

Hundreds of services were conducted throughout the country and at the battlefront by U.N. chaplains and Korean churchmen.

Nearly 1,000 Canadian, British, New Zealand and American troops attended a service in the dawn mist at the headquarters of the U.S. 2nd division. Other British Commonwealth troops celebrated quietly, with no special services and no special rations.

FRONTIER OPENED

In the Holy Land, the Jordan-Israeli frontier was opened again to allow pilgrims into the old city of Jerusalem. Thousands of Christians—Roman Catholics, Protestants, Copts and Greek Orthodox—attended services in the city's myriad churches.

A solemn procession of diplomats in full regalia crossed the no-man's-land between the two countries and passed through the Jaffa gate on their way to mass at the Church of the Holy Sepulchre.

In Rome, the Pope gave his traditional Easter message of peace and Christian fellowship from a balcony high on St. Peter's Basilica. About 500,000 persons packed vast St. Peter's Square to hear him appeal to the world not to lose courage in the efforts to attain peace.

The Russian Orthodox cathedral in Moscow was so crowded for a special midnight-to-dawn service that many were unable to get in. The service was conducted by Alexei, patriarch of Moscow and all Russia. It was attended by many of the diplomatic corps.

Get Flavored Water

OAKVILLE (CP)—Town residents Sunday noticed an iodine taste and disinfectant smell in the water supply. It has led to a demand for distilled water and soft drinks and four druggists reported they had sold all their supplies. Christ Six Feet Tall, Well-Built, Says Sculptor

By FRANK BRUTTO

ROME (AP)—Jesus Christ was more than six feet tall, long-limbed and finely muscled from His preaching pilgrimages on the shores of the Sea of Galilee.

This is the conclusion of Roman sculptor-artist Lorenzo Ferri after 21 years of study of the Sancta Sindone, the shroud believed by many scholars to be the white linen cloth Joseph of Arimathea wrapped around Jesus' body after it was taken down from the cross.

Ferri is convinced that the shroud—preserved in a cathedral at Turin and long the property of the former royal house of Italy—is the cloth of which both St. Luke and St. John wrote.

Like Veronica's veil, with which the holy woman wiped the sweating, bleeding face of Jesus as He labored under the cross on the way to Calvary, the shroud bears an imprint. The imprint is of an entire body, both front and back.

Its history has been well known for ages. In the past it was the centre of frequent and sometimes hot debate over its authenticity. It remained for the discovery of modern photography to bring about new intensive study of the shroud.

When the shroud was exhibited publicly in 1898 a photograph of it was permitted. There was a sensation when it was discovered that the photographic negative held a positive image. This proved that the image on the shroud, in effect, itself was a negative.

The discovery complicated and at least partially refuted old arguments that the shroud had been the work of a Middle-Ages artist. It caused renewed study of the shroud and—by comparison with other museums linens—at least definite establishment that the cloth dated from the time of Christ.

STUDY RENEWED

The last photographs of the shroud were made in 1933. Ferri, in his studies, uses life-sized copies of these most recent photographs.

Meticulous study of these photographs finally led to Ferri's belief Jesus Christ was considerably taller than first thought from preliminary examinations of the shroud. These had conceived of the figure as having been straight and flat on the cloth.

Ferri noted that its folded hands came to a point on the thighs they could not normally reach if the figure were erect or lying flat. From this he deduced that Jesus' body was curved slightly in the shape of the letter "S".

COMPUTES HEIGHT

Then, using living models and placing them on a sheet that reproduced the measurement of the shroud, he arrived at his computation of Christ's height. This, he discovered, could not be less than six-foot-one nor more than six-foot-two.

Dr. Paul Vignon in 1901 read a paper before the Academie des Sciences in which he maintained the impression upon the shroud was a "vaporigraph" caused by ammoniacal examinations radiating from the surface of Christ's body after so violent a death. Such vapors, he said, were capable of producing a deep reddish brown stain, varying in intensity with the distance, upon a cloth impregnated with oils and aloes.

St. John, in his version of the crucifixion and death of Jesus, mentioned the mixture with which His body was annointed and which —students of the Sindone now believe—produced the negative impression on the fine linen mesh.

Held On Fraud Charges

HAMILTON (CP)—John Clifford Clancy, 38-year-old accountant, was arrested Saturday on 11 charges of defrauding Norfolk county farmers of almost $4,000. Clancy, who was escorted to Simcoe by provincial police, was arrested by Hamilton police. Police charged that Clancy obtained cash from tobacco farmers to settle their income tax and then converted the money to his own use.

Freedom Called Dynamic Force World Affairs

A privately-financed clearing house to exchange experience and ideas among the free nations to prove the practical value of freedom was urged yesterday by Erwin D. Canham, editor of The Christian Science Monitor.

Speaking over the CBC, Mr. Canham said: "We need to remove the contradiction between what we know or believe to be true, and what we do as citizens or a nation. We need to close the gap between our promises and our performance."

He indicated this can be done because freedom is an essentially dynamic idea. "Basic power is the spiritual idea of freedom as it exists in the hearts of men."

The people in the free nations, Mr. Canham declared, are "the true liberating revolutionaries in today's world." He warned, however, that the value of self-determination has to be presented to nations which are neither completely free nor totalitarian, in practical terms that they can understand.

"To the starving man, the right of individual self-determination may seem to be an empty phrase," he pointed out.

EVALUATE FREEDOM

Mr. Canham spoke on the CBC program, "Our Special Speaker."

He said the free nations need to evaluate the source of their own freedom, and then explain it to the rest of the world. He said a policy could be founded on self-determination and "the fact of interdependence."

What the world needs from the free nations, he went on, is "a great Declaration of Interdependence — of the significance to men everywhere of the principles of free society."

In addition, he said, "we must of course make adequate the physical defenses of the free world; we must attain and preserve its economic stability. We must substitute trade for aid. But above all, in every conceivable way — most of them governmental — we must show the overwhelming majority of mankind who are not yet either in the communist camp, or on the side of what we believe to be free society, what the free system can do for their lives . . .

"The free world has at mid-century produced a kind of society that not only has solved all the problems against which Karl Marx inveighed a century ago, but most of the problems that faced us a half-century ago, and many of the problems that existed a quarter-century ago . . .

"We need to know, and the world needs to know, that we have not stood still in the evolution of institutions of freedom. To help make these institutions effective in the solution of today's world problems is the task we face."

FACES OF YUGOSLAVIA, 1953—Red stars, hangovers from yesteryear, still emblazon the caps of Tito's sailors (left) and soldiers (centre), who mingle on Belgrade's main street with out of town peasants, like the old gentleman (right) with fur hat of unprocessed lamb.

MARX ISN'T A MUST—Two Yugoslav co-eds frame the new "Economic University," where they're training for government work. Kremlin Marxism is no longer a compulsory course.

BELGRADE'S CONTRASTS—The old rubs elbows with the new in Belgrade, where a modern building forms a background for horses hauling an ancient wagon loaded with wood into town.

Old, New, Rich And Poor Mix In Yugoslav Capital

BY FRED SPARKS

BELGRADE —(NEA)— Peasants in fur hats and sandals turned up at the end like gondolas carry squealing pigs down the main shopping section. They pass diplomats' ladies frocked in the latest from Paris.

That's two items why this capital—private property of Marshal ("Don't Call Me Dictator") Tito—is confusing enough to make the zaniest Hollywood director screech: "Cut! Too many characters on the set."

It's my first visit since Tito convinced Washington he no longer belonged to Stalin's Balkan Bush League. He has now changed the salute of the clenched Communist fist into an itching palm—extended for the Amelcan dollars and guns.

RUSSIANS NEXT DOOR

Whether you like Tito or no, he did thumb his nose at the Kremlin. Maybe Malenkov still hopes to hang Tito's blonde scalp out to dry. At least one of Tito's Government pals thinks so. He told me:

"Sure. We're very nervous about spies. You Americans have an ocean between you and the Russians—we're next door."

There are scads of gray-uniformed soldiers around with red stars on their fatigue caps, a hangover from yesteryear.

The troops are too poorly paid to buy a girl a shlivovitz, the local joy juice rugged enough to gag a crocodile. I'm glad they're on our side, for they're huge, strapping types with shaved heads, jack boots, and a bloody guerrilla fighting history.

Perhaps as partial payoff for the free gifts from Detroit, Tito has made certain reforms.

A lad I knew back when Stalin's portrait shared wallspace with Tito's said: "At the University we no longer have to labor on public buildings and Marxism, as a compulsory course, has been dropped."

There is promise of further freedom in official Titoland's new sense of humor. A cartoon in "Porcupine" tickles with:

Patient, speaking through his nose: "Can you remove a tooth while my mouth is shut?"

Dentist: "Impossible. Why?"

Patient: "I opened it two years ago and just got out of jail."

Recalling Russian peasants, who cut the throats of their own cattle rather than let the Government have them, stubborn Yugoslav farmers defeated Tito's agricultural program, which tried to direct their every plow. He's been guy enough to admit this.

PUNITIVE FOLK

Pretty primitive folk, who couldn't recognize electric razors, let alone blankets, they horse-and-wagon into Belgrade at dawn with the day's unrationed eats.

Outdoor market traditions allow samples, and farm women wearing six or eight embroidered petticoats set up thimbles of free wine and slivers of cheese for prospective clients.

Another hint that handcuffs are slipping is brighter clothes. While a while ago an average comrade would as soon have a hangman's noose around his neck as a tie. Now most favor classy cravats.

And a happy woman told a reporter: "A year back a hat was 'Fascist' and no woman would dare to wear lipstick, nail polish, or jewelry. I had a hat—but kept it in the closet. Now I have three hats I wear them."

Why not? If Tito can take tea with the Queen of England, Desa Yvonovitch can sport a capitalist bonnet.

See British Trade Ills On Way To Improvement

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Britain's current prescription for improving her economic health is described as "iron to the diet, rather than rouge to the cheeks" by R. P. Bower, commercial counsellor for Canada in London.

The description is given in a recent issue of Foreign Trade, published by the department of trade and commerce.

The issue is devoted almost entirely to the sterling area, which reports for member countries by offices of the Canadian trade commissioner service.

Mr. Bower expresses restrained optimism. He says, in part:

"Improvements brought about by changed monetary policies, gradual growth in the sterling area's gold and dollar reserves, and the encouraging strength of the pound sterling in the world's money markets, suggest that the fundamental weakness in the post-war operation of the organization is being properly dealt with at last." However:

LONG WAY TO GO

"So gradual is the improvement and so long the way still to go that there is no prospect of an early elimination of the import restrictions that have been a part of the United Kingdom trade picture since 1939. . . .

"No sensational improvement can be expected in 1953, but steps taken by the United Kingdom government to decontrol trade in certain items are introducing a welcome element of competition. Commodities for which a measure of freedom has been restored, or is in prospect, include lumber, zinc, lead, raw cotton, sugar, cereals and flour.

"In general, these concessions to 'freer' trade relate to imports of commodities which have not been seriously restricted. Their principal effect, therefore, will be to allow competitive influences rather than import licences to shape the pattern of the trade. They do not mean that the volume or value of imports will necessarily be altered. . . .

"The long-term outlook for Canadian exports to the United Kingdom was improved by the 1952 developments. The remaining difficulties are so serious, however, that under the best of circumstances, recovery will be protracted."

AREA'S EXTENT

The sterling area is so large that some description of it now and then seems in order. Here is some of Mr. Bower's description:

"It contains one-quarter of the world's population and its members carry on one-quarter of the world's international trade. Many products of everyday use come largely from it—75 per cent of the world's diamonds; 60 per cent of the world's natural rubber and tea; half of its gold, wool and cocoa, and 40 per cent of its tin.

"On the other hand, the area is deficient in a number of important commodities, including newsprint, softwoods, raw cotton, grains tobacco and meat.

"The area can be defined as a voluntary association of countries which pool their reserves of foreign exchange and draw their requirements from the central pool which is held by the British government.

U.S. Scientist Describes Seeing Human Life Begin

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

CHICAGO (AP) — Seeing the physical start of new human life was described today to the federation of American societies for experimental biology.

This start is the merging of the male germ cell, the sperm, with the female germ cell, the ovum or egg. The merging seems to occur by chance, this study finds.

The sperm must swim into the egg, actually touch it in order to fertilize it and start the union which begins life. Sperm cells may swim very near, but miss touching.

This chance encounter could have much to do with why you look and act exactly like you do. Individual sperm cells presumably differ in their genes or hereditary units which they can carry to the egg with its hereditary units.

The merging is described by Dr. Landrum Shettles, department of obstetrics and gynecology, College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University, in a report to the federation opening a five-day meeting here.

PROGRESS WATCHED

He observed human eggs obtained during necessary operations upon women. Male sperm cells were added later to fluids containing the egg, and observed under a microscope.

The sperm cells are not attracted to the egg directly by any biological force. A sperm, shaped like a tadpole, may swim very near the egg, and just miss touching it.

Once having touched the egg, most sperm remained in contact with it. Dr. Shettles told of seeing the heads of the sperm penetrating inside the egg, toward the core of the egg.

(In these experiments, any fertilized egg would not, of course, be able to live on outside the body and keep developing into a baby.)

EXPLAIN FIREFLIES

The mystery of light from fireflies was explained by Johns Hopkins University scientists.

The strange light apparently comes from the sudden reaction of five chemicals which are bound up in the bug's tail by a potent enzyme or chemical controller.

Nothing happens while the five chemicals — adenosine Triphosphate, luciferin, oxygen, magnesium, and luciferase—are held together.

But nerve stimulations set free another chemical, inorganic pyrophosphate, which breaks the bond holding the five chemicals and they react to produce the flash of firefly light.

At almost the same time, another chemical begins to destroy the pyrophosphate, to separate the five chemicals again and put out the light. In a few seconds, the light is produced, and extinguished.

The firefly study is part of efforts to learn how signals from nerves make muscles and organs in other animals, including human beings, do their marvelous work.

Drainage Needed For Village Highway Link

LAKEFIELD (ENS)— W. A. Anderson, Division Engineer of the Department of Highways, and E. F. Marston of the Municipal Roads Branch, Department of Highways, were here Wednesday afternoon to discuss with the council the condition of village streets.

Mr. Anderson explained the position of the department with regard to the highway connecting link in Lakefield and reviewed what had been done in the past, particularly in 1952, and of its failure. He stated that drainage was badly needed from the Post Office on Queen St. to the residence of Walter Walker and from Clementi Street to the western limits of the village and that the village must supply the drainage. The department, he explained, would pay for the cost of the central 22 feet only.

TO PAY SHARE

Mr. Anderson further stated the department would expect the village to retain a consulting engineer for the job and that they would pay their share of his fees as far as it pertained to that central 22 ft. of road. The department will also pay for any broken tile under that part of the street.

An approximate figure as to cost was given by Mr. Anderson but he explained that these were for reference only as the costs of such projects would vary. He also stated that changes in highway routes would be considered only if the request came directly from the village council.

Mr. Marston explained that his department would not pay any subsidy on storm sewers but would on catch basins. He also told the council how the subsidy might be obtained.

The matter of the main street or connecting link was left for the council to consider until the next regular meeting and their decision was then to be forwarded to the deputy minister of highways and also to Mr. Anderson.

Mr. Marston will be requested to come to Lakefield and go over the village streets with the council.

Reeve W. C. Grant presided at the meeting and present were councillors G. S. Dunford, J. R. Hull and the Rev. J. A. Steed.

A pearl and jewelled leaf designed coronet held her long veil of imported silk illusion, and she carried a cascade of lily of the valley and stephanotis, centred by a magneta-throated orchid.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and had as maid of honor Miss Margaret Toms and as bridesmaid Miss Natalie Erskine, both of London.

The attendants' frocks were of green and peach iridescent taffeta, identically styled on simple lines. The full-length bouffant skirts featured corded hiplines and the fitted bodices were finished with square necklines and short, closely fitted sleeves. The side-detailed white leaf headdresses were sprinkled with tiny white flowers, and they carried semi-cascades of yellow-centred white tulips interspersed with soft green tulle.

Mr. Grant Morrow of Peterborough attended his brother, and the ushers were Mr. Lindsay Brown of Peterborough and Mr. Peter Jones of Toronto, the bride's brother.

Served Year In Korea

CALGARY (CP)—Virginia Cook, one of the first Canadian Red Cross workers to serve in Korea, says she's glad to be home but "will miss the life."

Miss Cook served a year in Commonwealth hospitals in Korea and Japan. She is in the welfare branch and her main job is occupational therapy, letter writing and generally cheering troops.

Army officials until September, 1951, would not allow women near the Korean front line.

"However, once we got there they were glad to see us," she says. "It was pleasant for the lads to have female companions to talk to. It made them feel less lonely."

Virginia found the country provided grim living but she stuck it out since she was over there to do a job.

"If we could help someone it made us feel good. There were times when we felt very inadequate, but mostly the work was satisfying."

Virginia served overseas with the Red Cross during the Second World War and was a member of a national team which toured Canada to set up blood transfusion depots.

She was awarded the Canadian Army Korea medal early this year.

WA To Decorate Church Basement

WARSAW (ENS) — The Easter meeting of the Women's Association of the United Church was held in the Sunday school room. Mrs. Harold Payne, president, presided. The treasurer reported $293.18 on hand. The flower convener reported three cards sent to the sick and eight calls were reported on sick and shut-ins. The roll call was answered by an Easter verse.

Plans were made for decorating the basement. Each member was asked to make home-made candy for the candy sale at the play, "The Road Back," on Friday, April 10. Miss Clara McCracken had charge of the devotional topic. Mrs. Cephas Parcells gave a reading, "The Cheerful Heart." Mr. and Mrs. Dyson rendered a duet.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Roland Payne, Mrs. Ida Darling and Mrs. Edwards.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Cakes That Can Be Baked Quickly Boon To Hostess

Pete planted all of our vegetable garden space to grass and now I don't have the fun of sewing those first sturdy rows of peas, and of boasting how early I did it this year.

But I did do some raking—so much, in fact, that I broke our bamboo rake into a snaggle-toothed wreck.

I was so hungry after it, and because company was coming, I baked a cake.

It is a quick satisfying cake that is easily frosted with an orange juice and sugar-cinnamon topping. One of those cakes that may be made just ahead of dinner time, for it is at its best when served slightly warm. It could be classed with coffee cakes, but calls for baking powder, not yeast.

QUICK ORANGE DESSERT CAKE

One large orange, 1 cup raisins, one-third cup walnuts, 2 cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon each salt and soda, 1 cup sugar, ½ cup soft shortening, ¾ cup milk, 2 unbeaten eggs, ¼ cup milk, one-third cup orange juice (you get this from the whole orange), one-third cup sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ cup chopped walnuts. Grind together the orange pulp and rind (and save the juice for the topping) and the raisins and one-third cup walnuts. Sift together the sifted flour, soda, salt and sugar, and add to them the shortening and ¾ cup milk and beat for 2 minutes at medium speed if using electric beater, or 300 strokes if beaten by hand. Add the unbeaten eggs and ¼ cup milk and beat 2 minutes longer. Fold in the orange-raisin-nut mixture. Pour into well-greased lightly floured pan about 12 x 8 x 2 inches and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 40 or 50 minutes. While cake is still warm drizzle the one-third cup orange juice over it. Mix together the sugar, cinnamon and nuts and sprinkle over cake while it is warm. Serve cake warm with plenty of coffee.

ONE-BOWL JIFFY CAKE

Shortening must be soft and flour must be sifted for this.

Into 1 large bowl put ¼ cup soft shortening, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, ½ cup milk, one-third teaspoon salt, 1½ cups sifted flour, 1½ teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon vanilla, and then beat them until perfectly smooth and light—rotary or electric beater may be used for this if desired. Pour into deep cake pan which has been buttered and floured. Mix together ½ cup grated sweet chocolate or chocolate chips, and ½ cup chopped almonds, and sprinkle them evenly over the batter. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 35 to 40 minutes. Good hot or cold.

✧ ✧ ✧

I was invited to represent the Press Club at a meeting of all the women's clubs in the city, and was quite surprised to see so many figure-conscious gals eat large wedges of Boston Cream Pie with great gusto. It was delicious and icy cold. While it is not a quick cake, it has this virtue—it is at its best when icy cold so can be made well ahead of time.

BOSTON CREAM PIE

CAKE PART: Cream one-third cup shortening and add ½ cup sugar gradually while beating until very light. Then add another ½ cup sugar and 2 eggs and beat well again. Mix together and sift 1¾ cups sifted flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons baking powder, then add them alternately with ½ cup milk and ½ teaspoon vanilla to the first mixture. Beat for ½ minute. Bake in buttered and floured layer cake tins at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 25 minutes. Cool on cake racks.

FILLING: Mix together in top of double boiler 3 tablespoons sugar, and 2 tablepsoons cornstarch and ¼ teaspoon salt. When thoroughly mixed stir into them 1¾ cups hot milk, then stir in 1 beaten egg. Stir this over boiling water until thick and smooth. Remove from heat, add 1 or 2 teaspoons vanilla, and cool. Spread between cool layers of cake. Top with sprinkling of icing sugar or for elegant occasions a layer of whipped cream sweetened very slightly. Chill thoroughly before serving. If topped with whipped cream it could be garnished, of course, with cherry or peach slices.

Churches Are Crowded For Easter

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadians across the country and in Korea attended special church services to mark Easter Sunday.

In some cities such as Ottawa and Toronto, women's Easter bonnets were the only bright spot in otherwise chilly weather, but many other places had warm sunny weather.

Formal church parades were held in Korea. Maj. Gordon Fraser of Saint John, N.B., senior Protestant chaplain of the 25th brigade, officiated at a service at brigade headquarters.

ENJOY DRIVING

From Vancouver to Halifax, Canadians drove out of the cities into the country districts. Vancouver reported a big exodus south to Seattle. Boats, planes and trains were all jammed.

At Ottawa, intermittent showers dampened paraders' enthusiasm. Parliament Buildings drew crowds and more than 1,500 persons visited the Hall of Fame and the Peace Tower.

Six sunrise services were held in the Vancouver area and there were two big Easter egg hunts.

A cold wind swept Toronto. Thousands of girls walked along Sunnyside boardwalk in their latest fashions—but the men kept close to restaurants and hot coffee.

Name 8 Groups To Compete In Dominion Drama Festival

TORONTO (CP)—Eight theatre groups from six provinces were named Sunday to compete in the Dominion Drama Festival for a $1,000 award and several trophies. The festival will be held May 4-9 at Victoria.

Richard MacDonald, executive secretary-treasurer of the festival, announced the following groups and the plays they will present have been chosen by the executive and its adjudicator, John Allen of London:

British Columbia—The Players Club Alumni of the University of British Columbia, "Volpone" by Ben Jonson;

Alberta—Edmonton Studio Theatre, "Othello" by Shakespeare;

Saskatchewan — Regina Little Theatre, "Burning Bright" by John Steinbeck;

Western Ontario—London Little Theatre, "Dark of the Moon" by Richardson and Berney;

Central Ontario — University of Toronto Alumnae Dramatic Club, "Family Reunion" by T. S. Eliot;

Eastern Ontario—Saturday Players of the Ottawa Little Theatre, "The Madwoman of Chaillot" by Giraudoux;

Western Quebec—Le Jeune Scene (Montreal), "Zone," by Dube;

New Brunswick—Les Etudiants de L'Universite Saint Joseph, "Le bourgeois Gentilhomme" by Moliere.

ADJUDICATED 54 PLAYS

Mr. Allen, a script writer with the BBC who since January has toured Canada adjudicating 54 full-length plays put on by groups competing in the regional festivals, chose performances of the eight groups as the best in the country's 13 drama districts.

Mr. MacDonald said the annual prize of $100 for the author of the best play written by a Canadian will go to Marcel Dube of Montreal for "Zone." It is the only play written by a Canadian that will be done in the Dominion finals.

AGAINST ROYALTY

BRADFORD, England (AP)—A little group of outspoken independent Labor party members said in a resolution Sunday that the forthcoming Coronation is a waste of money. The Independent Labor party has no connection with Britain's Labor party. The resolution said "this conference is convinced that a democratic state does not need either King, Queen or Royal Family."

DOROTHY DIX:

Says Boy Needs Wider Experience

DEAR MISS DIX: Sally and I have been going steady for six months and plan to marry when we finish college. She says I have no sense of responsibility. She believes that I should go out with other girls, which will give me experience in making decisions, and also enable me to make sure that Sally is really the one for me. I think she's being childish.

BILL

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: You have Bill's side of the story; here's mine. The main reason why I think he should go with other girls for a while is that he never has gone with anyone but me. I, on the other hand, have been going with boys since seventh grade. I'm sure Bill's the boy for me, but I want him to be sure, too. He needs to be a little more independent and, as of now, he's leaning too much on my judgment.

SALLY

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Seldom do I have an opportunity to evaluate a problem from both sides of the fence. Ages have not been included in this dual epistle, and they might have helped.

GIRL IS RIGHT

Sally is quite right in believing that Bill's social life should be more extended. Too many young people make the mistake of hanging on to the first date for dear life, seemingly afraid that, once that's lost, romance is gone forever. This attitude signifies a lack of self-confidence.

The great hazard of "going steady" is the temptation to depend solely on one source of entertainment and companionship. Complete dependence, during the formative teens, on any one person, is the biggest stumbling block to progressive, mature growth.

Bill must learn to be a responsible young adult before he can adequately tackle the job of husband and father. Sally is quite right in urging him to broaden the scope of his social life, in which he will have to assume more obligations than he cares to tackle now.

DEAR MISS DIX: This problem doesn't concern me personally, but I would like your opinion on it. When a married man and a single woman have an affair, why is the single girl always blamed for breaking up the married man's home? He is just as much to blame as she is. In fact I think more blame should be attached to the man. The girl is single and is privileged to pick her friends, but the man has an obligation to his family.

MRS. A. M. R.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Both parties are equally to blame. A single girl, with a sense of right and wrong, would refuse the man's advances and send him back to his wife. Unfortunately, too many girls want masculine attention and, since they find the field of single men rather limited, they take what they can get—married or not.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband is two years younger than I am. We've been married four years, have a fifteen-month-old baby and are expecting another in a few months. I am 22. My husband admits that he is drinking and won't stop. He borrows money in between pay days, then we have nothing left when it's paid back. He wants me to get a divorce, then return to my own folks. I love him, and he loves me, but he just doesn't want to keep on living with me.

JOYCE

ANSWER: It's appalling to realize that your husband was only 16 when you married him. How could you expect a boy that age to be ready for family responsibilities? Even now, with a growing family, he's still under age. No wonder he's completely bewildered by life. He is certainly too weak a character to be left on his own, yet I doubt if he will withstand the pressure of domesticity at present. If you could get some help from either family, preferably guidance for the boy from his parents, it might help a great deal. You have a big job to do, bringing your family to maturity under present handicaps, but with determination it can be done. Do enlist the aid of your families.

EVENING GOWNS are something special and this fairy-tale number is outstanding. Layer upon layer of fine pink net over taffeta gives skirt fullness beneath a wide, pleated waistline. Adding to the fullness are wing-like sections, each one cut separately and softly shirred. The wings are repeated in the bodice.

6—In Memoriam

BROWN—In loving memory of Leonard Brown, who passed away two years ago, April 3, 1951.
If we could speak with Dad today,
Laugh with him the same old way,
And hear his voice and see him smile,
Then life indeed, would be worth while.
The flowers we place upon his grave,
May wither and decay,
But the love for him who sleeps beneath
Shall never fade away
—Sadly missed by his son George and daughter-in-law Annie.

HAWKINS—In loving memory of Sgt. Alfred W. Hawkins, who was killed in Germany, April 4th, 1945.
Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear;
Too far away for sight or speech
But not too far for thought to reach,
Sweet to remember him who once was here,
And who, though absent, is just as dear.
—Always remembered by mother, father and family.

JOHNSTON —In loving memory of George H. Johnston who passed away one year ago to-day.
We often sit and think of him
When we are alone,
For memory is the only friend
That grief can call its own.
Like ivy on the withered oak,
When all other things decay,
Our love for him will still keep green
And never fade away.
—Sadly missed by wife and family.

VALOIS— In loving memory of Mrs. Ida Emma Valois, who passed away April 6, 1952.
I have only your memory dear mother,
To remember my whole life through,
But the sweetness will linger forever
As I treasure the image of you.
—Always remembered by Leslie and Vivian, Norman and Edna and family.

Three Deaths Baffle Officials Still

AILSA CRAIG (CP) — Their deaths still a mystery, the bodies of Mrs. Alvin Lewis and her two daughters, Shirley May 14, and Mildred Jane, 11, were buried today in the Anglican cemetery at Brinsley, a quiet hamlet four miles north of here.

Meanwhile investigation into the unexplained Good Friday fatalities has slowed almost to a standstill. Police await the results of chemical analysis being taken of the stomach contents of the three victims who are believed to have died from poison in their McGillivray township farm home.

The poison record books of Ailsa Craig and Parkhill drug stores were checked during the week-end as police continued working on the theory that strychnine or some other poison was responsible.

AUTHORITIES BAFFLED

The case has baffled authorities since the 42-year-old wife and her children were discovered Friday by her husband Alvin Lewis, 45.

There were no marks of violence on the fully dressed bodies and asphyxiation by coal gas was ruled out. Neither were there any signs of a meal or food of any kind being eaten.

Coroner Dr. A. R. Routledge, who released the bodies to undertakers Saturday after autopsies in Victoria hospital, London, said it might be some days before a report is returned on chemical tests.

Examinations showed the two girls suffered spasms indicating poisoning, said the coroner, but he cautioned that nothing definite has yet been established. It was found the mother and daughters had drunk soft drinks the afternoon of their death. Authorities were puzzled, however, by a black stain and sweetish odor on the lips of the girls.

Nepheline Sales Show 40% Jump

Sales for the last quarter of 1952 of American Nepheline Ltd., showed nearly 40 per cent increase over the same period in 1951, according to annual report issued recently.

This was accomplished in spite of the decrease in production of glass and other ceramic industries in the United States, one of the important users of Blue Mountain ore products.

A reduction in operating profit was shown on the report and was due to the loss in exchange in the U.S. dollar It cost the firm $25,000 compared to an income of $51,000 from the same source in 1951. Increased labor costs also contributed to the decline. Sales are continuing to increase in 1953, president John S. Dickson reports.

The American Nepheline, with properties at Blue Mountain and final grinding plant and head office at Lakefield, is the only mining venture of its kind in the Americas and is the largest mining operation in Peterborough County.

Car Hits Pole Damage $500

About $500 damage was done to a car driven by Herbert Armstrong, 30, 192 Hunter St. W., when it struck a telephone pole on Highway 28, half a mile south of the intersection of Highway 7A, about 6.30 a.m. Sunday. No one was injured.

Armstrong told police he was driving north when a car appeared over the brow of a hill driving towards him on the wrong side of the road.

He went off the west side of the highway to avoid a collision and travelled 500 feet in the ditch in an attempt to get back on the highway before he struck the pole.

OPP Constables T. H. Armstrong and James Healey investigated.

Taylor To Mediate In Mine Disputes

TORONTO (CP) — Eric Taylor, mediator of the Ontario Labor relations board, has been appointed to head two conciliation boards to review wage disputes at two northern gold mines.

Involved in the dispute with the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) are Broulan Reef Gold Mines, Timmins, and McLeod-Cockshutt Gold Mines, Geraldton.

Mr. Taylor has yet to hand down a conciliation board's decision on a wage dispute at McIntyre mine near Timmins. Action taken on the report may determine the pattern to be followed by employees at the other mines.

In all three disputes the demand of the union is for a substantial wage increase and union security.

DACHSHUND BARROW—"Lucy," a Chicago dachshund whose hind legs were paralyzed when she was struck by a car, makes like a wheelbarrow as her two-year-old master, Frankie Koucky, takes her out for a stroll—a roll, that is. Frankie's dad rigged up the cart.

Recover Stolen Car In Better Condition

MILTON (CP) — Earl Cairns' automobile was stolen early Sunday, driven 20 miles and returned to him in better shape than when it disappeared.

Cairns watched his car being backed from a neighbor's driveway in this town 18 miles north of Hamilton. He called police. They chased the car to back roads near Georgetown where the driver stopped and fled over fields.

Cairns said the car's engine had been vaporizing a lot Saturday but hasn't given trouble since it was recovered.

Service Station Destroyed By Fire

GUELPH (CP)—Fire early today destroyed the Bluebird service station and lunch counter on the Guelph-Kitchener highway. Loss in the fire, of undetermined origin, has been estimated at several thousands of dollars.

It was the first big fire in the Guelph township area annexed by the city last January. Firemen were able to keep the flames away from gasoline tanks in front of the station.

Wanderers Get 1-Point Lead, Edge Portsmouth

LONDON (Reuters) — Wolverhampton Wanderers today defeated Portsmouth 4-1 to emerge from a packed Easter soccer program with a one-point lead at the head of the English League first division.

The Wolves, who scored two victories and a draw in three holiday games, are closely followed by Preston North End, 2-1 victor over Burnley. Preston has 47 points and two games in hand.

Arsenal defeated Chelsea 2-0 and is in third place with 45 points and three games in hand.

Chelsea now has dropped to next-to-last place in the table with 30 points and is dangerously close to relegation to the second division. Derby county, in last place, drew 1-1 with Blackpool and has 27 points.

INCREASES LEAD

Sheffield United, held to a 1-1 tie by Nottingham Forest, increased its lead from five to six points over Easter and now seems certain to win the second division championship. Huddersfield Town was defeated 2-1 by Everton but still holds second place with 49 points.

Bristol Rovers suffered their first home defeat of the season, losing 2-1 to Swindon, but with 59 points still have a seven-point edge over Bristol City, which lost 4-1 to Bournemouth.

Leaders of the Scottish Leagues were idle today but the limited program and did not result in any changes at the top of the tables.

Pinned Under Car

Earl Cook, 27, RR 1, Norwood, was pinned underneath a car he was repairing for five minutes about 5.15 p.m. Saturday.

He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital where X-rays revealed no serious injuries and released Sunday.

Cook was repairing the driveshaft of a car in the back yard of the house of Patrick Bianco, RR 5, Peterborough, near the Kawartha Club, when the vehicle slipped off the wooden blocks on which it had been raised.

The car had to be lifted again by means of jacks before Cook could be released.

OPP Constable Emmet Crough investigated.

2 Masons Given 50-Year Jewels

Two veteran members of Peterborough Lodge AF and AM, W. Bro. Robert G. Cottrell and Bro. William Ackerman, received their 50-year jewels on Friday night. Both were initiated into masonry early in 1903 and W. Bro. Cottrell was master of the lodge in 1923.

The presentations were made by Bro. James Hamilton, another veteran of 50 years in masonry and member of Peterborough Lodge. Although meeting on a holiday, the attendance was the largest since masonry in Peterborough moved into its new temple.

Believe Victim May Be Norwegian Girl

LONDON (Reuters) — Police today announced one of the six victims of London's "moon-mad" sex slayer is believed to be a blonde Norwegian girl who frequented the murder house in 1946.

Scotland Yard "bone specialists" have been carefully studying two skeletons dug up from the backyard of the shabby three-storey house in west London where the killer hid three women's bodies in a closet and a fourth under the floor.

They said the jaw bone of one of the six female victims is of the "Scandinavian racial type." They cabled descriptions of the skeleton to police in Norway, Sweden and Denmark in the hope of getting her identified.

MAY BE FIRST VICTIM

The four rotting bodies found in the rooming house in a dead-end street have been identified, but the victims whose bones were unearthed in the yard remain nameless. Detectives last week reconstructed human skeletons from the piles of assorted bones dug up in the yard.

Police also believe the "Scandinavian" may have been the first victim of the strangler, who apparently killed the women under mental derangement brought on by the full moon.

John Christie, 55, was seized by police last week and charged with the murder of his wife, one of the victims. He lived in a ground floor apartment there.

Moving Rumor Wrong-Peirson

A rumor that Timber Structures of Canada Ltd. were going to abandon their Peterborough plant and move to the west coast was knocked on the head today by Robert M. Peirson, president and general manager of the company.

"There's no truth in it at all," said Mr. Peirson. "It's a fact that we have been slack for a couple of months but by the end of April we expect to be back at full production."

What probably started the rumor, he suggested, was the opening up of a second Timber Structures plant in New Westminster, B.C. It should be operating within three months and will employ 100 to 125 employees.

The B.C. plant will be doing the same type of operation as the Peterborough one: fabricating and assembling laminated timber.

Speakers criticized a headline which read: "Jolliffe tells CCF to change, Liberals go advanced."

BANCROFT (ENS)—Quick thinking and prompt action on the part of ten-year-old Leonard Steel of James St., saved the life of a two-year-old girl when she fell into a water-filled excavation Wednesday afternoon.

Hearing cries, Leonard dashed across to the five-foot-deep hole where he managed to grasp the child, Catherine Dallis by the head and support her until the assistance of an older brother, Dan, could be obtained.

Thunder Bay Mission Described To Church

NORWOOD (ENS)—The ladies of the Baptist Church met with the other members and friends of the congregation Wednesday evening for an open meeting at which Mrs. Greenslade of London, Ont., was guest speaker.

She is the president of the Ladies Division of the Home Mission Board for Ontario West.

The meeting opened with the president, Mrs. Robert Baker, in the chair and Mrs. R. Armitage at the piano. Mrs. Richard Dallman led in prayer followed by scripture reading by Mrs. Robert Baker. Mrs. W. J. Bingham sang a solo "Now I Belong To Jesus." After which Mrs. Bingham introduced the guest speaker.

In her address Mrs. Greenslade stressed the point that our job is to tell the world that "Jesus saves," and the two most important words are "evangelism" and "extension." She gave the history of the first Mission Circle in the Thunder Bay district, and also gave a very interesting description of her trip to the Thunder Bay association at Dryden.

Mrs. Roy Nevins thanked the speaker.

A quartet, consisting of James Dallman, Richard Dallman, Keith Thompson and the Rev. W. J. Bingham, sang two numbers, "There's a Beautiful Land" and "Seeking the Lost."

Mr. Bingham pronounced the benediction, and everyone retired to the basement for a social half hour and lunch.

Car Plunges 75 Feet Into 6 Feet Of Water

BANCROFT (ENS)—A driver had a narrow escape early Good Friday morning when his car plunged down a 45 foot bank into the York River.

Timothy Kenning, 38-year-old employee at Biemorth's sawmill was parking his car near the mill about one mile south of Bancroft on Highway 62.

The car slipped over the edge of the bank and landed on its wheels in the river which is about six feet deep at that point.

Fortunately, the driver's window was down and Kenning was able to clamber to safety.

Dynamite Explosion Kills Farmer

AMHERSTBURG (CP) — Francis Joseph Coyle, 48, was killed instantly Saturday by an accidental dynamite explosion as he was about to blow up the last stump in a 25-acre field he was clearing on the seventh concession of Anderdon township.

Coyle's mangled body was found 66 feet from the lone stump.

Police believe he was in the process of tamping the charge with a shovel. The edge of the shovel apparently came into contact with the cap, causing it to go off. The full force of the blast struck the victim in the face.

Searching Canyon For Escaped Inmate

KERRVILLE, Tex. (AP) — A posse beat the brush-covered sides of a 10-mile country canyon today in a hunt for a half-Indian pistol-packing youth who calls himself "The See More Kid."

The 19-year-old former inmate of the Gatesville, Tex., correctional farm killed three trailing bloodhounds with four pistol shots Saturday night. One dog was hit twice and a fourth dog refused to follow the trail further.

He is wanted in a series of some 40 burglaries that have alarmed ranchers here for nearly a week.

Notes were left in many summer homes challenging officers to find "The See More Kid."

Oshawa Team Wins Pee-Wee Zone Final

LINDSAY (ENS)—Oshawa and Lindsay won the two top prizes in the East Central zone pee-wee tournament here on Saturday. The Motor City team won the "A" section of the schedule and the Lindsay "B" team took the second section with a 3-2 win over Haliburton. Juggling with schedule was necessary, after many teams brought players above the pee-wee age. A section was designated for these teams while those under the age limit played for the "B" cup. Oshawa won the final over Lindsay "A's" 6-5 in the final game. Teams from Ajax, Brooklyn, Haliburton, Port Hope, Belleville, Oshawa, Bowmanville and Lindsay played in the tournament which lasted the whole day at the Lindsay arena. Teams from Peterborough and Bobcaygeon were entered, but withdrew before play started.

CAHA Caught In Middle Of 3 Disputes

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It's easy to see why the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association is called the central governing body of the sport. Whenever two parties get involved in a hockey dispute, it is always in the middle.

Three times in recent weeks the CAHA has tried to solve tangles over player eligibility. The first rhubarb ended with the parent association throwing out its Quebec branch for insubordination. The second was solved amicably Friday in the Maritimes. The third threatens to leave the association with virtually no friends in Western Canada.

Each dispute boiled up over a single player. Ron Attwell, a forward with Montreal junior Canadiens, was the unwitting cause of the Quebec ouster. Erwin Grosse, who switched from Shawinigan Falls, Que., to Charlottetown Islanders of the Maritime Major League, produced the ferment in the east, while junior defenceman Mid Houghton touched off the unpleasantness on the Prairies.

INNOCENT BYSTANDER

Only in the Quebec case was the CAHA one of the original parties to the dispute. When Canadiens brought Attwell from Waterloo of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A loop last season, the CAHA ruled the youngster would have to remain out of hockey for a season before the branch-to-branch transfer became legal.

When Waterloo disbanded last fall, the Canadiens, backed by the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association, declared that Attwell was a free agent and started using him in league games. This is what happened:

1. The CAHA suspended its Quebec branch and declared all its clubs ineligible for Alexander, Allan or Memorial Cup competition unless they made a public declaration of support in the Attwell case.
2. The Quebec Senior Hockey League withdrew from the QAHA.
3. Quebec Citadelles of the Quebec junior division walked out on a final series with the Canadiens, announced their support of the CAHA and were permitted to re-enter the Memorial Cup race.

TRYING TO KEEP GROUP

The CAHA then found itself fighting to keep a group which was walking out.

Grosse had been grabbed by Charlottetown from the last-place Shawinigan Falls Cataracts of the QSHL. The other three clubs in the Maritime major loop protested.

The Islanders claimed Grosse as a replacement for Ted Powers, who had been recalled by the professional Syracuse Warriors of the American Hockey League. The other clubs—Halifax, Sydney and Glace Bay—claimed Powers had remained an Islander beyond the deadline for branch-to-branch transfers.

The CAHA first ruled Grosse out, then ruled him back in, then ruled him out again.

By the time Grosse had lost the best-of-three committee-room series, the Islanders had come within one game of whipping Glace Bay Miners in the league semi-finals. They finished the job without him, but the MMHL decided that Grosse's presence in the earlier games invalidated the series and ordered a two-game replay.

ISLANDERS REFUSE

The Islanders refused, appealed to the CAHA's Maritime branch and were upheld. There was another exchange of communiques:

1. The MMHL ordered a sudden-death game between Charlottetown and Glace Bay. The Islanders refused again.
2. The MMHL ordered Glace Bay and Halifax to start the finals. The Islanders appealed to the Maritime Amateur Hockey Association which threatened to suspend everybody but Charlottetown if the series went on without them.
3. The MMHL, amid unofficial hints that they'd walk out on everybody appealed to the CAHA and started the finals.
4. The CAHA appointed Hanson Dowell of Middleton, N.S., to arbitrate the dispute.

Dowell made everybody happy by ordering a best-of-three series between Charlottetown and Glace Bay, crediting the Islanders with the victory they won without Grosse in the previous semi-final series.

The vindicated Islanders then fought their way into the finals a second time Saturday night by whipping Glace Bay 4-3.

The third battle started when Lethbridge Native Sons found themselves in the Western Canada junior semi-finals with three regular defencemen out with injuries. They got permission from the CAHA to sign Houghton, who had played all season with Calgary Buffaloes.

Their opponents, Flin Flon Bombers, protested, claiming that Houghton was the best junior defenceman in the west and that the Native Sons were able to get along with replacements from their own farm system.

The chorus was joined by St. Boniface Canadiens and Fort William Canadiens, engaged in the other bracket of the western semi-final. Both clubs announced that they wouldn't meet Lethbridge in the finals if Houghton was in their line-up.

The CAHA polled its regional branches on Houghton's status and declared Saturday that he was ineligible. The Native Sons, without Houghton, then downed Flin Flon 7-3 Saturday night, winning their best-of-seven semi-final in four straight games.

Building Jet Fuel Pipeline Headache For RCAF Officer

FONTAINEBLEAU, France (CP) —Establishing a jet fuel pipeline from the ports of Western Europe to part of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization air defence system is a round-the-clock operation for RCAF Sqdn. Ldr. E. J. (Ted) Grosz.

Posted to the petrol, oil and lubrication branch (POL) of the logistics department at Allied Air Forces Central Europe Headquarters, he wrestles by day with factors of fuel storage and traffic.

"At night, every one of my dreams turns out festooned with 12-inch pipelines going in all directions," says the 34-year-old Grosz, who joined the RCAF at 18 after schooling at Kitchener and Brockville, Ont.

Grosz' long experience in RCAF supply and supply planning stands him in good stead on this AAFCE operation, subject of discussions recently by the air chiefs of the six contributing countries.

$50,000,000 ALLOCATION

About $50,000,000 has been allocated for the initial needs of the system, including pipeline, pumping stations, storage, communications and provisions for attaching new pipelines as new airfields develop.

One new operational field a week is expected to be added to AAFCE this year.

Grosz says the system is kept in "close relationship" with the national supply system so that, although supply is the responsibility of the host country, the two systems are tied together in case of emergency.

Canada is one of the six contributing to AAFCE. She was represented at the pipeline discussions by air vice-marshal F. R. Miller, RCAF vice-chief of air staff, representing Air Marshal E. R. Slemon.

House Hopes To Finish By May 8th Or Sooner

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons is aiming to finish business by May 8 or sooner.

Now recessed for a four-day Easter holiday the House returns to work Tuesday and the following week—beginning April 13—will start morning, afternoon and night sittings. The usual half-holiday on Wednesdays also will be eliminated.

The increase in the sitting hours has been imposed by the government toward the end of each of the last few sessions to get work completed before the really hot Ottawa summer weather starts.

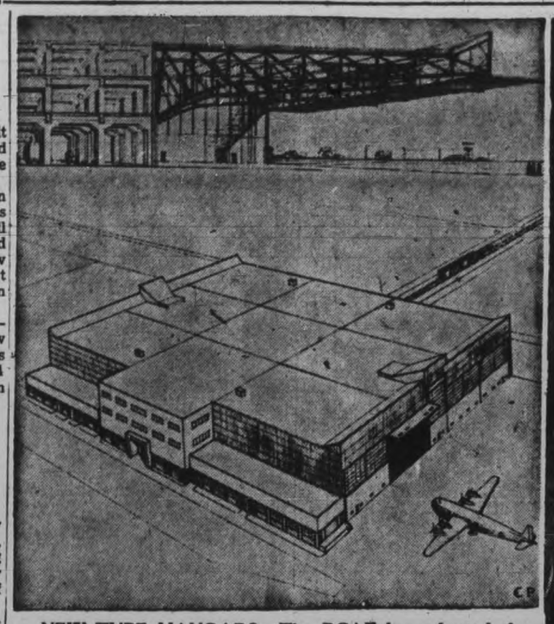
This session is a bit different. It began last November with a view to finishing by the end of April so government leaders and other members could get away for the Coronation in London June 2.

PROGRESS SLOW

Progress has been fairly slow up to now. There were numerous speeches in the Throne speech and budget debates this year, generally considered an election year. Some members commented that it seemed the election campaign had already begun—on the floor of the Commons.

A total of 112 bills were given royal assent last week. This sounds like a lot of work since they all went through the Commons and the Senate. But there were few government measures and the list included 96 bills of divorce on which there is little debate

The biggest sessional chore—going through the estimates of how the government plans to spend its $4,500,000,000 budget in the 1953-54 fiscal year—has not yet been touched.



Police Lay Charge For Careless Driving

TORONTO (CP)—Police Sunday night charged John D. Wilson, 24, of Toronto with careless driving after his car collided with another driven by Richard Price, 17, of Dunnville.

Price and four passengers, Robert Pyle, 16, Thomas Robby, 16, James Hines, 18, and Hassan Hee, 32, all of Dunnville, were treated for minor injuries.

Police said Wilson failed to stop at an intersection and collided with the Price car.

NEW TYPE HANGARS—The RCAF has adopted the design of a unique new aircraft hangar with a cantilevered roof spanning out on both sides of a central concrete workshop, permitting maintenance and repair of the largest planes now flying. R. G. Johnson, head of Defence Construction Ltd., recently told a meeting of the Canadian Construction Association the hangars will be built at Greenwood, N.S., Uplands, Ont., Winnipeg, Namao and Cold Lake, Alta., and Comox, B.C. When completed they will be the largest hangars ever built. Each hangar will cost between $3,500,000 and $4,000,000, depending on location and site conditions.

IN NATO ARMY—In the field the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade, stationed in Western Germany, is really hot. Out on schemes the men who form Canada's army contribution to the defence of Western Europe are cheerful, willing, hard-working and zestful. Here, two members of the support company (Carleton and York) adjust the sight of their three-inch mortar. At left is Pte. Brian Westrup, Glace Bay, N.S., and with him is Pte. Unreality Subject Of Lesson Sermon

"UNREALITY" was the subject of the lesson sermon which was read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world including FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, PETERBOROUGH on Sunday. The Golden Text was "Thou art my lamp, O Lord: and the Lord will lighten my darkness." (2nd Samuel 22:29)

Selections from the Bible included the following from Ecclesiastes 2:4, 10, 11,: "I made me great works; I builded me houses; I planted me vineyards; And whatsoever mine eyes desired, I kept not from them, I withheld not my heart from any joy; for my heart rejoiced in all my labour: and this was my portion of all my labour. Then I looked on all the works that my hands had wrought, and on the labour that I had laboured to do: and, behold, all was vanity and vexation of spirit, and there was no profit under the sun."

Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook, included the following, "The physical senses and Science have ever been antagonistic, and they will so continue, till the testimony of the physical senses yields entirely to Christian Science."

The Movie Column

Hollywood Can't Figure Out Oscar Winner

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The movie town can't figure out Gloria Grahame, the provocative blonde who won an Academy Award last month.

The gal has been in pictures for almost 10 years, yet few people claim they really know her. Maybe that's why she's such a good actress.

But her unorthodox ways upset many people in Hollywood. These people expect Gloria to conform to the modes and methods of the movie town. She refuses. Three studios have let her go, and some of the partings have not been friendly.

Now she is taking the rap from certain columnists who accuse her of having become afflicted with oscaritis. (A seasonal disease caused by award poisoning and resulting in swelling of the head and the sense of proportion.) The carping is caused by Gloria's unconcern over cashing in on the publicity benefits of her Academy Award.

I don't think Gloria has it. She acts just the same as she did before she won the big prize—unpredictable, somewhat vague, but still fascinating.

THRILLED WITH OSCAR

Was she thrilled about winning the Oscar?

"Sure, who wouldn't be?"

Gloria has had an amazing career during her span in Hollywood. A Los Angeles girl, she was first signed by MGM.

"When my option came up, they offered to let me stay at my same salary, $500," she recalled. "Dore Schary offered me $750 at RKO, so I took it. Six months later, Schary left RKO."

Her experience at RKO started out happily. Schary handed her a brief but meaty part in "Crossfire," first of the films on anti-semitism. It won her her first Academy nomination.

She became unhappy after Howard Hughes took over the studio. She once complained that she had been offered second leads to Ava Gardner and Laraine Day and leads in B pictures.

JOINS PARAMOUNT

She soon parted with RKO and landed a contract at Paramount. Her only role was as the elephant girl in "The Greatest Show on Earth."

She said they later dropped her and she turned free-lance. And has since prospered.

Gloria takes care with her characterizations, as witness her award-winning role as the southern belle in "The Bad and the Beautiful." She had never lived in the south.

"So I studied a couple of hours every day for two weeks with Joe Adams, the Negro disc jockey in Santa Monica," she said. "I took a lot of care with it, because I knew the ladies of Virginia speak excellent English with only a slight drawl."

Wife Found Dead

TORONTO (CP)—The body of Mrs. Vern Philps, 35, burned to death in the bedroom of her Long Branch home, was discovered Sunday by her husband on returning from a two-day business trip An autopsy revealed the woman died Friday of asphyxiation. It is believed a smouldering cigaret butt ignited the bed. The fire burned itself out after gutting the bed and burning a hole in the floor The Philps, who have no children, moved here from Strathroy.

Canadian Force In Germany Looks Smart On Parade

After 2½ years as Canadian Press staff correspondent with the 25th Canadian brigade in Korea, Bill Boss has spent three weeks in Germany with another brigade of Canadian troops. In this story, one of a series, he describes the calibre of the force in Germany and describes its training routine.

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HANNOVER, Germany (CP)—In the field, the 27th Canadian brigade is really hot.

Out on schemes, the men who form Canada's army contribution to the defence of Western Europe are cheerful, willing, hard-working and zestful.

In Hannover their smart, precision and turn-out on the parade square would put to shame the Buckingham Palace guard I saw in London.

The Canadians I watched in several training areas are the equal of or better than troops I've seen anywhere. They are making full use of training areas better than any in Canada.

GOOD TRAINING AREA

Schwarmstedt, near Hannover, is a thickly-wooded bivouac area recalling parts of the military camps at Petawawa and Camp Borden, Ont. It isn't large enough for extended exercises but is excellent for toughening up, getting the men hardened to outdoor living. A main advantage is that it is only 15 miles from Hannover.

I watched a company from the rifle battalion carry out defence tactics. Soldiers dug slit trenches with a will that recent newcomers to Korea don't show.

Grinning, Rifleman George Green of Halifax said he likes Germany fine "when we're out like this" but at other times "there's not enough to do."

Rifleman Ed Bellefueille of Toronto said Germany would be okay if there were more Canadian entertainment but Green insisted: "Give us more schemes. When we're out, we're okay."

Cpl. Adrien Breault of Ottawa said such schemes break the monotony of the training which otherwise goes on in the same old cycle and becomes boring.

The 79th Field Regiment of the Royal Canadian Artillery and C-squadron of the Royal Canadian Dragoons are stationed at Hohne. They use training grounds where Gen. Heinz Guderian, before and during the war, perfected his German panzer formations. Infantry companies go up from Hannover to accustom themselves to working with tanks.

BALTIC CAMP

A five-hour drive from Hannover is Putlos camp, on the Baltic, which the brigade shares with other units in its British corps. Battalions go up for 10 days at a time. Putlos is essentially a live-firing range where every weapon used by an infantry battalion can be employed.

I visited Putlos while the 1st Canadian infantry battalion, commanded by Lt.-Col. G.M.C. Sprung of Ottawa, was in training and again was impressed by the verve shown in platoon tactics.

Maj. William Leonard of Toronto, the brigade major, said:

"Besides giving the men a break from Hannover, it shows them the need to learn more about their basic weapons. Putlos keeps us in touch with our deficiencies."

HIGH PRAISE

Defence Minister Claxton and Brig. Geoffrey Walsh, the former brigade commander, have said the brigade is the "best trained and hardest hitting formation in the NATO armies." Officers here say such statements should not be made by Canadians.

"You can't tell soldiers that and expect them to accept a rigorous routine," one senior officer said. "They ask: 'If we're that good what's the hurry?' They're good, but not htat good."

As it is, one commander said his unit and most others have only 95 of their 380-odd infantrymen qualified first class. Three months ago, at least one company had no serviceable machine-gun in its stores.

Next month the brigade moves to the Soltau area, north of Hannover in the Lueneberg Heath training grounds. Training will reach the company and battalion level in May. In June the brigade will be represented at London Coronation ceremonies. June will see the battalions run through Putlos again. In July they will be in Claustel-Zellerfeld, a similar firing range in hilly country; and in August at Sennelager in the Ruhr on brigade exercises with live ammunition.

Man Saves Boy 6 From Drowning

SIMCOE (CP) — A 26-year-old Simcoe man received warm thanks Sunday from the parents of a six-year-old boy he saved from drowning Thursday in the Lynn river in eight feet of water.

Bill Ryerse was fishing below the Quance dam in Simcoe when he noticed a boy floating in the current. Ryerse dove in with all his clothes on, got hold of the boy and swam with him to safety.

The youngster was Johnny Easton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Easton of Simcoe. His only injuries were a bump on the head, bruises and a scraped side.

Ryerse, a Boy Scout here for the last 14 years, said nothing about the incident at the time.

Anthony Eden Needs Surgery Cancels Trip

LONDON (Reuters) — Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden will enter hospital for a gall-bladder operation this week, it was announced Sunday.

The Foreign Office said he has had to cancel a visit to Turkey, Greece and Italy. He was due to leave today.

His doctors said Eden is suffering from chronic cholecystitis (inflammation of the gall bladder).

Eden, 55, came down with a gastric chill at the end of March and had to cancel several appointments. His next engagement, if he is fit, is the April 23 Paris meeting of the NATO Council.

Since he was taken ill, the foreign secretary has been confined to his London home, where he has conducted many of his duties.

The Foreign Office said no decision has been made as to when or where the operation would take place, nor who would take charge of the Foreign Office. It may be Selwyn Lloyd, the minister of state.

"Switzerland"

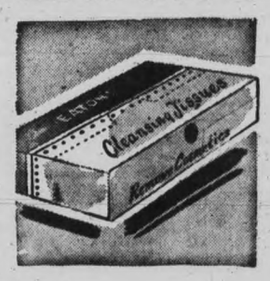
RAY EGGERSTED

RAY EGGERSTED'S cultural, artistic achievements have won recognition from the National Geographic Society and the National Education Association.

"Switzerland" is a film of one of the world's most unique little countries. Although small in size, it has attracted visitors from the four corners of the globe. We will thrill to its traditional customs, picturesque architecture, colorful festivals, with dancing and carnivals. Here is a land with many arts and skilled crafts — lace making — wood and ivory carving — watch making.

There will be visits to Basel, Switzerland's Gateway and only seaport with 2,000,000 tons of imports a year — Stone-walled vineyards in Vaud, rising in graceful terraces beside lovely Lake Geneva — Neuchatel — centre of watchmaking — the modern town of Zurich and laces of ancient St. Gallens.

Thrills and breathtaking sights are at Valais, the highest Alps and Switzerland's richest fruit growing district. St. Moritz, the Jungfrau—Monarch of the Alps, the snow capped Matterhorn—soaring 14,780 feet. Historic Furka Pass and the great Rhone Glacier.



Finally we will arrive at Berne, the Swiss capital, retaining its medieval appearance, ornamental fountains, historic clock and zoological gardens. Picturesque Alpine Chalets, flowers and summer villas flank Europe's deepest Lake Maggiore on the Italian border. This is a fitting, close to a most colourful, spectacular evening spent with the remarkable and talented Ray Eggersted.

Reds Agree To Exchange All Sick, Wounded PoWs

Russia Asks U.S. To Drop Demand For Germ Inquiry

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Russia appealed to the U.S. today to drop its demand for an impartial investigation of Communist charges that American troops waged germ warfare in Korea. Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin told the UN's 60-national political committee there is "no need for the committee to consider the details" of the charges now. He urged, instead, that the U.S. ratify the Geneva Convention against bacteriological warfare and indicated that such action would close the incident so far as Russia is concerned.

Zorin began his speech by saying the Soviet government was "fully alive to the circumstances" during which the debate on an American demand for the investigation of the charges was taking place. This was considered by UN observers to be a reference to truce negotiations progressing at Panmunjom.

He expressed "surprise tinged with regret" that the U. S. had reacted so vigorously against the charges, briefly reviewed Red "evidence" in one of the shortest speeches the Soviet Union has ever made on a major international issue and then called for an end to committee discussion of the subject.

NOT NEGATIVE ANSWER

Zorin added, however, that "a negative answer or an evasive one" from the U. S. "will not satisfy us."

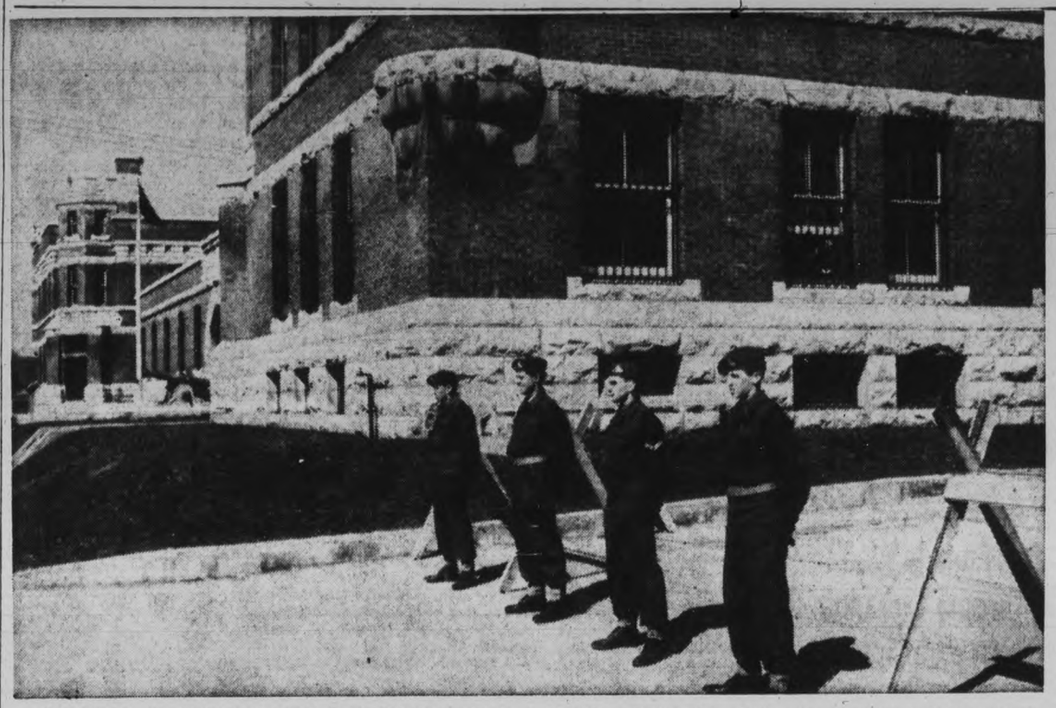
"If the U.S. presses its proposal," Zorin said, "the Soviet Union cannot agree" to such an impartial investigation since the U. S. has opposed the presence here of Communist Chinese and North Korean authorities to present their side of the case.

Zorin said agreement by the U. S. to ratify the Geneva agreement "would constitute the best proof of its intentions to ban bacteriological warfare and its intention not to use it in the future." Russia is one of the 42 countries which have ratified the agreement.

NOT ENFORCIBLE

The U. S. has said previously that it has no intention of ratifying the convention because it is not enforcible.

was not in any way withdrawing



Zorin indicated the Soviet Union the charges, but would not press them if the U. S. would agree to Soviet terms.

The Soviet delegate spoke shortly after representatives of Greece and Peru called on the Communist world to withdraw the charges to prove the sincerity of recent Red "peace manoeuvres."

David Johnson, head of Canada's permanent UN delegation, said he could not believe that if there were anything at all to the charges the Soviet group should have so consistently refused an investigation.

"In the resolution we are co-sponsoring we are again asking for an impartial investigation," added Mr. Johnson. "Will co-operation be denied once again?"

Canada and all the other countries with troops in Korea are co-sponsoring the U. S. resolution calling for an impartial commission.

ON GUARD—Members of the 50th HAA Regiment guarded the entrances to the armouries today and barbed wire closed off the property to trespassers. The scene was similar to those during wartime. The area was actually closed off to protect the thoroughfare rights. Only people and vehicles going to the armouries were allowed through the guard which patrolled the area for 24 hours, beginning Monday at 6 p.m. Gunner R. A. Corp, Gunner Hegadoren, Bdr. W. R. Quick Settlement Expected On Minor Divisions

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—The United Nations command and the Communists agreed today to exchange all sick and wounded prisoners of the Korean war who want to go home. Actual mechanics of the exchange still must be worked out. But these were only minor disagreements, and Allied officers said they anticipated no trouble reaching quick settlement. The Reds said they would report within the next day or so how many disabled prisoners they would deliver to Panmunjom for the exchange, which could start within a week after plans are completed. Civilian war internees will be included.

The senior Allied liaison officer, Rear-Admiral John Daniel, said the Communist attitude "is very favorable at this point," and developments were "encouraging."

NEGOTIATIONS SMOOTH

Negotiations at Panmunjom went so smoothly observers here voiced hope the talks will pave the way to a Korean truce. Total talking time was 3 minutes.

Maj.-Gen. Lee Sang Cho, head of the Red liaison team, said the nine-point plan submitted by Daniel Monday should be the basis for the swap. He said the Communists agree to roughly half of it, including all key points.

The Communists agreed to the following points:

1. Exchange of all sick and wounded prisoners including those with minor disabilities. This means direct repatriation to their homelands of all prisoners, including those who, under the Geneva Convention of 1949, would otherwise be sent to neutral countries.

2. Panmunjom will be the exchange point.

3. Both sides will report the number of sick and wounded to be traded, and break the figure down by nationality.

4. The prisoners to be exchanged will be delivered to Panmunjom in groups of 25.

5. Both sides will present rosters giving name, rank and nationality when delivering prisoners, and sign receipts for those delivered.

The Reds said they would submit changes and additions to other points of the plan.

Student Vandals Wrecking Resort Town

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) Police grappled with a serious problem of vandalism today in this resort city swarming with about 15,000 college students on spring vacation.

Coconuts have been hurled through hotel lobby and automobile windows. Dead fish, including a six-foot hammerhead shark, have been tossed into swimming pools.

A group of 'teen-agers stole a city bus and abandoned it after a drive. A city water tower was smeared with paint. Glass cases on the beach displaying large mounted fish have been smashed and the fish thrown into the streets.

About a dozen young persons have been locked up. More than a score have been fined.

Groups of nude boys have been arrested on the beaches in the early morning hours. Three of these picked up last week were fined $10 each for indecent exposure.

The shocker of the holiday season came at 1.30 a. m. Easter Sunday when a student's automobile careened off Ocean boulevard, sideswiped five parked cars and struck two strolling couples.

When the car finally rolled over and came to a stop, two students were dead and three were injured.

Korean Peace Won't Bring Canadians Home

OTTAWA (CP)—Even in the event of peace, some Canadian troops likely will have to remain in Korea, a high defence source said today.

But at the moment it was impossible to anticipate just how many would be needed, he added. The number of troops required would have to be worked out by all 16 United Nations countries which have forces there.

The informant was commenting on a Washington dispatch quoting President Eisenhower as saying that even if peace comes in Korea "our men and those of our allies will have to stay in that region quite a while."

Canada's contributions to Korea include the 6,000-man 25th infantry brigade and a three-destroyer naval force.

"There is no peace yet in that area and it is difficult to anticipate what the military requirements will be in the event of armistice," the Canadian informant said.

"We likely will have to keep some of our troops there but the number that will remain will have to be worked out on a pro-rata basis with the other countries having forces in Korea."

Car Plunges In River, 3 Die

TARA (CP) — Three Chesley young men were killed early today when their car crashed into the cement post of a bridge and plunged into the Sauble river a mile south of Tara.

The men were identified as: John O'Reilly, 19; Joe Strba and Clark Thomson.

The car, submerged in 12 feet of water, was found at 6.55 a. m. by Donald Coleman, a farmer, but the accident is believed to have occurred several hours earlier. A watch carried by one of the men was stopped at 1.45 a. m.

The three men had been smelt fishing in the Tara district. They were travelling south on their way home, when the vehicle struck the cement post of a small bridge with terrific force and then travelled down a steep bank into the river.

All three men were badly injured or killed in the initial crash, it is believed.

RoKs Staging Counter-Attack

SEOUL (AP) — Republic of Korea infantry today hurled a smashing counter-attack against Chinese Reds who drove the RoKs from a central front outpost two days ago.

The battle was still raging at nightfall, an 8th army briefing officer said.

South Korean infantry attacked on the central front this morning, knocked the Communists off the outpost in a bitter two-hour and 10-minute battle. But the Reds attacked again later in the morning and the RoKs were forced to pull back.

Infantry of the third RoK division picked up reinforcements and hit the outpost again in mid-afternoon. Size of the attack was not announced for security reasons.

Runaway Oil Truck Sets Village Afire

LAMBOURN, Eng (AP) — A runaway oil tanker truck roared wildly down a steep hill into this sleepy Berkshire village today and crashed in flames, killing only the driver.

The shattering explosion set three thatch-roofed cottages afire and sent the occupants scurrying for safety out back doors and windows.

Police sealed off the centre of the village while firemen fought the blaze with foam and water.

The driver courageously stuck to the wheel trying to halt the truck loaded with 1,500 gallons of inflammable jet fuel. His helper jumped to safety.

With its horn blaring a warning, the truck careened down the village main street, crashed into two shops, overturned and exploded into a geyser of flames and thick black smoke.

Man Roughed Up By Crowd, Then Dies

MANCHESTER, Eng. (Reuters) A man accused of indecency died after a crowd dragged him from his bicycle, roughed him up and marched him to a police station, police said Monday.

The story of the mob attack was revealed in court here when police were granted permission to withdraw a charge of indecent behavior against Eric Fraser. An inquest will be held to establish how he died.

Fraser, 40, collapsed soon after the crowd brought him to the police station on Saturday.

Infuriated parents, some of whom alleged Fraser pestered their children, formed a procession through the streets to the police station. Fraser trudged, bruised, in front. Children were in the crowd.

Fraser was taken unconscious to hospital after being charged with indecency with intent to insult females. A hospital spokesman said he "looked as though a steam roller had gone over him."

Dresden Pilot Damages Red Aircraft

SEOUL, Korea (CP) — Flt. Lt. Grant H. Nichols of Dresden, Ont., RCAF exchange pilot flying with the U. S. Air Force in Korea, was credited with damaging a Communist MiG-15 over North Korea today.

Nichols, flying a Sabre jet, was among pilots credited with shooting down two MiGs, probably destroying one and damaging seven.

The total score of RCAF exchange pilots in Korea now is eight destroyed, one probable and six damaged.

The last RCAF pilot to make a score in Korea was Sqdn. Ldr. James D. Lindsay of Arnprior, Ont., whose shooting down of his second MiG jet was confirmed last Dec. 2.

There are four RCAF exchange pilots in Korea now. Another leaves this month for Korea. RCAF pilots serve on the exchange basis for six months or until they complete 50 missions. A total of 19 RCAF pilots have been posted to Korea on exchange duty.

Flt.-Lt. Nichols, 27, is a native of Sarnia, who joined the RCAF in 1943 and trained as an air gunner. He was discharged on graduation because of the end of the war, but rejoined the service in September, 1947, and trained as a pilot

He was the outstanding cadet of his course at Centralia, where he graduated in August, 1948. Later he took an operational training course at St. Hubert, Que., and then served with No. 410 sabre jet squadron at North Luffenham, Eng. He left for Korea last Jan. 15.

Los Angeles Flyer Strikes Freight Train

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The Union Pacific's Los Angeles Limited hit a freight train at a siding 62 miles south of here today, derailing the lead diesel unit of the passenger train.

Two dining car waiters were bruised but there were no other injuries, the railroad said.

Adenauer Begins Conference

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany today opens three days of talks which will have an important bearing on Western plans for defence against Communist aggression. Vice-President Richard Nixon, State Secretary Charles Wilson and Treasury Secretary George Humphrey head a United States delegation to welcome the 77-year-old chancellor on arrival in President Eisenhower's personal plane. Topping the informal list of problems for the meetings starting at noon with the President and top officials is the European Army treaty and Germany's dispute with France over the industrial Saar basin.

American officials made it plain, however, the U.S. has no intention of pressuring Adenauer to agree to France's terms for agreement on the Saar. This border area rich in coal and iron, now is closely tied in with France's economy. Its national affiliation is unsettled.

WANTS ASSURANCES

Premier Rene Mayer of France insisted during talks with Eisenhower here 10 days ago that France must get assurances on the future of the Saar before she will approve membership in the proposed six-country European Army.

Secretary Dulles will make it clear, officials said today, that the U.S. government would like to see Germany and France settle the Saar controversy themselves. But officials said he will not press Adenauer too vigorously on this because of a belief that such negotiations at this time might fail, deadlocking the European Army drive.

OTHER KEY PROBLEMS

Other key problems to be discussed with Adenauer include: Possible plans for increased U.S aid to help feed, house and transport a flood of refugees now streaming into Berlin; Germany's views on western relations with Russia; the U.S. drive to tighten East-West trade controls, especially commerce to Red China; and Germany's objections to a military budget of approximately $2,500,000,000 which the Atlantic Pact powers have assigned as her contribution to western defence during the next year.

Adenauer plans to leave Friday for a nine-day tour which will take him to Ottawa and through the midwestern United States to the west coast.

Badly Wounded U.S. Marine Freed By Chinese Troops

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP)—A badly-wounded marine was rescued from no-man's-land early today after Chinese Communist soldiers carried him part way to United Nations lines and called for United States marines to come and get him. Four U.S. marines and a chaplain picked up the wounded Puerto Rican while a squad of Communist soldier stood nearby. The wounded man is Pte. Hector Echabarria of Santurce, Puerto Rico.

The Chinese left him on a stretcher, lying in a Korean cemetery. He was clad only in long winter underwear and a sweater.

Then a Communist loudspeaker boomed out:

"Attention all officers and men: "We have one of your wounded. "Send two men as soon as possible forward of your left flank position. Everything was done for him that was possible. We will allow you to come as far as the defilade area without firing on you."

A marine squad started immediately. They called to the wounded man and asked in Spanish if he could walk.

The marine, although hit in the back and stomach, waved and started toward the Allied lines.

He collapsed twice on the way to where the marines had paused along the barbed-wire line.

Father Robert Drengarener, the Roman Catholic chaplain, called to the marine to pray. As he approached the wire, the priest gave him absolution.

The first time the wounded marine collapsed Lieut. Kenneth Clifford yelled "Oh hell! Let's go get him!" and leaped the barbed wire with his men.

The Chinese covered the graveyard area but did not fire.

The wounded marine clutched his rosary as he staggered toward the line. Rescuers said his wound had been treated and bandaged, and Red propaganda leaflets calling for peace had been stuffed inside his sweater.

Building Falls Fear One Killed

MONTREAL (CP) — An elderly man was believed killed early today when a four-storey building collapsed in a heap of rubble in downtown Montreal.

Neighbors said they believed an early night watchman was trapped in the building, which housed James Weir Paints Ltd. They said they did not know his name but that he had been seen shortly before the incident.

Charles Rousseau and Albert Duquette, employees of the city's roads department, on their way to work at 6 a.m., they said were walking on the opposite side of the street when they heard "rumblings." Looking up, they saw cracks streaking down the front of the building, located at the corner of Dorchester and Bleury streets.

"Suddenly the entire face of the building started to sway and we raced for safety with bricks showering down on us," they said.

Fire epartment officials said there had been no explosion and no fire.

Dope Syndicate Plans Smashed

DETROIT (CP) — Police said Monday the recent arrest of four alleged dope ring agents and the confiscation of heroin valued at $275,000 has cracked an attempt by a New York dope syndicate to move into the Detroit area.

An unidentified man was arrested last Wednesday soon after he arrived here from New York. After being charged with having six ounces of heroin in his possession, he agreed to co-operate with police in rounding up others connected with the syndicate.

He was sent back to New York, under surveillance of federal agents, where he met with two other men and accepted a package from them. The three returned to Detroit Saturday and were arrested. The other two men, Alfred Cerame, 28, and John Bovio, 29, were charged with violating the federal narcotics law.

Later, Frank Mojeda, 27, described by police as kingpin of the syndicate, was arrested in New York.

Submarine Toll Now Reaches 99

ISTANBUL (Reuters)—The death toll in Turkey's week-end submarine disaster rose to 99 today—equal to that of the worst previous peacetime naval disaster, the tragedy of the British submarine Thetis in 1939.

Reported figures for the loss of life in the 1,526-ton Dumlupinar, which went down in the Dardanelles on Saturday after a collision with the 4,000-ton Swedish freighter Naboland, have fluctuated.

But two deaths in hospital brought the final figure to 99.

The submarine broke in halves and sank in 220 feet of water. Five men were on deck at the time of the collision and only three of them now survive.

Ireland's Oldest Ship Founders Off East Coast

ROSSLARE HARBOR, Republic of Ireland (AP) — Ireland's oldest sailing ship, the 94-year-old two-masted schooner Susan Vittery, foundered and sank off the southeast Irish coast Monday night after a dramatic fight to save her. No lives were lost.

Her Norwegian captain, Arne Drengsrund, and his crew worked valiantly for hours before the old vessel made its death plunge.

Drengsrund was the last man to leave the sinking ship.

The Susan Vittery sprang a leak near the Saltee islands She was bound from Dungarvan to Dublin in ballast.

All hands manned the pumps but sea water put the engines out of action.

Two sails were then hoisted and the ship made for Rosslare but headwinds held her back.

The weary crew took turns at the pumps but when the Susan Vittery was two miles from Rosslare the holds were full of water.

"I ordered the only lifeboat to be lowered and sent the crew into it," said Drengsrund. "The schooner kept moving and I stayed at the wheel hoping to steer her into Rosslare.

"Suddenly the crew shouted that she was going and I leaped to safety in the lifeboat.

"We were close to the shore but a strong northwest wind swept us 15 miles out to sea.

"When the tide turned we were swept back towards the Irish coast and after eight hours in the boat we landed on Tuskar rock, seven miles off the coast."

Suggests Stiffening Of Seaway Attitude

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Alexander Wiley (Rep. Wis.) meets today with President Eisenhower to urge a stiffening of the administration's attitude towards the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Wiley, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, has made no secret that he is dissatisfied with the administration's stand on the controversial seaway proposal.

A Wiley aide said the senator wants Eisenhower to take a more positive position in favor of U. S. participation in the project.

The president said March 19 that if the project is an economic necessity for the United States, it will be built eventually regardless of what he thinks about it.

Boy 5, Touches 13,000-Volt Line

KITCHENER (CP) — Five-year-old Wayne Binder is in critical condition in hospital here after touching a 13,000-volt power line here today.

The child lost two fingers and part of the palm of his left hand, the big toe and part of the sole of his left foot and suffered "blow-out" spots on his body where the current made its exit.

Police said the boy climbed over a fence surrounding a small transformer station and crawled on top of a transformer where he could reach the line.

Firemen using asbestos gloves removed him from the line.

Cmdr. G. C. Edwards, air operations chief at the base, said "it was good flying by both pilots that they were able to bring their planes back to the base."

The accident occurred about eight miles south of the base, situated across the harbor at Eastern Passage. There was no immediate explanation of its cause.

Scale High Mountain To Aid Sick Climber

DURBAN, South Africa (AP)—Rescue parties were toiling up a 10,000-foot mountain in Natal's Drakensberg range today to the rescue of a young Durban climber lying seriously ill and delirious with suspected pneumonia atop the exposed peak.

By his side through Monday night's biting cold was a young woman who set out with him and a companion on Good Friday to climb "The Rockeries," in the Cathedral peak area.

The stricken climber is Derek Schaeffer of Durban. The girl with him is Gillian Bettie, 24.

News of Schaeffer's plight was brought to the Cathedral peak hostel by the leader of the little expedition, Martin Winter.

Can't Rush Things

Peace Won't Free Troops—Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today that even if peace comes in Korea "our men and those of our allies will have to stay in that region quite a while."

Eisenhower made the statement in a brief informal talk at the annual meeting of the United Defense Fund, Inc., at the Statler hotel.

His suggestion that peace seems a possibility came atop an earlier White House description of the United Nations-Communist agreement on repatriation of sick and wounded prisoners as "encouraging."

The United Defence Fund feels that if a Korean armistice is arranged, there will be possibly an even greater need for such programs as the USO in Korea.

Then he added that even if peace comes in Korea, "our men and those of our allies will have to stay in that region quite a while."

The President added that a post-armistice period would be "a trying period."

Speaking just a few hours after announcement in Korea that the Allies and Communists had agreed on a plan for exchange of sick and wounded prisoners of war, Eisenhower said "every right-thinking individual utters the prayers to his God every night" for peace.

Canada Intends To Keep Up Defence–Martin

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—"Canada has taken the line of caution and before it pulls down its arms or is caught unguarded, it will consider from every angle the peace proposals now eminating from Moscow since the death of Stalin," Hon. Paul Martin, Minister of National health and welfare, said Monday.

Addressing the Western Ontario Liberal Association, he said "depth of defence is the best insurance against a third global war," as he defended expenditures of the Liberal government against opposition criticism in the light of new reports from the seat of communism.

"We want to make sure that the Reds are sincere before we slacken our defence efforts," said the minister.

DOESN'T KNOW DATE

"I'm not here to tell you when the election is going to be held because I really don't know," he said.

"But when it does come it will be led by its present leader and the next prime minister of this great country."

The Liberal party's record in government is a record of prosperity, Trade Minister Howe said Monday night, pointing to its past achievements as the best platform the party can have as it prepares for another federal election campaign.

Although election date hasn't been set, the campaign actually started when Prime Minister St. Laurent announced a vote would be held this year, Mr. Howe told a dinner winding up the meeting.

"I think it's unwise to make too specific promises," he said. "No one can see the future. The best guide to the future, however, is the past: what have we been doing; I think the Liberal government has stood the test on almost any subject you can name."

Farquhar Oliver, leader of the Liberal opposition in the Ontario legislature, said the alternative to a Liberal government in Ottawa is "too awful to contemplate too seriously."

Merger Talks Start Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The AFL and CIO start new talks today, the first in almost three years, aimed at merging their forces into a giant federation to represent more than 12,000,000 workers.

The unity talks get under way in an atmosphere hardly encouraging success. Neither George Meany, AFL president, nor Walter Reuther, CIO leader, has predicted merger anytime soon.

Meany has said the odds are about 8 to 5 against a merger; Reuther said Monday the chances are "very good" if both organizations negotiate on an "honorable, constructive and intelligent basis."

At the CIO auto workers convention last month, Reuther issued a statement setting up four conditions he said the AFL must satisfy before unity could be seriously considered:

(1) The AFL must eliminate racketeering wherever it is found in any AFL unions; (2) It must accept the concept of industrial unionism on which the CIO was founded; (3) It must enforce a policy of no racial or other discrimination within any of its unions; and (4) It must agree to some kind of machinery to eliminate jurisdictional disputes—disputes in which two unions seek to organize the same workers.

Coming just two weeks before unity talks were to get under way, Reuther's statement was not appreciated by the AFL.

Commons Tackles Study Of Estimates

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons, fresh from a brief Easter holiday, goes back to work today, faced with an imminent rendezvous with the estimates.

The estimates this year reflect the cabinet's decision that it will take $4,400,000,000 to run the affairs of the country during the fiscal year which began April 1.

The Commons annually has the privilege and duty of deciding whether the government really needs all the money its estimates of expenditures say it does. Its decision transcends that of the cabinet but the tradition is that estimates hardly ever get changed for the simple reason that the cabinet has a party majority to back up its views.

So, no matter what happens in the weeks ahead in Parliament, it's a safe bet that Canadians are going to get stuck with a $4,400,000,000 bill for financing the affairs of state for this fiscal year, for defence, for family allowances, for the wharf in the local harbor, for civil service salaries and many other things.

Russians Fire Key Official Over Doctors

MOSCOW (AP) — The Russians have fired a key Communist party official for failing to detect the falsity of the "doctors' plot" charges, Pravda announced today. He is Semyon Ignatiev, a member of the party's five-man secretariat.

The official party newspaper said Ignatiev, who was given the secretariat post only last month, had been "released from his duties." Pravda disclosed Monday that he had headed the security ministry during the time when the charges against the 15 doctors were being prepared.

(Western observers speculated that the attack on such a ranking leader might indicate a coming purge within the Kremlin.)

The government announced last Friday that the doctors had been released after an investigation proved charges against them were false. They had been accused of killing two Soviet leaders and plotting to murder several others by faulty treatment.

NO RACE HATRED

Several of the doctors are Jewish. In the government's announcement of their arrest last January, they were accused of working with Zionist organizations to do the bidding of British and United States intelligence.

Pravda stressed today that any preaching of race hatred in Russia is punishable by law. It said:

"The socialist state stands on guard of the interest of all people of the Soviet Union. The constitution of the U.S.S.R. guards the equality of all citizens independent of their nationality and race in all fields of economics, government, cultural and social-political life."

Prices Remain Weak On Toronto Exchange

market today after sharp morning

Industrials dropped more than 3½ points on the exchange index. Base metals and western oils recovered slightly from early losses but showed drops of more than two index points. Golds were about one point lower. Volume for the first three hours totalled 2,075,000 shares.

A number of dollar losses dotted industrials as utilities, steels, refining oils and banks led the list lower.

Higher-priced base metals continued weak. All groups in golds were lower. Uraniums and New Brunswick base metals weakened.

Western oils traded widely for losses in leading issues.

NEED MORE STAFF WORK

Daniel said he thought the Reds were not prepared to start the exchange immediately because "their staff work is not ready for them to make the exchange."

The Communists made only one reservation. Lee said:

"We reserve the right to ask for the accommodation in a neutral country of those prisoners of war in the custody of your side who will not be directly repatriated."

This puzzled Allied negotiators, since it already had been agreed to by-pass article 110 of the Geneva Convention, which assigns a neutral country to prisoners with minor wounds who might be able to fight again within a year.

Lee made no reference to sick and wounded.

In this advance UN camp it was assumed he referred to an overall exchange of prisoners that would follow an armistice. This would be in line with a recent proposal by Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai for the over-all exchange of prisoners.

The Communists proposed March 30 that prisoners who do not want to return home be given to the custody of a neutral country until their fate is determined. About 51,000 of the 132,000-odd prisoners in Allied hands have indicated they do not want to go home.

Today's liaison meeting started at 11 a. m. (9 p. m. EST Monday).

SUBMIT OWN VERSION

Lee said the Reds would submit their versions of the following parts of the Daniel's plan:

1. Exchange to begin within seven days after details are settled.

2. Delivery of prisoners at the rate of 500 daily until exchange is completed.

3. Liaison groups would have free access to the Panmunjom area.

4. The number of persons in the Panmunjom area, including personnel being exchanged, should not exceed 300 on each side at any one time.

Allied officers said they considered these minor points that readily could be worked out.

The Communists apparently backed into an agreement to exchange sick and wounded civilian internees as well as military prisoners. They adopted the UN terminology calling for exchange of sick and wounded "captured personnel," rather than "prisoners of war."

About 100 known foreign civilians are held by the Communists, mainly diplomats, missionaries and business men.

Prices Begin To Rise On N.Y. Market

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian and United States stock markets appeared to find the prospects of peace more appealing today.

In New York, stock market prices started to rise today after several days of sharp losses. Communist peace overtures in Korea were credited with starting the decline last week.

Observers said peace prospects changed the whole business outlook with the possibility of shift from war to peace production. The stock market reflected the investors' uncertainty.

The Toronto market, which was closed Easter Monday while New York stayed open, dropped sharply in the first hour today, catching up to New York's recent losses.

SIGNS OF STRENGTH

Signs of strength appeared in many key issues before noon, however, in response to the happier feeling in New York.

In Montreal, prices also dropped today as traders rushed to fill week-end orders. All exchanges reported a burst of sell orders in the first hour.

Wall street reacted to the "threat of peace" more violently than did Canadian markets. Stocks on the New York market dropped rapidly last week while Canadian prices declined more slowly.

Canadian observers said the Canadian economy is in the midst of expansion and is not as apt as the U. S. to be hurt by a cut in de-

Easter Day At Havelock

HAVELOCK — All churches were filled to capacity on Easter Sunday. In St. John's the Evangelist, one of the largest congregations in the history of the church attended and more than 100 persons partook of the Holy Communion.

The rector, the Rev. H. A. Peasgood, in his address presented to Christian what Easter should mean to every follower of Christ compared with the picture of despair realized by the unbeliever. "As forgiveness greeted Saint Peter, who had denied Him thrice, when he first met the Master after the resurrection, so also is Christ ready to forgive us who deny Him daily."

Special music was arranged which included an anthem, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," by the senior choir, and an anthem, "Daylight," by the junior choir. Mrs. Donald Kirk was the leader and organist.

The chancel contained beautiful Easter lilies from the Curtis family and on the altar carnations from Mrs. H. J. Bush, of Toronto, a former member of the church.

PENTECOSTAL CHURCH

The Rev. C. A. Ratz, principal of the Pentecostal Bible College, Peterborough, was the guest speaker at the Pentecostal Church on Sunday evening.

Mr. Ratz took the following text for his Easter message: "Who is he that condemneth? It is Christ that died, yea rather is risen again, who is even at the right hand of God, who also maketh intercession for us."

"This contains," he said "the four pillars of Evangelistic truth, namely, atonement, resurrection, ascension, and intercession. Therein lies the Christian's hope for who can successfully combat the Divine will? Every voice is silenced and every accusation is hushed. The Christian's standing in Christ is complete and their justification unchangeable."

Prior to the sermon, Mr. Ratz spoke in the interests of the Pentecostal Bible College and an offering was taken for its work.

Easter lilies and ferns were attractively arranged at the pulpit and altar.

HAVELOCK UNITED CHURCH

Large congregations attended the services at Havelock United Church which were conducted by the minister, the Rev. R. G. Newman.

At the morning service, 152 persons partook of Holy Communion and four persons were received as members of the church, namely, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stillman, Mrs. Fred Hay and Mrs. Walter Lewis.

Mr. Newman took as his subject "The meaning of Easter for us." Two anthems were sung by the senior choir, "Alleluia, Christ Is Risen" and "King All Glorious."

In the evening, senior and junior choirs led the service of song, entering the church in processional singing "Christ the Lord Is Risen Today." Mr. Newman took as his subject "Last of all He appeared unto me." The musical numbers included an anthem by the junior choir, "The Risen King"; senior choir anthem, "Before the Dawn"; a piano duet, "Open the Gates of the Temple," by Sharon and Wallace Brown; two anthems by the juniors, "The First Easter Day," with Jo-Ann Kennedy and Doris Newman taking the duet part, and "Victory." Donald Pollock was organist and leader.

Easter lilies, daffodils and hydrangeas made a beautiful setting for the services, one basket of which was placed in memory of the late Caleb Coon, the others being a gift from the Women's Association.

HAVELOCK BAPTIST MISSION

"Incidents at Calvary" was the subject of Pastor L. Bigelow's message at the Havelock Baptist Mission, commencing with the prophecy in Isaiah chapter 53, and showing the fulfillment in Luke, chapter 23. Mr. Bigelow specifically dealt with the malefactors at the cross, the rent veil and the power of the resurrection.

Mrs. William Stubble was the soloist, and she sang "The Christ of the Cross."

KNOX PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

A large congregation attended the service in Knox Presbyterian Church on Sunday evening where the minister, the Rev. R. D. Duncanson, and his Easter message around Mary Magdalene at the sepulchre following the resurrection and her words to Jesus when He appeared to her. "They have taken away my Lord and I know not where they have laid Him."

Senior and junior choirs led the service of song. The juniors rendered an anthem, "Joy Bells," and joined with the senior choir in singing "Christ Arose," while the adult choir sang "Hail Mighty Victor!" as their anthem.

Great U.S. Horse Whirlaway Dies

PARIS (CP)—Whirlaway, one of the great horses of U. S. racing and a triple crown winner in 1941, died Monday at the Marcel Boussac stud farm in the southern part of Normandy.

Boussac's stable manager, F. de Brignac, said Whirlaway's death was caused by a ruptured nerve tissue.

The first thoroughbred race horse to win $500,000, Whirlaway was sent to France in August, 1950, by owner Warren Wright under a lease for three season. Wright died in December of the same year.

Whirlaway's total track earnings were $561,161, and he was the leading money winning horse from July, 1942, until June, 1947.

In 1941, Whirlaway not only won the Kentucky Derby but went on to take the triple crown with victories in the Preakness and Belmont stakes.

His time of 2:01 2-5 for the Derby mile and one quarter in 1941 still stands as the record.

Stock Market Suffers Sharp Break

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market suffered its sharpest break Monday since the week the Korean war started.

It was estimated that more than $2,500,000,000 was erased from the quoted value of all listed securities by the fall.

Prices were down from $1 to around $4 a share at the outside. Altogether there were 1,255 individual issues traded, second highest total in the history of the stock exchange.

Monday's sharp fall was part of the decline that was triggered last week by Communist peace feelers. Wall Street fears the economic effect of a change from a war to a peace footing in United States' business.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined $2.60 and closed at $108.70. The fall was the greatest since June 29, 1950. Volume came to a little more than three million shares.

Cobourg Lady Makes Lamps Of Lake Ontario Driftwood

COBOURG — (ENS) — A Cobourg woman, Mrs. Robin Mallory, has solved the old problem of what to give your friends for Christmas, in a novel manner. In her home is an array of lamps; fashioned not from pottery or unusual-shaped bottles, like some hobby-craft lamps, but made from driftwood gathered on the shore of Lake Ontario in the vicinity of Cobourg.

A twisted, dried-up piece of driftwood is made by her skilful hands into a beautiful lamp in nature's original pattern. She read about lamps being made from odd-shaped branches and bits of gnarled tree trunk and wondered what could be done with the pieces of driftwood to be found in abundance along the lakeshore.

It was true that the source of supply is bountiful but she found that not every piece of wood would serve the purpose she had in mind. Much of the driftwood was the wrong shape to lend itself to the compact design that a lamp standard required. Some of it was too old and punky, but here and there was a suitable piece and these were chosen.

However, it takes a lot of hard work to make a finished lamp; hours of tedious cleaning with a wire brush, filling weak spots with plastic wood, sandpapering and rubbing until the original grain appeared. Some pieces remained like bleached-out bone but other samples of wood polished up into lovely specimens of grained wood.

Mrs. Mallory estimates that it takes her about a week in her spare time to finish one of her lamps. After the standard is made there is more to be done. She has the bases made by a woodworker who also bores the standards to receive the copper tubes through which the electric wires run. She learned that each lamp had to be hydro-inspected and that the ends of the wires had to be tipped with solder. There is also the brass loop and setscrew for the shade. It takes time and care but the results justify the effort because the finished product is very beautiful.

Mrs. Mallory made some lamps for her relatives but there are some friends who are hoping they are on her Christmas list.

A dealer in lamps spotted one of the examples of her handicraft and told her she should go into it on a commercial scale.

DRIFTWOOD LAMPS are made by Mrs. Robin Mallory, of Cobourg, as a new hobby. She gathers suitable pieces of driftwood from the shores of Lake Ontario and then scrubs and polishes them to make the stands for these lamps.—(Murray Smith Photo).

Council Asked To Clarify Civic Problems

LINDSAY — (ENS) — Town council will hold several special meetings this month, as a result of Monday night's lengthy session in which matters requiring further study and handling were introduced.

The town fire department sent a deputation, asking council for a meeting to clarify the department as bargaining agent for the men. Fireman V. Tully appeared for the local of the firefighter's union, and council decided on a special meeting in the near future. A meeting will be held with the governors of the Ross Memorial Hospital. H. S. Johnson, chairman of the board of the institution, asked what stand the council would take on the question of indigent patients, following a county council decision to pay for half of its indigent patients, with the local municipality paying the other half.

Members of council requested a meeting to clarify the question of indigent patients, this meeting to be held after the public meeting of April 16, when action is to be taken on the opening of a drive to build an additional wing to the hospital. Another special meeting was set for later in the month, with R. J. Dawe, who handles the insurance for the various town departments and its equipment.

Some discussion took place on the insurance being carried by the operators of the present Lindsay Bus Lines. Members of council found that the amount carried is only one-fifth of that previously taken out by the former operators, Lindsay Lines Ltd. The town solicitor will be consulted. The town agreed to purchase a new cruiser paying $1,000 in addition to the trade-in of the present vehicle, now three years old.

FOR NEW PUMPHOUSE

Two serious matters were discussed by the council, following receipt of letters from the Water Board and the Area High School Board.

The first stated the Water Board's stand on the Town's request for one mill from the Board's reserve fund, to be used for works department purposes. The Board explained that the fund is to be used for the building of a new pumphouse, but asked that the Town solicitor be consulted, to clarify the municipal act covering the situation.

The High School Board, following their meeting last month, billed the town for the one mill toward the maintenance of the area. The mill was paid by the town every year since 1950, but this year, the council decided to discontinue the payment. The Board offered a compromise of payment on the 1950 mill, about $3,000 less than this year's but the council still turned it down. The Board then decided to bill as usual, on the present mill rate. The town solicitor will be consulted. A petition was received from 40 residents of the area surrounding the town dump, asking that it be closed and filled in. The council were unanimous in their desire to do so, and set, a date of May 1 to take the action.

The question of a new dump was solved by a decision to use town land in Ops township. The council hit a snag however, in their plans for an early closing of the present dump at this point. Further investigation into the health conditions of the new site will be necessary before definite action can be taken.

In the meanwhile, the council decided to scarify the land near the highway at the dump and construct fences to keep persons out of the area, until it can be closed permanently.

Holiday Traffic Heavy No Serious Accidents

COBOURG—(ENS)—No serious accidents were reported up until last night in spite of the unusually-heavy holiday traffic.

The volume of traffic was comparable to what would be expected much later in the year and it started to roll on Thursday night.

At times it was a steady stream for several blocks on King Street, which is also highway 2. Police could not recall traffic so heavy for this time of the year.

Motorists Uninjured As Train Strikes Car

COBOURG— (ENS) — Two U. S. motorists acquired some gray hairs Monday when a CNR passenger train struck their car late in the afternoon at the William Street level crossing. The train struck the front of the car a glancing blow and pushed it off the tracks.

About $100 damage was done to the automobile, which was driven by Leandre Rousseau of Homesdale, Penn. His passenger, Richard O'Toole of Belleville, N. J., was riding in in the front seat but did a quick flip over into the back seat when he saw the train suddenly appear.

Teh two were proceeding south on William Street and stopped while a westbound freight was crossing. A car ahead of them started up as the freight cleared the crossing and then Rousseau put his car in gear. He was just a few inches over the first rail when he saw an oncoming eastbound passenger train and stopped instantly.

At that instant, O'Toole took his flyer into the back seat. The locomtive struck the right front fender and bumper and pushed the car off the track.

The two lucky men proceeded to a garage for repairs to the car. They required no repairs themselves.

Milk Industry Described

CAMPBELLFORD—(ENS) Rotarian Wallace Rutherford gave his classification speech at the Rotary Club Monday.

Mr. Rutherford was introduced by Rotarian Bud Davidson and spoke about the Canadian dairy industry and milk distribution.

Milking is mostly done with machines and the milk is then taken to the milk house, filtered into eight-gallon cans and cooled by electrical refrigeration.

Each morning the fresh milk arrives at the dairy where each can is inspected and then strained into a tank where it is weighed and samples are taken to determine the butter fat content. This determines how much the farmer will be paid for his milk. Periodically samples taken from these cans are forwarded to laboratories to determine the quality of the milk, the amount and type of bacteria it contains and to check the health of the herds.

PASTEURIZING

From the weigh-tank the milk is pumped through pipes to one of the pasteurizing machines, where it is agitated and heated to a temperature of 144 degrees for 30 minutes, which destroys all harmful bacteria. The milk is then pumped to coolers which cool the milk to 40 degrees. This rapid cooling is very important to the flavour and keeping qualities of the milk.

Milk to be homogenized is passed through the homogenizer which breaks down the fat particles. The milk then goes to the automatic filler and capper machine where the sterilized bottles are filled and capped after which they are placed in a cold room at 45 degrees ready for delivery the following morning.

After this the cleaning operations start, taking a third of the working day. Every section of every piece of machinery is thoroughly cleaned. The following morning, just before the fresh milk comes in, every part of the system is sterilized.

The dairy industry in Canada directly or indirectly provides a source of income for one-sixth of the population and earns for the nation about six billion dollars a year.

Mr. Rutherford was thanked by President F. G. DeCarrol.

Almost Perfect Crime Brings Death Sentence

BALTIMORE (AP) — George Edward Grammer today was sentenced to be hanged for the "almost perfect" slaying of his wife last summer so he could marry a pretty United Nations stenographer in New York.

Grammer, 36-year-old former New York personnel manager, was convicted last October of killing his wife, 33-year-old Dorothy May Grammer, mother of two children, by first bludgeoning her and then sending her down an incline in a car in an attempt to make the death look as if it had occurred in an auto accident.

The prosecution contended Grammer plotted the crime so that he could marry Miss Mathilda Mizibrocky, a UN secretary who came from Hamilton, Ont.

FELL IN LOVE

Evidence during the trial was that Grammer had fallen in love with Miss Mizibrocky after they met in New York.

Miss Mizibrocky said she did not know at the time that Grammer was married and the father of two children.

The case attracted wide attention because it was at first thought to have been an accident. Later police, in checking the automobile, found the accelerator had been tampered with. Their further investigation led to discovery of an almost perfect crime.

Grammer is expected to appeal the death sentence.

Two Hot Wars

Our minds and the news have been so full of the cooling of the Cold War and dousing the Korean War that it is bewildering to open our eyes to two hot wars now raging in full violence. The one is a revival—in Indo-China where the Reds have launched a new drive. The other is an outburst from tinder long sputtering—in Kenya.

• • •

The Indo-China war is very grievous. It has been going on since the World War ended and thousands of the best soldiers of France have lost their lives there and other thousands have been wounded. The Indo-China war is such a heavy drain on French man-power and finances that France is exhausted by it. Many ordinary Frenchmen are willing to let the Vietminh Reds have this important bastion of the West—which has also been, unfortunately, a grim area of illiberal French colonialism.

• • •

The other hot war in Kenya is a real African crisis. It is no longer a limited matter of Mau Mau terror; it is full-scale civil war, as serious as anything which Britain experienced in Palestine in the last years of the Mandate. In a despatch to the Examiner, a well-informed observer of African affairs William Clark remarks this: "In Africa itself the British Government is now in a hideous dilemma. The policy of both post-war British Governments has been —with varying emphasis—to try to steer in East Africa a middle course between the White Supremacy of the Union, and the Black self-rule of the West Coast. But the disorders in Kenya make the path of real moderation and conciliation almost impossible. There are some local experts who believe that 'partnership between the races' has already been made impossible for a generation in the northern territories of East Africa."

• • •

It is under these conditions that the proposed Central African Federation (of Northern and Southern Rhodesia and Nyasaland) is being inaugurated against African opinion. Mr. Clark says that the British Government has properly attempted to ride two horses at once; today the black horse is galloping away from its white partner.

Significance Of Bohlen Verdict

The U.S. Senate fight over the nomination of Charles E. Bohlen as Ambassador to Russia, which we discussed briefly last week, had a significance beyond the immediate triumph of the Eisenhower Administration over the smearing Senator from Wisconsin, Joseph McCarthy. This incident was a major showdown on foreign policy, and one of the large worries of the Administration was whether it would be blocked by a split on foreign policy among Republican Senators. If this were to develop, President Eisenhower might be forced to seek the support of Democrats in order to carry out his policy.

Before this first major test, there was reason for apprehension. It was known that a substantial minority did not approve Administration foreign policy whole-heartedly, and it remained to be seen whether this group's disapproval was deep enough to lead it to support Senator McCarthy. Those extremists certain to support the Senator could be counted, and these alone could not split the party, although they could splinter it. The vote of the more moderate critics would be decisive.

As the debate on the Bohlen appointment continued, new evidence of solid support for President Eisenhower appeared. Senator Robert Taft of Ohio, majority leader, and Senator William Knowland of California, Policy committee chairman, had both criticized foreign policy and suggested amendments, yet both turned on Senator McCarthy with vehemence and determination. To many, it was an unexpected and decidedly gratifying demonstration of party solidarity, and the leadership of these men made the taking of the vote a mere formality.

Since the possibility of a serious split on foreign policy was one of the major worries of the Administration, the result of this first test should afford some relief. However, there will be other tests, for it is certain that one defeat will not be sufficient to squelch the Senator from Wisconsin.

NOTE AND COMMENT

There are estimated to be five trillion tons of salt beneath the soil of the State of Kansas. So that when it comes to taking things with a grain of salt, the Kansan has the Missourian at a great disadvantage.

Paintings of Canadian Cities

We are obliged to the House of Seagram for a very handsome book which contains reproductions of paintings which this company has commissioned of a number of Canadian cities; a commentary which accompanies the pictures is the work of Dr. B. K. Sandwell. It is a distinguished piece of work and we are happy to place it in our library, both as an object of interest and of beauty.

Twenty Canadian artists have painted the pictures which are included in this group; all are well known to those who appreciate Canadian painting, and we mention the names of A. Y. Jackson, Charles Comfort, Jacques de Tonnancour and A. J. Casson only to suggest the range of styles which are represented. If we may express a preference, Cloutier's gay picture of Montreal and Tonnancour's study of Trois Rivieres in winter pleased us most; if we may give voice to a regret, it is that our own beautiful small city is not included in the group.

We can hear cynical voices saying—"It's a way of advertising their whisky." Of course it is, and a very good way, too. The liquor interests in Canada are debarred by some very peculiar and hypocritical legislation from advertising their products freely, and they have found ways of doing it without transgressing those laws. It is very much to the credit of Seagram's that they have chosen a means of drawing their name to the attention of the public which also calls public notice to the work of several of our finest painters, and to the beauty of several of our finest cities. If their whisky is as good in its way as these pictures are, in theirs, Seagram's have nothing whatever to worry about. We like the book, and we are glad to call attention to the exhibition of which it is a record.

Port Profits

The Port of Montreal last Thursday greeted the earliest overseas arrival on record, a 10,000-ton Canadian freighter called Seaboard Star, loaded with automobiles and freight from the U.K. Thus the Port of Montreal is open for its long season. That a Canadian inland port can begin operations as early as the first of April and continue until November shows how valuable Lake Ontario ports for sea-going vessels will be, reducing shipping and handling costs, bringing goods to and sending exports from the industrial heart of Canada.

People in southern Ontario who still doubt the profitable use of Great Lakes ports when the Seaway is fully developed, may compare the financial record of leading Canadian harbours last year, as reported by the National Harbour Board. The Port of Montreal had a total revenue of $8,693,000, and a surplus of $1,066,000. The Port of Quebec had total revenue of $1,722,000, with a surplus of $1,498,000. Compare these records of business and surplus with the records of Atlantic ports, with their year-round service. Halifax: revenue $1,607,000, deficit $313,000; Saint John, N.B.: revenue $907,000, deficit $599,000.

It is not the fact that ports are inland which accounts for their usefulness, but that they are inland into the markets. The Port of Churchill, Manitoba, is inland, but too far from the centres of population and industry with which business is done. Churchill had revenue during the year of $480,000, but incurred a deficit of $76,000 in its operation of the port.

Can there be any doubt that when the St. Lawrence seaway is completed, Great Lakes ports, carefully managed, will not only serve east-central and central Canada well, but serve at a profit?

Live Chicks As Easter Gifts

This Easter, as for some years past, thousands of live chicks were sold in Ontario as Easter gifts. In cardboard boxes they fetched about fifty cents each. This is a traffic which we think should be discouraged, for it is extremely unlikely that the chicks will live and there is a measure of inhumanity in selling them as pets—a purpose for which they are ill-suited.

The inhumanity may be exaggerated, for a chicken is not a highly intelligent or sensitive creature; but inhumanity works two ways—upon the baby chick itself, and upon those who play with it until it dies of handling and wrong feeding. There is something basically wrong about giving a child a pet which has no chance of survival. We are strongly in favour of children having pets, and if a bird is what they want, canaries and many other cage-birds will live happily for years. But a chicken or a gosling cannot survive in captivity.

Without working up too great a feeling of indignation, can we not have some legislation which will prohibit this trade in chicks at Easter? Humane Societies in many places have appealed to the public to refrain from buying chicks, and we support their point of view. But we think that the trade will not stop unless there is a law to quash it. We like to see a brisk trade in pets—and there are dozens of animals, birds and fish which make first-rate pets—at Easter, for a small, live creature is a fine symbol of Spring and Resurrection, but chickens can never be house pets and their destruction brings far more sadness than joy into a child's life.

Diplomatic Commentary:

Malenkov May Mean Business

By SEBASTIAN HAFFNER

THOMAS MANN (the German writer), after attending a couple of spiritualist seances in the 'twenties, remarked that as a result he had become a little sceptical about scepticism. That is perhaps the best description of the state of mind produced in Britain by the latest moves in the Communist "peace offensive" — especially the Chinese move on the question of prisoners-of-war in Korea. One can still not be certain that Russian and Chinese policy has really reversed gear and is now genuinely aiming at peace. But neither can one simply dismiss the latest move with unrelieved distrust as a mere tactical manoeuvre. It looks too serious and businesslike for that. While remaining a little sceptical, one has also become "a little sceptical about scepticism."

IT WOULD OBVIOUSLY be wrong to think that a Korean armistice is now "in the bag." The new Chinese position still needs clarifying by negotiation; especially, we cannot know where we really are until it has become clear what the Chinese mean when they speak of handing over prisoners who refuse to be repatriated to a "neutral" country. If they should propose Russia or another Communist country as a suitable "neutral", deadlock would again become inevitable.

But while one has to remain prepared for disappointments of this kind, it is now also necessary to be prepared for the possibility that the Chinese—and Russians—may be in earnest. Indeed, on the whole this looks now rather more likely.

WHATEVER SNAGS may still reveal themselves when the armistice negotiations are resumed, there is no doubt that a real and substantial change in the Communist position has already occured. The fixed principle of unconditional repatriation of all prisoners—willing or unwilling alike—has been given up. It is a little difficult to see what the Communists could hope to gain by such an important change of attitude if they still wanted to let the armistice negotiations founder.

What is perhaps even more important is this: the real change, as far as one can judge on the known facts, has taken place not in Peking, but in Moscow. And this suggests that the more positive attitude to a Korean armistice is part of a wider design, perhaps even of a genuine wish for general appeasement.

It is well-known that when the Indian Government put forward its compromise formula on the prisoners question in the United Nations last autumn, it had first enquired in Peking whether this formula would be acceptable to China and had received an encouraging response. Only after Russia had rejected the Indian proposals in the United Nations did China join in that rejection— much to the disappointment and surprise of the Indians.

THE CONCLUSION generally drawn from this sequence of events was, and is, that China was ready even five months ago to end the Korean fighting on a basis of compromise over the prisoners, but that Russia persuaded her at the last moment to retract her informal agreement to the Indian proposals and to continue the war.

If this is a correct reading of what happened five months ago, then what has happened now is that the New Russian Government, changing the attitude of its predecessor, has withdrawn the former objections to China's compromising over the prisoners and making an armistice in Korea possible. This seems the more likely as Mr. Chou En-lai's (Chinese Premier) new declaration followed closely on his talks in Moscow when he attended Stalin's funeral. But if the real change of mind has taken place in Moscow rather than in Peking, it gains considerably in significance.

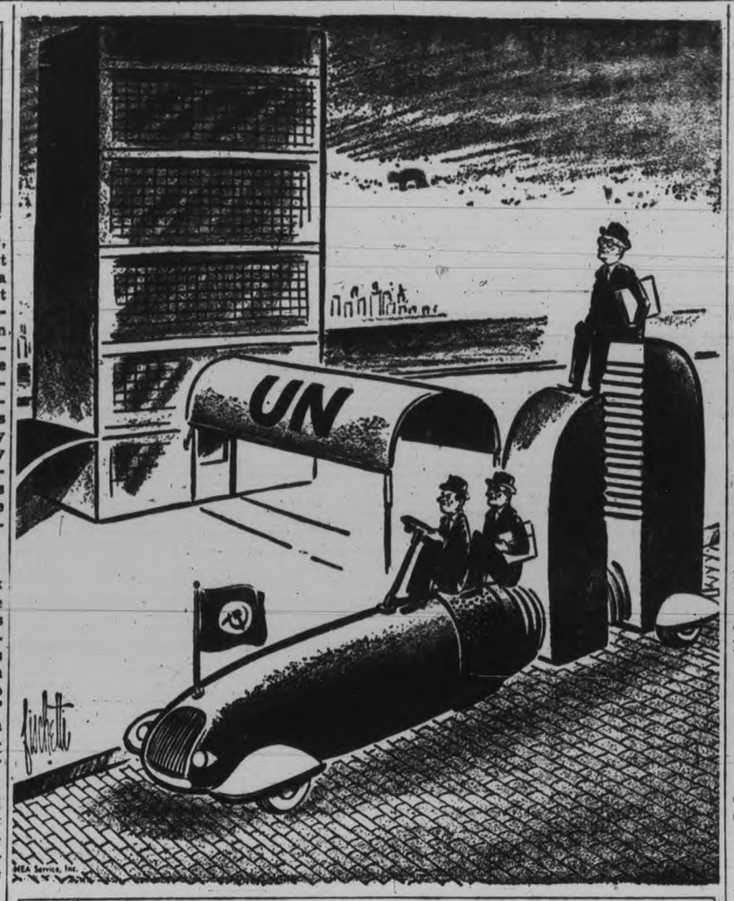
❖ ❖ ❖

FOR THERE IS nothing really surprising in China's wanting to end the Korean war. It has long become obvious that she cannot "win" that war, in the sense of driving the Americans out of Korea; she can only keep a stalemated war of attrition going indefinitely. Such an inconclusive and indefinite war cannot possibly be in China's interest. It is a terrible drain on her. It eats up resources that are desperately needed for development. It constantly increases China's indebtedness to, and dependence on, Russia, who supplies most of the heavy weapons and ammunition. It also—though this may not be the foremost consideration—is bound to be increasingly unpopular. For all these reasons, China may well have a strong and genuine interest in bringing about a Korean armistice for its own sake, even if for the rest she has no intention of changing her general foreign policy.

❖ ❖ ❖

BUT THE SAME cannot be said for Russia. In the context of a continuing cold war, Russia can have no interest in ending the fighting in Korea. As long as the cold war goes on, the fighting in Korea serves Russia's interests well. No Russian soldier is engaged in that fighting; the threat that Russia herself might become involved through an extension of the war has subsided; and all that the Korean war is costing Russia is a certain amount of surplus material supplied to China. In return for that modest outlay, the Korean war pins down strong American forces, increases the dependence of China on Russia, makes any kind of rapprochement between China and the West impossible, and creates recurrent friction between America and her allies. Taken by itself, to end the Korean war through an armistice is sheer loss for Russia.

❖ ❖ ❖



THEREFORE, if Russia has deliberately withdrawn her objection to a Korean armistice and given China the green light to seek an end of the fighting, she must have wider changes in the international situation in mind. A Korean armistice makes no sense to Russia in the context of continued cold war. It can only make sense to her as a curtain-raiser to general appeasement. The only gain that Russia can hope to achieve, at such a heavy sacrifice of immediate tactical advantages, from a Korean armistice, is the general relaxation of tension and improvement of atmosphere which would make wider peace talks possible; and this is, from the Russian point of view, a gain only if Russia has become really interested in such wider peace talks and their ultimate success.

THIS, of course, would be a fundamental change in Russian foreign policy, which, from the end of the Second World War to the death of Stalin, aimed at avoiding a peace settlement just as carefully as at avoiding a general war. However, there have been many small signs since the accession of the Malenkov Government that Russia might change from a policy of "no war — no peace" to one of genuinely seeking a "businesslike" peace settlement, "based on facts." Her yielding over the Korean armistice question is the strongest and most substantial of these signs.

If the resumed Korean armistice negotiations bear out this prima facie reading of the present Russian and Chinese attitude, they may, therefore, prove the prelude to an era of general peace negotiations aiming at the long-delayed settlement of the Second World War. It is not too early for the Western Foreign Offices to prepare their ideas and positions for such a contingency. It would be a pity if, from excessive scepticism and caution, they should find themselves caught napping by the diplomatic climax of the world crisis of the mid-Twentieth Century.

Old 'Cure-All'

(EDMONTON JOURNAL)

IF any of the old-time travelling medicine men are still alive, they must be having a good laugh, behind their luxuriant whiskers. Their most popular cure-all, deplored by generations of physicians, has suddenly become respectable.

In the old days, no medicine show was complete without a secret Indian remedy. It had been given to the "doctor" by an aged Indian chief— in some versions, as a reward for saving the life of his beautiful daughter. It was guaranteed to cure all the ills of man and beast, and if there was no illness in the family it made an excellent harness polish. The good "doctor" had dedicated his life to distributing this boon among suffering mankind, entirely free—except, of course for a nominal charge of a dollar a bottle to cover expenses. So ran the standard "spiel," and it sold a surprising number of bottles.

Now a group of California scientists has decided that there may be something in the "Indian remedy" after all. They are investigating a herb called "bitter root" which was a favourite with some of the tribes; the Indians drank a brew of this root as a cure for various diseases, including the 'flu, and also made a salve from it to heal wounds.

Laboratory tests of the stuff indicate that it is more effective against some types of infection, particularly fungus diseases, than any of the present antibiotics. Quite possibly it may become a standard remedy, with a place in the most scientific medicine chests.

Who knows— that other medicine show stand-by "snake oil," may yet come into its own!

Device for Parking Car

(The Rotarian Magazine)

A car-parking development allows a motorist to move in a space about 18 inches longer than the car itself. The driver just noses his car into the parking space and turns a dashboard lever, which, in turn, lowers the spare tire hydraulically until it lifts the car's rear wheels. Then it rolls the car into the curb. The device can also be used to get the car out of a tight spot.

Says The Archbishop

(Ottawa Journal)

So three rousing cheers for the Archbishop of Canterbury, who takes time off from Coronation arrangements to strike a stout blow against the ugly-looking (and sounding) words that have a tendency to creep into the English language.

The Archbishop's particular hate is for "ugly words ending in 'ization' " and he cites as horrible examples "hospitalization", against which The Journal has been campaigning for many months, and "deratization" which, says His Grace, is supposed to mean the elimination of rats. And in the Coronation ritual he is substituting "enthroning" for the older, and less euphonious, "inthronization".

A close relative of these monstrosities is the word "finalized"—and only a step away is the dreadful "finalization"—which one encounters frequently in business letters. Names of organizations are loaded with unnecessary syllables such as "recreational"; "transportation commission" is a bad sounding mouthful. And indeed there is no end to these new and harsh words that never should have been put together to plague a language which in its accepted forms has limitless scope and a delightful elasticity.

In some casual remarks by a member of Parliament, for example, we come upon the word "investigational". Parliamentary privilege should not go that far!

Nobody contends that the English language should be fixed for all time within its present usage. It is a living language, and must grow to meet new conditions, new needs, new fields of thought and action. But it should not grow through the harsh and unlovely fields of letters put together by lazy writers without regard for symmetry or euphony.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

When the morning was come, all the chief priests and elders of the people took counsel against Jesus to put him to death. (Matt. 27:1.)

❖ ❖ ❖

And Pilate, when he had called together the chief priests and the rulers and the people, said unto them, Ye have brought this man unto me, as one that perverteth the people: and, behold, I, having examined him before you, have found no fault in this man touching those things whereof ye accuse him.

And they were instant with loud voices, requiring that he might be crucified. And the voices of them and of the chief priests prevailed. . . And when they were come to the place, which is called Calvary, there they crucified him, and the malefactors, one on the right hand, and the other on the left. (Luke 23:13,14,23,33.)

❖ ❖ ❖

And when the even was come, because it was the preparation, that is, the day before the sabbath, Joseph of Arimathaea, an honourable counsellor, which also waited for the kingdom of God, came, and went in boldly unto Pilate, and craved the body of Jesus. . . And he brought fine linen, and took him down, and wrapped him in the linen, and laid him in a sepulchre which was hewn out of a rock, and rolled a stone unto the door of the sepulchre. (Mark 15:42,43,46.)

Letter To The Editor

PRAISE FOR A GOVERNMENT INSPECTOR

Sir: The purpose of this letter is to report a visit to our store last week, of Mr. Leonard Henderson, Fruit Inspector of Ontario Department of Agriculture, in the course of a periodic inspection. We found him to be a gentleman, pleasant and courteous; his visit turning out to be a most enjoyable one.

It was a far cry from the calls made by the Wartime Price Board Inspectors during the last war. I wonder if the general public realize the "Gestapo" methods to which retail merchants were subjected by these individuals during their inspections? The word 'insolence' is thus set forth in Webster's dictionary— "Contemptuous or overbearing language or manner; offensive impertinence; insulting behavior." This describes these aforesaid inspectors to a T. I hope and trust that grocers will never have to endure treatment of this kind again.

Again thanking Mr. Henderson for his courtesy and you, Mr. Editor for valuable space, I remain,

Your very truly,
GRACE A. YONGE.

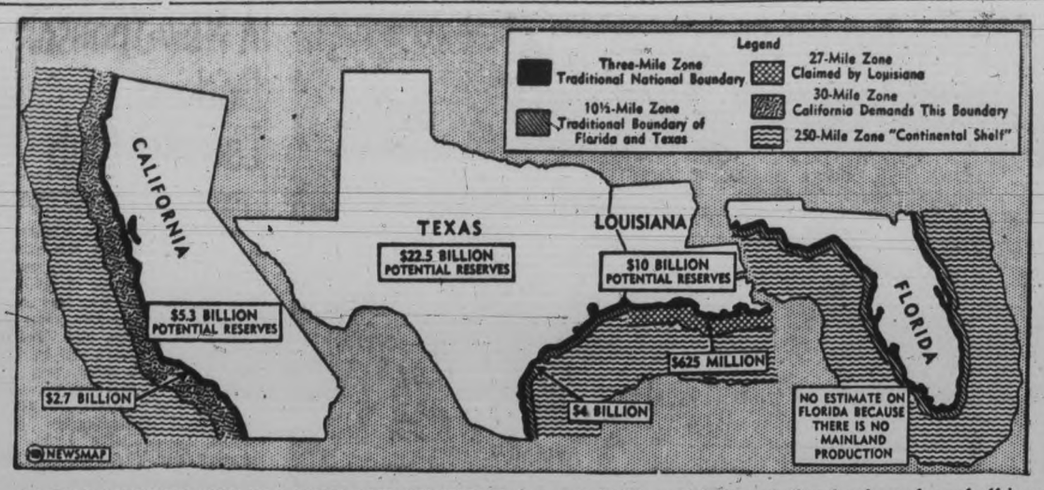
"Well, here's a ten dollar bill," replied the culprit.



"I have no change, sir," said the attendant.

The millionaire turned to his secretary and handed him a cigar, "Here, John, you smoke as well."

BATTLE LINES DRAWN FOR TIDELAND OIL FIGHT —Congress is attempting to come up with an answer as to whether the states or Uncle Sam owns the billions of dollars in potential offshore oil. Early history saw the federal government holding that title of offshore lands within the three-mile limit with the states. But that was before geologists reported billions of dollars of oil under the surface of offshore waters. When that happened, the federal government made its claims and the fight started. Above Newsmap shows the states involved in the controversy, the offshore rights they are demanding, and how much money in oil is potentially involved.

Charge Indian With Murder

GLEICHEN, Alta. (CP)—Alex Standing-at-the - Door, 35-year-old Blackfoot Indian, appeared in police court here Monday charged with the murder of Gary Bull Bear, 6.

The youngster was one of five Indians who died after a bottle of gasoline was hurled at a stove through the window of Standing-at-the-Door's home on the Indian reserve near here.

The accused was remanded for eight days.

Gary Bull Bear was burned to death in the house. The other four, including Standing-at-the - Door's wife, 26, his son Clifford, 6, Mrs. Joe Little Chief, 50, and Mrs. Ben Iron Head, 65, died in hospital.

The bottle of gasoline, hurled after an alleged argument between Standing-at-the-Door and his wife, exploded and set the building flaming.

Pill Would Protect You Against A-Bomb—Scientists

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

CHICAGO (AP)—A big fat pill costing about $4 probably would save you from radiation sickness or death from an A-bomb, scientists said today.

You'd have to take it just before the bomb exploded.

The pill appears to be the best practical bet so far to guard against radiation.

It was described by scientists presenting reports to the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

The pill would weigh about two ounces, for a 150-pound person. It would be smaller for someone smaller; bigger for a fat individual.

It would be made of cysteine, one of the amino acids or building blocks of proteins such as muscle, fat and nerves.

SAVES MOST ANIMALS

Given to animals about two hours before they're exposed to x-rays, cysteine saves most of them. It apparently would do the same for humans.

Dr. Harvey Patt, with the atomic energy commission, said: "I would take it (cysteine) if an attack were imminent. But I wouldn't want to take a daily dose over a long period, for then the cysteine might damage body organs."

Cysteine costs about eight cents a gram, which is 1-28th of an ounce. About 50 grams—or $4 worth—would protect a person weighing 150 pounds, he estimated.

The important thing about cysteine is that it is the first chemical which protects against both x-rays and neutrons, both of which come from A-bombs.

Other scientists said Belgian doctors are giving cancer patients cysteine before they get big doses of x-rays to kill their cancers, to protect them from radiation sickness.

Cure or treatment of radiation sickness after exposure is a more difficult matter, the scientists agreed.

Crash Building Two Boys Injured

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Two boys were injured Monday night when their car crashed into a bank building while they were being pursued by police at speeds ranging up to 70 miles an hour.

Tony Maryanovich, 14, driving the car owned by his father, suffered extensive lacerations to the face, hands and legs, and his companion, Larry Gidilevich, 15, suffered a possible broken jaw and a broken nose.

The front wall of the one-storey, concrete and steel bank was moved six inches from its base by the impact of the crash. The car was wrecked.

Maryanovich told police he took his father's car without permission.

Ford Company Observes 50th Anniversary

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Fifty years ago Henry Ford founded his first "horseless carriage" factory in Detroit.

This year, Ford Motor companies in the United States, Canada and 23 other countries will celebrate the anniversary with ceremonies and programs centring around June 16.

A press release from Ford Motor Company of Canada comments:

"The anniversary finds Ford of Canada well into the biggest expansion of its history. In May, cars will begin coming off the line in the giant new assembly plant at Oakville, Ont. And, in the traditional automotive centre of Windsor, an equally large expansion is under way as Ford of Canada invests an estimated $32,500,000 in a program to modernize and enlarge every aspect of its manufacturing operations."

NEED IMAGINATION

The current monthly letter of the Royal Bank of Canada, addressed to young men leaving school and university, says:

"Business is a strange amalgam of practical common sense and idealism. In it, a young man may perform his allotted task with consistent but dull efficiency; or, by applying his imagination and using initiative, he may make of it a great adventure."

NEW BYLAWS

The Canadian Standards Association, announcing that its annual meeting will be held in Montreal, April 21, says a new set of by-laws will become operative and a new board of 18 directors will be announced. It adds:

"The old main committee, which has been responsible during many years for the approval and issuance of specifications, will be replaced by a technical council. The old executive committee appointed by the main committee, will disappear and be replaced by the new board of directors, which becomes the new managing body and will be elected by all the contributing and voting members."

Family Relations Discussed At Parley

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Arthur H. Steinhaus of George Williams College, Chicago, today discussed education in family relations in an address to the school health section of the Ontario Educational Association.

The doctor's address included the problems of dating, courtship and preparation for marriage and family life. He dealt with the various learnings by age levels from three up through maturity.

Boys and girls should be instructed together when an instructor feels capable of handling the situation, Dr. Steinhaus said.

"Every honest question must be answered honestly and in straightforward fashion," he said.

League Yanks Franchise In Negro Row

GREENVILLE, Miss. (AP)—The Cotton States League has given its Hot Springs, Ark., member the baseball boot because the club insists on keeping two Negro pitchers.

The League president, Al Haraway, said the Hot Springs franchise was withdrawn Monday because the issue at stake was "a matter of survival of the league."

Haraway said the action was within procedure set up by the constitution of the 52-year-old Class C circuit.

Hot Springs disagreed. Club officials said they will protest to George Trautman, president of the Association of Minor Baseball Leagues.

Two of the three Hot Springs owners, Louis Goltz and H. M. Britt, said the team plans to take the field at Pine Bluff April 21 for the season's opener.

DECLINES COMMENT

Trautman declined comment until he had received a statement from Haraway.

The meeting in which Hot Springs got the ax was barred to reporters. Apparently no action was taken on transferring the franchise elsewhere. Most observers agreed Viksburg, Miss., had the inside trak.

The squabble had been simmering since Hot Springs signed Jim and Leander Tugerson of Florence Villa, Fla. Negroes have never played in the league, made up of Hot Springs, Pine Bluff and El Dorado in Arkansas, Monroe in Louisiana, and Greenville, Jakson, Natches and Meridian in Mississippi.

The Hot Springs directors offered to play the Tugersons only where home teams approved, but this compromise was unsatisfactory.

TVL Tilt Tossed Out

CAMPBELLFORD — (ENS)—The Campbellford TVL playoff victory over Wellington last Friday night in Belleville has been thrown out. The Dukes successfully protested the game on the grounds that Doug Free had been wrongfully awarded a goal in the second period when the Wellington goalie threw his stick at Free, who was coming in on goal.

It was claimed that Referees Carson and Goyer should have given Parks a misconduct penalty and allowed Free a penalty shot.

Campbellford had won the game 8-7 in overtime, but now it must be replayed. Campbellford leads the best-of-seven at present by two games to one, with the next one tonight in Belleville.

BATTER UP—While Canada still hasn't got hockey and basketball out of its system as yet, warm southern spring suns have got American baseball off to a flying start. However, it won't be long before "Play Ball!" will ring out across this country's baseball diamonds. The big leagues officially open next Monday.

Chicago Hawks wind up Stanley Cup semi-finals tonight against Canadiens in Montreal. And, lo, a lot of Frenchmen will have ants in their pants ere it's o'er. Meantime, Boston Bruins get a break in having a few days of rest before moseying into cup finals 'gainst the winner of tonight's tilt. Ousting the powerful Detroit Red Wings — five times NHL champs in a row — proved the biggest hockey upset of the decade, but the Bruins earned that series with some great hockey. And Lynn Patrick is now rated a first-class strategist. Deservedly so, as no other club in the NHL could stop the Wings four time in six tries. We'll pull for Boston now, and hope they meet Canadiens and take 'em for the mug.

It cost Lord Stanley just 50 dollars to put up this famous trophy. Lord Kilgoursie, later Lord Craven, suggested it to his friend Lord Stanley after visiting Canada in 1890 and becoming quite enthusiastic over the game of hockey. So, the Governor-General donated the 50-dollar cup and it was competed for in 1893 for the first time — just 60 years ago. 'Twas played for by amateur winners for years, though many an argument arose over the amateur status of some of the starry players in these series. The pros took it over later and now jealously keep it in the National Hockey League. It is quite battered and has many "collars" added to it due to so many names engraved upon it down the historic hockey years. Detroit now relinquishes it.

Something On Soccer

Jimmy Buchan had about 20 soccer players out to his initial workout the other day and he plans more practise sessions at King Edward Park as the ground dries out and the weather warms up. There's a good chance, we hear, of two soccer clubs operating in Peter's borough this year under a new commission, the old one having disbanded. The UEW champs will be back again and likely will commence spring drilling shortly. There's some good soccer-football material around town at present, and keen competition is likely during the summer months. That's all the dope at the moment, but more again on this sport in the near future.

At a recent senior lacrosse meeting in St. Catharines, 'twas announced that big Ham Nelson has signed up again. It had been reported that he was giving up the game. Coach Doug Cave will use him on a forward line if he can obtain a husky defenceman. Tank Teather has retired and Steve Oneschuk won't play as he is nursing a bad knee and wants to have it okay for the football season. Don Frick, Doug Smith and Emil Uhrynuk are the only defencemen available there at present, but they have many good forwards and will field a real contending club this gutted-stick semester. Don't forget, they nearly upset the Petes in playoffs last year and roughed 'em up plenty before bowing out.

McGinness Takes Over

Harry McGinness, builder of trailers here, is taking over sponsorship of the senior Petes' OLA club this semester. (Let us trust that the former timber-structured champs don't become trailers this year, huh?) Looks like the club will be stronger than last season, especially if they can obtain Merv McKenzie for defence. Max Woolley and Denny Peterson would be welcome additions, too, if they decide to move up this way. Meantime, all of last year's team are available but must earn their spots when Coach Bob Thrope starts workouts shortly. No news yet on Arn Dugan, who started the season with the club in '52 but dropped out to play baseball. Looks like Jerry Fitzgerald and Harry Wipper will be back full-time. Petes don't think much of Toronto Yorks moving to Orillia and taking the pick of players in that town.

Men's curling club wound up a successful season last eve with the presentation of prizes at their annual closing dinner in the Empress. Close to 200 on deck and they proved able competitors in the Knife and Fork League, sweeping those juicy steaks away in no time. Herb Bradburn presided and spoke of plans for expanding the second floor of the Charlotte St. palais d'ice for next season, the share holders dealing with this matter at a May meeting. Ernie McMurtry, secretary of the Ontario Curling Club, was guest speaker and took the big gathering back down the years along curling ices in days gone by. Maurice Cruthers introduced him and Dr. Ralph Clark expressed the club's thanks to the grand old man. The Rev. Wm. McDonald came in for a presentation, too. A dandy "do" by a fine bunch of fellows.

Hint New Group Of Juniors In Que. League

QUEBEC (CP)—Frank Byrne, who withdrew his Quebec Citadelles from the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association, hinted Monday there may be a new junior organization next year and took a crack at the QAHA and "the (Montreal) Forum's organization."

Byrne spoke at a luncheon meeting of a Quebec service club.

He said Citadelles' return to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, following withdrawal from the QAHA, did not mean the club had resigned from the Junior Amateur Hockey Association.

The JAHA is a component part of the QAHA. The Quebec governing branch was suspended by the CAHA for "defying" the parent body's edict by granting a playing certificate to Ron Attwell. The youngster played with Montreal junior Canadiens.

Suspension of the QAHA was followed by suspension of all its leagues and clubs when they failed to meet a deadline for returning to the CAHA. Later when Byrne, owner of the Citadelles, announced withdrawal of his club from the QAHA, the CAHA permitted Citadelles to enter Memorial Cup competition for the Canadian junior championship.

FORCED TO ACT

Byrne said the QAHA was induced to take its stand in the Attwell case by "the Forum's organization," the Canadian Arena Company which controls Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League and the junior Canadiens.

Byrne said "the QAHA and the Forum have become synonymous and take a malicious pleasure in disregarding regulations when Montreal interests are involved.

"With the QAHA there are two sets of rules, one set for Montreal and a second set for clubs in the rest of the province."

In Montreal, president Martin Conway of the QAHA indicated that Byrne's statement about not resigning from the JAHA was meaningless.

Aces And Shamrocks Get Exhibition Wins At PMHA "Booster Night"

Hockey fans bade farewell to the minors for 1952-53 at Civic Arena, Monday night amid the usual fanfare of exciting final exhibition games, skating races and draw prizes. The occasion was the annual P.M.H.A. Booster Night to aid the association in their important work for the benefit of young local stars of the present and future years. Two sizzling hockey struggles highlighted a fine evenings entertainment, the first pitted Pat Doherty's champion bantam Shamrocks against the smart Port Hope juveniles, the Shams racking up an 8-3 win; while the afterpiece saw a great battle between Joe Rocheta's Martin-Hewitt Aces and Keene midgets that held fans interest throughout. The locals staged a spirited drive late in the final frame, to earn a 5-2 edge; after the teams had battled fiercely on fairly even terms till midway in the third, when the lakeshore boys' defence cracked slightly against the homesters' strong attack.

BILL GOT THREE

Bill Mahoney potted three goals and aided on a fourth to spearhead Shamrocks offensive in the first game; Pat Baker and Frank Daley notched a brace each and Larry Lonsberry one as every man on the team gave his best. Shamrocks outscored their rivals 4-1 in the first, held even at two each in the mid-frame, and notched two in the final to win going away. Danny Dotzho tallied twice for the Hopers and Gearwood once.

Keene scored a pair in the first period of the second game as Al Renwick and Don Bethune found the range on neat plays to take an edge, with Turk Ferren the lone marksman for Joe's boys. The locals rushed strong in the second, however, to edge their rivals and McCarthy found the range at the half-way mark, from Murphy and Rusaw, to poke one past the Keene sentinel. Late in the third, the locals ensured victory with a hard attack that saw Terry Doris and Bob Godfrey, each from Naish, and McCarthy again, from Rusaw, all score to take a well-merited triumph, in a clean struggle.

WON THE RACES

Bantam and midget races saw Bill Mahoney and Pete Heffernan fly to victory in their respective classes; but Wayne Haig, Gary Darling, Paul Murphy, Val Armstrong, Bob Beaubiah and Don Chambers all showed speed, to make the two-lap races a battle all the way.

Lucky draw prizes donated by Tom Casey and George Bennett, popular local salesmen: Lionel Browne of the C. P. C., Eddie Riley, Modern Fruit Market, Bud Arthurs of the Sunshine Dairy Bar; and the T. P. T. Limited, were picked up by Don Doughty, Carol Berwick, Bob McCabe, Perc McNamee, Doug Lustic, Gus Sergeant and Jim Crough senior.

Dit Clapper, Gus Leonard and Bill Flint handled the games and Freddie Scates, dynamic local sports booster, acted as master of ceremonies. Though the crowd this year fell below expectations, the executive wish to heartily thank all who contributed in any way to make PMHA Booster Night a success.

Presentation Of Trophies At Curling Club Dinner Finishes Up Good Season

The men's section of the Peterborough Curling Club wound up a most successful season last evening at the annual closing banquet held in the Empress Hotel. Nearly 200 sat down to the enjoyable dinner, followed by a sing-song, some speeches and the presentation of prizes for the 1952-53 winners. President Herb Bradburn presided and expressed thanks to the various committees, the ladies, press and individuals who had helped the large male membership enjoy one of its better seasons, a five-month one. He said that the club shareholders at their May meeting would discuss a proposed expansion of space and facilities on the second floor of the curling rink.

SONGS AND MUSIC

Mort Knox, with Stan Northrop at the piano, gave two entertaining solos, and this was followed by a birthday presentation by Rufus Payne to the club padre, the Rev. Wm. McDonald, sponsor of the recent ladies vs. men's bonspiel. The padre, after thanking the members, stated that he felt that his belief in the ability of women curlers had been justified in the special 'spiel.

The guest speaker —who was introduced by Maurice Cruthers, and thanked by Dr. Ralph Clark —was W. E. (Ernie) McMurtry, secretary of the Ontario Curling Association, and known everywhere as a grand old curler.

Speaking often in humorous vein, he briefly outlined some of the game's highlights since the OCA began in 1874. He told interesting anecdotes of famous curlers and spoke of some of the oldtime aces of Peterborough and Lindsay. McMurtry pointed out that, despite the fact many curlers were not overly familiar with the rules, they all had fun and keen competition, without requiring umpires, in this most sociable sport. He praised the local club and its first-rate ice and facilities.

In thanking the main speaker Dr. Clark remarked that Mr. McMurtry was to the Ontario Curling Association what Secretary Ira Moore was to the Peterborough Club, "an invaluable official."

Three door prizes were then drawn for by Norm Hamley, and the presentation of season's trophies and prizes followed. The prize winners, not including those of open bonspiels, were:

Elect Campbell FAC President

WINNIPEG (CP)—Ernest Campbell of Montreal was elected president of the Football Association of Canada Monday. He succeeds Charlie Pinnell of Calgary, retiring this year after holding the office since 1939.

Jock Henry of Vancouver was named vice-president and Dr. Victor Hagen of Winnipeg was chosen council member at the closing sessions of the three-day annual meeting.

The Manitoba Football Association received a $5,000 loan for construction of its new Winnipeg stadium.

The juvenile and junior promotion committee, which tabled its report at Sunday night's session, was granted $5,000 to continue promoting minor football.

A reserve fund of $15,000 was set up to finance future touring teams. Pinnell said that although the association made money on last year's tour by Tottenham Hotspurs, it might not be so fortunate in the future.

The council of the association was given permission to examine the whole financial structure of the FAC playoffs. The association lost money in staging the Dominion final last year.

A New Sponsor Backing Lacrosse Club

Following an executive meeting of the Peterborough Senior Lacrosse Club last night, it was announced that Harry McGinness, local trailer manufacturer, would take over sponsorship of the club this season. The Petes had been sponsored the last two years by Timber Structures, and before that by Armstrong's and by Ostrander's. The team won the Mann Cup the last two years.

It was also reported that all of last year's championship club would be available again, including Jerry Fitzgerald and Harry Wipper, while Merv McKenzie of Hamilton Tigers would come here if he doesn't get the position of Ontario Athletic Commissioner. He has his application in for this spot, letf open by the death of Fred Steele. It is not known yet what Arn Dugan plans to do this season. Other reports have been made recently that the local club is interested in obtaining Denny Peterson from Mimico and Max Woolley of St. Catharines.

Lester Patrick, manager of New York Rangers and then 44 years old, replaced the injured Lorne Chabot in goal in the second period of their Stanley Cup game against Maroons at Montreal 25 years ago tonight. Lester allowed only one goal as Rangers won 2-1 in overtime. Rangers captured the cup that year by three games to two.

Famed Midget Wrestlers In Tag Team Match At The Brock Arena Wednesday Night

Timothy Geohagen, fresh from his victory at Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, over Killer Kowaliski, looks like the logical one to whip the Red Mask when they meet in the main event at the Brock Arena Wednesday night.

Geohagen pinned the Mask here last week in a team match and if he can repeat this feat Wednesday night—off comes the mask! The Irishman's fabulous strength will be a big help in his scoring a decision, plus his Irish Sleeper hold.

MIDGETS ATTRACT ATTENTION

Great interest is being shown in the first appearance here of the world-famous midget wrestlers, who ar in a team match. Mighty Schultz and Major Tom Thumb oppose Prince Saile Helassie and Little Beaver. The small men are packing them in wherever they appear and a record crowd is predicted for the Brock Arena.

Larry Moquin, the fiery Frenchman takes on Bert Ruby in the opener. This will be Ruby's first appearance here and he is highly rated in mat circles.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

It was 20 years ago, around two o'clock in the morning of April 4, 1933, that the smallest player in modern National League history, darted past the big defensive outposts, and whistled home the goal that ended the longest game played in organized hockey up to that time—a 1-0 victory for Toronto Leafs, over Boston Bruins in a Stanley Cup play-down series final, after 106 minutes, 46 seconds of extra time, with the sixth overtime period underway.

There has since been one longer game, the epic 1-0 battle between Montreal Maroons and Detroit Red Wings, that lasted until 2:25 o'clock on the morning of March 25, 1936, when the teams battled 116 minutes 30 seconds of overtime before the Red Wings won. But for sheer drama, for a story-book finish that no Hollywood script writer could excel, that long 1933 struggle packed the most spine-tingling finish of any such marathon due, in any sport.

For tiny Doraty, who stood little more than 5 feet 6 inches in height, carried only 132 pounds on his diminutive frame, the smallest player in the League, was the pygmy who broke up the battle.

Dozens of scoring thrusts had failed to pierce the armour of Tiny Thompson in the Boston nets, and dozens more had been foiled by Lorne Chabot, Toronto custodian when Lanky Andy Blair teamed up with tiny Doraty to post the game's only goal.

The sixth overtime period had barely started when Blair was sent to pay special attention to the great Eddie Shore, pivot of the Bruin offensive corps. The former University of Manitoba star checked the great defenceman twice as he tried to break away. On his third attempt Shore batted the puck ahead of him—right on Blair's stick.

In two long strides Andy crossed the blue-line into Bruin territory. He sidestepped Shore, and as the Boston rearguard swung around to jab at the puck, Blair shot it ahead to Doraty, streaking for the net. The winger nailed it in his stride and skated in on Thompson to fire into a corner of the net.

Varied proposals to end the game after 100 minutes overtime had been played failed. The players were so tired and attacks lacked steam to a degree when President Frank Calder of the N.H.L. asked managers Art Ross of Boston and Conny Smythe of Toronto to flip a coin and decide the issue. Both refused. Then Calder suggested the goal-tenders be taken out of the game to facilitate scoring the winning goal. The managers couldn't see that idea.

"To a finish" was finally ruled. And the finish came with dramatic impact just four minutes and 46 seconds after resumption of play.

Hawks, Habs Stage Battle For Stanley Cup Final Berth

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP)—Chicago Black Hawks and Montreal Canadiens will settle in one game tonight something they couldn't do in six. Their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final goes one way or the other in this game. And the winner goes on to meet the upstart Boston Bruins in the championship final. Game by game, drama crowded in on the six playoff meetings. A 24-year-old rookie goaltender, who had played in only three National Hockey League games in his life and never in a Stanley Cup series, even got into the act.

He was Jacques Plante, called on by Canadiens Saturday night to take over from Gerry McNeil. McNeil's nerves cracked after his team dropped three straight games to the Hawks.

MADE HOCKEY HISTORY

Plante made hockey history when Canadiens won 3-0. He was the first rookie goalie to step into Stanley Cup play and score a shutout.

Three other minor-league players—Eddie Mazur, Lorne Davis and Calum Mackay — who displaced three regulars and were a big factor in the protection given Plante will also see action tonight.

McNeil worked out Monday and suffered a damaged ankle—enough to sideline him anyway — when struck by a shot by Rocket Richard.

In the Hawk net will be 26-year-old Al Rollins, who has risen to great heights in this series. Rollins, with Toronto Maple Leafs until this season, has played in 182 regular NHL games and 12 Stanley Cup games.

Plante played in three games this season with Canadiens when McNeil was injured. Four goals were scored against him. He was called up from Canadiens' Buffalo farm club in the American Hockey League.

HAWKS FLY IN

Coach Sid Abel brought the Hawks in by plane Monday.

"We have no injuries," he said. "We'll go with the same team. All our fellows are in good spirit. They were disappointed, of course, at losing that last game. I think the pressure is on Canadiens more than on us. They're the team that has to come from behind to take this series."

Coach Dick Irvin of Montreal came from his team's light practice with a grin and commented:

"It was one of those giddy-up practices, lots of spirit. We'll use the same team that played Saturday and if the boys play as well in this final game as they did then we will win."

Irish Upset Barrie 6-4 To Lead Series

BARRIE (CP)—Toronto St. Michael's held off a spirited offensive in the final period to defeat Barrie Flyers 6-4 and take a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven semi-finals of the Eastern Canada Memorial Cup playoffs.

The sixth game will be played in Toronto Wednesday.

St. Mikes bounced into a 4-1 lead in the first period and in the second each team scored once. Then the Flyers pierced the Toronto line for two goals in the final, with St. Mikes replying only once.

St. Mikes took command from the start and counted their first while Fred Pletsch was serving time for Barrie. Jack Caffery slapped in the puck after Dick Duff had cleared from behind the Flyers net. Mike Ratchford notched one in a scramble around the Barrie net and then set up Les Duff's counter a few seconds later. Pletsch put the Flyers on the score sheet at 12:56 from Jim Robertson and Bob White.

PERIOD DELAYED

At 18 minutes of the first frame Bill Harrington took a hard puck on the right leg and the period was delayed 10 minutes. When play resumed Bill Dinneen put Majors ahead 4-1 when he pulled Harrington out of the net and neatly pushed in the counter. At the end of the resumed first period play Harrington had to leave the game and was replaced by George Cuculick, a youngster that has only appeared in Barrie practice sessions to date.

Art Clune added another for the Collegians at 2:10 of the second. Referee Jerry Olinski made himself unpopular with the Barrie fans at 3:35 when he handed out a 10-minute misconduct penalty to Bob White for skating into him (Olinski). The game was delayed again while the ice was cleared of debris.

Seconds after the ice had been cleared and play resumed Olinski sent Dineen and Thibeault off for interference. Barrie started to apply the pressure and peppered Chadwick with shots but the only one to pass the St. Mikes netminder was a sizzler from Jim Robertson at the 8:41 mark.

KEEP UP PRESSURE

The Flyers kept the pressure going in the third and it paid off at 2:32 when Skip Teal counted. At 7:26 Tessier and Lee both went off for high sticking. Nine seconds later a brawl developed resulting in Tony Poeta of Barrie drawing a five-minute major and Ed Plata of Toronto getting a five-minute major and a 10-minute misconduct. Referee Olinski retired to the Barrie dressing room for medical attention and once again the game was delayed.

With Barrie playing three men to four Orv Tessier made his counter at 10:57 but Ratchford shoved the puck past Flyer netminder Cuculick three minutes later to keep the Majors in front.

Barons Intend To Use Heller

CLEVELAND (AP)—In spite of a protest by Pittsburgh, Cleveland Barons announced Monday night that veteran Ehrhardt (Ott) Heller will play for them in the second American Hockey League playoff game.

Barons general manager Jim Hendy said Heller has been signed to take the place of Bob Bailey, the young centre injured in Cleveland's 2-0 victory over Pittsburgh Saturday.

Pittsburgh, which meets the Barons at the Arena here tonight in the second of the best-of-seven series for the Calder Cup, complained that the 42-year-old Heller is ineligible.

However, Hendy said Emory Jones of St. Louis, league president, had disagreed with the Hornets and said this addition of a player during playoffs is legal.

Heller has been playing pro hockey for 24 seasons. This season he has been a playing coach at Cleveland's farm club at New Haven in the Eastern League.

Compromise Dates Arranged For Series

WINNIPEG (CP)—Compromise dates have been worked out by the sponsor of the Western Canada senior women's basketball champions and officials of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association for the Canadian championship final series in Toronto.

Gordon McDonald, coach of Vancouver Eilers, said Monday his sponsor, Walter Eilers of Vancouver, arranged the series with officials of the CABA to be played starting either April 12 or 13 and continuing for the succeeding five nights. They play Benny's Maids of Toronto.

McDonald said if the series goes beyond the 15th his team will fly back to Vancouver from Toronto with the CABA footing the bill for the extra cost of flying.

He said Walter Eilers also contributed to the extra cost.

Kramer And Segura Sweep Tennis Honors

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jack Kramer and Pancho Segura swept pro tennis honors Monday night from Australians Frank Sedgman and Ken McGregor.

Kramer dumped Sedgman, 6-2, 7-5 for his 38th win in 63 starts against the former amateur king. Segura trimmed McGregor, 6-4, 8-6. It was the Ecuadorian's third straight victory over McGregor and it gave him a 48-15 lead in the 100-match pro tour.

Kramer and Segura defeated Sedgman and McGregor in the doubles, 12-10.

STOCKS NOSEDIVE ON PEACE HINTS — Talk of possible truce in Korea touched off a wave of stock-selling throughout the country. Typical of the frantic activity in stock marts is this picture of the Chicago Board of Trade where grain prices went into a tailspin. The New York Stock Exchange saw its heaviest selling in more than two years. In the first full day after Korean peace overtures started, 2,740,000 shares were sold there. The second day topped the first, with 3,120,000 shares traded. Rails, motors, aircrafts and oils were hardest hit. Monday, the market took another sharp drop.

Nude Dancers Celebrate On Easter Day

SHORE ACRES, B.C. (CP)—The nude dancers are back at their week-day labors in this little Doukhobor village where Sunday a demonstration of "innocence and purity" broke up an Easter Day religious ceremony.

Before a huge bonfire the dancers, mostly teen-age girls and boys, chanted the Russian hymns of the radical Sons of Freedom.

Clothing and money were thrown on the flames and the traditional salt and bread—omens of goodwill at all Doukhobor ceremonies—were burned.

Banners proclaiming the spiritual leadership of Stefan Sorokin were heaped on the burning pile.

Recently the radical Freedomites split on the question of leadership.

NO ONE HURT

No one was injured in Sunday's demonstration but it was a riotous 20 minutes as John Perelpkin, a leader of the Brotherhood of Reformed Dukhobors, started his Easter sermon.

Doukhobors shouted "Christ will be our only guide;" women disrobed, and soon the men were stripping, all throwing their clothes on the flames.

Newspapes men watching the demonstration were told is expressed the innocence and purity of the Doukhobors.

Speakers denied responsibility for recent bombings and fires in tne Kootenays.

A CORONATION SCENE — VII

CORONATION PRAYER—A film has been made of drawings of the Queen's Coronation next June in Westminster Abbey and will be shown publicly by the British Information Office. In this artist's drawing, the Archbishop of Canterbury is at the High Altar. He raises the crown of St. Edward the Confessor while he prays for God's blessing on the Queen. The actual crowning ceremony follows.

Fireman Dies In Brandon Blaze

BRANDON (CP)—A fireman was killed Monday when a fire gutted one of the city's major business blocks.

The victim was Frederick J. Brown, 58, a veteran of the Brandon fire department. His body was discovered in the basement of the building.

Damage was estimated at $250,000. The ground floor of the building, owned by the Olympia Candy Company, was occupied by the Olympia Cafe. The other floors held a firm of accountants, an insurance company, a dentist's office and an apartment. Only the brick walls were left standing.

United Kingdom Critics Pan Stalag 17 As A Comedy

LONDON (Reuters)—The play "Stalag 17" took a panning from the critics after its opening here Sunday night but the star, Canadian actor Lee Patterson, says he thinks the reviewers were way off base.

"I can't understand it," he said. "I thought the audience was wonderful. When we stood for calls, the people were screaming and yelling for us."

The bad press probably was a surprise for the backers, who billed the comedy as "America's greatest laughter-maker." The Donald Bevan-Edmund Trzcinski comedy was a Broadway hit.

The British critics damned the play as a comedy, but gave it some praise as a well-constructed melodrama.

In "Stalag 17," which deals with the boredom and fears of U.S airmen in a Nazi prison camp, Patterson plays a friendless cynic who is beaten up by his comrades as a suspected Nazi agent, but turns out to be the bravest man present.

CRITICS LIKED HIM

His acting was one of the few things the critics liked.

Patterson, 24, broke into the theatre after coming over here from his Toronto home a year ago.

He got parts in "South Pacific," "Johnny Belinda" and "Death of a Salesman," each time as an American.

"Stalag 17," he said Monday, "is the supreme break for me."

The show may run and may not, but Patterson is taking no chances and is dickering for a movie part.

If he gets it, he wants to bring his mother here from her Oshawa, home for a vacation.

"Switzerland"

RAY EGGERSTED

RAY EGGERSTED'S cultural, artistic achievements have won recognition from the National Geographic Society and the National Education Association.

"Switzerland" is a film of one of the world's most unique little countries. Although small in size, it has attracted visitors from the four corners of the globe. We will thrill to its traditional customs, picturesque architecture, colorful festivals, with dancing and carnivals. Here is a land with many arts and skilled crafts — lace making — wood and ivory carving — watch making.

There will be visits to Basel, Switzerland's Gateway and only seaport with 2,000,000 tons of imports a year — Stone-walled vineyards in Vaud, rising in graceful terraces beside lovely Lake Geneva — Neuchatel — centre of watchmaking — the modern town of Zurich and laces of ancient St. Gallens.

Thrills and breathtaking sights are at Valais, the highest Alps and Switzerland's richest fruit growing district. St. Moritz, the Jungfrau—Monarch of the Alps, the snow capped Matterhorn—soaring 14,780 feet. Historic Furka Pass and the great Rhone Glacier.

Finally we will arrive at Berne, the Swiss capital, retaining its medieval appearance, ornamental fountains, historic clock and zoological gardens. Picturesque Alpine Chalets, flowers and summer villas flank Europe's deepest Lake Maggiore on the Italian border. This is a fitting, close to a most colourful, spectacular evening spent with the remarkable and talented Ray Eggersted.

Malenkov Making Moves To Popularize Regime

By DON DALLAS

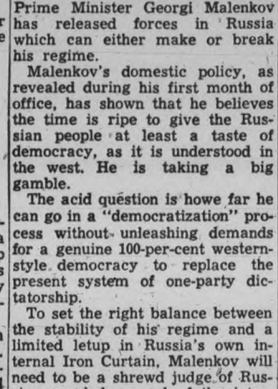
LONDON (Reuters) — Soviet Prime Minister Georgi Malenkov has released forces in Russia which can either make or break his regime.

Malenkov's domestic policy, as revealed during his first month of office, has shown that he believes the time is ripe to give the Russian people at least a taste of democracy, as it is understood in the west. He is taking a big gamble.

The acid question is howe far he can go in a "democratization" process without unleashing demands for a genuine 100-per-cent western-style democracy to replace the present system of one-party dictatorship.

To set the right balance between the stability of his regime and a limited letup in Russia's own internal Iron Curtain, Malenkov will need to be a shrewd judge of Russian psychology and of the internal situation.

MORE POPULARITY



The immediate effect of several of his moves on the home front will undoubtedly be to popularize his administration. Two major moves to date have been the declaring of a general amnesty, freeing tens of thousands of prisoners serving up to five-year terms, and the freeing of the group of doctors accused of having committed "medical murder."

The general amnesty, which freed an unspecified number of political prisoners, as well as common criminals, is undoubtedly a liberal step. But it is nowhere near as far-reaching in its implications as "the case of the doctors."

Of the many aspects of this unprecedented move, the most important are: (1) the admission that the state was wrong in jailing the doctors; (2) the admission that the interrogation methods adopted were "impermissible" and not in accordance with Soviet law.

To the Russian people the implication that the third-degree methods of interrogating suspects and in getting forced confessions now are ruled out of order will be staggering news.

The weekend Russian announcement may imply that the power of the dreaded secret police now will be lessened.

POSTED TO KOREA—Flt.-Lt. William Bliss, 29, of Toronto, a flight commander with No. 439 Sabre-tooth Tiger squadron in England, leaves for Korea this month and a tour of duty with the United States air force. He is the 19th RCAF pilot to serve six months or 50 missions, whichever is shorter. Flt.-Lt. Bliss served overseas with the RCAF in the Second World War.

Police Identify Amnesia Victim

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A 70-year-old amnesia victim, ill in Victoria Hospital since police picked him up in towntown London Thursday, was identified Monday by his family as Samuel Wesley Wilcox of Chatham.

Police said a brother of the man —known only as "John Doe No. 1" since he was placed in hospital—arrived in town Monday and identified the mystery man in hospital.

Cause of Mr. Wilcox's loss of memory is not known. Authorities said the elderly man thought his first name was Samuel and that he lived in Essex county, but he could give no reliable clue to his identity.

Nasty Water Taste To Be Gone Soon

OAKVILLE (CP) — The nasty taste in Oakville's water supply should be gone today.

The Oakville Water and Light Company announced it is having an apparatus installed to remove the disinfectant-like taste from the water. Officials said the cause of the taste was presence of phenol, a derivative of carbolic acid which originates in factory waste.

One chemical analyst said that the origin of the acid could have been trade waste in Lake Ontario. Another report said a Hamilton industry might be responsible.

The equipment being installed will introduce chlorine dioxide in the water. It oxidizes the acid and many other unpleasant chemicals.

Prepare Big Blast

MONTREAL (CP)—Preparations are being completed for the biggest blast ever planned in Montreal. Wednesday, the second of a series of four dynamite blasts for a shopping centre excavation on east end Sherbrooke Street will be set off and contractors say it will be the biggest explosion ever set off in a metropolitan area in Canada. The detonation of 2,200 pounds of dynamite will break up and lift 2,600 cubic yards or 5,700 tons of limestone rock.

TORONTO (CP)—Gordon McMurdy, 6, unconscious for 4½ months after he collided with an automobile near his home in St. Catharines, died Saturday. His father is playing-coach for a Springfield, Mass., hockey team.

The boy was admitted to hospital at St. Catharines but, when he did not rally, was transferred to the Hospital for Sick Children here last December.

The boy's father, Doug McMurdy from Winnipeg, was chosen most valuable player in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series in the 1944-45 season.

WINDSOR — (CP) — Some $31,882 was contributed to the overseas flood relief fund before the drive closed during the week-end. The fund, sponsored by the Windsor Daily Star, was organized to help those who suffered loss in England, Belgium and Holland when the North sea flooded parts of those countries in February.

3 Die In Cabin

RED DEER, Alta. (CP)—Three persons were asphyxiated in a tourist cabin here Monday. Dead: Mrs. Freda Hill of Sexsmith, Alta., her son, Donald, 16, and Charlie Foster, an employee on the Penhold Construction Work. Coroner Dr. W. A. Carter said death was due to carbon monoxide fumes from a blocked chimney.

Paints Roof At 97

EDMONTON (CP)—H. M. Warden has taken advantage of the fine spring weather to paint the roof of his house. That's quite a feat for a man of 97. "I work all the time," said Mr. Warden, who was born in New York state in 1855 and came here via Brockville, Ont., and Vermilion, Alta. "It keeps me going."

Shellac Drum Explodes

MONTREAL (CP) — Tramway passengers were given a scare Monday when a drum of shellac exploded and turned a downtown street into a flaming river after being struck by a street car. No one was injured. Firemen doused the flames in short order. The drum fell from a delivery truck.

Tiles Are All Handmade Popular For Church Domes

By JEAN E. STENTON

PUEBLA. — This city's tile factories which turn out Talavera ware which is famous the world over, supply much of the tile for buildings in Mexico and South American countries. It is especially popular for church domes. Although it is kept up more as a tradition today, the pottery is still important for the poor people.

* * * *

The designs used are similar to those in Spain, Portugal and Italy. They are old fashioned and made by hand. There are many different kinds of pottery in this ware.

* * * *

This industry was developed in the 17th century and you have to see it to appreciate the bright designs and colors. Blue, yellow, green, red, white and black glazed colors that last indefinitely.

* * * *

Although Puebla is known better to visitors for its tile factories, its big industry is textiles. Fifty per cent of Mexico's textile industry is centred here and there are about 300 factories producing machine-made things.

* * * *

ALSO GLASS MANUFACTURE

Glass is another of the old arts which has been kept on. The first glass factory on this continent was established here and today they are noted for vidriada—a glass finished in black which is used only on All Souls Day in November. At that time it is sold all over the country. It is used in jars, chandeliers, etc.

* * * *

Onyx goods are popular in this area too. You can get lovely boxes, bookends, little animals in attractive colors in the portales where many of the small businessmen have their kiosks or stands. My sales resistance melted after about the fourth time I walked through the arcades.

* * * *

Puebla has a mayor, Lic. Nicolas Vazguez and there are eight men on the council, elected by the people every three years. The governor of the state is elected for six years.

* * * *

When Puebla was founded, the height of the buildings could only equal the width of the street. In the oldest section, therefore, you see a number of one-storey buildings.

* * * *

Puebla is an historical city and in the 17th century it was the second city of America in size. In the 18th century, only Mexico and Havana had more inhabitants. In 1910 the Revolution started from the home of Aguiles Maximo y Carmen Serdan, November 18, and in two days it had spread across the Republic. Serdan was the first revolutionary to die in Puebla.

BIG HELP TO TOURISTS

The Comision de Tourismo de Puebla is a live-wire organization although it has only been operating for 1½ years. Its objective is something like a Canadian Chamber of Commerce, to be of assistance to tourists and to make Puebla known. It is strictly an information office, not a guide office.

* * * *

Originally there was a state government tourist office but this closed and the governor suggested that the people of Puebla open one of their own. The office is supported mainly by donations from 19 business groups, service clubs and industries. In addition to giving information, they licence guides, check hotels and investigate complaints.

* * * *

At the moment the Comision is mailing out forms to areas throughout the state to collect information. The towns and villages are asked to give detailed data about what they have to offer, conditions, etc. It is hoped to use much of this information in a report for the government to improve conditions such as education.

* * * *

The President of the Comision, Guillermo Vigil-Escalera and the vice-president, Lic. Marin, volunteer their services. Director Lic. Juan Manuel Brito and the sub-director Sr. de la Concha are paid staff members. De la Concha is the representative of the Governor of Puebla state and he also acts as photographer. There is one staff member, Sr. Pablo Huerta, who acts as an English interpreter and there is also a Spanish-speaking secretary.

* * * *

All queries for information about Puebla are answered and Sr. Huerta prepares all the pamphlets with their English translation. The staff is extremely obliging and will go to all kinds of trouble to assist visitors.

PUEBLA IS FAMOUS for its tiles and ceramic work. The very finest in Mexico is said to come from this city. A young worker is shown above doing different objects which have made the city famous.

Duck Affected By Spring Lays Six Eggs In One Day

MARMORA (ENS). — Whether it's the influence of the Easter season or the pace of modern living no one can say, but there's a duck in this community that lays eggs on a mass production schedule.

Furthermore, 12-year-old Billy Cronkright, the duck's owner, wasn't anxious to tell about it.

"They'll never believe it," he said.

Some time ago Billy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Cronkright, became the owner of a drake and a duck of the Rouen breed. They were placed inside a little pen with sides 2½ feet high. An old barrel was laid on its side within the pen and a layer of sawdust was placed in it to serve as a nest.

On each of five successive days when the lad went out he discovered an egg in the nest. He put the eggs in a room inside the house to keep them warm until he could obtain a hen to set on them as he planned to raise ducks.

When he went out on the sixth day he was startled to find no fewer than six eggs, although the nest had been thoroughly cleaned and the sawdust shaken out the night before.

His first thought was that his mother had taken the first five eggs back out to the nest and so he ran into the house to ask her why she had done it.

"You'll chill the eggs," he complained.

The boy's mother immediately showed him that the first five eggs were still in the house where he had put them.

The next day there was no egg in the nest, but on the following day, to Billy's utter consternation, there were three more eggs, although a strict watch had been kept on the pen.

The following day there were no eggs, but there was one the day after that and another two days later.

Not only has the case got Billy puzzled, but his parents and brother are mystified as well. The possibility of someone playing a trick on him is remote because no one else is known to be raising ducks in the vicinity.

Although the duck has settled down to a normal production schedule now, there's no telling when she'll decide to increase her rate of output again.

Meanwhile Billy's looking forward to a future of "Ducks Unlimited."

Visiting Newsmen Leave For Warsaw

MOSCOW (AP)—Seven American newspaper and radio editors—the first delegation of U. S. newspapermen to visit the Soviet Union in six years—left Moscow today by train for Warsaw and Berlin.

A group of Russian officials and Soviet newspapermen were on hand at the railroad station to see them off. The Americans had been in Moscow for seven days. They went many places, saw many things, talked with many Soviet citizens and took scores of photographs.

The editors arrived March 31 by air via Stockholm and Helsinki on Soviet entry visas issued unexpectedly the previous week in London.

Surplus From '52 Canneries To Stay Idle

COBOURG— (ENS)— A good many farmers in this district will not be planting tomatoes as a cash crop this year.

Due to a surplus of canned tomatoes from last year, district canneries of Canadian Canners will not be putting up tomatoes in 1953.

The manger of the Port Hope Cannery said Monday that the demand for processed apples would take up any unemployment that might otherwise result.

In Salem, Colborne and Lakeport, the canneries do tomatoes and so will be closed this year. In Cobourg only corn and peas are canned and this factory will be busy as usual. In Bowmanville, corn and peas are canned but the cannery there will be closed.

District farmers who had planned on cash crop tomatoes will be forced to go into some other substitute produce. Unfortunately for them, they cannot switch to corn and peas as the cannery here has booked up enough from its usual producers.

The loss of income will affect farmers and labourers alike. Canned tomatoes didn't sell as well as expected last year and so there is too much of last year's pack on hand. Buyer resistance to paying a relatively high price for canned tomatoes when they can readily obtain fresh tomatoes from the United States is one reason. Higher production costs have affected the price charged for canned tomatoes.

Idle Hands

Firemen were being kept busy today putting out grass fires throughout the city as the combination of Easter holidays and the arrival of good weather conspired to infect schoolchildren with a desire to spend their first leisure hours of spring lighting bonfires in vacant lots and other open spaces. This morning the department was called out to extinguish a grass fire on Rogers St. and two more broke out almost simultaneously shortly after noon, one on Armour Hill and one on Erskine Ave.

Sentences Total 116 Months, Served In 22

"Brains" of a two-man forgery and break-in team, Allan Ross Gillian of Toronto was sentenced to 22 months definite and one year indefinite in the Ontario reformatory on four forgery and two break-in charges today by Magistrate W. R. Philp.

The 19 year-old Gillian was pictured by Crown Attorney John Bradshaw, QC, as "the active brains of the team." Later when questioned by Magistrate Philp, Gillian admitted "it was my idea."

His partner in the three-month career of fraud and break-ins was John Cross, 23, who was sentenced to 18 months definite and one year indefinite last Tuesday for cashing forged cheques. Cross also faces additional charges.

Four forgery charges against Gillian were laid since March 20 when the first of a series of cheques which finally totalled $112.70 appeared in Norwood.

PULLED IN JANUARY

The two-break-ins were accomplished January 25 at Blackwood and Co., and February 20 at Inman's Grains.

Testifying against the accused were OPP Constable John Cawood and Peterborough Sergeant of Detectives John Stevenson. PC Cawood handled the forgery investigations and Sergeant Stevenson testified on the breakin charges.

Summing up after completing questioning on the charges, to which Gillian had pleaded guilty, Crown Attorney Bradshaw told the Magistrate "while the accused is youthful you can see by his statements he was the active brains of the team; he seldom cashed the cheques himself . . ."

On each forgery count Gillian was sentenced to 18 months definite and one year indefinite.

On the two charges of breaking and entering, he was sentenced to 22 months definite and a year indefinite. All terms will run concurrently.

Child Rushed To Toronto For Operation

Kinmount Boy Had Peanut In Lung; Family Burned Out

LINDSAY—(ENS)—Provincial Police Monday rushed a 14-month-old boy from Minden to Toronto for an operation to remove a peanut from his lung.

Saturday night the home of the boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Hartin of Kinmount, was burned to the ground. All their personal belongings were lost.

It was the second mercy trip to Toronto in four days for police officers of the Haliburton and Victoria areas. Friday they rushed 19-year-old Nancy Ann Bounsell of Haliburton to Toronto. Sunday she died in Toronto's Western Hospital of injuries received in a fall from her horse.

CONDITION SATISFACTORY

Today in the Hospital for Sick Children the condition of Leone Hartin was described as satisfactory after a successful operation.

The youngster swallowed a peanut about two weeks ago. When Dr. Agnes Jamieson of Minden examined him Sunday she found the peanut had become lodged in his lung and his condition was serious.

This came a day after the Hartins and their four children, including the sick boy, were forced to flee from their burning frame home. Mr. Hartin, an employee of the HEPC had recently wired his new home, but had not yet received approval of the installation.

New Chamber Of Commerce

Board Of Trade Started 99 Years Ago

The 100th anniversary of the forming of the first Board of Trade in Peterborough falls some time in 1954.

From the incorporation of the town in 1950, the centenary of which Peterborough celebrated three years ago, organization of branches of civic activity and hope was an interesting phase of the town's development and progress.

The Board of Trade was an early symbol of community ambition beginning to stir in the crude town which had only emerged from its uncertain status as the northeast corner of North Monaghan township.

James Hall was the first president of the Board. Certain other gentlemen were associated with him in that group which was setting out to make Peterborough a bigger and better place to live in. Probably their association appropriated that ancient slogan as an ideal and objective for the full grown town on the banks of the Otonabee.

This information may be passed on to the Chamber of Commerce. If they are interested, they have a centenary of their own in 1954.

Eventually, the Board of Trade ran out of enthusiasm. Perhaps, expansion was not happening fast enough for the forward looking citizens of that swaddling stage of Peterborough's advancement. They didn't lack liveliness in the scope of opportunity that lay around them.

MANY ADVANCES

The building of railways, canal, gravel roads, all such constructive enterprises they took to hand with more or less accomplishment. It seemed that whenever a group of those citizens got together they formed some company or another.

A few years after the incorporation of the town, some of those main streeters organized the Peterborough Petroleum Company, and they actually got to work and spent $1,252 in boring to a depth of 250 feet. That project ended with the loss of the operative point of the machine. The same James Hall was president of the company and A. Stewart was the secretary. The first mooting of the scheme was heard in June, 1854, organization was well advanced in August, and James Craigie who appears to have had much to do with the mechanics of the work was actively boring for oil about the middle of September. That was all confined to 1865.

People today can look back with considerable sympathy on those fellow townsmen, separated from themselves only in time, when they read an item such as this: "James Hall was commissioned by the council to go to Montreal and sell debentures of the town. He sold £1,000 at 22 per cent discount, and reported that the balance could be disposed of at 21 per cent. discount."

However, that is straying from the approaching centennial year of the Board of Trade. And, if their energies lapsed between times, the spark and spirit revived again, and the final establishment was some 60 years ago.

Since then the Chamber of Commerce has been in continuous existence, but its actual conception in Peterborough was one century ago.

Fears Business Influence On School Sport

TORONTO (CP) — Joseph McCulley, warden of Hart House, warns that there is an ever-present danger that some of the attitudes and practices of professional and commercialized sport will influence both players and coaches on school teams.

Addressing the men's physical education section of the Ontario Education ssociation, Mr. McCulley said Monday night there is nothing to be gained by teachers complaining about inroads of professionalism. He added:

"It is the role of the teacher to continually emphasize those values in sport which contribute positively to the growth and development of the normal adolescent. An educator must constantly reassert his fundamental belief in the dignity of the individual; he must constantly reaffirm that games, sports, athletics, are a vital party of an educational program designed to assist in the development of well-rounded human beings."

PRESENTS CODE

Mr. McCulley, former headmaster of Pickering College, Newmarket, and deputy commissioner of penitentiaries, presented a code for both players and coaches in school athletics.

Code for players: play the game for the game's sake; be generous in winning; be graceful in losing; be fair at all times, no matter what the cost; be obedient to the rules; work for the good of the team.

Code for coaches: The game is a game for happiness; the rules are to be regarded as mutual agreements; visiting teams and spectators are the honored guests of the home team; no advantages are to be sought over others except those of superior skill; officials and opponents are to be regarded and treated as honest in intentions; decisions of officials are to be accepted without outward appearance of vexation; to win is always desirable, but to win at any cost defeats the purpose of the game.

Professor Outlines Promotion Problems

TORONTO (CP) — Clifford M. Pitt, associate professor of education at the Ontario College of Education, today warned teachers that it can be as equally dangerous not to promote a pupil to a higher grade as it is to promote that pupil too quickly.

Mr. Pitt told the urban teachers' section of the Ontario Educational Association "other children tease retarded children about their failure. Retarded children tend to worry more than others about promotion, become discouraged and wish to quit school earlier."

On the other hand, he said, too rapid promotion is harmful if the child's physical or social development is inferior to his academic achievement.

Mr. Pitt said the belief of many teachers that the threat of failure will motivate children to redouble their efforts has been disproven.

World Of Electronics Outlined To Rotary Club

An insight into the modern field of electronics and what part they are playing in the fields of industry, research, entertainment and home consumption was given to members of the Rotary Club Monday by Harry Hulme, Electronics Equipment sales manager for eastern Ontario for the CGE.

Electronics, said Mr. Hulme, is that branch of physics which deals with the emission, behaviour and effect of elctronics. Speaking in a broader sense, electronics is man's most versatile slave. It is a geni who can move mountains, a magic carpet that can guide itself through storms or darkness. A magic mirror that can show you the other side of the world.

Electronics today control the rivers of molten metal, measures the thickness and strength of materials without touching them, discards one bad bean from a ton of beans, finds hidden treasure buried in the ground, turns street lights on as dusk approaches, smells dangerous gas leaks and warns of the approach of intruders in total darkness.

USE IN WAR

Through electronics, guns can shoot straighter, planes fly farther and faster. Electronics sense the approach of enemy ships, planes or submarines and marks their position. Controls the guns that fire at them and guides missiles that speed to destroy the approaching enemy.

Electronics is an infant and is passing from the laboratory stage through the engineer to the proven field of practical and economic use throughout the home and industry.

The greatest single invention of the electronic age has been the vacuum tube. It has always been thought that electronics could not be put to work in a vacuum tube.

But the vacuum tube is the backbone of present industry. In the last decade, with the prodigious Second World War developments and the advent of television, electronics has grown swiftly. It is now the newest giant among the front line defence industries. In any all-out war, it is estimated that expenditures would run to three or four times the peak in the Second World War.

The basic part of the industry in Canada is the tube manufacturing plant, of which there are three in Canada.

In the entertainment industry, television has been a rocket in carrying the industry to new heights. In Canada today there is a total of 222,000 in operation, representing a total of 100 million dollars.

Television is destined to become one of the nation's biggest businesses. Its history goes back to 1923 when inventors in England and the United States, working independently, produced and demonstrated systems of mechanical television.

Home radio receivers are limited in volume by the potential of the number of wired homes in Canada today. The use of more than one receiving set per household is occurring. In home entertainment, audio techniques have progressed to an amazing status of quality reproduction.

It will not be long before small business offices will be able to keep business accounts, to run continuous sales records, compute and send out bills, handle entire payrolls, keep running inventories, serve as vast filing systems and chart corporate expansion with the use of electronic business machines.

The transition from purely mechanical adding machines and typewriters to electronically operated machines of all descriptions is well on its way to achievement. In Canada today, there are a number of installations of electronic calculators. A device used at A. V. Roe at Malton provides air frame and jet engine design calculators that normally would be uneconomic to carry out.

The 1951 Canadian census was conducted with electrographic pencils. The marks were electronically arranged, sorted and classifield.

One of the more important growing branches of the electronic field is the non-broadcast radio communication service which, according to the figures, is more significant than the television and broadcast station increases.

In industry, electronics has become an important business. Many companies are hiring electronic engineers to study ways of adapting this new tool in their business. The industrial field is enormous for automatic control in the process industries, textiles, chemicals, oils, plastics and rubber manufacturing.

Photo-electric register controls for printing machines are becoming standard and they offer economic challenges to the modern question: can we afford to use hand controls?

There has been, of course, a tremendous advance in the electronic assistance to medicine. The X-ray machine, the Encephalograph and photo-electric calculators.

In the realm of research for the treatment of deep-seated cancer. By means of a new television camera tube in the operating theatre, provides a bigger image to the medical television viewers and does not interfere with the surgeon's work.

In the science and physics departments during the last 15 years there has been a steady increase in the application of electronic techniques to the problems of experimental physics.

AIRCRAFT USES

The rapid increase in the use of air transport has made the aircraft industry the largest users of electronic equipment.

There is the blind landing instrument approach which is now internationally standardized. The use of radar distance measuring devices which give aircraft distance from the ground beacon. The primary job of the electronic engineer is to open up the dark, the bad weather, ceiling weather and fog hours to safe flying.

The emission of radio waves by various galatic nebulae has enabled astronomers to position the constellations accurately and permit radio astral navigation, although this is undoubtedly in its infancy.

Shipping circles are proving the use of radar as an aid to marine navigation. Marine navigation has now become easier in coastal waters, through congested anchorages, and in trans-oceanic crossings all by the use of electronics. Railroad transportation in Canada is employing electronics in its communication services after passing through an experimental stage.

The new skills and techniques resulting from the development and production of radar, and communications and allied equipment for the services will be of value in the civilian application of electronics.

"It would be unrealistic to say that electronics could win a war. But if we are engaged in a battle for survival we must lean heavily on the science of electronics.

"In such an event we would be outmanned, but the industries that built the Cyclotron, the electric computor, the differential analyzer and the electron microscope—the industry that turned out 550,000 receiving sets and 10 million receiving tubes in 1952 can and will provide us with the necessary edge in superiority.

"A substantial part of our defence program represents gear to be installed in the F-86 and CF-100 aircraft. Another large part is to produce the bulk of equipment to be installed in the North America radar screen."

Jim Girven, of CGE, introduced the guest speaker who was thanked by Paul Irwin.

KIDNEY ACIDS Rob your Rest...

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—blame it on 'nerves'—when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons and excess acids from the blood. If they fail and impurities stay in the system—disturbed rest often follows. If you don't rest well get and use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's help the kidneys so that you can rest better—and feel better. 136

Nursery Rhyme Authority Dies

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP)—Dr. Henry Bett, 77, an authority on nursery rhymes, died today at his home.

Dr. Bett, a prolific author, believed many nursery rhymes and fairy stories could be traced to pagan beliefs.

He believed too that "Little Jack Horner" was based on fact. He said the real Jack Horner made a fortune—"pulled out a plum"—by aiding the suppression of a medaieval monastery. Then he settled down to life as a country squire—hence "what a good boy am I."

Princess Weeps Over Coffin Of Ex-King Carol

ESTORIL, Portugal (Reuters)—Princess Helena knelt sobbing today over the open coffin of ex-King Carol of Romania and cut a lock of his hair to keep as a momento of their love.

It was the last time the princess—formerly Madame Lupescu—would look at the man who married her in 1947, when she was thought to be dying, after a love affair lasting more than 28 years.

Afterwards the coffin of the exiled monarch, who died three days ago at 59, was sealed for the funeral this afternoon near the graves of Portugal's kings in the monastery of Sao Vicente.

CEREMONY AT VILLA

The brief private ceremony was held in Carol's villa here, according to a member of the household.

He said that Princess Helena covered the body with flowers from the garden. Passing her hand over his face, she said in French "Your hands are still so beautiful."

Finally she kissed his hands and sobbed "Adieu, amour de ma vie" (Goodbye, love of my life).

Carol lost his first wife and twice lost his throne—the last time for good—over the tempestuous Mme. Lupescu. She was the commoner wife of one of Carol's army officers when they first met.

He was last at the Old Vic 15 years ago as understudy to Laurence Olivier and Emlyn Williams.

Train Workers For Industry

TORONTO (CP)—A research and education program to show small industries how they can train skilled workmen was described Monday at the annual meeting of the Ontario Industrial Education Council.

The project now consists of three books that outline courses for small industries and detail standards to be met by journeymen. They deal with tool and die makers, machinists and maintenance electricians.

L. J. Sparrow of Canadian General Electric, a director of the council, said that the project should help offset what he considered a serious shortage of skilled tradesmen.

The executive of the council was re-elected. H. R. Ellis, Toronto, is chairman. Directors include L. J. Sparrow, 293 Dalhousie St., Peterborough, and George Marshall, Cornwall.

7 U.S. Editors Touring Soviet Union

Editor's Note:

(Rebecca F. Gross, editor and co-publisher of the Lock Haven, Pa., Express, is one of the U. S. newspaper and radio executives touring the Soviet Union. She has written the following dispatch for The Associated Press).

By REBECCA F. GROSS

MOSCOW (AP)—We argued the pros and cons of capitalism and communism today with a director of Pravda, the official newspaper of the Soviet Communist party.

Sitting in his office in the Pravda plant, seven visiting American newspaper and radio editors talked this vast subject over with director Romanchikov through translators. The experience was most stimulating—I hope to both sides.

We asked Romanchikov if he could foresee the peaceful co-existence of communism and capitalism indefinitely.

His answer was that coexistence was possible any length of time both sides were willing.

He added he hoped we would tell the truth about what we saw here because others had come and said one thing while they were here but something else after they returned home.

DESIRE PEACE

He said the Russian people desire peace as proved by the great investments, the construction and rehabilitation of the city. As we saw in Moscow, he continued, their wish was to continue with that work.

We told him of the desire of Americans also for peace and said that understanding and co-operation were necessary on both sides.

Our talk followed a visit through the printing plant and production departments publishing the official Communist party organ, now circulating 3,500,000 copies daily.

He introduced a stakhanovite (above-standard) linoptype operator who "sets" 120,000 letters daily, as compared to the average of 70,000. The composition, printing and communications equipment through the plant was modern.

If Dreaming Eyes Dance

CHICAGO (AP) — Your eyes apparently dance when you dream.

This dream-dancing is a peculiar kind of rapid, jerky eye movements, Drs. Eugene Aserinsky and Nathaniel Kleitman, University of Chicago physiologists, today told the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

The eye movements were detected by electrical recordings

If the sleeper was wakened when his eyes were dancing, he usually reported he had just been dreaming. He wouldn't recall having dreamt if aroused when there were no such eye movements, or if they had occurred at least half an hour earlier.

This may, they said, provide a way of getting facts about dreams, their frequency and duration, and how they tie in with personality or living habits.

Enjoy After-Easter Ham

HAM on Easter, then the rest of the rosy meat for follow-up meals. That kind of lucky break makes a cook feel happy as a lark.

Perfectly elegant way to use the ham is with a mushroom sauce. Pour this mixture over buttered cooked asparagus on crisp toast. And your family of fans will be pleased as punch with you.

The Creamed Ham On Asparagus has a fresh spring-like look. Tastes that way, too. And it's ready in ... minutes. You'll want this recipe for keeps.

Mushroom Creamed Ham On Asparagus

1 can (1¼ cups) condensed mushroom soup
¼ cup milk
1 cup cubed cooked ham
2 tablespoons diced pimiento
1 pound asparagus spears, cooked (fresh, frozen or 1 No. 2 can)
6 buttered toast triangles

Blend soup, milk, ham and pimiento; heat thoroughly. Place hot asparagus spears on toast; pour sauce over all. 6 servings.

SOUP SCOOPS

Cook Meat Balls in Rich Gravy Sauce: For meat balls deluxe, cook them in a rich sauce made with 1 can of beef gravy. To make meat balls, season 1 pound ground beef with salt and pepper; shape into about 12 balls. Brown these in hot shortening, cooking some sliced onion with the meat; now add the can of beef gravy (about 1¼ cups). Simmer all about 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve the meat balls with cooked buttered rice (about 3 cups). Arrange rice in ring on platter; pour meat balls and gravy into center. Makes a guest-night dinner with green beans and a peach salad.

Garnish Soup With Garlic Croutons: Tasty topper for tomato soup is a sprinkling of garlic croutons. To make these, heat a small clove of garlic (minced) in 2 tablespoons butter or margarine. Then brown about 1 cup of bread cubes in the butter till it is all absorbed. Pass a bowl of croutons at the table. And each one can garnish his own soup.

Woman Shears 40 Sheep

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—Visitors to Australia sometimes say that in making the country a paradise for the working man, it has become something less perfect for the housewife.

An Australian woman recently showed that housewives can sometimes do their work and a man's as well.

Mrs. Ted Leigh of Termeil, a hamlet of 150 people, 160 miles south of Sydney, has seven children and 40 sheep, all of which she looks after while her husband is away on distant timber-cutting. When it came to shearing-time this month, the shearers asked a stiff price for the job and could not say how many days it might take to finish. After all, there was no shearing machine — only hand shears.

So Mrs. Leigh gave the children their breakfast, cut their school lunches and packed si xof them off. With the youngest as fleece picker-up, she made a mid-morning start. By mid-afternoon she had finished and cut the children's afternoon slices of bread and butter.

New Study Made On Time Of Conception

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

CHICAGO (AP) — Great unpredictability in the time of month when a woman can conceive a child is shown in a new study today.

This critical time varies not only among age groups, but even from month to month for the same woman.

The most regular or predictable group is women between ages 25 to 34. Younger women and especially older women show much greater variations.

The study of 117 women is described in an exhibit before the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology by Dr. Mary Collett, Western Reserve University, Dr. Grace Wertenberger, Indiana University Medical school, and Dr. Virginia Fiske, Wellesley College.

Conception time comes when a woman's ovary releases an egg or ovum. It must be fertilized within 24 to 48 hours, or else the egg dies and conception becomes impossible that month. Usually this date of release of an egg, ovulation, has been considered as coming on the 14th day or midway during a 28-day monthly cycle.

Women in these studies took their own temperatures daily, before arising.

TEMPERATURE DROPS

On the day of ovulation, the temperature drops, from usually half a degree to 1½ degrees. This gives the measurement of ovulation date.

Women 17 to 19 years old ovulated between the fifth and 28th days of their cycles, with an average of around 19 days.

Women 20 to 24 showed the same range in time, with most ovulating between the fifth and 18th days.

Women 25 to 34 usually ovulated between the 12th and 16th days, but ranged from the 10th to 22nd day.

After 35, there was a slightly wider range in times, and from 40 to 50 there was tremendous variation in ovulation time.

Aux. Sees Croupette In Use At Civic Hospital Meeting

A practical demonstration, complete with patient, of the croupette given to Civic Hospital pediatric department by the Ladies' Auxiliary highlighted the quarterly general meeting of the Auxiliary Monday afternoon. Dr. Donald R. Clark lectured briefly on the condition of croup and the method of treatment before exhibiting the equipment.

He explained that it had been found that cold moist air enables the croup patient to breathe more easily than warm, moist air formerly used. The croupette consists of a light aluminum frame and a clear plastic cover fitting over it and tucked in to be airtight into which is blown a jet of nebulized air that is cooled by passing through an ice-packed tube and moistened from a jar of water.

A small motor which was purchased with the croupette forces the air through. When the patient is most ill an oxygen tank is attached instead. It was explained that the oxygen tank would cost the patient $7.50 to $10 per day so that it is only used when necessary. There is no charge when just the motor is used. The water and ice is replaced every few hours throughout the use.

Dr. Clark stated that deaths from croup have been cut to a fraction of one per cent and it is felt it is all due to this new equipment. Civic Hospital now has three croupettes and motors and all were in use Monday.

The Auxiliary purchased the newest croupette at a cost of $157.10 and the motor at $132.60, the total cost being $289.70.

Buying convener Mrs. Herbert Mason reported that two wheel chairs with the newest brake equipment have been purchased at a cost of $235.04. Auxiliary members have made use of these to transport the chronic patients to the sixth floor for parties they have given them and expect to be able to take them outside in nice weather.

Mrs. Mason also reported on the pillow radios installed in December, minus amplifiers which are expected to be added very soon. The Auxiliary's share of the cost is $2,465, of which one half has been paid and the remainder is to be paid after the amplifiers are on. Revenue up to March 1 was $263.40 and the Auxiliary received one half of the amount from the Board of Governors, as per agreement.

Major prize at the Auxiliary's annual penny sale, set for May 22 to June 1, is to be a power-driven lawn mower. All prizes have been purchased and will be announced at the next meeting. Schedules of duty for board members are now drawn up Mrs. W. T. Fanjoy said, and suggested that helpers be lined up as soon as possible.

Newest service to patients is reading and it has been very popular so far. In March, the members read to 38 adults and 15 children, Mrs. Fanjoy reported. The service is available once a week for one hour. Next newest service is recreational therapy and in this connection another party for 15 chronically ill patients was given on St. Patrick's Day. Mrs. Charles Huffman outlined the entertaining program that had been provided.

Of the other services it was reported that 500 visits with small gifts for each patient were made in March and that the visiting is averaging about 400 contacts per month; 427 books were circulated last month; Easter favors were made for each tray and Valentines were given the children; bootees continue to be given each new baby and the stock on hand was reported at 397, without donations brought to the meeting.

President Mrs. E. Chambers asked for knitters, to whom wool will be given by the Auxiliary, and specially mentioned the work of ladies at Anson House who have turned in 42 pairs recently. She also made a plea for blood donors to contribute to the Red Cross service which is free to patients.

Dates which the president asked to be kept in mind are a membership campaign opening tea on September 23 and the annual church service for nurses on May 10, to be at Murray St. Baptist Church, with transportation provided by the nurses-in-training committee of the Auxiliary.

Mrs. Maurice Holt, president of Peterborough Unit, will preside for this meeting. Dr. Agnes K. Moffat, of Peterborough, is to introduce the speaker.

Solar stove

IN INDIA, scientists have worked out a way to cook food by sunpower. A polished aluminum bowl suspended above a cooking pot directs the sun's rays to a mirror, which reflects the heat to the bottom of the pot. It sounds a bit complicated to us — but the fact is that the solar cooker turns out a meal as fast as a 300-watt electric stove.

It's just one more indication that food and aluminum go together — in containers, utensils, foil and in the equipment used by the dairying and food processing industries. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan)

DOROTHY DIX:

Teen-agers' Elopement Regretted, Now Separated

DEAR MISS DIX: When I was 17, a boy a little older persuaded me to run away and get married. He threatened suicide, and I was frightened into giving into him. We falsified our ages. My people readily forgave the mistake, and offered to do anything they could to help us along, but he refused all aid. A few months after the marriage, the regrets began. We lived with his mother, whom I didn't like. I suggested a separation to my husband, and he hit the ceiling. I have left him twice, anyway. I am sure I don't love him now, and I'd like to return to school and make something of my life. He gets me back with promises of changed behavior and holds over me the sacredness of our marriage vow. He hates my people, and won't let me visit my mother. We have no children.

ALMA D.

UNHAPPY OUTLOOK

ANSWER: You have no great problem if you'll only face it and get it over with. On the present basis of your marriage, you will spend the rest of your life with a bully and a boor who will estrange you from all your friends and family. His treatment of you and his arguments, as quoted in your long letter which I have had to shorten, indicate a despicable character with whom no decent girl would want to live. Your obvious reluctance to have the marriage annulled would lead one to believe that you do truly love him and are actually enjoying the way he treats you.

You have the blessed advantage of a wonderful family and, with their help, you could easily establish yourself again as a respected member of your community. But you will not be able to do this under present circumstances.

No one respects a wife who lets an overbearing husband dictate her every move. If you wait until you have children, your difficulties will increase. Can you imagine a poor baby in the home atmosphere created by your husband?

Your husband may prate about the sacredness of marriage, but he had little regard for such high principles when he led you to deceive your family and to lie about your age.

Better go back home to your parents, and let them handle the law action involved in ending your marriage.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 16, and very much in love with a teacher of 24. I have tried to forget him, but since I see him every day in school it's impossible to get him out of my mind. I have a feeling that he likes me a little. My sister says this is just a crush, but I'm sure it's more than that.

MIXED UP

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your sister is quite right. This is a crush, by no means unusual in high-school circles. Probably many girls in the school share your admiration for the handsome teacher. Your attachment will do no harm, particularly since it apparently inspires you to work for higher grades, and time will take care of its passing.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a widow of 54, with a 17-year-old daughter. Since ill health prevents me from working, our sole support is a pension, plus cash in the bank from my husband's insurance. To make ends meet, I must draw on this capital every month so that it is dwindling. My daughter recently went to work, and I thought she would help our finances by contributing at least a small amount each week to the house. This she refuses to do, saying that I am bound by law to support her until she's 18.

MARJ. B.

ANSWER: Since your daughter has turned to quoting the law, remind her that your obligation to support her is offset by your right to whatever wages she may earn. I do believe, however, that an appeal to her own sense of decency will avail more than an appeal to law. She is acting like a selfish child, and even at the age of 17, she should have more consideration for you.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Borrowing From Neighbors On Occasion Makes Friends

There are a few young hostesses in this audience who do not know the value of neighbors.

Everybody needs to be needed. If you are one of those new housekeepers who only possesses china and silverware, etc., to serve four or six comfortably, won't you consider the wisdom of borrowing—for occasions when you want to entertain more than four or six?

I'm prompted to suggest this because we had such fun in our neighborhood recently that it almost turned into a riot—a riot of fun that is.

My neighbor across the street—Eleanor — was entertaining the community bowling club for dessert at a progressive dinner. She decided to make her first Baked Alaska and borrowed my wooden baking board to bake it on and my silver tray to serve it from.

Another neighbor — Marg. — served the first courses and having a very efficient and well-equipped home had to borrow nothing but a punch recipe from me and to rent a punch bowl.

Elva, who lives farther down the street, provided the main course of roast beef and all the trimmin's, but had to borrow dinner plates from her close neighbor.

Well, at about 7 p.m. a knock came at my door. Eleanor needed more dining-room chairs, but for some unknown reason Marg's husband came for them. Did it matter that I had guests—an entirely different bunch— sitting on them at that very moment eating their dinner? It did not! My folks casually got up and moved to living-room chairs to eat their dessert.

The following day the great unravelling of the puzzle came — everybody had to return something to somebody else. It took all morning because we all had to hear how the others made out at their step of the bowling club party.

You see, it's fun. It breaks down barriers. It makes solid friends.

I know borrowing is supposed to be hazardous business, but not if you return everything promptly, washed and polished and serviced properly.

In a household where there is no dining-room — and there are hundreds of them nowadays—you can serve a dinner for twelve buffet style, and I'm going to give you a menu. This costs approximately $10, and is a handsome meal for the money:

BUFFET SUPPER FOR TWELVE

Tomato Juice with Lemon Juice
Standing Rib Roast of Beef
Horseradish
Medley of Vegetables:
Frozen Peas and Limas, Canned Carrot, Dice and Kernel Corn
Large Tossed Salad
Hot Hot Cross Buns
Large Tray of Assorted Fruits:
Bananas, Grapes, Oranges,, Apples
Blue Cheese and Crackers
Date and Oatmeal Squares
Coffee.

By the way, if you have a wonderful neighbor like Eleanor she will send over the Date and Oatmeal Squares, just at the last moment, when you have discovered to your horror that you haven't enough crackers to serve twelve.

The point to be stressed in this meal is that it took a minimum of preparing in the kitchen. The peas and limas were cooked together while the carrot dice and kernel corn were heating in the top of the double boiler. When served they were mixed and a very pretty and tasty mixture too. The fresh fruits were out of consideration to the reducers in the crowd. The roast beef speaks for itself and looked after itself once it was seasoned and put in the oven of 325 degrees Fahr. for 3 hours.

Be sure you return the dinner plates and cups and saucers you borrowed, first thing the following morning.

Nail Polish Remover Now Sold In Tubes

By BARBARA ELLIS

About the only thing you won't find in my bulging handbag at the moment is a bottle of nail polish remover. But by tomorrow I'll have parted with 59c and acquired a tube of the new cream nail polish remover. I tried it today and I'm sure it will make nail care a lot simpler for us women who are away from home all day.

BARBARA ELLIS

The rest of you will probably be anxious to try it, too. You see, this cream polish remover is intended as a nail and cuticle conditioner, as well as an excellent way of removing the polish. Even if you don't want to apply fresh polish right away, your denuded nails will emerge with a sheep instead of that dull, brittle look we've got used to expecting from liquid removers.

Won't Evaporate

Another point in it's favor is that, being a cream it won't evaporate. (Just remember to squeeze your Heluan tube methodically from the bottom, folding it neatly as you go, and not a single squish will be wasted). Heluan is now available at most drug and cosmetic counters.

6—In Memoriam

FERGUSON—In loving memory of my husband, Lewis M. Ferguson, who passed away April 7, 1944.
Where all is still and silent
As sleep forsakes my eyes,
My thoughts are in the silent grave,
Where my dear husband lies.
—His wife, Annie.

JOHNSTON—In loving memory of George Johnston who passed away April 7, 1952.
One year has passed since that sad day
When one we loved was called away
God took him home, it was His will Within our hearts he liveth still —Ever remembered by Don and Ruth.

PETHERICK—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Annie Petherick, who entered the presence of her Lord, April 7th, 1952.
We watched her suffer, day by day,
It caused us bitter grief
To see her slowly fade away
And could not give relief.
Her weary hours and days of pain,
Her troubled nights are passed;
And in our aching hearts we know
She has found sweet rest at last.
'Tis sweet to know we will meet again,
Where parting is no more,
And our dear mother we loved so well
Has only gone before.
God knows how much we miss her,
He counts the tears we shed,
And whispers, "Hush, she only sleeps,
Your mother is not dead."
Someday, sometime, her hand we'll clasp
And never say farewell.
—Sadly missed by her husband and family.

ROSE—In loving memory of Audrey June Rose who passed away April 7, 1952.
Away in the beautiful hills of God
By the valley of rest so fair
Sometime, someday we know not when
We will meet our loved one there.
—Lovingly remembered by Aunt and Cousins, Florence, Barbara and Agnes.

ROSE—In loving memory of my dear sister, Audrey Rose, 213 King St., Peterborough, passed away one year ago at Toronto General Hospital, April 7th in her 20th year.
When all is still and silent,
And sleep forsakes my eyes,
My thoughts are in the silent grave,
Where my dear sister lies.
—Ever remembered by brother Ronald, Louise, Jimmie of Brantford.

ROSE—In loving memory of our sister. She bid farewell to no one
She said goodbye to none
The gates of heaven were open wide,
A loving voice said come
—Sadly missed by Vern, Jean and children.

ROSE—In loving memory of our dear daughter, Audrey June Rose, who passed away one year ago today, April 7, 1952.
Her life is a beautiful memory,
Her death is our silent grief,
She sleeps in God's beautiful garden,
In the sunshine of perfect peace.
So we leave her in God's keeping,
The rough road safely o'er,
And our dear one we loved so well,
Has only gone before
—Always remembered by Mom and Dad, brother, Paul, sisters, Clara and Esther.

6—In Memoriam

ROSE—In loving memory of my sister, Audrey June Rose, who passed away one year ago today, April 7, 1952.
God knew that she was suffering,
That the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed her weary eyelids
And whispered, "Peace be thine".
Away in the beautiful hills of God,
By the valley of rest so fair,
Some time, some day, we know not when,
We will meet our loved one there.
—Always remembered by her sister, Lillian and brother-in-law, Oscar and children.

ROSE—In loving memory of my sister, Audrey June Rose, who passed away one year ago today April 7 1952.
One year has passed and gone
Since one we loved so well
Was taken from our home on earth
With Jesus Christ to dwell.
The flowers we place upon her grave
May wither and decay
But the love for her who sleeps beneath,
Shall never fade away
—Always remembered by sister, Betty, brother-in-law George and children.

May Arraign 5 People In Girl's Death

MONTREAL (CP) — Five persons held criminally responsible by a coroner's jury for the death of Jeannine D'Amour of Gogama, Ont., may be arraigned Wednesday in a Montreal court.

Originally the three men and two women were to appear today in court at Joliette, Que. Provincial police said the arraignment had been postponed pending a decision on where it should take place.

Body of Miss D'Amour, 26, was found a few months ago in a gravel pit near Shawinigan Falls, Que. She is believed to have died last June as a result of an illegal operation.

Following the coroner's inquest April 2, police held Mrs. Lucien Tremblay, 39, Mrs. Madeleine Millette, 42, Henri Dunn, 27, Irenee Cyr, 39, all of Montreal, and Albert Leclerc, 33, of Grand'Mere. Police have not disclosed what charges will be laid against the five.

Trinity Church Filled To Capacity

OMEMEE (ENS)—Capacity congregations attended Easter services at Trinity United Church Sunday. The church was decorated with beautiful spring flowers, including a basket of rare cut flowers, a gift of Lady Eaton to the church of her girlhood.

At the morning service holy communion was observed, preceded by a reception service for those uniting with the church. In his discourse Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt combined the three themes, resurrection, the Lord's Supper and church membership, associating with each the supremacy of the Risen Lord.

New members were Eva Morrison, Jeanette Rich, Marilyn Hart, Ronald Bullock, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Eggleton, Ronald Milburn, Shirley McKenzie, Mrs. John Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Les Casey.

The main feature of the evening service was an Easter cantata, "The Thorn-Crowned King," a composition of H. Van Berge, with music by Fred B. Holton.

White House Pleased At Parley Progress

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House today described the United Nations-Communist agreement on repatriation of sick and wounded Korean war prisoners as "encouraging."

The UN negotiators and Communist representatives agreed at Panmunjom early today to repatriation of all sick and wounded prisoners.

Asked for comment on the development, press secretary James Hagerty dictated this statement to newspaper men:

"The President and the government of the United States are of course following the negotiations very closely.

"Every act and deed leading to a humanitarian exchange of ill and wounded prisoners of war is encouraging."

200 Factory Workers Strike For Increase

GUELPH (CP)—More than 200 employees of the Gilson Manufacturing Company went on strike today to enforce demands for higher wages.

The workers, members of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), expressed indignation over the belated arrival of a conciliation board report dealing with proposed contract changes which would bring conditions in line with other steel industries in this area.

Affected by the walkout were 250 employees of the furnace and washing machine manufacturing concern. The strikers set up picket lines around the York road and Victoria road plants of the company.

Humane Inspectors Hunt Dog Killer

TORONTO (CP) — An all-out search by Toronto Humane Society inspectors is under way today for a mongrel dog that killed a collie by tearing its leg off.

Calling the dog a killer, chief inspector Robert Johnstone of the Humane Society said it might attack humans.

"Imagine what it could do to a child," he said.

Another inspector, Roy Greet, saw the fight and chased the big mongrel up an alley. It escaped by leaping over a back fence—the leg still in its teeth.

Nazi Expert On Blitzes Dies In Clinic

MUNICH (Reuters) — Former field marshal Hugo Sperrle, the man who directed Hitler's "obliteration bombing" of Coventry and other British provincial towns, has died in a clinic here, it was announced today. He was 68.

He was cremated on Easter Sunday.

Sperrle commanded Hitler's "Condor Legion," the troops which aided Gen. Franco in the Spanish civil war. His prize achievement was the "experiment" at Guernica, warfare's first example of total bombing.

On his return to Germany, he expressed his faith in these words: "There is nothing bombing cannot break."

In 1940, Sperrle, a Bavarian tavern-owner's son who joined the army in 1903 as a professional officer, became field marshal.

In addition to his "blitz" on Britain he also directed the "air umbrella" which enabled the German battle cruisers Scharnhorst and Gneisenau and the cruiser Prince Eugene to escape through the English channel to German and Norwegian ports in February, 1942.

Later he commanded the air force supporting Rommel's troops in North Africa.

His last command was to take over the German air forces in the west after the Allied Normandy invasion in June, 1944.

The Nuernberg war crimes tribunal in 1948 acquitted him of war crimes charges.

CITY CARPETBALL

The President's Cup finals were played at the SOE Hall when Orphans No. 2 met LOL No. 6. The first game saw the Orangemen take the lead for two frames, but by the fifth end the Orphans had gone into the lead by one; which they kept by scoring two singles and only allowing their opponents one single. They won by a 6-4 score.

The second game was 6-3 in favor of No. 2 going into the fifth frame, then No. 6 took over, by blanking their rivals in the last four ends to win 13-6. The third and deciding game was almost a skunk. The Orphans won the President's Cup by defeating No. 6 by a 17-1 score.

The Orphans team comprises Ernie Holden, Fred Roberts, Fred Hopgood and Charlie Joyce.

The semi-finals of the Gracie's Memorial Doubles were played April 1 at the Legion Hall. Team No. 19, P. McLean and C. Giroux, were eliminated in two straight by No. 17 composed of Stan Roscoe and Leo Herr. The first game was tied twice before No. 19 took over the lead and while No. 17 scored in the last two ends they failed to win by a 6-7 score. The second game was No. 19's all the way as No. 17 only scored in four frames and No. 19 eliminated them by a 12-4 score.

The other half of the semi-final was played between W. Curtis and C. McPhee, team No. 18 and by W. Sorrie, A. Vinette as team No 10. The first game was a tight affair until No. 10 scored a single in the last frame to win 7-6. The second game was No. 18 all the way as they held their opponents to a single while they collected nine. The third game saw No. 10 go into the lead in the third end and hold it, by only allowing No. 18 to score three singles, while they scored eight.

FINALS LATER

The finals of the doubles can't be played before Saturday afternoon, April 11 at 2 p.m. at the Legion Hall between Stan Roscoe and Leo Herr versus A. Vinette and W. Sorrie. Referees for this match will be G. Gimblett Sr. and A. Pilling.

The postponed league games are holding up the final standings. They are LOL No. 6 vs. Fire Hall No. 9 and Orphans No. 2 vs. LOL No. 6. It is reported the latter game is to be played April 6 while the former was played resulting in four points for No. 9.

If No. 9 netted four points that would result in a tie for third place with No. 1 and No. 9 having 52 points. Therefore the higher average will determine who will take third position. That will be ascertained when the score card is turned in.

Don't forget to take those trophies to Elsie Bennett at once, so that the new winners' names may be affixed upon them.

To determine if three or four prizes are to be given for the 1952-53 season an executive meeting should be called. There is also the question of a banquet that will have to be decided.

BRANTFORD (CP)—The body of Paul McKenna, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry McKenna of Paris, Ont., was found in the Grand river here Monday 11 weeks after the little boy was drowned in the Nith river at Paris, a short distance above its junction with the Grand. It was discovered by 10-year-old Garry Crook, who was gathering driftwood.

4 Generations At Anniversary

MILLBROOK —(ENS) —Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard Caldwell of South Monaghan celebrated their 54th wedding anniversary Sunday by entertaining four generations of their family.

The fourth generation was represented by Maureen Lowery, 6½-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell's grandson, George Lowery and Mrs. Lowery of Toronto.

Nineteen sat down to the dinner prepared by the bride of 54 years ago. Many lovely gifts and bouquets of flowers were received from the family and many congratulatory messages and cards from friends in the community.

Those attending the dinner were their daughter, Mrs. Fred Lowery (Olive) and Mr. Lowery; Lena-Marie and Ray of Millbrook; Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Lowery of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. George Lowery and Maureen of Toronto, Mrs. James Caldwell, their daughter-in-law, Bob, George, Helen, Gary, Jean, Sandra and Marsha of Cobourg; and Allan Olan of Millbrook.

During the evening a number of friends called to express their good wishes.

Queen Drives Car

Fears Uprising

HORKSHIMA, Japan (Reuters) —Justice Minister Ken Inukai said today he has information that Japanese Communists are carrying out military exercises in preparation for an armed uprising. He is on a campaign tour for national elections later this month.

Lindsay Takes Close One Over Shipmen

LINDSAY — (ENS) — Faced with the threat of going three down in their OHA Intermediate "A" semi-final series with the Collingwood Shipbuilders, Lindsay Muskies pulled some desperation moves and backed them up with a solid game of hockey to win their first in three starts, 3-2, cutting the Shipbilders' margin to 2-1 in the best-of-seven set.

Goalie Reg Truax, late of the Lindsay Juniors, replaced Clare O'Connell in the Lindsay nets. O'Connell asked to be taken out of the game after playing the first two of the series. Winger Mike Burns replaced Mark O'Donoghue and Sixty Coombs moved from his shot on the first line to the wing position with Sinclair and Kelly. The moves paid off, as Coombs opened the scoring in the first period, taking a pass from Sinclair, breaking over the blue line with his old-time speed and blasting a high shot past Westbrook. The Muskies had the edge in play during the rough first session, should have had a good many more goals, but were foiled by great goal-tending by Westbrook.

GOT THEIR FIRST

In the second period, Sandell scored the first Collingwood goal, slipping a low backhand through Truax's skates. The goal came during a series of Collingwood rushes that had the Muskies on ropes, but Truax pulled half a dozen close-in saves to keep the count down.

In the third, both teams played tight hockey, waiting for the breaks. The first came at the three-quarter mark, when Stew Hicks took a loose puck inside the blue line after Corley was checked, skated in and netted a high shot. With the Shipbuilders trying desperately to even the count and their coach, Eddie Bush exhorting them to great efforts, Coombs scored his second goal of the night, from a face-off in the Collingwood end, taking a pass from Parker and blasting a shot to the same spot that Hicks had found. The goal came during the final minute of play, with eight seconds to go, Cochrane brought the vistors to within a goal taking a goal-mouth pass from Keith and giving Truax no chance on his shot.

Parker, Hicks, Lewis and Combs were best for the winners up front while the whole defence corps turned in their best game since the Gananoque series. Meek, Patterson, Sandell and Walmsley were going well for the losers, while Bush, Allan and Fryer gave Westbrook good protection throughout the game.

Referees Walsh and Senfering handed out 40 penalties, seven in the first period. The Shipbuilders drew six, including a misconduct to Meek when he slugged a ring-side fan in the first period. The fan was moved from his seat by the police.

Tigers Top League Standing So Far In Florida Play

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If times get as tough for Detroit this summer as some experts predict, the Tigers can always dream about the wonderful Florida spring.

Early-season guessers generally have picked Detroit to wind up just about where they did a year ago—last. But at the moment the club tops the standings in the Grapefruit League.

In 22 games the Tigers have scored 15 victories, 13 of them against major league opposition. That's the best in either league.

Among National League clubs, the other 1952 last-place finisher—Pittsburgh—has the best record, 10 and five, but only two of the games were against major league teams. Brooklyn's 18-10 mark, compiled with but one exception against major league opposition, is much more legitimate.

RAIN TROUBLE

Boston Red Sox are the only American League club under the .500 mark for the spring, while Milwaukee, Cincinnati and New York Giants from the National League have lost more than they have won.

Rain washed out half of Monday's exhibition schedule. In the only two inter-league meetings, the National Leaguers won. The Giants walloped Cleveland 15-3 at Alexandria, La., and Chicago Cubs edged St. Louis Browns 3-2 at Ardmore, Okla.

The Giants pounded Bob Lemon for all 15 runs and 16 of their 18 hits before he was lifted in the seventh inning.

The Cubs made only five hits off the combined offerings of Harry Brecheen, Duane Pillette and Satchel Paige, but two of them were homers.

Chicago White Sox whipped Philadelphia Athletics 9-3 at Memphis.

Dutchmen Have To Work To Down Sudbury 6-4

KITCHENER (CP)—It took Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen the limit—not only in games but also in minutes—to wrap up the all-Ontario senior hockey title.

The Dutchmen had to work till the final whistle to eliminate Sudbury Wolves with a 6-4 victory Monday night. The win gave Kitchener the best-of-seven series 4-2 with one game tied and advanced them into the Eastern Canada senior hockey finals against Smiths Falls Rideaus. The series, opening in Ottawa Wednesday, will be an Allan Cup semi-final.

The Dutchies needed only a minor penalty to the Wolves in the early minutes of the first period to take a 1-0 lead. Jack McKenzie fired the puck past Bobby Gillson from the edge of the goal crease at 2:19 while Burno Rondina was off for elbowing. The game Wolves came back to tie the score at 4:13 when Johnny Mestan, out for two previous games, slammed a rebound off goaltender Keith Woodall's pads into the corner of the net.

REALLY CLICKING

Doug Verity, Charlie Brooker and McKenzie with his second of the night scored unanswered goals in the middle period to give the Ontario Hockey Association champions a 4-1 lead. Tatter McLellan, Sudbury rightwinger, again made a comeback for the Northern Ontario Hockey Association titleholders when he notched two within 22 seconds in the third period. He scored the first at 5:21. Charlie Brooker made it up 5-3 for the Dutchies at 1:08 but the Wolves wouldn't give up and Rondina brought them to within one goal of the Dutchies lead at 17:37.

Time was running out and Sudbury coach Max Silverman pulled Bobby Gillson out in favor of an extra attacker. Bobby Schnurr brought the ax down on the Wolves' hopes 15 seconds before the end of the game when he hit the empty net with the clincher.

The crowd of 7,058 brought the series total to 47,493, a record for North-South Ontario competition.

Sudbury took nine of the 15 penalties issued, including one of two majors for fighting.

Canada Leads US In Nuclear Fields

TORONTO (CP) — Canada is ahead of the United States in some nuclear fields because it has the better tools, Dr. Donald Brunton, president of Isotope Limited at nearby Oakville, said Monday.

Radioactive products from the Chalk River atomic pile are 10 times stronger than those produced anywhere else in the world, he said.

Dr. Brunton spoke at a meeting of the Ontario Secondary School Inspectors Association, one of many being held in conjunction with the annual convention of the Ontario Educational Association.

A paper-making machine in Toronto was the first in the world to have automatic control based on a nuclear reaction gauge. The pipeline between Sarnia and Toronto was the world's first to have its welding inspected by isotope photography.

TOO MUCH SOCIAL LIFE

Mary White of the Toronto Public Library told the meeting that social life rather than radio and television provides serious competion to reading among Toronto secondary school pupils.

A survey showed that only 28 per cent reported that radio interfered with their reading, she said, and only 22 per cent were distracted by TV. But, she said, the amount of time required by organized social activities becomes apparent even in grade 8.

Dr. G. Edward Hall, president of the University of Western Ontario, speaking at the annual dinciation, called on Canadians to give increasing attention to the problem of care and employment of elderly citizens.

He said statistics on declining birth rates and longer life expectancy show that year by year more of the population passes into the older adult age group.

NEW PROBLEMS

"As our population gets older, many new economic, social, cultural and medical problems have arisen, some of which have not been faced with the degree of energy they warrant and ultimately must receive."

Dr. Hall asked for consideration of a system of "selective retirement" instead of automatic retirement at the age of 65.

Dr. J. G. Althouse, chief director of education for Ontario, told physical education delegates that education authorities are expecting a crisis in expenditures within the next three years, a difficult period which may last longer unless additional school building is kept down.

Teachers' salaries would be threatened and school boards would be unable to pay the new teachers needed for the expected huge increase in new pupils.

SALARY DIFFICULTIES

Dr. Althouse said: "It will be difficult to maintain teachers' salaries at an attractive level, yet at the same time we badly need more teachers. People say that our revenues, such as local taxes and legislative grants, are increasing, but unfortunately not as fast as the debt charges."

Local taxpayers are not happy about school taxes, he said. There were already $170,000,000 outstanding in school debentures and even if additions were confined only to classrooms and essential service areas, another $180,000,000 would have to be issued.

"At the present rate of interest, school boards will have to find $30,000,000 a year to retire debentures, or 20 per cent of Ontario's total annual budget of $150,000,000.

WORK IN INDUSTRY

Speaking at a meeting of the Ontario Industrial Education Council, V. G. Smith, professor of electrical engineering at the University of Toronto, urged that vocational teachers should spend one of every five years as workers in industry so that they can keep up with industry's development. When teachers had finished the year, they should be allowed to return to their former positions.

Professor Smith said he favors courses organized under the department of education for training technical workers who do not go to university. He said he is against industry and unions as instructors. Industry was inclined to teach "the how more than the why" and unions "have too many irons in the fire."

A FRIENDLY TYPE—Canadian soldiers on garrison duty in Germany who take the trouble to learn German and behave themselves have no more difficulty making friends there than they would back home, army authorities say. Bdr. Colin Nelthorpe, of Granby, Que., chats with a cheerful little German girl from the orphanage near Hohne, Germany. Officers and men of 79th Field Regiment, Royal Canadian Artillery, have adopted the orphanage and Bdr. Nelthorpe is chairman of the committee.

Soldier Who Learns German No Trouble Making Friends

Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff correspondent with the Canadian forces in Korea since 1950, has spent three weeks in Germany with the 27th Canadian brigade. In this story, one of a series, he describes the relations between Canadian soldiers and the German community.

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HANNOVER (CP)—The soldier who takes the trouble to learn German and behaves himself has no more difficulty making friends here than he would have back home.

But most soldiers, say soldiers who have made the grade, expect the Germans to do all the work.

Capt. Art Burnard of Toronto says:

"They're friendly here. They'll smile if you do. But they'll frown, too, if you do. And you've got to remember that it's hard for them to forget that they lost the war."

A little pub called "u Den Drei Linden," (At the Three Linden Trees) in nearby Langenhagen, shows how Canadians who try can integrate themselves into the community.

Frau Dora Krack, a cheerful motherly type, has operated the homey establishment since 1934. Her husband is a prisoner of the Russians still.

Any soldier is welcome, along with her German guests, as long as he behaves. When he doesn't, the bustling, well-built publican personally sees him off.

Regular habitues of the "Drei Linden" are Lieuts. Charles Hambrook of Toronto and Joseph Drolt of Quebec City.

Says Hambrook: "If the Canadians could speak German, or the Germans English, there'd be no trouble at all. I've been received here just as I would be back home if properly introduced.

"Wearing the uniform all the time is a handicap to the soldier, for it makes the Germans with him conspicuous—just as it would back home. In Canada, when the soldier is out socially he doesn't have to wear uniform. Why should he have to here?

"Another difficulty is that the soldier has to accept their hospitality all the way. We can't have them back into our messes. They don't understand that because they're welcomed in British messes

"But if the soldiers could wear civvies, a good percentage of them —the decent chaps—would make good friends."

Frau Krack's daughter Waitraut, who with son Albert helps run the pub, said in excellent English:

"Our German customers don't mind when the soldiers come. Even if they get a little merry. They say 'We've been soldiers ourselves and our fellows used to behave the same way.'

"But people in Hannover are a little bit cold. When Germans come here from other parts they notice it. They are not necessarily unfriendly, just a little reserved, and it takes longer to get to know them."

A 10-minute drive from Langenhagen is Isernhagen, where Canadian soldiers most evenings and every week-end take over the pub operated by Herr Willi (Papa) Sievers, who doesn't speak a word of English. The German customers think L. Cpl. Ken Harrison of Montreal a terrific bartender who doesn't put an unfair head on their beer.

Here the men benefit from a provost policy which doesn't bother soldiers in outlying district pubs after hours. The provost officers say they would rather see the men quietly amusing themselves, than mixed up in the bright lights situation downtown. They leave it to the soldier to worry about getting back into barracks undetected.

The type of soldier who has it all over the others is 20-year-old Dick Unger of Stuartburn, Man. He speaks German.

"I don't go around much," he says, "but when I do I go to good places."

"I find they have a respect for the soldier who behaves. They always like to talk about their own army experience, that's always the first thing, and seems to serve as a sort of introduction."

Even Unger, who knows the atmosphere, says "a nice girl, if she goes out with a soldier, gets the name of a street girl. That's the way the people think."

Incidentally, he has never been asked by his friends to teach them German.

"Lots of fellows don't want to learn German at all, and lots more wish they could speak it but can't be bothered working at it."

L. Cpl. Jack Willford, 20, of Calgary, is one making the attempt.

"But it's tough," he says. "You pick up a kind of working knowledge very quickly, but after that it takes time getting to speak it properly."

Meanwhile, the approach of most other Canadians to the problem is such that affable, fatherly Oberburgermeister Wilhelm Weber describes them as "children of nature—they come to a foreign land and wonder that the language is different, that they are not taken immediately into loving arms and offered free beer as gesture of goodwill—and then all hope is destroyed."

Girl Bought Strychnine At Drug Store

AILSA CRAIG, Ont. (CP)—Inspector R. L. Taylor of the provincial police said Monday Shirley May Lewis, 14, bought strychnine from two district drugstores a week before she and her younger sister and their mother were found dead in their farm home.

The inspector said the girl got the poison at Parkhill on the strength of a note signed "Alvin Lewis"—her father's name.

Police said a check of her father's handwriting led them to believe he did not sign the note.

"We have compared the handwriting on the notes with the signatures of both Mr. and Mrs. Lewis and we believe the mother wrote the note," said Inspector Taylor. "We haven't had a handwriting expert's opinion on the signatures."

TO KILL DOG

The note said the poison was being purchased to kill an old dog. The purchases were made March 26 and March 31.

Both police and Dr. A. R. Routledge, coroner, have expressed belief strychnine poisoning brought death to the 45-year-old farm wife and her daughters, Shirley May, 14, and Mildred Jane, 11. one theory is that the poison was taken in a soft drink or in a chocolate bar.

Mrs. Lewis is known to have suffered a nervous breakdown a year ago.

The mother and daughters were buried Monday at Brinsley, a hamlet four miles north of this community some 24 miles northwest of London.

Buildings will range from 2½ to 4½ storeys, with 20 to 50 suites each.

Six Nations Represented At RCAF Winnipeg School

By ART BRYDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—Men from six European countries study, drill, play and fly alongside members of the Royal Canadian Air Force at the cosmopolitan air navigation school on Winnipeg's Stevenson field.

Hailing from Britain, France, Italy, Norway, Holland and Belgium, the cadets are among 1,400 trained by Canada each year under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. They wear their distinctive national uniforms, but for 36 weeks they merge in a polyglot group of 600 cadets studying for western defence.

Their home, No. 2 air navigation school, commanded by combat veteran Wing Commander Fred Y. Craig of Calgary, handles two-thirds of NATO's Canadian-trained navigators.

PLAN NEW BASE

It will soon move to multi-million dollar new quarters sprouting from the Prairie just west of the present base. Permanent brick barrack blocks and messes will accommodate about 1,000 men. Five hangars, including one of the largest in Canada, will be connected to existing runways by a $1,000,000 taxi strip and parking area.

Students are ranked as cadets, one notch below pilot officers and rate salutes from non-commissioned ranks. The course graduates about 50 men every three weeks.

Under supervision, the cadets administer their own course through officers elected by themselves. Each man carries a card on which breaches of military discipline and etiquette are noted for punishment by a court of his fellow cadets.

Ground instruction covers the theory of navigation, practical radio and radar, meteorology, theory of flight, instruments, air force law, service indoctrination and drill.

IN BEECHCRAFT PLANES

The airborne classrooms are Beechcraft Expeditors, chunky little twin-engined aircraft, carrying two or three students besides the pilot. The men alternate in the position of lead navigator and their chauffeur-pilot follows instructions exactly, within the bounds of safety, although his radio checks may tell him he is far off course.

Hazards include rough terrain and watchful American jets ready to pounce on aircraft flying too close to the border.

Canada is new to most of the men and some take to it at once. Cadet Palle Jaeger of Esbjerg, Denmark, would like to settle here when he gets out of the air force. Cadet Gerald Soar of Plymouth, England, likes Eastern Canada better than the West and condemns the weather in both. He's ready to go home anytime.

After exploring Winnipeg entertainment, John Mills, 18, of Whitley Bay, Northumberland, England says Canadian girls are not good dancers.

John's buddy, Norman Long of Manchester, who was married just seven days before leaving home, joined his voice to the general complaints about the weather.

A 14-day indoctrination course at London, Ont., gives the men some idea of the problems they will meet. All have at least an elementary knowledge of English and most pick up technical language faster than everyday expressions.

Draped slacks, currently popular among Canadian girls, and longer haircuts for boys cause confusion. Said one cadet: "We have to whistle and wait to see if they whistle back before we're sure they're girls."

Efforts are made to get cadets to mix with men from other countries. Their double-decker bunks are arranged alternately so language groups are mixed. Canadians pass on information about hockey, curling and baseball and pick up the rules of cricket and soccer in return.

After five days of hard work that sends them into the sack early every night, the men get Saturday and Sunday off unless lost flying hours must be caught up. Their own mess provides recreation facilities including wine and beer imported from home.

A two-week holiday in the middle of the course gives Canadians a chance to get home and visitors a chance to roam across Canada.

Young Organist With Rare Gift To Hold Recital

Often called "the greatest organist of this generation," Richard W. Ellsasser of Los Angeles will perform at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church the evening of May 1.

Only 27, the guest has almost incredible achievements behind him and with capacity and eagerness for further development, his future and his mark in the annals of music are assured.

Mr. Ellsasser's intensive musical study began under his father and at three he was able to play from memory any hymn or ballad one might think of. After being trained by the pianist of the Cleveland Orchestra, Richard's ability on the piano grew rapidly and at the age of seven he made his first public appearance and began a tour of the eastern states, appearing with some of the leading symphonies of the nation.

Joining a Cleveland boys' choir at nine, he became interested in organ music and in less than a year was giving recitals throughout the east. Besides gaining musical fame the boy graduated from high school at 14 and Baldwin-Wallace College at 17.

Mr. Ellsasser's great accomplishment lies in the amazing fact of being the youngest person in history to have memorized and performed the entire 219 organ works of J. S. Bach.

At present residing in Los Angeles, he is minister of music at Wilshire Methodist Church in that city where under his direction one of the outstanding church music programs in America is being developed.

His selections for the Peterborough recital will include "Trumpet Tune, Le Coucou, Flute Solo, Rodo in G. Fantasie and Fugue in G Minor, Allegro Maestoso, Soul of the Lake, L'Organi Primitive, Concert Study in D Minor," and an improvisation on a theme which will be submitted in a sealed envelope to the artist.

RICHARD ELLSASSER, of Los Angeles, will be guest artist May 1 at an organ recital in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. At the age of 27 he has often been called the greatest organist of his generation. He will play nine selections and climax the recital with an organ improvisation which will be submitted to him during the concert.

Falls From Bunk, Dies

THORNHILL (CP)—A fall from the top bunk of a double-decker bed Saturday killed 13-year-old Jean Wickett. The girl slipped while getting out of the bunk and broke her neck, police said. She was a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Wickett.

Decide To Split Liberal District

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Western Ontario Liberals voted unanimously Monday to split their district into two — Western Ontario south and Western Ontario north. The change will be effective in about a year.

Wilfrid P. Gregory, Stratford, executive vice-president of the Ontario Liberal Association and chairman of the OLA committee studying the whole question of district boundaries, presented the case for division.

By cutting distances, it would make for more efficient organization, easier communication and more concentrated community interest, he said. Each district will have equal representation on the OLA executive.

Delegates to the annual meeting of the Western Ontario Liberal Association endorsed the proposal. It now goes to the Ontario Association, at its annual meeting in Toronto May 1, for approval.

The dividing line will be the southern boundaries of Huron, Perth and Waterloo counties.

6 RCAF Officers Hurt In Crash At Zweibruecken

ZWEIBRUCKEN, Germany — (CP)—Air Vice-Marshal Hugh L. Campbell, chief of Canada air forces under NATO, and five other RCAF officers, were seriously injured Tuesday when their twin-engine C-45 Beechcraft crashed near this U.S. air base. RCAF authorities here reported the six officers will undoubtedly be in hospital for several weeks. All had suffered back injuries and had been put into casts. Latest reports said none of the six was listed as in critical condition. Earlier, a U.S. Air Force spokesman said two were in critical condition but declined to say which ones.

Campbell, 44, a native of Salisbury, N. B., is air officer commanding the RCAF No. 1 air division. German doctors at the U. S. military hospital at Landstuhl where the six are being treated said that Campbell suffered injuries to his spine and head and that his right leg was broken in several places.

The other five Canadians and their injuries as listed by the RCAF are:

Air Commodore Keith Hodson, 37, of London, Ont., chief of staff to Campbell, fractured left arm and spine injuries.

Group Capt. Richard M. Cox, 37, of Sioux Lookout, Ont., senior air staff officer, compound fracture of the left leg, rib fractures and back injuries. Cox was aide-de-camp to the Queen, then Princess Elizabeth, and the Duke of Edinburgh on the 1951 Royal tour of Canada.

Flt. Lt. W. Unruh of Lucky Lake, Sask., back injuries.

Wing Cmdr. R. A. Ashman, 37, of Ottawa, senior personnel officer, back injuries.

Flt. Lt. Ross Gooder of Ottawa and Toronto, pilot of the plane, back injuries.

(Headquarters of the Allied air forces central Europe at Fountainebleau, France also gave out a list of injuries. This list differed in some details with that issued by the RCAF authorities at Zweibrucken.

(The Fountainebleau list said Gooder was the most seriously injured. It said Campbell and Hodson suffered compression fractures of the spine and that Gooder had his spinal column damaged. This list did not say the others had back injuries.

(The Fountainebleau list said Ashman and Unruh suffered facial cuts. It said Cox suffered compound leg fractures.)

As a result of the crash, three of Canada's top air officers will be unavailable for duty for at least six weeks.

ENGINE TROUBLE

The plane developed engine trouble a few minutes after taking off from Zweibruecken for 1st division headquarters in the NATO setup near Paris.

Zweibrucken is a Rhineland city near the Saar border less than 20 miles east of the Saar capital of Saarbruecken.

The Canadian officers had gone to Zweibruecken to watch the arrival of three squadrons of Canadian-built Sabre jets, which came from Canada via St. Hubert, Que., Labrador, Greenland, Iceland and Scotland.

The Beechcraft was just seven minutes airborne when Flt. Lt. Gooder tried to make an emergency landing. The plane struck a tree and plunged to the ground near Boeckingen, just inside the Saar border.

RADIOED IN TROUBLE

A U. S. air force spokesman said the plane radioed it had developed engine trouble shortly after the take off.

Eyewitnesses first spotted the plane in trouble at 600 feet. They said the plane's engines cut off before crashing. Within 10 minutes after the first alarm was sounded, ambulances reached the scene.

Missing Boy, 3, Unharmed On Swamp Trail

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Louis Lambkin, 3, reported missing Tuesday was found this morning sitting on a stump 500 yards from his home.

He was apparently none the worse for spending 16 hours in the swampy bushland near his home at Jackson, six miles west of Owen Sound.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Lambkin, missed him Tuesday afternoon.

Throughout the night, while the temperature dropped to near freezing, searchers combed the swamp and bush.

When found, the boy showed the searchers a bed of leaves he had made for himself. He said that when darkness fell he crawled into the leaves and went to sleep.

The boy was found by his father, one of 200 searchers who had been combing the marsh since 6 p. m. Tuesday. The father, soaking wet and tired, carried the boy home.

FIND FOOTPRINTS

The father said that through the long night he was looking for the boy's tracks. When light came he found footprints about 500 yards north of the house. He followed the tracks and signs from bent twigs when the trail suddenly stopped.

"There was water all around," Mr. Lambkin said. "Then I heard the boy whimper."

Although water in many parts of the swamp is 18 inches deep, the boy was dry and well. There was a heavy frost during the night.

Shot In Chest During Struggle

ORILLIA (CP) — William Stunden, a restaurant and gasoline station owner from nearby Oak Ridges, was shot in the chest Tuesday night while grappling with a provincial policeman at Spar Lake, just north of here.

The bullet missed his heart and hospital authorities here said his condition today was "good." A guard is posted by his bed.

Constable T. G. Griffin of the Bracebridge detachment said he attempted to arrest Stunden and three other members of a fishing party on a charge of violating the Liquor Control Act. He said Stunden resisted so he drew his gun.

Griffin said Stunden then grabbed the gun, wrestled it away from him and held it for a moment before Griffin could get it back. In the ensuing struggle, the pistol went off and Stunden was wounded.

The three companions put Stunden in their car and sped away. They were stopped by a provincial police roadblock at Washago where Stunden was transferred to a provincial police cruiser and brought to hospital here.

Find Father, Son Dead In Their Beds

WINDSOR (CP) — Police are investigating the deaths of Gordon Kellow, 50, and his son Richard, 8, found dead in their beds this morning.

Mrs. Kellow, about 35, and her other son, John, 10, were unharmed as they slept through the night in the small house.

The deaths were at first attributed to asphyxiation, but preliminary investigations revealed that the two coal stoves which heat the house have not been lighted for several days. There was no odor of gas in the house when police arrived.

According to police, Mrs. Kellow said that when she awoke about 10 a. m. She ran into the yard of the house and screamed to a neighbor "my husband is sleeping very late. I can't wake him. He's awful cold."

UN Adopts Disarmament Plan Of West

Agrees To Accept One Suggestion Made By Vishinsky

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — (AP)— The United Nations general assembly today adopted a Western plan for disarmament talks despite a strong appeal by chief Soviet delegate Andrei Y. Vishinsky to modify it in the interests of East-West harmony.

The vote was 52 to 5 (Soviet bloc) with three abstentions.

The assembly agreed, however, to one of Vishinsky's suggestions. It adopted, without a vote, his appeal that it drop commendation of the work the disarmament commission has done so far.

The Soviet delegate also proposed that the West agree, in order to "meet the Soviet Union half way" in making concessions, that the assembly drop references to the original resolution which set up the disarmament commission last year

TURNED DOWN

This was turned down 10 in favor 33 against and 13 abstentions.

U. S. delegate Ernest A. Gross and Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb argued that eliminating references to that resolution could give the impression the West was abandoning its insistence on international control of atomic energy and a balanced reduction of armed forces. Both factors are mentioned in it as directives to the commission.

Vishinsky replied the proposed change would not imply in any way that the U. S. had given up support of the previous resolution.

He called attention to "new relationships which are arising before our eyes." Apparently this was a reference to Kremlin peace overtures. He added: "Events do not always take the shape tomorrow that they took yesterday."

He insisted the Soviet move was genuinely conciliatory and urged the west to "dig the tunnel of friendship from both sides." In that case, he asserted, "we are likely to meet earlier."

Because of Western acceptance the first Soviet amendment was declared accepted, but the 60-country general assembly turned down the second one, ten in favor, 33 against with 13 abstentions.

Plowing Match Has Sponsor

TORONTO (CP) — John A. Carroll, president of the World Championship Plowing Organization, announced today the organization has accepted offers of international sponsorship which provide plowmen competing in the first world match with travelling expenses to and from Canada and their expenses during the stay here.

He said that during their stay in Canada this year plowmen competing in the world competition will be the guests of Canadian plowmen and Imperial Oil. Other companies overseas will finance passages of their competitors in the world matches.

The first world plowing match organized by the WCPO will be Oct. 6 to 9 at Cobourg, in conjunction with the Ontario Plowmen's Association annual international match. The second will be in Eire next year.

Mr. Carroll said the plan has been accepted by the board of directors of the WCPO. The countries represented on the board are Canada, Sweden, Great Britain Finland, Eire, West Germany, Norway and Holland.

In addition, the plan will cover competing national champions sent by Italy, France, Belgium, Denmark, Tunisia, Morocco, Algeria, Switzerland and Northern Ireland. Interest in competing in world matches has also been shown by the United States and Austria.

3 Dead Guerillas Legion Deserters

BANGKOK (AP) — Thai police today identified three white men killed with Chinese Nationalist guerrillas in Burma as German deserters from the French Foreign Legion.

They identified the three as Frank Spellmier, Lothar Tomas and Franz Xaver Jung.

Earlier, the Burmese war office tentatively had identified the trio as "probably Americans."

Spellmier and Tomas deserted from the Legion in Indo-China three years ago and were taken into custody by Thai police after crossing the border, authorities here said.

Fleeing Bank Bandit Shot

VANCOUVER—(CP)—A bandit coralled in the bank he was robbing was dropped by a policeman's bullet here Tuesday as he attempted to run a gauntlet of the law. Carrying a gun in one hand and a shopping bag holding $6,400 in loot in the other, he dashed out the front doorway to be faced by constable Larry Short "I had a gun against him and he had a gun against me," Short said. "I shot first." An alarm turned in by a sharp-eyed doctor's receptionist brought police to the scene but Short's shot was the only one needed. The slug caught the bandit in the thigh, knocking him to the pavement. He was handcuffed and taken to hospital, where his condition was described as satisfactory.

Later a charge of robbery with violence was laid against the man, identified by police as 26-year-old Patrick Bell.

A man police suspect of being an accomplice, who sat calmly in a coffee shop three doors away at the time of the shooting, was expected to be charged later today.

He was arrested half an hour after the robbery, without gunfire or a struggle, in an automobile police said the wounded bandit apparently planned to use for his getaway.

The bandit entered the suburban Renfrew avenue branch of the Royal Bank of Canada just before closing time. The only other persons in the bank were employees, manager Ben McInnes and the customer, Dr. D. H. Stanwood.

During the holdup Dr. Stanwood's receptionist, Mrs. R. A. Winterbottom, noticed from her office across the street suspicious movements in the bank.

She made a telephone call to the bank and the manager, warned by the bandit, was able to answer only "I don't know" to her question of whether there was any trouble.

Mrs. Winterbottom wasn't fooled. "That's fine," she told the manager, "I know there is. Just hold tight, I'm phoning the police."

Adenauer Seeking U.S. Help In Handling Refugees

WASHINGTON—(AP)—West Germany Chancellor Konrad Adenauer was reported today seeking special United States financial help in handling refugees from Communist-ruled East Germany. This problem, with other tough economic and trade issues, was up for discussion with State Secretary John Foster Dulles, Foreign Aid Director Harold Stassen and other officials.

Adenauer, who arrived here Tuesday was reported hopeful of the financial backing for building big housing projects in West Germany, mainly to help absorb refugees.

About 1,500 men, women and children daily are slipping through the Iron Curtain into West Berlin.

NO BASIC CHANGE

Officials said Dulles and Adenauer talked over Russia's current line of apparent conciliation and agreed it reflected no basic change in the Soviet dream of world domination.

The German chancellor was quoted as saying the West could test Russia's intentions by renewing proposals for free elections throughout Germany. He also was reported to have asked for support in pressing for the return of some 300,000 Second World War German prisoners still held by Russia.

In arguing against any slowdown of the West's defence drive, Adenauer emphasized Russia's continued armament build-up. He cited the thousands of Soviet Jet fighters on 25 East German airfields, all within 40 minutes flying time of his capital at Bonn, and the 300 Russian and satellite divisions in Eastern Europe.

Apart from discussions with Adenauer, the U.S. was reported to have worked out a new approach to the problem of Western European defence, based on a long pull for 20 to 30 years, rather than preparing for a "crisis year."

Diplomatic officials said thinking had shifted in favor of a program, now accepted by the Eisenhower administration, which could be fitted into the U.S. economy on a long-time basis.

Hold 3-Day Atomic Parley

CHALK RIVER (CP) — Some two dozen atomic scientists from three countries gathered here today to decide what further atomic secrets can be bared without endangering Western defences.

The scientists from Canada, the United States and Britain opened a three-day conference to ponder recommendations to the three governments for revision of the atomic declassification guide.

This guide is used by the three countries in defining what atomic energy information may be made public.

Sixth in the post-war series of will concentrate on atomic information essential in the development of commercial power from atomic energy.

Scientists here said there still are a lot of atom secrets which must be made public before civilian industries can proceed with construction of commercial atomic plants.

21 Terrorists Killed In Clash

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Security forces killed 21 Mau Mau terrorists in clashes Tuesday, it was officially announced today.

The Mau Mau—the hidden ones—are African tribesmen who seek to drive the white settlers from this British colony.

The dead included six of a band of 100 who attacked a mission in the Aberdare foothills, bent on carrying out a Mau Mau execution order against a Roman Catholic priest, Rev. P. J. McGill. Warned by friendly Kikuyu tribesmen, McGill made an eight-mile trip through Mau Mau territory to the nearest police post. A patrol was sent out and intercepted the raiders, killing half a dozen of them.

In the forest in the Kiambu area, British soldiers killed three terrorists and another military patrol shot dead two near the uplands.

A third military patrol surprised a gang emerging from a forest in the Kiambu area and shot five of them dead.

Small Total Alarms Allied Officials, Ask For Review

MUNSAN, Korea—(AP)—The Communists said today they are ready to send home 600 disabled prisoners of war—a figure that includes only 150 Americans and other United Nations soldiers. The chief Allied negotiator, Rear-Admiral John Daniel, told the Communists their figure was "incredibly small," and asked "that you have these figures reviewed". He said later, however, that "I have no reason to believe at the present time that they are not acting in good faith."

The UN command offered to return 5,800 sick and wounded Communists—5,100 North Koreans and 700 Chinese. This is seven per cent of the 83,000 pro-Communist prisoners and four per cent of all prisoners held by the Allies. The Communist figure of 600 is five per cent of the 12,000 to 13,000 UN and Korean prisoners the Reds say they hold.

The only Canadian listed in the United States armed forces list of prisoners obtained from he Communists is Gnr. John Jenkins, Royal Canadian Artillery of Hamilton, Ont.

WORK OUT DETAILS

Both sides named lower- level staff officers to work out administrative details of the exchange.

The staff officers went into session immediately after the liaison groups adjourned for the day.

Daniel asked the Communists for a complete revised text of the draft agreement on transfer of sick and wounded, so the UN command could consider any changes "in one package and arrive speedily to the items which are controversial." The Communists have agreed to the main points of Daniel's plan, and said they will submit their versions of the rest.

The Allied protest on the Communist offer was the stiffest statement yet made in the three-day conference. It was the first note of discord in the otherwise smooth negotiations which Tuesday resulted in agreement in principle to exchange disabled POWs.

North Korean Maj.-Gen. Lee Sang Cho told Daniel: "We have offered the figures of sick and injured prisoners of war only after we have checked the matter in detail. Accordingly, I cannot find any reason why the figures are incredibly small."

Daniel told reporters the figure is "controversial." "It depends on what category you put them in," he said. "In other words, how sick is a man?"

POSSIBLE REASONS

UN sources said possible reasons for the relatively few prisoners the Reds will return include:

1. The Reds may claim some of the Allied troops they hold have embraced communism and decline repatriation.

2. A final, and more dismaying explanation may be found in the Reds' policy of "liberating" captured soldiers at the front. The Communists have captured many more UN troops than they admit. Some Allied estimates place the total at 5,000.

GETS 5-YEAR TERM

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A five-year penitentiary term was the sentence today for a man who robbed the cashier of a downtown London theatre March 26 and fled with his pockets stuffed with $264 in currency.

85 Lake Boats Delayed By Slush Ice

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) One of the worst shipping jams in the history of the Sault Ste. Marie canal was partially solved at noon today when U. S. Coast Guard cutters succeeded in towing the freighter Harry Yates back down the lakes.

The vessel had become jammed in ice near the upper approaches to the canal. All attempts to move her upriver had proved unsuccessful.

Coast guard officials said they will let some of the slush ice flush down through the canal to ease pressure in the upper river. They expect some of the 85 freighters tied up by the ice to begin moving at any time.

The cutters attempted to clear channels through the ice to the head of the locks, but the floating cakes closed in behind them. Freighters trying to make headway were squeezed to a standstill by the floes.

Fifty-two of the waiting ships are stranded in the upper river while 33 are anchored below the canal. Another 20 grain carriers are due down from the Lakehead Thursday.

The coast guard said they hoped that as soon as traffic began moving, the downbound vessels would push some of the ice through the canals into the lower river where it could melt more easily. They said, however, it might take several days to clear the upper approaches to the locks.

3 Years In Attic To Escape TV

NEW YORK (AP)—A bearded young man who spent most of three years cooped up in an attic rather than listen to television and radio was given a mental examination Tuesday.

Alfred Boemler, 36, a former door-to-door peddler, blinked in the daylight as police took him into custody Monday at his mother's home. She called them after she and another son, Walter, despaired of ever getting him to give up his self-imposed exile.

The mother and brother said Boemler left the attic at first to raid the family icebox while they were not home. Later, the mother left food at the attic door.

"I don't care where you take me as long as there are no televisions and radios there," Boemler told police.

Fined $15,000 For Tax Evasion

QUEBEC (CP) — Odilon Ratte, 46-year-old Quebec shoe manufacturer, today was fined $15,000 when he pleaded guilty to seven charges of income tax evasion amounting to $100,894 from 1944 to 1948.

He was also ordered to pay the fines and costs within three weeks or face jail terms amounting to 14 years.

He was sentenced to pay a $3,000 fine on the first charge and $2,000 on each of the other six charges.

Dewey, Eisenhower May Discuss Seaway

WASHINGTON (AP)—Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York may discuss with President Eisenhower New York state's application to join with Canada in building the St. Lawrence power project.

Senator Alexander Wiley (Rep. Wis.), who met Tuesday with Eisenhower, told a reporter through an aide it was his understanding Dewey would confer here Friday with the President.

Wiley indicated the power project would be a likely subject of discussion between the two.

Charge Intimidation

Cancel Talks With Packing House Union

STRATFORD (CP) — Swift Canadian Company officials broke off negotiations today with striking Local 307, United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL) for what they said was "intimidation" of a switch engine crew delivering a car of coal to the strike-bound Swift plant here.

W. D. Sinclair, manager of the local plant, said the union's action was "irresponsible" and "typical of their complete disregard of the law."

He said coal was needed to maintain steam and power services in the packing plant and avoid damage to valuable machinery.

Tuesday, conferences between company and union officials produced no results. Swift executives said then they will not meet again with the union as long as picketing continues.

William Dancavitch, union field man, today described as false the company charges that pickets halted the Canadian National Railways switch engine from entering the plant with the coal car.

He said the engine halted outside plant property and the trainmen asked the pickets if they were still on strike. When the picketers replied they were, the engine was reversed and the carload of coal hauled away.

The strike began March 6 when the 61 plant employees walked out in a dispute for higher wages. The company is reported to have offered them 7½ cents an hour more, but the main point of difference lies in a retroactive pay clause.

Marines, Belgians Hurl Back Attack

SEOUL (AP)—Chinese Reds slammed into Allied defences in western and central Korea today, but battle-toughened U. S. marines and Belgian infantry sent the Communists reeling back.

B-26 bombers wiped out 130 Red trucks on North Korean highways during the night, while fighter-bombers blasted three rail bridges and a radio station at Haeju, in western Korea, the 5th air force said.

More Than 60 Archbishops Attend Funeral Of Vachon

OTTAWA (CP)—Funeral service was held today for the Most Rev. Alexandre Vachon, 67, archbishop of Ottawa, with celebration of solemn requiem mass in the basilica.

In the black and gold draped setting of Notre Dame Cathedral, the body of the sixth bishop of Ottawa rested before the high altar during the service.

Three princes of the Church, more than 60 archbishops and bishops, representatives of the government, diplomatic corps and judiciary, and hundreds of clergy and laity attended the funeral of the spiritual leader of some 500,000 Roman Catholics.

While the choir chanted requiem hymns, the Most Rev. Ildebrando Antoniutti, apostolic delegate to Canada, offered the same simple funeral mass chanted for all members of the Church.

In the sanctuary were three leaders of North American Roman Catholics—Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York, James Cardinal McGuigan of Toronto and Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger of Montreal. Flanking them were prelates from dioceses across Canada and from as far away as Haiti and Labrador.

After the service, the coffin remained in the cathedral to enable the laity of the archdiocese to pay their last respects. Later it will be removed to the basement chapel where, in a crypt cut in stone walls, it will be placed beside the bodies of Msgr. Vachon's five predecessors as bishop of Ottawa.

Archbishop Vachon, who mingled priesthood, scientific studies and public service in an active lifetime, died suddenly March 30 at the municipal airport at Dallas, Texas, in the midst of a 3½-month visit to Latin-America and Australia.

He had been on his way to Sydney, Australia, to attend a eucharistic congress as president of the permanent committee of the international eucharistic congresses.

Archbishop Vachon, last of 13 children born to a family at St. Raymond, Que., is survived by one brother and one sister. Both were present today—Louis A. Vachon of Providence, R. I., and Mrs. Henri Rinfret of Quebec City.

Also present was a 10-man delegation from Laval University at Quebec, where Archbishop Vachon taught and studied from 1911 to 1939, first as a professor of chemistry.

Blames City People For Many Forest Fires

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) The Canadian city-dweller on a holiday, who fancies himself as a frontiersman, was blamed Tuesday night for starting many of Ontario's forest fires.

"He's the kind who imagines himself an experienced bushman, but he's also the kind who gets lost, gets shot and starts fires," Maxwell McLaggen of the Abitibi Power and Paper Company said in an address to the seventh annual district forest protection meeting sponsored by the Ontario department of lands and forests.

Travel permit regulations should be strictly enforced during the fire season, he told the more than 50 representatives of business and municipalities. The individual camper would be more careful if he knew there was a close record of his route and destination he said. He recommended setting up permit stations at each end of every bush road.

Would Question Hon. G. Doucette

HAVELOCK (ENS).—Belmont-Methuen township council are trying to arrange a meeting with the Hon. George H. Doucett, minister of highways, in an effort to get the department to look after the Havelock-Lasswade development road for another year. They also want to find out from Mr. Doucett how the Buckhorn Road is going to be financed.

Following is the resolution proposed by Councillors Gawley and Wrightly:

"That the clerk contact the Hon. H. R. Scott to arrange with the Hon. Doucett, minister of highways in the provincial government, to set a date when he could receive a deputation from Belmonth - Methuen in connection with the following matters:

1.—To converse with the Hon Mr. Doucette on the prospects of carrying on for another year the Havelock and Lasswade development road.

2.—The proposed paving of the Buckhorn road in the suburban area and how it is to be financed."

Reeve William E. Griffith and Deputy - Reeve George Newton both cast their votes against paving the Buckhorn Road this year after a two-hour debate March 26 in the Peterborough County Council. However the motion passed in a split vote.

County Council said they would go ahead with the paving of the 12½-mile road if the city contributed $14,000 and the department approved a $56,000 appropriation bylaw. The county's share of the $70,000 project would be $14,000 to be paid off in five year debentures.

Reeve Griffith strongly opposed the move. He contended that the eastern parts of the county are being neglected and it was Peterborough motor traffic that was largely responsible for road construction work in the western part of the county.

Mrs. David McColl

The funeral of Mrs. David McColl, the former Ellen Thompson, Westwood, who died Saturday, was held Monday from her residence to Westwood United Church.

The Rev. N. Cole of Hastings United Church conducted the service.

Flower bearers were H. Neilson, William Thompson, George McColl, Edward Thorpe, Earl McColl, John Covert. Pallbearers were Fred Neilson, Lorn Hutchison, Robert Douglas, John McColl, Frank Taylor, Rendel Dickson. Burial was in Westwood cemetery.

Women Fined

Lillian Bird of Toronto and Phyllis Blakely of 342 McGill St. were each fined $10 and $2.50 costs in magistrate's court today on charges of creating a disturbance.

City Assumes Share Of Cost Paving Buckhorn Highway

City Council assumed $14,000 of the cost of paving 9½ miles of the Buckhorn Roaod in a motion by Aldermen Burrows and Graham Tuesday night. It was understood that the work would be done this year, that approval would be received from the Department of Highways and the Ontario Municipal Board and also that the council was not setting a precedent.

This action was the city's response to a letter from Mrs. J. A. Spurway, county clerk and treasurer, enquiring whether the city was willing to contribute $14,000 of the cost of laying a mulch top road which was the subject of a series of complaints to the Examiner last year from tourists and city and county motorists.

Mayor Waddell reviewed the circumstances of discussions by representatives of the county and city councils and Suburban Area Roads Commission on the general question of what was to be done about the surfacing of the Buckhorn Road.

The paving proposal had carried through the county council, although not unanimously, His Worship said. Cost of maintining the road last year was approximately $1300 a mile, and at that rate opinion favored the mulch type of surface. It was agreed then that if the work was done and paid for by borrowing on debentures, there would be an economy in saying the difference in cost of the durable pavement.

TIME ELEMENT

Mayor Waddell said that if the council was willing to join with the county in this improvement there was an element of time to be considered in order that the work could be begun early if it was to be done this year.

Ald. T. D. Miller commented that the city was contributing $20,000 for expenditure on suburban roads, as a member of the Suburban Area Commission, and that now an additional $14,000 was proposed for this work on a road in the suburban system. "What assurance that they won't come back next year and ask for something else?"

Mayor Waddell recalled that the Buckhorn Road improvement went back to last year when its unsatisfactory condition was discussed in the press and elsewhere. The result was the ensuing conference by the city and county and Suburban Area representatives, which he had attended. And from that discussion came the mulch paving idea as the only workable means of getting the road into good condition this year.

From the maintenance cost of $1,000 a mile last year, the total of that bill for a gravel road would be up around $15,000, which certainly wasn't economical, Mayor Waddell said. It the road was mulched, it would be done right.

As to precedent, Mayor Waddell said there was no assurance of wnat any one council would do. "At the moment there doesn't seem to be the same problem with any other road."

Mayor Waddell mentioned that the Buckhorn Road had been assumed by the Department of Highways, but had been returned by the Department to the Suburban Area Commission.

"I don't think it would be a precedent," His Worship said.

As to the nine and one-half miles, Ald. Dewart asked what was to be done about the three other miles. Mayor Waddell said that stretch could be paved with the money that would otherwise be spent this year on maintenance.

Ald. Burrows commented that the Buckhorn Road had been a headache for a long time, it was headache for a long time, it was a and its surfacing should be proceeded with at the present time.

Ald. Graham recalled that some tourists had declared they wouldn't come back this way if that road was not improved.

Proposed financing of the road is: $14,000 from the county, $14,000 from the city, and $28,000 by the Department of Highways.

Lindsay Police Seek Mysterious Trader In Game Of Colored Bicycle Wheels

LINDSAY (ENS)—Somebody in Lindsay, according to Chief Constable John Hunter, has been playing a game of "musical bicycle wheels."

Tuesday night, a Mrs. Ford of Melbourne St. W., reported that the red front wheel on her bicycle had been stolen during the previous night and a blue wheel, in just as good condition and the same make, substituted for it. She reported the incident to police, although she was satisfied with the new wheel, which probably gave her one of the few two-toned bicycles in Lindsay.

Chief Hunter and PC John Henly investigated the incident and during their inspection of various places about town came on a blue bicycle without a wheel. It was located at the home of Alvin Johnston, Durham St.

Thinking they had their playful friend, the chief and his man questioned Mr. Johnson about the theft, showing him the blue wheel from his bicycle.

Mr. Johnson, far from being the guilty party, was surprised to have his wheel returned. He told the police that it had been taken from his bicycle the night before but he had not bothered to report the theft because he said he did not think it would be possible to recover it.

The identity of the mysterious "trader" is being investigated.

Bought House So Family Could Have Home

City Council was presented on Tuesday night with an item of municipal business that was wrapped up in a citizen's generous sympathy for a family facing eviction at midwinter with no place to go.

Wilfred Boorman, 582 Bolivar St., bought a house for the man and his wife and their eight children, the eldest, thirteen, at a rental of $45 a month.

"They were going to be put out of the house they occupied in the Hatton subdivision," Mr. Boorman told the council.

By an agreement between the city and Wartime Housing Corporation, which has been succeeded by Central Mortgage Housing Corporation, these houses were all to be vacated for removal from the former Hatton property at the west end of Charlotte St. Finally the city applied for performance of the agreement, and as recently reported from Central Mortgage some three or four houses are all that remain occupied. Legal steps are being taken for their possesby the Crown.

After reading about the circumstances of that particular family of eight children, Mrs. Boorman was wondering where they could go, whether they could find a suitable house and other agitating aspects of their plight.

The Boormans, husband and wife, felt keenly that something ought to be done to help them, and as it turned out they became the active agents in the doing of that something, and in bestirring themselves to get something done. That was last January. By February, the homeless family was comfortably placed in a spacious house, with four bedrooms.

"The husband was thrilled with the prospect of getting it," Mr. Boorman told the council. "I said to the man that my sole interest in the property was in finding a suitable place for him and his family. I asked him whether he could pay $45 a month rent. The man said he thought he could.

LACKED A SEWER

The only thing the house lacked was the sewer connection. But, as there is a sewer about 30 feet from the house, I told the man that I would have the sewer connection put in. Everything appeared to be ready for that step about two weeks ago, and then I learned that I couldn't get it."

So, Mr. Boorman went to the council meeting Tuesday night. He was a little late.. After bylaws were disposed of, Ald. T. D. Miller moved that the council revert to the first order of business— the hearing of deputations.

That is how the Boorman story got out into the open and into print.

"I heard my name mentioned in one of the reports, and I would like to speak about that matter," he said.

The house he bought to help a family in their dire need is on Kenneth Avenue, up on top of the Sherbrooke St. hill above Prince of Wales School.

This is the text of the reference to himself which Mr. Boorman heard as a clause in the board of works report read by its chairman, Ald. P. J. Anglesey.

"That decision in regard to the application of Wilfred Boorman to connect to the Kenneth Ave. sewer the premises located immediately south of the southerly end of Kenneth Ave., be deferred until the City Engineer and the City Clerk have established how such sewer connection might affect the original intention in respect to a new plan of subdivision in this area made possible through the exchange of property between the city and private owners."

That clause elicted Mr. Boorman's account of a good deed done privately, but drawn into the light of publicity by the circumstances properly attracting the council's attention. He said 25 feet off the west end of the lot had been given the city for the widening of High St.

"I am not figuring on anohter cent of rent," he said. "The house was idle, but it was clean and available. It had the water connection and everything was O.K."

NEEDED A SHELTER

And, a family of eight children needed a roof over their heads.

Mr. Boorman said that if the house was in the way of a sewer for a subdivision he would have no objection to the sewer going under the house. He understood from the board of works report why the application for a sewer connection to the house was recently held up.

For the present, the Council is waiting for the report it has asked of City Engineer Chalmers and City Clerk Outram. And, that it where the story ended last night evidently on a note of "to be continued."

Mr. Boorman told the Examiner his tenant is entirely satisfactory, has been working about the house painting indoors and fixing up outside.

"I asked him to come along with me tonight to the council, but he had some painting he wanted to finish, so I came without him."

"I think the council will be in sympathy with this matter," Mayor Waddell said as Mr. Boorman finished his explanation of the circumstances of one of the most extraordinary items of business the council has heard in a long time.

According to little accents in Mr. Boorman's explanation to the council he is entirely happy about his enterprise in kindness — a phrase he did not use. His tenant is interested in keeping the premises tidy and even improving their appearance, he has a job and is doing well at it. "he has put on the uniform of the Salvation Army," and all's well.

If it hadn't been for his promise to see about putting in the sewer, presumably no one would have heard about the solicitude of Mr. and Mrs. Boorman one winter night as it came to their hearts that a man and his wife and eight children were about to become homeless with no place to go. It was a night in early January when the bells of Christmas were still an echo and the spirit of Bethlehem was a fresh and happy memory.

PETERBOROUGH HUMANE SOCIETY

Court Delayed By Error In Summons

The wheels of justice ground to a halt in magistrate's court today when a man pleaded not guilty to a charge of driving while impaired by alcohol and proceeded to upset the crown's case by pointing out a miswording in his summons.

After a five minute recess was hurriedly called, a new, correctly-worded charge was laid and Elywin Murduff of RR 11, Peterborough, pleaded guilty. He was fined $75 and $5.50 costs.

According to crown evidence, the accident from which the charge arose occurred on George St. at Charlotte. But the summons read that it took place at George on Charlotte. After police officers testified, Murduff established the accident had occurred on George then pointed out the mistaken summons.

Magistrate W. R. Philp said the miswording might be grounds for dismissal under a Highway Traffic Act charge. Under the Criminal Code, however, a second, correctly worded charge could be laid.

Murduff waived a second presentation of crown evidence, pleading guilty, and was assessed a total of $80.50 with the alternative of 45 days in jail.

Travel Lecture On Switzerland Last Of Series

"Switzerland" narrated by Ray Eggersted Tuesday evening in the PCVS auditorium was the last film for the season in the Travel and Adventure Series presented by the Kiwanis Club.

The film begins in New York and shows the colorful trip across the Atlantic at night in a Swiss airliner and arrival in Switzerland after 22 hours of flight.

From there the film takes you on a highly delightful tour of Switzerland. Mr. Eggersted arrived in Switzerland on the first of June to film his picture and the Swiss people were right in the middle of their country's 600th anniversary celebration. The peasants and old customs were brought vividly before your eyes.

There are four languages spoken in Switzerland, Italian, Swiss-German, French and German and the population is about 60 percent Protestant and the rest Roman Catholic.

The Swiss are big eaters and their chefs are experts. They have to attend a bakery school for four years before they can enter a hotel kitchen and they must speak several languages.

The climate ranges from the Alpine heights, where perpetual snows mantle the mountain summits, to the semi-tropic where palms, magnolias and lemon trees grow. The Alpine chain covers two-thirds of the country's area.

The film showed Basel, Switzerland's gateway and only seaport where 2,000,000 tons of imported goods pass through every year. The stone walled vineyards of Vaud, rising in graceful terraces beside lovely Lake Geneva were spots of outstanding beauty which the film was able to capture.

The next stop on the film travelogue was the ancient city of Neuchatel, centre of Switzerland's watchmaking industry. It was interesting to note that clocks and watches can be purchased for half the price than they can in North America. Then to the modern town of Zurich and to the laces and ancient customs of one of the oldest towns in Switzerland, St. Gallens, where the famous St. Bernard dogs are trained.

Royalty At Wedding

LUXEMBOURG (AP)—Royalty from 11 countries gathered here today for the wedding of Prince Jean of Luxembourg and Princess Josephine Charlotte of Belgium. The guest list for the wedding tomorrow reads like a who's who of the continental blue book. By train, plane, and automobile, the royal guests converged on this flag-bedecked little capital, whose 70,000 inhabitants expect to be host to 70,000 guests for the national festivities.

GHOST SUBURB—The wartime housing area, built on the Hatton property, Charlotte St. West, resembles a ghost town. Most of the tenants have moved, while others are making preparations to move the houses. Many of the 126 houses have been moved; all will be away and the land clear by May 31. Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation is talking court action for writs of possession in four cases; one writ has been obtained already in court.—(Examiner Staff Photo.)

Crowds Struggle To Attend Christie Trial

LONDON (Reuters) Crowds pushed and struggled to get into a small court here today for a one-minute glimpse of John Christie, the meek-looking middle-aged office clerk accused of one of London's most gruesome slayings.

Only 14 public spectators were able to crush into the little gallery. The rest of the space was filled with lawyers, police and reporters.

Christie, who told police that today was his 55th birthday, was remanded for a week. Throughout his 60-second appearance he sat calmly with his head bowed and a hand shoved deep in his trouser pocket—a balding, bespectacled figure who might be anybody's next-door neighbor.

Christie, the court appearance disclosed, is being defended by one of Britain's leading criminal lawyers, Derek Curtis-Bennett. He helped to defend Klaus Fuchs, the notorious atom spy, and William Joyce, the traitor whom Britons nicknamed "Lord Haw Haw" when he broadcast propaganda for Hitler during the Second World War.

Freed From Prison

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Bahram Shahrokh, director of the Iranian press and propaganda under the late premier Ali Razmara, was released on bail Tuesday after almost two years of imprisonment for alleged misuse of government funds. Shahrokh, who was never tried or convicted of the charge, was understood to have been released because of illness, newspapers reported.

Want No Margarine Served Inmates Of Counties Home; Express Strong Opposition

COBOURG— (ENS) — Taking the stand that Northumberland and Durham was essentially an agricultural district and that the agricultural industry should be protected, counties council Tuesday passed a resolution that the inmates of the Home for the Aged continue to be given butter and no change made in favor of margarine.

For some time now, the counties council have been endorsing every resolution that comes along from other county councils in which opposition is expressed against margarine and council ran true to form in recommending to the Board of Management that the inmates of the Counties Home continue to receive butter and not margarine.

The matter was introduced by Reeve R. McCann of Brighton township who said that he had heard a rumor that the Board of Management of the Counties Home had instructed the superintendent to order a supply of margarine for the inmates. Reeve McCann said there were good herds of dairy cattle in Northumberland and Durham Counties.

GRANTS REFUSED

"We are mainly agricultural in these counties and the industrial development is small in comparison. Without the farmers the businessmen wouldn't be able to go far and it wouldn't take long to prove it. Over in Hastings County they passed a resolution that no grants be paid to institutions where margarine was used and I agree with that resolution. It is too bad if we can't pay a few cents more for butter for the old folks," said Reeve McCann.

Reeve E. M. Herrington of Brighton village, member of the Board of Management, said that there was little to choose by way of taste between butter and margarine. At least he couldn't see any difference.

SAVE $700 A YEAR

"I have to keep expenses down in my own business. All of us have to do so. Well, the same applies on the Board of Management. Margarine is 30 cents a pound cheaper. They use 50 lbs. a week up there, which is a saving of $15 right there in a week or $700 a year. I am not against agriculture. I don't think anybody here has milked any more cows than I have but I am in favor of making a saving wherever we can," said Reeve Herrington.

Reeve H. Smith of Port Hope said that if a product couldn't stand on its own feet in the face of competition, it was its own hard luck. Deputy-Reeve Art Smith of Port Hope said that they could get margarine coloured or uncolored in the States and the dairy industry down there didn't seem to be folding up. The trouble with butter was that it cost too much, he said.

"You are talking about protection. Why don't you go back to the old days when you farmed with horses and all you had to buy was oats for them. Go back to those days, if you feel you must protect the agricultural industry, and run things on oats bought from your own farmers rather than by gas and oil," declared Reeve Smith of Port Hope.

"There is a big profit on margarine because cheap labor gathers the oils used in its manufacture. Too bad if we can't feed the old folks good butter," said Reeve Delbert Olan of Cavan township, a red hot anti-margarine man. Incidently someone in the council had parked a package of margarine on Reeve Olan's desk yesterday.

Warden J. H. Lowery explained that the matter of margarine did come up at a meeting of the Board of Management and it was decided to try it for a week, but nothing was done and so far they are still using butter at the Counties Home.

"Let's go back to the old oat-burners; we can buy the oats from the farmers in Northumberland and Durham instead of giving the money to the oil industry for gas," suggested Smith again.

(Incidently they have dairy cattle up at the counties home but they buy their butter.)

MINISTER VISITS COUNCIL

The Hon. Wm. Goodfellow, former counties councillor, paid a visit to the counties council, talked over old times and obviously got a big lift out of meeting old friends In a short talk to the council, he went over a favorite theme of his, the tendency of the people to want the government to do everything for them. Perhaps the government had fallen down in allowing that attitude to continue. If the public only realized that everything they got they had to pay for, there would perhaps not be so many demands on the government, he asserted.

County council, said the Hon. Mr. Goodfellow, was the best form of government at the least cost. The speaker declared that the grant system was not entirely sound and when paid on a basis of such for every dollar spent by the municipality, it was only encouraging large expenditures. The government plan to pay unconditional grants on the per capita system was the soundest way of doing it, because there was no province-wide equalized assessment. He said that he was afraid people were now living in a fool's paradise and should try to spend less money. He concluded his talk by a discussion on the new hospital grants plan.

ACTIVE YEAR

A report on the counties health unit by Dr. J. W. Wright, reeve of Millbrook, revealed that 1952 had been an active one in the health unit. In that year, no cases of diphtheria were reported and there were no deaths from preventabel disease. The number of children who were immunized was 5,778, almost twice as many as the year before. Only 19 new cases of TB were reported during the year of which six were admitted to canatorium. There were eight resident deaths due to TB. A dental health programme for children was initiated and in the 222 schools in the unit area annual inspection had occurred. Improved sanitation and room lighting had been noted during 1952.

Of the children entering school for the first time, 71.2 per cent had a phyisical examination by the family doctor under a health unit plan financed by a National Health Grant, the report said.

Store Remained For 75 Years In Family Name

Claiming a three generation background as one of the oldest established furniture stores in the city, D. Belleghem and Sons celebrate its 75th anniversary today.

Daniel Belleghem, an employee of George Tanner's furniture store, wouldn't have taken the offer to buy it back in 1878 if Senator George Cox, co-owner in the business hadn't used his persuasive tongue to talk him into transaction.

So Daniel Belleghem, cabinetmaker, became Daniel Belleghem, furniture store operator. Previously in the undertaking business, Mr. Belleghem's profession brought him in contact with the construction of caskets and only a short time passed before he reentered the funeral business.

Belleghem's prospered as the years passed. In 1920 the founder died, leaving his two sons, Walter and Arthur to carry on the business. Walter became sole owner in 1924 and continued in the tradition of his father until his death in 1944.

His wife, Mrs. Walter Belleghem, assumed the burden of management until 1948 when her son Jack, joined and became the third generation in the store's management history.

The factory at the back of the original Tanner store, continued in operation for some years and at its height employed 30 men in the manufacture of furniture. This phase was discontinued many years ago.

Since its founding, the building has swollen from a two storey, little more than residence to a three floor store which now includes the original factory building in the rear.

Parking Meters Again To Fore In Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD — (ENS)— A representative of the Mico Meter Co. addressed the town council on Monday night in connection with the installation of parking meters on Campbellford main business streets. Campbellford had parking meters for a period of about 12 months three years ago but they were removed. Councillors Ness and Tatham were in favour of the installation of meters again, with Mayor Locke and Councillors Free and Rutherford their most bitter opponents.

The price quoted for the meters was a cash figure, with interest on the balance whereas, when meters were installed before, it was on a one year trial basis, after which the sum of $3 per meter per month was to be charged. The question was laid over until the next meeting of the council.

$23,000 FOR SCHOOLS

In accordance with the request of council, the Public School Board submitted their budget, asking for a levy of $23,000, a part of which (about $1,800) will be paid by the township. The balance from 1952 of about $3,000 was not, it was pointed out, taken into account in the budget. Councillor MacMillan objected to this but the majority of the council favored the acceptance of the levy.

Arthur Collette spoke to the council about municipal insurance. He said it should be equally divided among the agencies in town. It was pointed out that the PUC, the school board, hospital and arena boards may spend money without reference to the council but a motion was passed to the effect that council was considering the subject and the various bodies be invited to give their reactions to a joint meeting to deal with all municipal insurance.

Alex P. Wales, International Business Consultant, with whom the council had corresponded concerning his acting for them in England notified the council that he would act for the town for a retainer of $1,200 per annum, plus out-of-pocket expenses, with a bonus of $500 for the securing of an industry of less than 200 employees and $1,000 for one of greater size. The matter was left with the industrial committee, to confer with the Chamber of Commerce.

A. C. Newman addressed the council on behalf of the IOOF who wish to purchase a part of the parking lot on Front St. The matter was referred to the legal and property committees.

Tom Chadwick was chosen from the applicants as the caretaker of the cenotaph and park at a salary of $250 for the season.

A resolution was passed to purchase 50 trees to be planted on the bank of the canal south of the tennis courts and that negotiations with the Dominion government relative to the improvement of the west bank be continued.

Councillor Free reported on the Central Mortgage and Housing controversy over the charging of local improvement rates, and moved that any further correspondence be referred directly to the solicitor. The opinion of Mr. MacColl was that purchasers were liable for these rates.

Councillor Ness reported that Mr. Baird had been hired as police constable.

Legion Requests Larger Pensions

CAMPBELLFORD—(ENS) — Branch 103, Canadian Legion met on Monday night. Comrade Frank A. Clarke was welcomed as a new member of the Branch.

It was announced that the zone meeting will be held in Warkworth on April 15. The district meeting will be held on May 3 this year, at Tweed.

Comrade Bibby reported that the zone cribbage tournament will be held in Brigton on April 16. Bowling playdowns are being held at Lockwood Lanes every Saturday afternoon.

A very comprehensive report on the Area Board was given by Comrade Howard Wilson, who is a member of that board.

The Branch decided that a letter be sent to Dr. W. P. Robertson, MP, to ascertain if there can be an improvement in legislation regarding allowances made to needy veterans. The present allowances are considered insufficient to provide a decent living for those in need of a pension.

"Unnerved" Physical Educators

This week the Ontario Educational Association is meeting, as usual after Easter, in Toronto. At this large convention teaching methods and the problems and philosophy of formal education get an annual spring dusting. Speakers from outside the profession tell teachers (and school trustees who also have a section in the O.E.A.) what education is and sometimes what is wrong with it. Teachers tell other teachers tricks of the trade and discuss the pedagogic life life and times. In general the meetings are stimulating to teachers and their practice. We wonder sometimes if the O.E.A. is too comfortable in the Ontario system to take off its blankets and look speculatively at what education in this province is and what is the condition of the society to which it is an instrument? Despite many decades of O.E.A. meetings each Easter week, the same dust settles again in the same places and the nine o'clock school bells still ring on arithmetic. Perhaps that is well; radical change is not desirable in a complex society.

* * *

Among the speakers at the O.E.A. to date has been a professor of engineering at the University of Toronto who says that technical teachers should take an industrial job once every five years, to observe factory methods and keep up with current techniques. If the notion is sound, why does the professor not extend it to include himself and other teachers of engineering in universities? Such preaching to teachers is a little too common—'do as I say, not do as I do'—and teachers themselves are perhaps too ready to teach in the same way.

* * *

Another speaker was the director of education for Ontario. He talked to the men's physical education section of O.E.A., as apologist for a new Department policy to make no further grants for building gymnasiums in new schools. The president of the section said that its members were "unnerved" over the future of physical education in the Province. Perhaps their nerves would be improved if they conducted their classes out of doors more often and if less regular school time were spent in resounding gymns and more in the class-room to develop sound and informed minds in bodies which on the average are already pretty sound. Is it not a fact that usually the soundest bodies in a school population get most use of school gymnasiums? Physical education for itself should have little place in formal education. It is only a means to an end, or should be: to try to ensure, to the small extent that physical training can do so, sound bodies to support the minds which it is the primary function of schools to train and develop. We believe that good food, good health habits, and healthy parents have more to do with sound bodies than gymnasiums.

* * *

What is a school? It is a community of teachers and pupils generally, but not always in the best schools, provided with a roof over their heads. And what are the people there for? The pupils are there to learn, the teachers to teach. Is there enough sound learning? Is there enough sound teaching? (Let parents and teachers estimate how much of both goes on during the summer term each year, with its holidays, its cadet inspections, its parties, its sports days.) Another consideration: the state schools have no control over the quality of pupils sent them; by law all children must go to school. But the quality of the teachers should be open to selection, for it is in its teachers, and not through the pupils or the buildings that the Ontario school system shows itself bad, good or indifferent. How good are our teachers, as teachers instructing out of their own learning? If pupils are leaving our schools semi-literate, as some teachers and other members of our society say, may a reason not be that some of their teachers have not been sufficiently literate themselves? Or is the society to blame? If so, are teachers examining that society closely enough?

Behind The Goose-Step

A few of our contemporaries are upset because some films have been smuggled out of the Communist zone in East Germany which show German boys and girls marching with red banners in the fashion which we call the goose-step. This goose-step appears to alarm our editorial friends, but we see nothing worse in it than in any other form of military gait.

We have not been able to trace the history of the goose-step, but we have a notion that something like it was first imposed upon the Prussian armies by Frederick the Great, and for a very practical reason; a man can march farther, with less fatigue, in the goose-step than if he uses a less extended gait, for every step extends his leg-muscles to the fullest. It looks odd, but it works.

A history of military training would make interesting reading. All sorts of schemes have been devised at one time and another to train men to match long distances as fast as possible, and without extreme fatigue. The goose-step is only one of these. In the nineteenth century soldiers trained in the British tradition walked with an exaggeration of upright posture—head back, chin in, chest up and shoulders back and usually extremely rigid. After the First Great War this military posture was revised, along lines suggested, if we are not greatly mistaken, by an Australian, Mathias Alexander. The modern stance is much less rigid, the chest is not artificially held high, and a greater suppleness is permitted in the back. The new posture is at least as efficient as the old one, for it does not create so much fatigue.

A man who had been trained in the German army previous to 1914 once told us that the goose-step was agony to master, but when once it had been fully learned, it was a very easy and comfortable march step. In any case, it is not the step which matters, but the reason for which the step is undertaken. It does not matter if Germans walk on their hands, so long as they walk in peace.

No Sense Of The Past

We agree with the Ottawa Journal that we Canadians are inclined to put up cairns at historic sites, but we take very little care of our historic buildings. In a century or so, when we have a better developed sense of the past than we possess at present, we shall regret this passion for cairns. After all, the site of a historic deed is of lesser interest than the actual building or room in which a historic deed took place. The people of Europe—yes, and of the U.S.A.—understand this, but we in Canada have not awakened to it yet.

We have a theory as to why this is so. Canada is, upon the whole, ashamed of its past. It is characteristic of this country that virtually every man is wealthier and better educated than his father was. As for Grandfather—well, he was a pretty ordinary old codger, and the recollection of the way he blew on his tea and belched after drinking it still brings a blush to the cheek. When we talk of our pioneer ancestors very few of us are talking about actual people whom we remember and admire; we are thinking of vague and romantic shapes, dimly recalled from pictures by C. W. Jefferies. We want to be free of the past; we think that the people in our past were less worthy than ourselves; we have great hopes for the future.

There is something that is admirable, and also something that is pathetic, in this point of view. But there is also something ungrateful and cheap about it. Are we ashamed of the log cabins? Do we blush because our early government originated in poky little domestic buildings, and because our universities began in what looked like modern university boarding-houses? It is time we outgrew so shoddy and self-conscious an attitude. And it is time we stopped putting up heaps of rocks on historic sites, and took strong measures to preserve some of our historic buildings. In this district, the Langton home at Fenelon Falls springs instantly to mind.

Sub-Standard Cheese

Some cheese producers in this district were angry with us because, last December in an editorial commending Ontario cheese and a new method of marketing it, we also remarked that Canadian cheese had not always been good and that some pretty unpalatable stuff used to be exported to England. One local cheese man was unkind enough to tell us, in so many words, that it was our editorial that stank, not the cheese. We were slandering Ontario cheese, he avowed. We mildly refuted him at the time. We wish now to call to witness a recent Canadian Press despatch from Ottawa, which begins: "A federal food inspector testified here in magistrate's court that the food and drugs division is investigating about 150 eastern Ontario cheese manufacturers and jobbers reported to be producing sub-standard Canadian cheddar cheese". One cheesemaker has already pleaded guilty to selling cheese which did not meet pasteurization requirements or was not stored for the required minimum of sixty days. We expect and hope that it did not find its way into export markets.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Britain leads the world in the export of dogs. Instead of going to them, the old girl sends them to others.

We read that a rope of spider silk an inch thick could hold up 74 tons. But as the substance is spider monopoly, we presume that it will continue to be just strong enough to hold a spider.

An English scientist says that every child is worth $8,000 to its government from the moment of birth. And the little rascals have been concealing it! Put the tax-collectors on them at once!

A MILITARY ANALYSIS

Atomic Power To Deter War?

By CHESTER WILMOT

Ed. Note: Chester Wilmot of Britain is considered the foremost military correspondent in the western world. This report has been written specially for the London Observer and Peterborough Examiner.

BRITAIN'S DEFENCE VOTE this year has reached the record peace-time total of £1,650 million, but even this vast sum would have to be very much greater if it were not for the superiority of the United States over the Soviet Union in atomic weapons.

This, as Mr. Churchill has repeatedly pointed out, is the real deterrent to aggression, and it is one of the main factors in the current British appreciation that the danger of a world war breaking out has receded.

In the light of this appreciation, made last summer by the British Chiefs of Staff, the Churchill Government has felt justified in stretching out the Attlee Government's rearmament programme (which was to have cost £4,500 million in three years) and in scaling down certain of its targets in order to keep defence expenditure within limits that the country's economy can bear without undue strain or strict Government control.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS POLICY is based on the belief that defence planning must be geared for a long pull not a short heave. But this means taking a calculated risk which is justified only if the atomic deterrent is strong enough not only to restrain deliberate aggression but also to impose on the Soviet leaders such caution that they will avoid any move which might extend the Cold War and accidentally start a Hot War.

The decisive question is therefore— How effective is the deterrent power of the atomic bomb likely to be? This is not an easy question to answer, but some appraisal of the probabilities must be made before there can be any realistic defence planning.

Shortly after his retirement President Truman expressed the view that, although the Russians had carried out their first atomic test as far back as September 1949 and had since brought about at least two atomic explosions, there was still some doubt whether they had an atomic bomb of manageable proportions.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS OPINION, coming from a man so recently in possession of the best American Intelligence appreciation, attracted widespread attention, but it was promptly denied by the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission and it is not supported by British atomic scientists who know the value of the information which Klaus Fuchs betrayed to the Kremlin.

The expert view in Britain is that Fuchs gave the Russians all the technical data they needed and that once they had the "know-how" it was comparatively easy for them to produce the bomb. It is estimated that Fuchs saved the Russians at least two years, but it is not considered likely that they can have made good the four years' start which the United States had over them in production.

✧ ✧ ✧

NO ONE CAN KNOW what the relative stockpiles are, but it is known that American defence authorities are working on the assumption that the United States has an advantage of at least five to one and probably ten to one in its stock of fissionable material. Moreover, the United States has such an advantage in technological skill and industrial capacity that it should be able to maintain this margin.

An indication of America's resources is provided by the continued expenditure of atomic weapons for experimental purposes. Since January 1951 the Americans have exploded twenty-five atomic bombs and these have ranged from small tactical missiles to bombs with at least twice the power of that used against Hiroshima. The Americans are known to have developed an atomic bomb small enough to be carried on the external racks of fighter-bombers and this year they will test a long-range gun firing a 240mm shell with an atomic warhead.

The Russians, by contrast, have carried out only three atomic tests large enough to be identified abroad, although they may have made other experimental explosions with smaller weapons.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE AMERICAN TESTS probably have a political as well as a scientific purpose. British atomic scientists consider that the number and variety of experiments, and the great publicity given to them, are part of a deliberate—and wise—plan to enhance the deterrent effect of the atomic bomb by reminding the Russians of its terrifying impact and of America's power to retaliate.

This warning is reinforced by the known ability of the United States Strategic Air Command to strike from bases on the North American continent at targets anywhere in the world without having to resort to flight refueling.

From his headquarters in Omaha, Nebraska, General Curt Le May now has under command a powerful force of B-36 intercontinental bombers. These are powered by six petrol-driven engines, and four jets and are capable of operating at an altitude of 50,000 feet, where they should enjoy a very high degree of protection against fighter interception.

These B-36's, as General Le May has said, are "in a constant state of combat readiness poised for immediate deployment." All the aircraft are equipped with navigational aids and radar equipment which, so General Le May claims, will enable them to find and hit their targets in any weather.

✧ ✧ ✧

THEIR CREWS have been given a gruelling training in long-range navigation and have all been specially schooled in the targets they would have to attack in the event of war with the Soviet Union. Each crew has its own objective already designated and has spent many months studying the substantial dossier of target information prepared by the Intelligence Staff of Strategic Air Command.

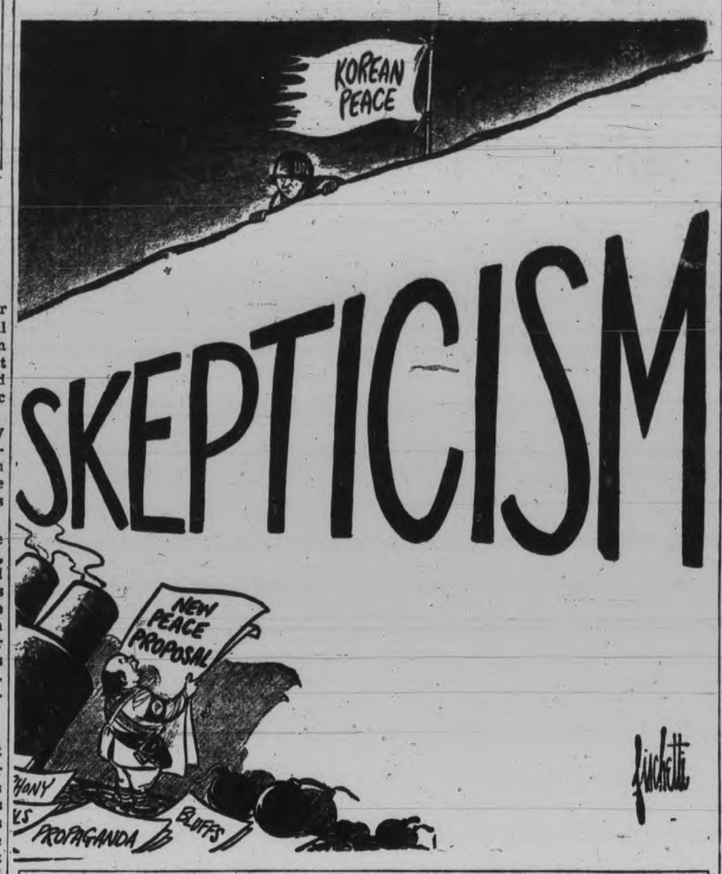
In addition to its B-36's, the Strategic Air Command is now being equipped with B-47's, medium jet-bombers, capable of attacking targets in Russia from bases in Britain and French North Africa.

Although the United States possesses the main strategic striking force of the Western Powers at present, Britain's Royal Air Force will be able to make a very substantial contribution as soon as its V-class jet bombers (the Valiant, Vulcan and Victor) come into service. Bomber Command squadrons should get their first Valiants next year and these have a performance superior to that of the American B-47.

✧ ✧ ✧

BY COMPARISON the Soviet Air Force is not nearly so well equipped as the U. S. A. F. is now or as the R. A. F. will be next year. The Russian strategic air arm is still equipped with the TU-4 — the Soviet version of the American B-29, the Super-Fortress which is being used in Korea.

In Korea the Americans have found that the B-29 is too vulnerable to be operated in force by day against an enemy equipped with jet-fighters and this experience seems to have been confirmed by R. A. F. Fighter Command during exercise Ardent last October. Individual TU-4s might still penetrate an efficient fighter defence, but they would be unlikely to get through in sufficient number to strike the single, annihilating blow, which the Russians would have to deliver if they wanted to knock out the U. S. Strategic Air Command before it could retaliate.



The Soviet Union already has a light jet-bomber, but this is considerably smaller than the British Canberra and it is doubtful whether it could carry both an atomic bomb and the navigational and radar aids required for making an accurate attack. The Russians have also developed a medium jet-bomber, but they have had some difficulty in producing engines of sufficient power and this aircraft is not yet in service in Soviet squadrons.

It seems, therefore, that until the Russians can equip their strategic air arm with something very much better than the TU-4 they will not be in a position to risk a trial of strength in atomic weapons with the United States and Britain.

In both their stockpiles of bombs and in the means of delivering these, the North Atlantic powers appear to have a considerable advantage over the Soviet Union for the moment, but this advantage must be maintained at all costs if the peace is to be kept and the Soviet regime deterred from attempting to gain its ends by aggression.

BUT A LITTLE SCEPTICAL ABOUT U.S. SKEPTICISM

How Fares The Musk-Ox?

(EDMONTON JOURNAL)

A RECENT dispatch from Ottawa reports the sighting of a herd of musk-oxen north of Great Bear Lake, where they have never before been seen. This may have some significance or none, but it is at any rate a reminder of the existence of this singular animal in the Canadian far north. Noting the statement in the dispatch that their numbers have decreased greatly during the past 50 years, we wonder whether they are in danger of extinction.

At present, according to the account from Ottawa, only small, scattered herds are known to inhabit our far north. There may still be some in Greenland, but it seems probably that Canada is the chief custodian of the last of the musk-oxen and thus is mainly responsible for ensuring their preservation.

This responsibility should be taken seriously, for the animals are worth preserving, not only for their own sake, like the bison of the southern plans, but because they could have economic value. The famous Arctic explorer, Vilhjalmur Stefansson, has stated that their meat is excellent, their milk highly palatable and their wool usable, and he has urged that they be "cultivated" on a large scale.

This may sound far-fetched today, but Stefansson is looking to the future when our northern regions may hold far more in the way of industry, commerce and population than they do now. Why not seize the rare opportunity the musk-oxen offer to develop a native source of food, a native branch of agriculture, in the far north?

It is to be hoped that the federal government is keeping a close watch on the numbers and the condition of the musk-ox herds. If this is not the case, it should lose no time in taking up the task. With the present northern bases and with the aid of modern aerial photography perhaps it would be possible to take a census at moderate cost. The money would be well spent.

Costly TV Programmes

(Wall Street Journal)

More and more advertisers are convinced they can't afford to stay in costly television much longer—yet they fear the results if they don't.

Symbolic of the problem plaguing advertisers is the experience of the Texas Co., which has sponsored comedian Milton Berle since 1948 over the National Broadcasting Co. television network. Listen to Texas Co.'s advertising manager, Donald Stewart:

"Berle is doing a good job for us and we're happy with him, but regardless of how good a job he's doing, the show has become too expensive. So we're dropping the programme after the June 9 performance.

"The programme is costing us approximately $110,000 a week now and next Fall the tab would go up to about $150,000 a week. If we were to put that kind of money into one show, it would completely unbalance our advertising budget."

Approximately a year ago the Berle programme cost its sponsor around $75,000 a week, while the tab two years ago was $6,000.

Mr. Stewart explains that all the things that go into putting the show on the air—talent, production and network advertising rates—have contributed to the higher costs.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Versino)

Let that therefore abide in you, which ye have heard from the beginning. If that which ye have heard from the beginning shall remain in you, ye also shall continue in the Son, and in the Father . . .

And now, little children, abide in him; that, when he shall appear, we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming. If ye know that he is righteous, ye know that every one that doeth righteousness is born of him. (1 John 2: 24, 28, 29.)

Letters To The Editor

FINDING WATER WITH GAD

Sir: You say in your letter that the rod broke in your hands when you tried to keep it from turning down. I say the rod will not bend down by itself. That it has to be forced down. There is no such thing as a power to find water with a gad. It is not water that bends the rod. It's your own power on the rod that forces it down. There is nothing to this way of finding water at all. I can prove that the gad is a false water-finding device.

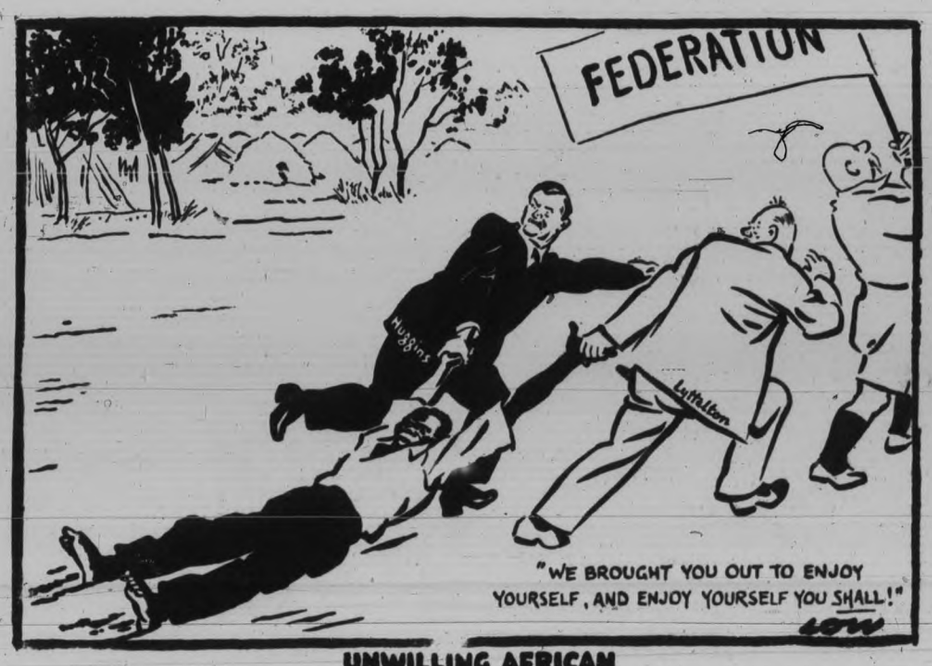
Thanking you,
AN INTERESTED READER.

COMMENDATIONS

Sir. I am writing to your estimable periodical journal, with the utmost hope that you will descry the humorous reaction towards your neoteric suggestion of Canned Editorials on April 4.

This syndicate which offers canned editorials to your excellent commentary of local information and acquaintances is preposterous. I have always enjoyed your authenticity, exactitudeness and facetious in journalism. I myself and perhaps others are envious of the extraordinary mental certitudes, which our editor has in regard to pedantry both in theatricals and literature.

I accede to your prejudgement towards newspaper editorials and wish to felicitate your diathesis of the press. Thanking you for the space in your excellent paper.



WILLIAM COLLINS.

I LIKE POGO

Sir: I wonder how many people, in Peterborough, and district read Walt Kelly's comic strip "Pogo" in the pages of the Examiner for there is a comic strip that really deserves the name, and Mr. Kelly should be awarded a Pulitzer Prize for humour, if there is such a thing. Following the antics of these fantastic creatures of the swamp, and to deriving even greater pleasure from the liberties they take with our language, is as refreshing as taking a walk through a flower garden. For through the glades of the swampland wander the weirdest set of animal characters that ever delighted the hearts of child and man. Miz Mamselle the attractive. (I blush to mention the word) skunk and little Grundoon, is I think, the dearest of them all and then of course "Pogo", sad eyed and a little world-weary at the unpredictable conduct of his friends. Albert, the brash, tough alligator who is always having trouble with his digestion and no wonder for his friends will persist in exploring his capacious innards. I think Mr. Kelly is a great man, and the equal of the immortal Lewis-Carrol creator of one of the world's most loved books, Alice in Wonderland and its sequel, Through the Looking Glass. It is a very pleasant thing to wander through these mysterious glades with "Pogo" and exist for a while in a world in which there is no cruelty—no pain and not even death.

Freight Rate Appeal Heard In May

OTTAWA (CP) — An appeal by eight provincial governments against Canada's latest freight rate increase is expected to be heard by the cabinet during the first week of May.

The governments are asking cabinet to rescind the seven-per-cent boost that went into effect March 16, pending new studies by the board of transport commissioners aimed at reducing or wiping out the increase.

The $38,500,000-a-year increase was authorized by the board March 9. The provinces asked cabinet to disallow it under its Railway Act powers pending an appeal, but the cabinet declined to do this.

Instead, federal ministers will hear a full-dress appeal while leaving the higher rates in effect until they reach a decision. The early-May date was understood to have been set to allow for completion of Western board hearings on rate equalization, due to end late this month.

MANY SPECIALISTS

Many provincial governments freight rate specialists are engaged in these hearings, aimed at levelling rate inequalities as between different parts of Canada. The same group will be drafting the appeal to cabinet. It is expected to meet next week in Winnipeg, where the board also will be sitting, to put the final touches to the argument against the rate increase.

Among observers here, the odds against outright success in getting the rate increase rescinded appear slim.

All-Canadian Route Urged For Gas Pipe

OTTAWA (CP)—George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said in the Commons Tuesday an all-Canadian route should be used to pipe natural gas from Alberta to Eastern Canada.

Any surplus gas above Canadian requirements could be shipped directly from Western Canada to the United States northwest, he said in debate on a bill to incorporate Mid-Continent Pipe Lines, Ltd.

The company plans to build a line from Alberta as far east as Montreal. A Commons committee recommended that the House insert in the measure a clause specifying that any pipelines built by the company must be within Canada.

Mr. Drew said his party believes that, subject to Canada's own reasonable requirements, she should not hesitate to make arrangements with the U.S. for the exchange of resources such as gas. But he was against the building of a line between east and west through the U.S. south of the Great Lakes.

JUST DELUSION

"If gas is carried by a pipeline south of the Great Lakes," Mr. Drew said, "we are only deluding ourselves if we suggest this can be done in bond. We know perfectly well that if gas is carried by pipeline south of the lakes, it is going to be used in the United States."

If the gas was to be used in Ontario and Quebec, the only way to make sure of this was for the line to go north of the Great Lakes.

"If the pipeline is constructed south of the lakes," he said, "we might as well abandon any hope of having a pipeline carry natural gas into Northern Ontario, and into Quebec as well."

Mr. Drew added Northern, central and eastern Ontario and all of Quebec would be "entirely dependent on" decisions of the U.S government and of states through which the line would pass.

Natural gas going by the northern route could be sold at about half the cost of the heat now obtained in Ontario and Quebec from manufactured gas. It would be "economically attractive."

Declares Canada's Expansion Founded On Very Solid Basis

NEW YORK (CP)—Trade Minister Howe of Canada told a Town Hall audience Tuesday that Canada's current expansion is founded on a solid basis.

"I often see references to what is called the 'Canadian boom,'" he said in an address prepared for the big New York forum of business and industrial executives. "If this phrase implies that Canada is expanding and prosperous, the description is accurate enough.

"Sometimes, however, the word 'boom' suggests a temporary and artificial prosperity, accompanied by inflation and excessive speculation, and ending inevitably in a 'bust.' In that sense there is no Canadian boom and anyone who goes to Canada looking for one will be disappointed."

EMPHASIZES 3 POINTS

He emphasized three main points in his talk on Canada's economic future:

"That our development is well founded, that our resources are great and growing, and that we look hopefully to co-operation with other countries to solve the problems that we can see ahead."

Other speakers Tuesday were Hume Wrong, Canada's ambassador to the U.S., who spoke on Canada-U.S. relations; and Leonard W. Brockington of Toronto, president of Odeon Theatres of Canada, Ltd., who dealt with "Canada and a Better World."

In the same year he was returned by acclamation to the office of president of the Co-operative Union of Canada and in March, 1953 at the Annual Congress held in Regina he was elected to the new full time salaried position of president of the Co-operative Union of Canada.

Two Provinces Outlaw Police And Fire Strikes

EDMONTON (CP)—Police and firemen in two Western provinces are having their voluntary no-strike policy written into the statute books. New legislation in Alberta and Saskatchewan outlaws strikes by either of the two services.

The strike ban isn't the chief aim of the bills, however. Their main purpose is to make the findings of arbitration boards binding on both sides in wage disputes involving police and fire departments.

Spokesman for the police and firemen claim that in the past city councils, police boards and such have taken advantage of the fact policemen and firemen would not consider a strike and have refused to act on arbitration recommendations favorable to the men.

The Western Canada Police Association, organized in Edmonton three years ago, has been campaigning for the legislation. So has the International Association of Firefighters, affiliated with the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

In Alberta, two acts, one for police and one for firemen, became law last week. Similar bills are before the Saskatchewan legislature. The Alberta acts were modelled on legislation pioneered by Ontario several years ago. British Columbia also has similar laws.

It is nearly a quarter-century since the West had police or firemen's strike action.

In 1918, a firemen's strike in Edmonton lasted six weeks. A year later in Winnipeg, during the general strike there, policemen voted to strike but decided to remain on the job to maintain order. Later, when police refused to sign a contract outlawing strikes, the force was dismissed as a body and a new one organized. The originals never were reinstated.

In the years since, a no-strike policy has gained strength among police and fire departments in the west. When the WCDA was organized, a clause was written into the constitution prohibiting a strike by any member police force.

During debate in the Alberta legislature on the new acts, Labor Minister J. L. Robinson said he thought the public interest would be well served if more workers in the field of essential public services followed the example of the firemen and police in asking that the right to strike be taken away from them by law.

The new Alberta Police Act includes a direct prohibition on police personnel belonging to a trade union. They are allowed membership in associations such as now exist. Firemen may continue union membership.

The main difference between Alberta and Ontario legislation is in the size of arbitration boards. Alberta boards will have five members unless both sides prefer three. In Ontario, three-men boards are mandaotry. Saskatchewan also plans three-man boards.

The Alberta legislation goes into effect July 1 and is not applicable to a current stalemate in negotiations between the Emonton police force and the city. The police are asking a 10-per-cent wage increase. The city has offered 3¾ per cent.

Seaway Delay Puzzles Canada-Howe

NEW YORK (CP)—The halting moves of the United States towards co-operation in the St Lawrence seaway project puzzle Canada, Trade Minister C. D. Howe said Tuesday in a Town Hall speech.

He re-affirmed that Canada is ready to go ahead with the seaway part of the project once the U.S. designates a partner to join with Ontario on the power project in the International Rapids.

"The apparent unwillingness of your government to extend the small degree of co-operation required to enable Canada to proceed with this project puzzles us completely," the Canadian trade minister said.

NECESSARY ECONOMY

"The drop of the river in the International Rapids section makes possible the development of a large block of low cost hydro-electric power, to be shared equally by our two countries. Economy dictates that this hydro power be developed either prior to, or as part of, the seaway development.

"Canada can and will proceed to remove the bottle-neck in her 27-foot navigation channel from Lake Erie to the ocean as soon as competent authorities are authorized to build the power developments."

Meanwhile, in Washington White House callers quoted President Eisenhower as "still very much in favor" of the U.S. federal power commission granting New York state licence to start building the power project.

The Movie Column

Hits Move Trail For Last Time

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Ma and Pa Kettle and their 15 children are hitting the movie trail for the last time.

The Kettles have had amazing success. The characters were pulled out of "The Egg and I" and put into a low-budget comedy. It was an instant success, and one picture led to another. Dollar for dollar, they have been the best movie investment in years. Made on a quickie budget, they have outgrossed the majority of the high-priced epics.

It seems that everyone likes the Kettle series except Marjorie Main and Percy Kilbride, who play the leading roles. Last year, when they made their last one, an unreleased film about Waikiki, they swore it would be their last. But they are making another, "Ma and Pa Kettle Hit the Road Home."

I asked Percy how come.

"Wal," he said, "The studio offered some inducements that were too appealing to pass up. For one thing, they now have a limousine to transport me to and from the studio. I don't drive, you see; I always had to take a taxi before. I am allowed to quit work at 4:30.

5-DAY WEEK

"Also, I only have to work five days a week. And the studio offered a nice little nugget as added inducement."

What is his objection to continuing with the Kettles?

"I had my training on the stage, where I did a variety of roles. That's the fun of being an actor: To meet the challenge of creating new characters.

"But old Pa Kettle is always the same. He can do anything; there is no need to establish any motivation. There's no kick in doing him over and over again."

Percy, 65, has reason to dislike being typed. Although he played many roles on the stage, he has generally played a taxi driver or a farmer in movies. He cannot drive and has never lived on a farm.

He has been cast as the parent of 15 progeny in the Kettle series. He actually is childless.

Percy said Miss Main blows hot and cold over continuing with the Kettles. But he is firm in his resolve that this is the last one.

Record Civic Budget

NEW YORK (CP)—The biggest executive budget in New York City's fiscal history was unveiled Tuesday by mayor Vincent Impellitteri. The budget of $1,528,812,795 for the year beginning July 1 is about 3.75 per cent greater than last year and is the largest of any in the U.S. except the federal budget.

Five Peterborough Boys Make Good Showing At Detroit Tryout Camp

The five Peterborough boys who took in the Red Wings' hockey school in Detroit over the Easter weekend made a good impression on Manager Jack Adams and his assistants. This was reported last night by Red Creighton to The Examiner, Red having taken the five boys over and remained for the three-day tryout. The five were: Bud McDougall, Bob Gardner, Jack Kane, Larry Ball and Jerry Frizzelle. They will attend the Wings' camp in Sault Ste. Marie this fall, Red Creighton said, and he felt that most—if not all of them—would catch on somewhere in the Detroit organization, probably starting of in junior "A" or "B". Detroit officials informed the Peterborough man that they would analyze their findings on the local boys and give out an official statement shortly.

WHITTLED DOWN

"There were 84 at the camp to start out on Saturday morning, but they were whittled down to about two dozen or so when the camp finished at noon Monday," Red Creighton said: "each batch of players had an hour and a half each morning and the same time in the afternoon on Olympia ice while the Red Wings' officials looked on. Jack Adams stayed for the whole three-day period, not even going to Boston with the big team. Johnny Mitchell, their chief scout, and Coach Jim Skinner of the Windsor junior 'A' club also were present for every workout. Coach Tommy Ivan of the Wings watched the kids on Saturday. There were several other club scouts on hand, too."

The whittling-down process started Sunday afternoon, the second day of the school. There were 3 batches of players from all parts of Ontario still going Monday, but the camp terminated at noon with Scouts Adam Brown and Johnny Mitchell having a private talk with the boys they were chiefly interested in. The Peterborough lads stayed till the last and were told to report to the fall camp up north. If they make good at this 10-day school (where the Red Wings will also practice) they will be offered schooling and expenses if they want that to play junior in the Detroit organization. Otherwise, jobs will be obtained for them as they start up the hockey ladder.

JACK REMEMBERED

Manager Jack Adams expressed keen interest in Peterborough, Red Creighton said, asking about Mucker Legros and others he knew when he played here back in 1917. He took time out to chat with the five boys from here, and said he was interested in several more local players.

"I think Red Sullivan should be playing all the time with Boston," Mr. Adams told Red; "he's a fine player.As a amatter of fact I had him in Windsor when he was only 14, but he got homesick and left us."

The Wings have in Ontario junior "B" teams in Sarnia and Windsor, and a junior "A" club in the latter city. Next winter, they will sponsor a senior "A" club in Sarnia, and offials there indicated they would like to have Arn Dugan transfer from Brantford to Sarnia. Red Creighton, who is now scouting this area for the NHL champions, has advised Dugan to this effect.

ENJOYED TRIP.

The local contingent had a fine trip and outing, the boys thoroughly enjoying the sight-seeing and shopping. They motored down and back, had a hotel with all expenses in Windsor, and taxis to and from the Detroit Olympia Stadium. They took only their skates, the other equipment being supplied. They were told to keep in shape this summer, cut out smoking and try to put on muscular weight.

McDougalls Gardner and Frizzelle played junior "B" the past winter for the Oddfellows, while Ball and Kane are PMHA products, Kane being in midget ranks and Ball playing last season for Hastings in the TVL as well as in the local association. Three of them are but 16 years old, while Frizzelle and Ball are just 17.

Rookie Mazur Wins Plaudits Of Canadiens

MONTREAL (CP)—Big Eddie Mazur, rookie hero of Tuesday night's game that gave Montreal Canadiens a seventh-game 4-1 victory over Chicago Black Hawks and sent them into the Stanley Cup final, was the centre of congratulations when Canadiens clumped happily into their dressing room.

There were shouts of "Atta Way to Go" and "Nice Game, Eddie" for the burly winger from Victoria Cougars who first got into this Stanley Cup semi-final last Saturday. It was then that coach Dick Irvin decided to inject his rookie strength into the series.

Irvin walked up to Mazur and with a smile and handshake said to the Winnipeg-born wingman: "An old Winnipeger, eh?"

Then turning to the crowd in the room, Irvin said: "Wasn't that guy terrific?

CLEAN SERIES

"It was a nice game to win and a good, clean series. Though all seven games were good. Actually the best two were in Chicago when the Hawks won both of them. I think our gamble of putting in four fresh players made the difference."

Irvin said he thinks the final against Boston will be tough. "The Bruins knocked off Detroit. They've had a couple of days more rest and they have no injuries," said Irvin.

Coach Sid Abel of the Hawks hustled into Canadiens' room to congratulate Irvin and the team. He shook hands with each Montreal player.

"Hope you go all the way, boys," said Abel. Then, as he was leaving, he called out to Irvin: "Give 'em hell, Dick."

TIMOTHY GEOHAGEN, above, whose recent victories over the topnotchers, makes him the logical choice to win tonight's main event at the Brock Arena against the Red Mask. Great interest is being shown in the tag team match featuring the world-famous midget wrestlers. It will be Little Beaver and Salie Halassie against the Mighty Schultz and Tom Thumb. Larry Moquin opens the card against Bert Ruby of Detroit. The largest crowd to ever witness wrestling in Peterborough is assured tonight.

DO YOU OWN A CAR?

When the man who developed Bardahl Rad Conditioner brought his car to a garage for repairs, the garage owner phoned to ask him what on earth had he put in his radiator. He said that when they drained his radiator the water was so thick with dirt it would hardly pour. The Bardahl Rad Conditioner had removed rust, scale and dirt untouched by a popular brand chemical cleaner. The garage owner immediately placed an order for their own use. Since then hundreds of thousands of car owners in Canada and the United States have used Bardahl Rad Conditioner. If you own a car you should try it too . . . if your car is new it will keep your radiator in permanently new condition . . . if you have been running your car for a few years you'll be amazed at the dirt, rust and scale it will remove. Bardahl Rad Conditioner keeps radiators clean . . . eliminates rust formation which can insulate a motor, causing harmful overheating . . . and it also lubricates and stops squeaky water pumps. Bardahl Rad Conditioner costs only 89c. Ask for it at your Service Station.

OPP Team Gets An 8-7 Win Over Port Hope

Civic Arena concluded its winter activities for 1952-53, Tuesday night, with a sparkling farewell hockey exhibition between the local provincial police and a picked squad from Port Hope coached by Bill Stothart. The Peterborough squad emerged victorious 8-7, in a friendly but keenly-contested struggle, with the issue in doubt till late in the finale when fast tallies by Don McComb, aided by his mates Doc McNeil, Ace Reid and Gord Gray, sealed the issue.

Despite the apparent lack of perfect condition on the part of both crews, the players showed remarkable zip and rugged drive to treat a handful of fans to some good hockey; and coach Bob Lamb seemed pleased with his Eastern Ontario police champs.

A GOOD LEAD

The coppers took a strong 5-2 lead in the opening frame, when the local huskies enjoyed a fair territorial edge in play and seemed headed for a one-sided triumph. McComb tallied thrice, aided by McNeil and Bob Menzies while Reid snared two markers with the help of Jim Healey and Gord Gray. Play sizzled both ways and the lakeshore crew battled fiercely to stem the attack of the law. Crow Hagerman and Ted Smith tallied for the visitors with the help of Bill Perry, Glen Cotter and Tom Mix (not the ghost of the dead actor) and all hands gave it their all.

The second period saw a complete reversal of form on the part of the visitors as they outplayed the boys in blue by a fair margin; and rifled three bullets past goalie Roy Feeley with Kip Douglas the marksman and Kip incidently proved the Hopers' individual star. Hagerman, Smith and Fred Ashby assisted on the payoff thrusts. Ace Reid, one of the locals' best, scored the OPP's lone marker.

HOT IN THIRD

Play was evenly-contested in a wild third frame that saw tempers flare slightly and legs totter noticeably; each squad tallied twice with Mix and Douglas the Hope snipers and McComb twice for the winners; the latter's insurance counter near the three-quarter mark proved the clincher, as, with but five seconds to go, Bill Douglas fired what would have been the tying goal from Mix. Don McComb scored five to lead all marksmen.

OPP: Goal, Roy Feeley; defence, Geo. Louth and Gord Gray; centre, Ace Reid; wings, Jim Healey and Walter Greg; alts., Don McComb, John Gray, Dr. McNeil, Tom Armitage, Menzies.

Port Hope: Goal, Bill Stothart; defence, Kip Douglas and Reese Hunt; centre, Bill Perry; wings, Fred Ashby, Craw Hagerman; alts., Tom Mix, Roy Devine, Ted Smith, Glen Cotter.

Referee—Briggs Crichton.

'Tis but the early springtime yet, but gridiron rumors keep rolling around Central Ontario. We hear Belleville plans a football meeting next Sunday with ORFU intermediate secretary Bill Fry in attendance to discuss a possible group entry ere autumn. From the same source, we're told that Jimmy Irvine, former Quinte senior puck goalie— and later with Lynhursts of Toronto — has moved to Cobourg where he will do the hoofing next fall for the Galloping Ghosts. The latter were a bit weak on punting last semester, though their place-kicking left little to be desired. So it appears as if the wily Fred Dufton is already on the prowl for players to improve the Ghosts and try to wrest the crown from Peterborough Orfuns in the 1953 campaign.

With Red Sullivan in Stanley Cup finals with Boston Bruins, one recalls another local Irishman who played in the big time before Red was born. Jerry Coughlin also hailed from Ashburnham and he was a dandy skater and stickhandler several decades back. Made senior OHA at the tender age of 16 and went on to moneyed ranks with the New York Irish Americans, Toronto St. Pat's, Montreal Canadiens and later Houghton, Mich., and Windsor, among others. Played most of his hockey away from here, though he even (at an advanced hockey age), played briefly for the Petes in the 30's in the same lineup as his son, Don Coughlin. Jerry was a right-winger. After hanging up his skates, he did some puck coaching here and ran an amateur boxing stable for a spell.

Bruins Hold A School

Before taking the ice out of the Oshawa arena last weekend, a one-day hockey school was held by Boston Bruins. It wound up with a game featuring the better prospects. The Blacks defeated the Whites 8-4, getting some fine goaltending by Bob Senior, of the Kingston juniors, and with the Peterborough bantam line of Gary Darling, Pat Baker and Bill Mahoney starring on the attack. Others on the team from up this way were Wilson, Lonsberry, Godfrey, Heffernan and Coyle. On the Whites was Bill Twist. Maybe others from here and district, too, but we spotted those local names. And Baldy Cotton was quite pleased.

* * * * * *

Oshawa scribe said: "It was the Blacks' terrific little line of Darling, Baker and Mahoney in the comeback to win. These Peterborough boys were a unit lifted from the bantam stars of that city and were easily the most impressive on the ice despite the fact that they were half the size of their opponents. Another winger, Coyle, was also flying and he will bear watching at next fall's training camp." Good stuff, and it would indicate that Bruins are keeping a close eye on young puck material up this way. Even if some of the bantams go to St. Mike's, they may be tabbed by Boston for future play.

Puck School In Detroit

Back from the Wings' puck school in Detroit over Easter weekend, Bud McDougall, Bob Gardner, Larry Ball, Jack Kane and Jerry Frizzelle, are resting up after a lively three days. A long trip, some mighty stiff competition as 84 prospects started it off, and plenty of sight-seeing in the big American city. Red Creighton accompanied them and was told by Jack Adams and his assistants that the local lads looked good enough for a more thorough trial at a 10-day autumn school up at the Soo with the Red Wings. That sounds right promising, eh? Adams didn't even travel to Boston with the Wings, taking more interest in the young comers. He recalled his season here readily, and didn't seem too downcast at Wings losing out, Red stated. Jack just commented: "We outshot them every game but just didn't get those breaks you need in playoffs." We should get official word from Detroit on this school shortly.

A big crowd of French-Canadians whooped it up at the Forum late last gloaming as Canadiens ousted Chicago Hawks 4-1 in the seventh game to go into Stanley Cup finals. The switched team Dick Irvin iced for the last two tilts against Hawks paid off, though the Windy City crew went down battling after a hard series. Mazur starred with two tallies, but Richard's 50th playoff goal drew a great hand. Boston opens tomorrow in Montreal and plays the second game there Saturday, the scene then shifting Sunday to Boston. We're rooting for the Patrick men to capture the cup.

Rideaus Keep In Trim For Opening

OTTAWA (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen and Smiths Falls Rideaus tonight open the best-of-seven series for the Eastern Canada senior hockey championship and the right to meet the West's titlist for the Allan Cup.

For the underdog Rideaus, it will be the closest any team from the eastern Ontario railroad town has come to a Canadian championship. They promise to give the Dutchmen a tough fight, but no team official predicts an easy victory over the champions of the top-drawer Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League.

"They're tough," said coach Hal Dewey after watching a Kitchener playoff game. "They do a lot of charging."

KEEP IN TRIM

The Rideaus have held repeated practices to keep in shape during a two-week layoff after trouncing Saint John Beavers of the Maritime Senior League in four straight games. There are no serious injuries.

On the Kitchener side, the Dutchmen are confident they can go right through to take the Allan Cup. One of the more confident is veteran Bobby Bauer, the old Boston Bruins' Kraut line star and now president of the Kitchener club.

"The home fans, as well as the gang connected with the team in an official capacity, figure the club has a real good chance of going all the way," he says.

Old NHL Players Plan Benefit Game

TORONTO (CP)—Old-time National Hockey League players will don skates again Sunday for a benefit game to be played at Maple Leaf Gardens in aid of a new $250,000 arena to be built in eastern Toronto.

The game is sponsored by the Old-Time Professional Hockey Players' Association, organized this year by Lionel and Charlie Conacher, Roy Worters, Lorne Duguid and Cy Wentworth. The group has raised thousands of dollars for worthy causes through hockey games during the winter.

Moreover, the city of Toronto has agreed to match, dollar for dollar, all the money raised in Sunday's exhibition game.

Midland Bruins Win Little NHL Series

MIDLAND (CP)—Rolling to a 9-2 victory over Winnipeg Canadiens, Midland Bruins Tuesday night won the first Little National Hockey League series in two straight games. They won the first 5-1 in Toronto Monday night.

Gord Brand and Bob Deakos each scored two goals to lead the Midland snipers. Ralph Ironsides, Art Stewart, Don Wilcox, Bill Thompson and Ken Arbour notched the others. Murray Hallatt and Bruce McDonald got one each for the losers.

Giardello Clobbers Rival Gil Turner

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Middleweight Joey Giardello, a three-to-one underdog, rallied in the late rounds Tuesday night to clobber his hometown Philadelphia rival, welterweight Gil Turner, for a unanimous 10-round decision before 7,377 at the Arena.

Giardello, at 154½ pounds, had a seven-pound weight advantage and used every pound to advantage as he wore down the 147½-pound Turner with his hard right hands to the jaw and sporadic pounding to the body.

Sedgman Defeats Kramer In Match

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Australian Frank Sedgman, playing heads-up tennis, defeated Jack Kramer 6-4, 3-6, 8-6, in their professional match Tuesday night.

Hildebrand Tips In Long Shot For Baron Win

CLEVELAND (AP) — After 72 minutes of furious hockey, Cleveland's Ike Hildebrand tipped in a long shot by Bob Chrystal Tuesday night to give the Barons a 3-2 victory over Pittsburgh in the Calder Cup American Hockey League playoffs.

Barons now lead 2-0, in the best-of-seven final series.

The winning goal came at 2:40 of a second overtime period and the crowd screamed and hooted as the rugged little Hildebrand finally ended the struggle.

The teams had gone through one scoreless overtime 10-minute period.

Hildebrand, luckless throughout the play-offs but Cleveland's top goal-getter, fought his way in front of goalie Gil Mayer of the Hornets.

Planting his stick at exactly the right angle, the little right winger was ready for a break.

It came as Chrystal, big Baron defenceman, let loose a powerhouse drive. It seemed as if Chrystal's mighty drive went straight in, but that wasn't it. Hildebrand's stick "ticked" the whizzing puck, and it went past Mayer for the winning score.

Steve Wochy and Jackie Gordon got the Barons' other two goals.

Danny Lewicki and Ray Timgren tallied for the losers.

Refused Permission To Use Harrington

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Marlboros Tuesday refused Barrie Flyers permission to use their goalkeeper, John Henderson, as a replacement for Bill Harrington, injured in Monday night's game of Flyers' current Ontario Hockey Association Junior A finals against Toronto St. Michael's College.

Harrington, Barrie's top flight netminder, badly bruised his hip near the end of the third period. His place was taken by juvenile George Cuculick as Barrie bowed 6-4 to the St. Mike's crew.

St. Michael's lead the best-of-nine series three games to two.

Rookie Star Sparks Canadiens To 4-1 Win Over Hawks

MONTREAL—(CP)—A big, gangling rookie made monkeys out of some veterans Tuesday night and helped send Montreal Canadiens into hockey's Stanley Cup final. Eddie (Spider) Mazur and his two goals were enough in themselves to turn back Chicago Black Hawks in Montreal's 4-1 victory in the last and deciding game of their best-of-seven semi-final series. It was Mazur's big night and he made the most of it. The 189-pound left-winger scored his first goal in the second period to break a 1-1 tie and rifled home the Canadiens' fourth goal in the third period to give the Montrealers a comfortable margin.

The victory shot the Canadiens into the best-of-seven title series against the brash Boston Bruins, who eliminated the once-mighty Detroit Red Wings last week in six games. The first game will open here April 9. The second is scheduled for Montreal April 11. Then the series swings to Boston April 12 and 14.

OTHER SCORERS

The other Montreal goals were scored by Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion and Maurice (Rocket) Richard. Geoffrion's goal, early in the first period, gave him a total of five goals and four assists for the lead in the individual scoring race in the cup series.

The Hawks just weren't good enough to take the win and penalties murdered them. The first two Montreal goals were scored while Chicago was shorthanded.

Only for a few minutes were the Hawks in a position to make the outcome doubtful. That was when little Billy Mosienko scored Chicago's tally at 14:15 of the second period to make the score 1-1.

Richard, counting the third goal, ran his total to 50 for the nine Stanley Cup series in which he has taken part.

The six-foot-two Mazur, who came up for the series from Victoria Cougars of the Western Hockey League, made the Chicago defence look bad when he scored. The first victim was Gus Mortson, who let himself be used as a screen. Mazur moved along with Mortson and caught the corner of the net with a shot that scarcely left the ice. Goaltender Al Rollins was helpless on the play.

BEATEN ALL WAY

On his second goal, Mazur took a blue-line pass from centre Elmer Lach, skirted around defenceman Bill Gadsby and drilled a shot that had Rollins beaten all the way.

From goalie Jacques Plante out, the rookie brigade injected into this series last Saturday was much in evidence. Mazur, Calum MacKay, who was formerly up with Canadiens, and Lorne Davis gave the Hawks a rough time with their speed and stamina.

Plante, who took over from Gerry McNeil for the second time, played a steady game. Rollins, a standout during the entire series, found the going too tough in this game. He handled 41 shots and most of them were from point-blank range.

The Canadiens got the first goal after Gadsby went off for interference. Lach took a pass from Bert Olmstead and relayed it to Geoffrion, who was anchoring the power play. Boom Boom made no mistake on the shot.

The Hawks tied it up at 1-1 on Mosienko's goal at 14:15 of the second period. Mosienko teamed with Mortson for that one. They passed to each other for almost the entire ice length before Mosienko beat Plante cleanly.

HAWKS PERK UP

The Hawks perked up a bit but Mazur put Canadiens up 2-1 less than two minutes later.

Richard's goal came at 4:51 of the third. Mazur and Lach got the assists and the Hawks all but folded for the night. Richard flipped a rebound into the nets while Rollins was sprawled on the ice.

At 13:55 Mazur took a short pass from Lach and beat Rollins while Chicago's Al Dewsbury was sitting out a minor penalty.

Patrick Says Cup Series Should Be Great Spectacle

BOSTON (AP)—Coach Lynn Patrick said today the Stanley Cup hockey championship series between his Boston Bruins and Montreal Canadiens should be "a great series and probably a long one, too."

After listening to a broadcast of Tuesday night's game at Montreal, when the Canadiens clinched their semi-final series with Chicago 4-1 in the seventh game, Patrick said:

"The Canadiens are the same club that beat us in seven games in last year's semi-final round. We're stronger this year.

"I figure Canadiens a more dangerous team than Chicago They have good players and good scorers in Rocket Richard and Boom-Boom Geoffrion."

HOLDS MARGIN

Boston holds a 9-3 victory margin over Montreal in the 14-game regular season series between the two teams with two games tied. Richard was held to three goals by Boston, two here and one at the Forum.

Boston Capt. Milt Schmidt, who suffered a three-stitch cut on the lower back when he fell and sat on his own skate against Detroit last Sunday, said he'll be ready to play in tomorrow night's opener at Montreal.

Patrick said he doesn't plan to use 36-year-old veteran Woody Dumart to "shadow" Richard. Dumart picketed high-scoring Gordie Howe of the Red Wings in the semi-final series and was a big factor in the surprising upset by Boston which won in six games.

Howe, the National Hockey League's scoring champion this season, got only two goals, neither chargeable to laxity on Dumart's part.

"We'll have no special assignments for Montreal," Patrick added. "No one in particular will chase Richard."

Willie Pep Wins Every Round Of Fight

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The former world's featherweight champion, Willie Pep, won every round Tuesday night for a unanimous 10-round decision over Noel Paquette, Montreal.

Pep, who weighed 129½ and claims Hartford, Conn., as his home, punched the game but outclassed Paquette almost at will and the judges awarded him every round. Paquette weighed 137½.

Kitchener Blues Win

MONTREAL (CP) — Kitchener YMCA Blues defeated Montreal MAAA 71-54 Tuesday night in the first game of a two-game, total-points series in the Dominion intermediate basketball quarter-final.

Dukes And C's Draw 7-All In TVL Playoff

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—Wellington Dukes and Campbellford battled to a 7-7 overtime draw last night in another exciting TVL final playoff game in Belleville. It was their fifth game, but one game was tossed out and last night's tie does not count, so Campbellford still leads the best-of-seven by two games to one. The next one is in Belleville on Friday. A crowd of 1,622 viewed the overtime draw.

Both goalies were good, with Parks especially effective for the Dukes to keep the C's down. Referees Casterton and Reason of Kingston ruled the game closely.

Campbellford swept to a 3-0 lead in the first on goals by Payne, Eady and Wilson, as Free aided on two, and Jeffs, Simpson and Eady one each. Free drew two penalties, singles going to Baker, York and Greer.

Dukes had a 3-1 margin next period on tallies by Hatfield, Cousins and Goyer, an assist each being chalked up to Mowat, Cousins and Graham. Wilson was off with a major for boarding when Dukes got two quick ones in the last couple of minutes. Wilson scored from Simpson earlier for Campbellford's lone marker of the frame. Pace drew a brace of penalties, with one apiece going to Greer, York, Hatfield, Hurst and Wilson.

Pace counted first for the C's in the third on a pass from Free. Then Wellington struck for three in a row, Cousins hitting the twine twice and Graham once, the latter and Hurst getting an assist each. Blake broke through at 15:47 to tie it up. With Goyer off later, Campbellford had five forwards out there pelting Parks but couldn't sink the winner. Pace, Hurst and Goyer drew the period's penalties.

Hurst stepped out of the penalty box in overtime just in time to take Goyer's pass and roar in unmolested for a marker. But Payne once again tied it shortly on combination with Free, and it ended that way. Hurst and Simpson had the overtime penalties.

Mickey Mantle Back, Yank Outlook Good

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

Mickey Mantle's back with New York Yankees and already things are looking a whole lot brighter for the world champions.

The picture never was entirely gloomy but the word from the Yankee travelling party is that manager Casey Stengel wasn't able to manage a full smile at any time while the young sensation was absent.

Mantle has had a skin rash. For two weeks he suffered, not only physically but from countless jokes from his teammates and opponents. The best of the jokes was credited to an anonymous member of St. Louis Cardinals who asked the hitter:

"Which hand do you scratch scratch with?"

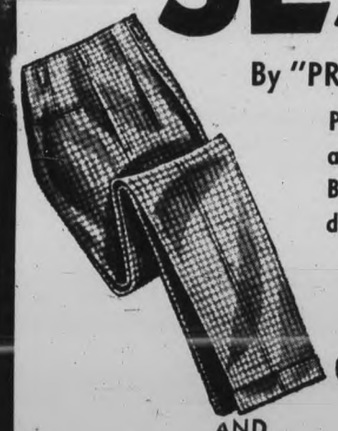
SENT HOME

Stengel finally sent Mantle back to his Commerce, Okla., home to visit his wife who is expecting a baby. A few days in the Oklahoma sun apparently did the trick because Mickey had only a couple of red splotches on his legs when he rejoined the club in Nashville Tuesday.

Mantle was put right to work. He started a game for the first time since mid-March and played seven innings. He went hitless his first three times but in the seventh with two on base he poled a 420-foot double.

Two other things made Stengel happy. He apparently had found another starting pitcher in Jim McDonald, who went all the way in Tuesday's 9-1 victory over Nashville, and Hank Bauer, again in the outfield after resting his lame back, picked up his tremendous spring hitting. Bauer slammed a home run and a double.

The best combined pitching Tuesday came at Mobile, Ala., where Cleveland Indians broke a four-game losing streak by edging New York Giants 1-0. Early Wynn and Steve Gromek held the Giants to three safeties while Dave Koslo and Max Lanier doled out only five in the Giant cause. A dropped fly ball by New York outfielder Dusty Rhodes allowed the only run to score.



STOP BRAVES

Louisville Colonels of the American Association stopped Milwaukee Braves 3-2 on three hits. Milwaukee got four. Bob Buhl, Brave rookie who has been one of the biggest finds of the spring, went six innings and was the loser.

Philadelphia Phillies paraded their long ball hitters against Boston Red Sox at Roanoke, Va., and came up with a 15-2 decision. Connie Ryan homered twice for the Phils and Earl Torgeson and Willie Jones contributed one apiece.

Expect Close Election In South Africa

By ASTLEY HAWKINS

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — Voters in 26 key South African constituencies probably will have the say next week in deciding whether the strict racial policies of Prime Minister Daniel Malan will continue for another five years or whether the country will switch over to the more moderate methods of the United party, headed by J. G. N. Strauss.

There are 156 seats in the South African House of Assembly to be decided in the election, but of these 70 are generally conceded as safe for Malan's Nationalists and 60 are virtually certain to go to the United party, leaving the balance of power with the voters who decide the remaining 26 contests.

The Nationalists and the United party, unexpectedly pushed out of power under Jan Christian Smuts in 1948, both say they are certain of victory.

But observers say only that the election will be close.

MARGINAL SEATS

Most of the marginal seats are in the Transvaal and in Cape Province. Ironically, it was Malan's move to disfranchise the "Cape coloreds," a centuries old admixture of races, that provided the background for some of the most dominant issues in the current campaign.

The 26 on-the-fence seats were decided by less than 1,000 votes in the 1948 election. Since then the boundaries of many constituencies have been changed by a delimitation commission and some constituencies have been abolished and replaced by new ones.

296 CANDIDATES

Of 296 candidates of all parties, 148 represent the United party, an increase of nine over their 1948 field. The Nationalists have nominated 137 candidates compared with 104 in 1948, which included the candidates of the predominantly Dutch Africaner party now amalgamated with them.

The Labor party has six candidates compared with eight in the last elections and there now are five Independents compared with 26 then.

The 1948 election had 304 candidates. But here was a wider variety of parties seeking power, including the South African or Dominion party, and the Communists, who have disappeared from the political scene.

Only 136 of the 156 constituencies will actually see polling April 15, because two Nationalists—78-year-old Malan, and the speaker of the assembly, J. H. Conradie—and 18 United party candidates were returned unopposed on nomination day and thus are automatically elected.

Of the 136 local battles pending, 127 will be straight fights between the Nationalists and the United party. Five seats will be straight contests between the Nationalists and the Labor party. There will be only four three-cornered elections where Independents will challenge the other parties.

All of Malan's cabinet ministers will have to fight for re-election except the minister for native affairs, Dr. H. F. Verwoerd. He is in the Senate, which ends its 10-year term in 1958.

Strauss, who will be the next prime minister if the Nationalists lose, will hace a straight fight at Germiston, Transvaal, the constituency he has represented since 1932.

Three senior members of his party, all cabinet ministers in Gen. Smut's last government, are already elected, unopposed in their constituencies.

Of the 296 candidates nominated, more than 100 are farmers, 50 are lawyers and some 40 are business men. Eight of the candidates are women.

The Nationalists, broadly representing the 60 per-cent so-called Afrikaans — speaking section of South Africa's 2,500,000 "white" population, find their greatest strength in the country districts.

United party candidates are strongest in city and industrial centres.

Bewdley Pupils Stage Minstrel Show

BEWDLEY (ENS). — The pupils of the Senior Room of Bewdley Public School, under the guidance of their teacher, Mrs. Dorothy Gillen, staged a very successful "Stephen Foster Minstrel Show" on the last evening of school before the holidays. Edwin Cole took the leading speaker's voice of Uncle Mose, and the "Darkies" sang many of the well-loved familiar songs of Foster, interspersed, by questions about the composer by various members of the group. Mrs. Gillen accompanied throughout at the piano.

A senior pupil, Catherine Sidey, made an opening address, welcoming the many guests, stating the purpose of the show and bazaar, and thanking the Jnuior Room teacher, Mrs. M. Manley, for her assistance in stage scenery and makeup.

After the program the bazaar was held in the Junior Room, where a table of home baking and candy was presided over by Joyce Smith, Gail Reid, Garnet Gordon, and Edwin Cole. A touch-and-take table by Glenda Benson and Shirley Cook and a pot-holder table by Catherine Sidey and Catherine Bamsey. Other items of needlework were on display. Mrs. Manley has taught the senior girls sewing during the term, while Mrs. Gillen taught the boys craftwork.

The money raised is to be used to take the pupils by bus trip to the Royal Ontario Museum and other points of interest in Toronto some time in May. More than $47 was realized from the venture in collection and sales.

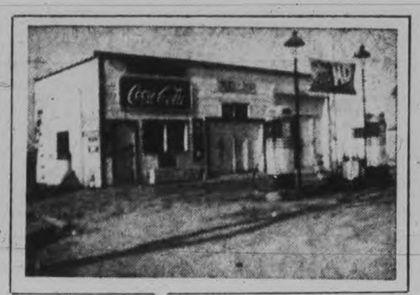
Allege Reeve Contact Man For Race Wagers

TILLSONBURG (CP)—In a document read into court records Tuesday, Alexander Walker alleged that Reeve Lawrence Smith, chairman of the police commission, was a contact man with whom he placed horse racing bets during a six-year fling that saw $36,000 in stolen funds go down the drain.

Named with Reeve Smith in the signed statement were John Seto, former owner of the Astoria cafe; John Przybyla, Tillsonburg, Don Kuntz, London, and Ruse Siaroff, Hamilton.



Walker said he lost all the money he stole betting the horses.

He pleaded guilty to 16 charges of forgery and theft while he was ticket agent here for the Canadian Pacific Railway, CP Steamships, CP Express, TCA, BOAC and other transportation and steamship companies. Another charge was withdrawn.

Walker was remanded in custody by H. P. Innes until April 17 for sentence.

The original 17 cases involved forgery and theft of nearly $15,000. Crown attorney A. C. Whaley, Woodstock, said the total for the six years was $36,000 in more than 70 cases. Most of the money had been intended to bring immigrants to Canada.

Plan To Expand Services Of National Health Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government is planning a three-pronged expansion of its multi-million-dollar national health program.

Health officials said Tuesday that the features, to be outlined in the Commons shortly by Health Minister Martin, likely will concentrate on aid for disabled persons and expectant mothers.

Initially, the expansion is expected to add another $5,300,000 a year—and eventually a lot more—to $100,000,000 spent during the last five years.

The national health program, which provides federal grants to provinces to aid control of diseases, hospital construction and medical training, was set up in 1948 by former prime minister Mackenzie King.

PROGRAM REVIEWED

Officials recalled that Mr. King had said that the program would be reviewed at the end of five years.

The reported three-way expansion:

1. Concentrate on medical aid and rehabilitation of disabled grown-ups, in the same way as crippled children have been aided. This may develop in the establishment of special hospitals for the disabled, but this will be a matter for federal-provincial planning.

2. Provide funds for appointment of provincial directors and other trained personnel to concentrate on pre-natal and post-natal care for expectant mothers. This program would include education of women in child-caring and construction of special clinics in areas where none are provided now.

3. Construction of laboratories to aid doctors in obtaining accurate diagnosis of a patient's ills. Concentration would be on building laboratories in communities where none now exist or boosting equipment and trained personnel in labs which currently are under-staffed or under-equipped.

MAKING START

To start the expansion, the government already has included $5,300,000 in the health department's 1953-54 estimates. So far, there has been no official explanation for this item, though there has been speculation that it would include free X-rays for Canadians.

Officials have denied this, but they agreed that there might be cases where X-rays might be obtainable in the diagnostic laboratories if the doctors decide that X-rays are required to aid in diagnosis.

How quickly the expansions will come into force will depend on the co-operation of the provinces. The federal government provides the cash—the provinces do the spending on projects approved by the federal health department.

APSLEY (ENS)—Good congregations attended Easter services in both Trinity United and St. George the Martyr Anglican Church and also the candlelight service in Trinity United Church on Thursday evening, when Holy Communion was celebrated. Rev. E. Larke of Springville was the speaker. Rev. and Mrs. Larke sang a duet "Alone". The choir under direction of Miss E. Infurnari sang an anthem, also Mrs. W. Lean.

Bylaw Defeated For Windsor Poll Tax

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A bylaw which would have re-established a $10 poll tax on all male residents between the ages of 21 and 59 who do not already pay at least $10 in municipal taxes was defeated Tuesday night in city council by a vote of 10-4.

Mayor Arthur J. Reaume, who opposed the bylaw, said it would not be fair to impose the tax without being able to guarantee a vote to those who would pay it.

3 Squadrons Arrive In Germany

ZWEIBRUECKEN, Germany (Reuters) — Three squadrons of Canadian-built Sabre jets arrived here Tuesday from Canada to join RCAF units serving with North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces in Europe.

The Sabres belong to the RCAF 3rd fighter wing. They will serve here with RCAF 1st air division.

The planes came from St. Hubert, Que., via Prestwick, Scotland.

The three squadrons that arrived Tuesday are the 413th, from Bagotville, Que. (Sqdn. Ldr. W. I. Gordon of Vancouver), the 427th from St. Hubert, Que. (Sqdn. Ldr. C. L. V. Gervais of Waubaushene, Ont.), and the 434th, from Uplands, Ottawa (Flt. Lt. H. F. Petlock of Mazenod, Sask.).

Minister At Lakefield Says 'Unbelief' Most Difficult

LAKEFIELD—(ENS) —Speaking on the subject, "Difficulties of Unbelief", the Rev. H. Kaye delivered an address to a large congregation on Easter Sunday morning, at St Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

In dealing with the topic, Mr. Kaye pointed out that the Apostles believed that Jesus was the Messiah and would one day be King of the Jews. It was unthinkable to them that he should suffer the shame and disgrace of death on the cross. Since they did not expect him to die in this way, so also they did not hope for a resurrection. They were people without hope, until the resurrection effected a transformation.

"The sceptics presented many arguments to explain the happenings of that time: a vision, a myth or perhaps a deliberate hoax" said Mr. Kaye. "It is inconceivable that the church came into being and the New Testament written as a result of deceit or fraud . . . True, there is a solemn mystery, but that is no bar to faith."

"The difficulties of unbelief are far greater than the difficulties of belief. Jesus marvelled only once at man's faith, but at man's unbelief He marvelled again and again. With respect to the Resurrection, it is better that man should marvel at your belief, than that God should marvel at your unbelief," concluded Mr. Kaye.

The church was beautifully decorated with Easter lilies and spring flowers. A basket of white flowers on the communion table was in memory of Mrs. Charles Bickell, and was placed there by her daughter, Mrs. J. Pickles of Toronto.

Mrs. Harold Trude was at the organ and the choir contributed two anthems, "Angels Roll the Rock Away" and "Christ Arose".

QUEEN ELIZABETH and the Duke of Edinburgh leave St. Paul's Cathedral, London, carrying nosegays presented to them during the annual Maundy service. The nosegays date back to the years when they were carried to ward off whatever plague was sweeping London at the time. As part of the traditional Maundy service, the 27-year-old Queen distributed Maundy Pence to 27 aged men and 27 aged women, one for each year of her age.

Open Season Declared On Public Works Dept.

OTTAWA (CP) — Open season has been declared in the Commons on Alphonse Fournier and his public works department.

The season on demands for things from new post offices to dredging jobs comes once a year to the minister in the Commons. He's up to his neck in it now. Election year apparently has sharpened up matters.

Mr. Fournier, who has the final say on spending some $121,000,000 on many projects close to the political hearts of members, faces the Commons each session as his estimates are going through. His 1953-54 estimates started through the House Tuesday night.

Up to the time the house rose, Mr. Fournier had not been able to get one of his 43 major items of estimates passed.

HEARS REQUESTS

He heard requests for dredging in Vancouver harbor at a cost of "millions"—which he said was going to be carried out—works for Gloucester county in New Brunswick and Temiskaming in Quebec and a few others. More requests are expected.

The Commons also started debate on whether there should be some Canadian version of "parity" prices for farm products.

After the debate, the Liberal majority beat down by a vote of 74 to 34 a Progressive Conservative motion saying that "consideration should be given by the government to the advisability of introducing, during the current session, legislation to provide floor prices for agricultural products at such levels as to ensure producers a fair price-cost relationship."

The motion of John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre), an amendment to a government motion to go into committee of supply, was tantamount to a call for want-of-confidence in the government.

It was supported by the Progressive Conservative, CCF and Social Credit parties. The Liberals were solidly against it.

AGRICULTURE PRICES

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, said agriculture needs to have its prices linked to the cost of production—a form of parity pricing. It needed assurance of long-term markets.

E. G. Hansell (SC-Macleod) said the government could do something about an economic factor such as price.

John Charlton (PC—Brant-Wentworth), a farmer, said the Liberal government "has no floor price policy—only a hit-and-miss program of expediency."

He criticized Agriculture Minister Gardiner and others for inferring the Conservative government of 1930-35 was responsible for the depression and read figures to show agricultural exports were higher during that period than during Liberal regimes immediately before and after.

CHEESE SURPLUSES

"We were still suffering from five years of Conservative rule," interjected Mr. Gardiner.

Mr. Charlton said Mr. Gardiner had said there were "no troublesome" surpluses beyond canned pork and stocks of New Zealand beef held by Canada in the U.S.

But the minister must know there were surpluses of cheese. Despite the cheese surplus the government had "permitted" the import of 12,000,000 pounds of cheese in 1952.

The minister must also know there is a surplus of powdered milk.

Bus Trip Through Oaxaca Has Scenery Like Rockies

ON THE WAY TO OAXACA. — To really enjoy Mexico you should try the various means of transportation. I have gone by turismo (a private car for eight) to Taxco; by pullman bus from Mexico City to Puebla, so when I travelled from Puebla to Oaxaca I chose a first class bus.

* * * *

As far as I could see a first class bus is quite similar to the pullman. Your seat is reserved and the only difference appears to be that the equipment is not quite so new or streamlined. I nearly got off on the wrong foot by missing the bus. By the time everybody got me settled I discovered I was the only non-Mexican on the bus and not another soul spoke English. There were businessmen going only to towns part way down the highway; some families; and some natives going straight through.

* * * *

I found the passengers most kindly. It was an eight-hour run and when we stopped for lunch at a little restaurant, I was a bit hesitant about the Mexican food. However the driver was so upset because I wasn't going to have something that I gave in gracefully. A pleasant Mexican girl invited me to her table and saw that I got service and got fed. I don't know what I had but it was good and only cost about 45 cents for six courses. The only thing I didn't take a chance on was the salad and I drank bottled orange crush.

* * * *

GORGEOUS SCENERY

I never thought I would find scenery that could equal the Canadian Rockies, but I certainly saw it that day. All the way from Puebla you are going up one mountain and down another. They are like waves of the sea and many times I could see nine or ten ranges one behind the other. Although there are no snow peaks and not the rugged rocks of our western ranges they are just as impressive and the breathtaking gorges are almost incredible.

* * * *

Oaxaca, known as the green state, was even more beautiful. In spite of this being the dry season there were lots of green fields and trees. Then for part of the way the earth was the color of flame and that is not an exaggeration. This changed to huge outcroppings of a pale rose colored rock. Later the green rock for which the entire state is famous and of which many buildings in the capital are made, appeared. And all the time more mountains.

* * * *

The further into Oaxaca we got the more native passengers we took aboard. There were women with long, full skirts and bare feet carrying big baskets of supplies or babies in their rebozos. There are many old and interesting villages along here and almost the sole means of transportation, aside from walking, is by donkey.

* * * *

Women walk along the side of the road with big baskets or loads on their heads; perfectly balanced, and they never put their hands near them. In Oaxaca, where one of the main native tribes is the Zapotecas, many of the people tend to be shorter and are darker complexioned. They are very fine people and are noted for their honesty.

* * * *

HOLD CONFERENCE

When we got to the bus stop in Oaxaca there were no taxis to take me to the hotel and everyone went into an excited huddle, waving wildly and smiling amicably. Unfortunately my Spanish and theirs seemed to be a little different so we finally compromised. As I have travelled my baggage has accumulated and even though they finally made me understand the hotel was "just around the corner" I couldn't possibly budge it.

* * * *

The situation was finally settled when a barefoot youngster offered his services and he trotted off dragging the bags with me dashing a few paces behind him until we covered two short blocks, past the Zocalo and to the Marques del Valle Hotel which was my Oaxaca home. I am sure no one has made quite such an entrance there for some time.

* * * *

I had a reserved seat at this hotel for everything that happened in the city. My room faced the Zocalo and had a little balcony. Anything that's important happens at the major plaza and since Oaxaca also has a famous band, I just had to relax in my room and the concerts were right there.

* * * *

CITY IN INTERIOR

Oaxaca, which is the capital of the state, is a place about the size of Peterborough with 40,000 people. It is a beautiful city and the citizens among the nicest I have met. Like Puebla, the pace is much slower than Mexico City and since this is 365 miles south, it is well into the interior and many things are quite different. It is a different native people with other customs and they have one of the most ancient civilizations in the western world.

* * * *

The farther south you go the cheaper your expenses are. I had a fine American-style room with bath and with my meals included for six days it cost only 269 pesos or roughly $33.. I might add the meals were excellent, part Mexican and part American style.

* * * *

Had I known how beautiful it was to be there I would not have gotten any farther. Oaxaca really has captured my heart and it took a lot of will power to decide to keep my schedule and go to very different places in the west at the end of the week.

LULL BEFORE THE STORM—Children are taking things easy this week as they enjoy the Easter Holidays. So far bright sunny days have allowed the children to enjoy playing outside. They're going on hikes, playing ball, skipping, playing marbles and other games. Others are spending a few moments reading books and comics. Fred Norton, Jim Constable, Edward Hamer, Gayl Hamer, Wayne Roderick and Ken Jones laugh at the comics. Back to school next week the children will be reading text books in preparation for final term examinations.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

William Tinker Dies At Home, Lengthy Illness

William Tinker, 266 Burnham St., prominent Peterborough resident and businessman since 1918, died Tuesday at his home following a lengthy illness. Mr. Tinker was 63.

Born in Manchester, England, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Tinker, Mr. Tinker lived in that city until 1918 when he came to Canada and Peterborough. He became an employee of the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Ltd., rising to the post of secretary-treasurer, which he held when he left the company in 1930. For the next 10 years he was owner and operator of the Albion Lumber Co. situated on Rogers St.

WILLIAM TINKER

In 1940, Mr. Tinker retired from the lumber business to look after his real estate which at one time numbered more than 100 pieces of property in the city.

A member of George St. United Church, Mr. Tinker served on the Board of Health for three years and on the City Planning Board. He was an avid reader and one of the city's best informed men.

He leaves his wife, the former Flossie Fife, two daughters, Mrs. B. Duder (Marjory), Peterborough and Mrs. S. K. Smith (Lenore), London, Ont.; one sister, Mrs. Arthur Watson (Jane), Manchester, England and three brothers, Thomas, Manchester; Joseph, Monkseaton, England; and Frank, London, England.

The funeral will be held Thursday at 2:30 p.m. from his residence. The Rev. A. A. Mathews of George St. United Church will conduct the service. Burial will be in Fife's cemetery, Otonabee.

CALLED FOR SECOND DRAW

Any time there's one of those ticket draws, luck rarely misses a chance to display its perversity. For instance, Jack Miller of Canada Packers, a member of the executive of the Minor Hockey Association in town, was as usual among those present at the final exhibition games Monday night at Civic Arena. As reported from the front office, he bought an admission ticket, also as usual. In the draw for gate prizes, Canada Packers had an entry, a ham—but why finish this little story. Mr. Miller's ticket was the winner of the ham. He declined it, tore up his ticket, and that called for another draw.—T.

Lakefield Ratepayers Face 14.9 Mill Tax Rate Jump

LAKEFIELD—(ENS)—Ratepayers of Lakefield are facing a 14.9 mill increase in their tax rate this year. At a council meeting that lasted till past 1 a.m. today the 1953 tax rate was set at 72.5 mills compared with a 1952 rate of 57.6 mills. Higher educational costs are the principal reason for the larger levy. The two biggest jumps are for the Lakefield District High School, 5.5 mills higher; and Lakefield Public School rate, 17.9 mills higher.

Reason for the big increase in the high school district rate was the budgeting for the operation of the new high school over a full one-year period. Students didn't move into it until Christmas so the .7 mills is not an accurate reflection of comparative costs.

The shift of students to the new high school also accounts for some of the increase in the public school rate. Previously the high school board rented rooms in the public school and the latter's board had this substantial item as revenue. Now this is lost.

Repairs to the public school are also being budgeted for.

GENERAL RATE REDUCED

The county rate is up, but the village general rate (the only one over which the village council has any control) has been reduced by 1.4 mills.

Following are a comparative list of rates and the amount the levy must raise:

	1953 Levy Mills	To Be Raised	1952 Levy Mills
Lakefield Dist. High School	6.2	$ 5,570.40	.7
High School debentures	6.3	5,888.51	5.8

Lakef'ld Public School rate	19.7	18,200.00	11.8

Two Verandahs Struck By Car

LINDSAY (ENS).—A wild few seconds of driving for a motorist of one month's experience ended last evening, when her late model car came to rest against the verandah of a north-end home, after clipping a tree stump and shearing off half another verandah.

According to PC Bill Mosley, Miss Ruth White of Lindsay was driving north on William St. She stopped her car at the corner of Colborne St. and then began to make a left-hand turn when the wheel "froze", mounted the north curb of Colborne St., clipped a tree stump and headed south across the street. Then the car mounted the south curb, ran over the lawn of a house owned by Mrs. R. B. Robertson, and sheared half of the Robertson verandah from the front of the house.

The car then turned west and, while Miss White still kept her foot on the accelerator, headed for the next home belonging to W. Richardson, struck the verandah there and became inbedded in it.

Damage to the White car is estimated by PC Mosely at approximately $400. Damage to the Robertson home will amount to some $350 and the Richardson verandah about $25. The car was insured.

Blair Enters Finals With 3-2 Victory

LINDSAY (ENS)—Blair advanced to the ORHA Intermediate B final series here Tuesday night with a 3-2 win over Woodville to take the semi-final series 2-1.

Williamson led the winners with a goal and an assist and Lorie scored other goals. McGinness scored twice for Woodville. Hughie Cameron was another standout for the losers.

Amlinger, in the Blair nets, had many more shots to handle than did Sweet at the other end of the rink but was very good—or very lucky—on all of them. In the final minute of play, as the large crowd roared for a Woodville goal to tie the count, Woodville had eight face-offs in the Blair end, playing with an extra forward and their goalie out of the net, but couldn't push the puck past Amlinger.

Employment Up In March Over Last Year

During March employment conditions in the Peterborough district were better than in January and February and better than last year, according to figures released today by the National Employment Office.

James Sharp, office manger, said that city and district people drawing unemployment insurance at the end of March numbered only 1,715. In February there were 1,842 on claim, in January 1,916 and in March of last year there were 1,962 drawing funds.

Conditions in industry during March were much the same as last year, said Mr. Sharp. The open winter and early spring helped provide outside work earlier than usual, providing more jobs for laborers on construction work and other outdoor projects.

CONSTRUCTION

Construction work in the city has helped reduce the number drawing unemployment insurance. There were 785 men and women on claim during the month, 183 fewer than in February and 193 fewer than in March a year ago.

Employment in the district, which stretches north from the lakeshore to Haliburton, was slightly better in March. Mr. Sharp reported 930 people from the district on the insurance plan as compared with 984 a year ago, 944 in February and 930 in January

The number of men and women job-hunting in the city and district dropped by 250 during March. Mr. Sharp said there were 1,978 people looking for work in March, 2,123 in February and 2,182 a year ago.

Jobs this year were more plentiful than last but in most cases required skilled workers such as typists, machinists and stenographers. There were 69 jobs available in March as compared with 41 a year ago.

Firemen Accept '53 Terms But Aldermen Differ On Amount Actual Increases

Ald. T. D. Miller Returns From South To Find Line Not Held As It Affects Salary Increases

Salary increase for city firemen is going to be nearer $250 a year for the first class men, Ald. T. D. Miller argued Tuesday night after Ald. W. J. Beggs estimated the margin at less than $150. A letter from George Gimblett Jr., secretary of the Fire Fighters' Union, confirmed their acceptance of the proposals for the 1953 working agreement with the city, on terms submitted by the council's negotiating committee of which Ald. Beggs was chairman.

Subsequent to that official statement from the men, Ald. Beggs moved, seconded by Ald. Dewart, that Mayor Waddell and City Clerk Outram be authorized to "sign and seal" the agreement as recently determined in discussions.

FROWNED ON INCREASES

Ald. Miller said there was no mention of money up to the time he left on vacation a few weeks ago. The members were then frowning on the idea of any wage increase to the Firemen.

(These negotiations have been under way for six weeks, two months or more, and this was the way the information of progress was coming out to the taxpayers.)

"I have now found out that there has been considerable increase offered. I don't know whether I am in favor of it or not," Ald. Miller said. "I think we should consider the over-all situation in regard to all our salaried employees."

Ald. Miller was plainly looking for some support as he expressed his feeling that the detail of wages should be reviewed.

COST-OF-LIVING BONUS

The Fire Fighters' Union are evidently gaining the point they sought last year in the incorporation of the cost-of-living bonus in their basic wage.

Ald. Beggs said that his negotiating committee had held various meetings, the cost-of-living bonus was wiped out, and the men get basic salary in the new wage schedule. He said all the "aldermen were present" in committee of the whole when that was recommended.

Possible effect on other salaries was discussed at that time, Ald. Beggs said.

"So there's no use putting it off any further. The firemen were reluctant about accepting it. The committee and city clerk continued the work, and I think we were fortunate to get off with the figure we did."

Ald. Syd Black said he hadn't seen any report. "I'd like to know how much was the increase in dollars and cents over what the firemen got last year."

Ald. Beggs said it would be less than $150 a year on the overall salaries.

Ald. Miller said the first class firemen received $3,314 last year and now $3,450 ,an increase of $136 over the maximum cost-of-living bonus. But, the cost-of-living index has receded from 19 points to 13. On that basis the firemen would be drawing $3,200 at present cost-of-living bonus instead of $3,450. So, Ald. Miller said, the effective increase would be closer to $250.

Ald. Beggs replied that he could recall Ald. Miller having expressed his sympathy toward any man that wasn't receiving more than $3,600. That was before he went on his vacation to the sunny south, Ald. Beggs remarked. As against that figure, the firemen's salary schedule was not out of the way.

Money Bylaws For $297,048 Pass Council

Cost of concrete sidewalks, sewers, street paving and crushed gravel roads last year amounted to $297,048.67.

City council authorized Tuesday night the sale of debentures to pay for these permanent works.

Sidewalks cost $64,106.68; crushed gravel roadways $21,747.21; sewers $92,393.27 and street paving $118,801.51.

Four bylaws were introduced by Ald. T. D. Miller providing authority for the issuance of debentures in the amount of $297,048.67. They were given three readings and passed.

These works were done under the Local Improvement Act, part of the cost being charge to frontage properties and the rest to the city corporation.

For example, the largest item was $118,801.51 for street pavement. Frontage properties pay $30,734.33 and the levy on the city as a whole is $88,667.18. The paving program was let by contract to Warren Paving Company, and comprised parts of Charlotte, George, Aylmer, Albert streets, Monaghan Road, Parkhill Road and Hopkins avenue.

Alderman Beggs introduced two bylaws relating to the purchase of a $16,586 crawler tractor from W. L. Ballantyne Co. for use in the landfill method of disposal of garbage.

Expert Discusses Cancer

"Cancer From a Woman's Point of View" was the title of the address given by Dr. Florence S. McConney, director of the Cancer Detection Clinic of Women's College Hospital, Toronto, to 240 Peterborough and district women Tuesday night.

The open meeting for women only at which Dr. McConney was guest speaker, was held in the Legion Hall and is the first such meeting sponsored by the Peterborough Unit of the Canadian Cancer society.

Dr. McConney explained that at present there are only two methods of curing cancer—surgery and x-ray or radium. Many new chemicals are being tried, but so far no drug has been successful.

"Our best methods of combatting it at present are to find it as early as possible and to use surgery and irradiation," she said.

"There are, we know, in every community, people who were treated for cancer 25 to 40 years ago and are well today."

Dr. McConney gave a detailed outline of the symptons of cancer peculiar to women and urged immediate medical examination whenever any of these symptons are discovered.

Following her address Dr. McConney answered a number of questions from the floor.

The speaker was introduced by Dr. Agnes Moffat and thanked by Mrs. Claire Stuart.

Dr. McConney is certified as a specialist in internal medicine by the Royal College of Physicians of Canada. She is also a Fellow of the American College of Physicians.

A member of the staff of the Women's College since 1927, she was chief of medicine there from 1937 to 1950 and now holds the post of director of the Cancer Detection Clinic.

Mrs. Maurice Holt, president of the local unit was chairman of the meeting. In her opening remarks she explained the functions of the Canadian Cancer Society and the three-fold program — lay education, welfare and once-a-year fund-raising.

The chairman also mentioned the fund-raising campaign that will start in Peterborough Monday under the chairmanship of Frank G. Foster, QC. The quota this year for Peterborough County is $8,000. Various radio programs outlining the work of the society will be held during the month.

It was also announced that the Mobile Unit, the Little Red Door, will be going to Lakefield, Apsley, Norwood, Keene and Havelock next week with a registered nurse in attendance.

A film, "A Question of Time," was shown at the meeting by Miss Irma Allen of the National Film Council.

The leads and seconds' trophy winner was Mrs. J. Wocker and her players were Mrs. Calvert, Mrs. Beggs and Mrs. Harold Casson. Each received a china ashtray as prize and the presentations were made by Mrs. H. Baptie. Runner up was Mrs. Hy Wood and her rink and the prizes were decorative plates, presented by the club president Mrs. J. D. Fanning. Consolation prizes were covered bon bon dishes and were presented by Mis Florence Gladman to Mrs. Charlton of Lakefield and her rink.

The Ostrander trophy is a newer trophy in the club and this year the winner was Mrs. Maurice Holt with Mrs. Harold Scott, Mrs. Charlton and Mrs. Cliff Vincent on her rink. The prizes were pairs of small Toby jugs and the presentations were made by Mrs. J. Green. Runner-up on this trophy was Mrs. Northey who had Mrs. Harold Hamblin, Mrs. Hy Wood and Mrs. Ian McGillivray on her rink. Prizes were candy dishes presented by Mrs. Selkirk.

An all-star bonspiel is held annaully at the club and is a complete new draw among the players who are unable to attend the invitation bonspiel at Seignory Club. The winner of this was Mrs. Maurice Holt who had Mrs. H. Dulmage, Mrs. G. Neiberg and Mrs. H. Hamblin on her rink. Their gifts were small pottery flower pots which were presented by president Mrs. Fanning.

Clever Skit Written For Curling Banquet

A happy social time was combined with the annual meeting and prize and trophy giving of the Ladies' Curling Club following their season-closing banquet at the Kawartha Country Club last evening.

A skit, titled "Curling is Confusing," and showing just how confusing curling terms can be, provided hilarious entertainment. Dialogue in rhyme and words to the Stein Song and the song, "Curling is a Grand Old Game," were written by Mrs. Hal Bletcher and were exceptionally clever.

The part of Lady Botheringay, who couldn't understand the curling terms, was taken by Mrs. Ralph Clark. To illustrate her conception of some phrases to Mrs. Harold Scott, she introduced Mrs. Clayton Selkirk as the "in-turn" (interne) and Mrs. Harold Lowes showing life as "vice" leads to jail.

Then she called in a "tankard rink," each member shouldering a pint-size tankard, and they sang the Stein Song. Behind the long and very red noses which these ladies in curling sweaters and tams affected were Mrs. Harry Northrop, Mrs. Bletcher, Mrs. Jack Fanning and Mrs. Ralph Smyth.

Lastly, the lady with monocle called in a "second" and a "lead," Mrs. Leslie Calvert and Mrs. J. Beggs, and after they had explained the game, Lady Botheringay decided to take a try at "throwing the stone" herself. The ladies ended with their curling song to the tune of "Mary's a Grand Old Name." Mrs. Adam Sands was the pianist.

Mrs. Harry Northrop, who convened the entertainment, led the singing of other curling songs and old favorites, with Mrs. Robert Pow as the piano accompanist.

Business of the annual meeting was conducted by President Mrs. J. D. Fanning and included reports from all officers and conveners. A news item, to which Mrs. Fanning urged attention, was that an addition to the present club building is again under discussion, and is to come before the shareholders' meeting scheduled for May 4. This was contained in the report of Mrs. T. F. Doughty, representative to the men's committee.

Secretary Mrs. M. G. McCartney gave an excellent report covering all the club activities of the season, including rinks attending out-of-town bonspiels. It was noted in the report of bonspiel convener Mrs. J. Watts that Mrs. McCartney was the only lady curler to win a trophy out of town. She won in a competition at Guelph club.

The membership report, given by Mrs. Harold Scott, stated there were 72 active curlers (18 rinks) last season. There were 18 social members, four honorary life members, 11 unattached, and three for Saturday nights only.

The ladies were hostesses this year to the tankard finals and still were able to come through in good financial standing, as reported by Treasurer Mrs. J. V. Elliott. The house committee purchased new maple chairs and coffee tables for the club lounge early in the season.

A vote of appreciation to Mrs. Fanning and other retiring members of the executive was moved by Miss Florence Gladman. Mrs. J. Green expressed thanks to Mrs. R. H. Turner whose valued advice had been sought by herself and others whenever difficulty arose in any connection, she said.

The wedding was solemnized quietly on Saturday afternoon in Northminster United Church, Oshawa, of Carolene Jean, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Wellwood, to Morris Robert Shearer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shearer all of Harwood.

The Rev. H. A. Mellow officiated and Mrs. Mellow played traditional wedding music. The church was decorated with Easter lilies. Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Shearer of Peterborough.

The bride wore an ankle-length gown of blue lace over taffeta fashioned with full skirt. She wore a matching headband of flowers and carried a nosegay of red roses and white hyacinths. Mrs. Shearer wore a similar gown of shrimp lace over taffeta with matching accessories and carried a nosegay of pin kroses and white hyacinths.

Leaving later for a trip to Ottawa and Quebec City, the bride was wearing a navy suit, white bonnet style hat and matching accessories with red rose corsage.

The couple will live in Harwood.

SYNTONA is an advanced medical compound of 12 of the finest medicinal herbs, and not one a habit-forming drug. It is taken before meals and mixes with the food in one's stomach, thus throwing off the poisons that foster stomach troubles. Science brings us methods which enable us to bring this famous medicine within reach of all sufferers. Permits hundreds to get away from the habitual use of nerve-deadening pills and harsh drugs.

It will make your liver more active, thus relieving spells of biliousness and sick headache.
Relieves those with rheumatic and neuritic pains, by ridding the system of excess acidity and irritating waste matter.
IT WILL clear up skin eruptions caused by the impurities in the organs, will overcome the sallowness or "muddiness" that is due to sluggish liver.
SYNTONA will make your stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels more active, build you up in general and make you FEEL like a DIFFERENT MAN or WOMAN, younger than you may have felt in YEARS.

TEA BISCUITS

Sift together 2 cups sifted flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt; cut into this 3 tablespoons shortening or butter until very fine, then add about ½ cup, or a little more, of milk to make a soft dough. Turn out on floured board, and roll to ¾ inch thickness. Cut out with floured 2-inch cutter. Place on top of hot meat mixture. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes.

COTTAGE PUDDING

QUESTION: I have a scrap book of your recipes which I use often. I am now coming to you for advice. A WMS group of our church is to serve a noonday luncheon for a group of ladies; the number is very indefinite but we have struck the figure for about 150. Our difficulty is to have sufficient help to serve as most of our members are either young mothers or business ladies. Therefore we decided on cold salads and meat loaf. One of our ladies has offered to make the meat loaves. We though we could do most of the preparation the night before, when we could have additional help. We are to get 85 cents per plate.

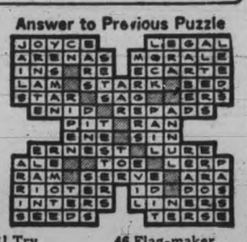
Potato Salads: Amount of potatoes required? Should they be coked with skins on? How much salad dressing required and any other suggestions.

Cabbage Salad: Could the cabbage be shredded the night before and wrapped in a damp cloth in refrigerator? How much cabbage required? Also salad dressing.

Meat Loaf: We prefer to use all beef. How much meat required? Have you recipe using oatmeal (rolled oats) instead of breadcrumbs? Some of the members suggest having it put out on plates while others think attractively filled bowls would be betetr in view of our help situation. What do you think?

Dessert: Cake bought in slab, with roll of ice cream and tea.

Tea: What is a good method of making tea, allowing 2 cups for each person?



—MRS. F. H. T.

ANSWER: Serve the plates in the kitchen. It saves time, eliminates washing bowls, guarantees everyone their fair share. See continued answer tomorrow, which contains the recipe for meat loaf.

Mrs. Bullock Head Of Lakefield W.I.

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—Mrs. Gordon Dunford was hostess to members of the Lakefield Women's Institute at her home on Thursday afternoon for the annual meeting. There were 23 members and two visitors present. The president, Mrs. Howard Bullock, was in the chair.

Treasurer Mrs. John Murphy reported a balance on hand of $178.52.

It was decided to hold a tag day for the Navy League, with the consent of the reeve, on the last Saturday in May, and Mrs. J. McKerchar, Mrs. Clare Chittick, Mrs. Clarence Foster and Mrs. C. Stenner were appointed a committee in charge.

It was voted that $10 would be donated to the local Chamber of Commerce for a flower box and $10 towards the banquet for the members of the Girls' Club. The members will also assist in the canvass for the Canadian Cancer Fund, which will be held in the near future.

The president announced that the quilt for the emergency box had been completed, and Mrs. Foster anounced that the Girls' Club would hold a "dress parade" of the dresses they had made during the winter season, April 14, in Memorial Hall.

Annual reports from the various conveners were given as follows: Home economics, Mrs. Wilbert Abbott; Canadian industries, Mrs. Ernie Waldon; Historical Research, Mrs. J. McKerchar; Agriculture, Mrs. Albert Bullock; Community activities, Mrs. Roy Farrow; Health, Mrs. S. C. Chatten; Public Relations, Mrs. Fred Kemp, secretary, Mrs. Kemp; treasurer, Mrs. Murphy.

District president, Mrs. J. Moore, took the chair for the election of officers with the following being elected: President, Mrs. Howard Bullock; vice presidents, Mrs. R. Farrow and Mrs. J. Moore; secretary, Mrs. F. Kemp; assistant secretary, Mrs. Chatten; treasurer, Mrs. Alfred Dunford; district director, Mrs. Clarence Foster, alternate, Mrs. E. Dunford; branch directors, Mrs. Eldon Johnston, Mrs. J. McConkey, Mrs. C. Stenner; flowers, Mrs. J. Murphy; pianists, Mrs. Thomas Payton and Mrs. McKerchar; auditors, Mrs. C. Chittick and Mrs. E. Waldon.

Program coveners are: Agriculture, Mrs. F. Dainton; Canadian industries, Mrs. E. Dunford, Historical Research, Mrs. McKerchar; Education, Mrs. E. Johnston; Community activities, Mrs. Farrow; Public Relations, Mrs. Chatten; Home Economics, Mrs. Gordon Dunford; Health, Mrs. W. Abbott; property, Mrs. Foster and Mrs. W. James Charlton.

At the conclusion of the election the new officers were installed by Mrs. Moore.

It was decided to ask the council to allow the Institute to hold their meetings in Memorial Hall in the future as the number attending has become too large for the average home. The date of meetings will also be changed from the first Monday of the month, as it has been, to the second Wednesday of each month, at 2 p.m.

The Institute ladies will be making cancer dressings the last Thursday of each month in Memorial Hall, and would welcome any ladies of the village who could help them.

Assisting the hostess with refreshments were Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Albert Bullock and Mrs. A. Gill.

DOROTHY DIX:

Complaining Wife Advised To Readjust Her Schedule

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband says I'm foolish to let this problem worry me, but it does! My husband is a wonderful person, a steady worker, and devoted to me and our three children.

Our difficulties revolve around his working hours. He's on the night shift, which leaves me alone every night. I am very nervous when I'm alone, can't sleep, then get cross and take it out on the family. I know I'm turning into a nagging shrew, but if only he'd change his job our lives wouldn't be so topsy-turvy. L. H. W.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your first step in adjusting to a schedule that is so upsetting to you is to realize that a man's job isn't something that can be changed at will. A man who has a wife and three children to support can't follow his every whim, or his wife's. He would be an irresponsible father to do so, and if you think you have troubles now, consider what you'd be up against with an unemployed man.

Your husband is doubtless as unhappy about his hours as you are, but he doesn't give in to his discontent by nagging, shouting and losing his temper. You should learn the same control.

REMEDIAL WAYS

There are at least two courses open to you to make an adjustment for better domesticity. When you put the children to bed at night, go with them. You'll have a few hours' sleep before your husband comes home, then you can get up, give him his meal, and join him at it. It will be difficult at first to awake cheerful and bright after a short sleep, but it's merely a matter of adjustment. Go back to bed, and when the children awake in the morning, get up with them for the day. This schedule would give you the maximum of waking time with your husband and children.

Or, if you prefer, become acquainted with other women whose husbands are on the same shift. Arrange get-togethers with them in the evening, or swap services as baby-sitters so you can go out occasionally in groups.

Whatever you decide to do, make sure it's something besides the present nag-and-berate system. Your husband is doing an adequate job of supporting his brood, so make up your mind to do an equally good job of keeping the home fires burning.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My problem is loneliness. I am 25 years old, and happily married, but neither my husband nor I have any family. We are both shy, and find it difficult to make friends. We have no children, so I have too much time on my hands. My husband doesn't want me to return to work.

C. O.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You could be a most welcome angel in many institutions that are woefully shorthanded. I'm sure if you will go to a nearby hospital, especially one with a large children's ward, and offer your services, you'll soon find plenty to do. Foundling homes and orphanages, too, can always use a pair of willing hands. Feeding babies, dressing small children, reading to youngsters of any age, or playing games with them, are all tasks you could perform admirably.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I would like to drive the family car, but since I am only 16 my parents object. All my friends are permitted to drive. H. J.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your parents are certainly the ones to make the decision in your case. When they feel that you are responsible enough to take care of the car, they will doubtless grant permission. A car is no toy, but a powerful machine to be handled skilfully and carefully.

At night, when you go through the ritual of subdividing your hair into little sections, here's what you do. Rub a little Lanolin into the hair. Put a little on the scalp and a little on the hair surface. Then roll your hair up the way you usually do . . . using bobby pins, curlers, string, old typewriter ribbons, rubber bands or whatever appeals to you most. Then just before you crawl into bed, moisten the hair around each curler. It will dry into curls while you are asleep. In the morning, merely remove the hardware from your head, exercise the scalp and gently brush your hair. You've got a glorious surprise in store for you. Curls and waves that fall naturally into place, such as you've never dreamed possible. Would Cut Time For Teacher Training

TORONTO (CP)—Two views on teacher education and training were expressed at Ontario Educational Association meetings Tuesday.

Dr. G. Edward Hall, president of the University of Western Ontario, said the two should be combined in the universities as a step toward coping with the growing shortage of secondary school teachers. His suggestion would cut the training period for teachers from five years to four.

Harry R. Low, director of current affairs for the department of national defence, spoke before 200 school superintendents and normal school staff members and said the minimum requirement for entering the profession should be three years as a resident student at a teacher training college, with senior matriculation set as the standard for entry to the college.

Dr. Hall said: "Some will claim that secondary school teachers cannot be educated and trained adequately in five years from grade 13, let alone four. I do not agree. . . If we in the universities of Ontario can graduate students in four years with what it takes to enter any school of graduate studies in the world, by being realistic, flexible and willing, we can certainly graduate students in the same period of time who would be more acceptable to any school board in the province."

WANTS 3-YEAR COURSE

Urging a three-year course for public school teachers instead of the present one- and two-year courses now given in Ontario, Mr. Low said: "It can no longer be assumed that a thin top dressing of education is adequate for teaching."

On graduation, a degree should be granted, which would help raise the status of the profession and the quality of the entrants, he said. It would also help remove the frustration and bitterness now suffered by many teachers.

Dr. G. P. Gilmour, president and vice-chancellor of McMaster University, said universities do not get all the best academic material available. Canadians had not yet developed a respect for learning for its own sake.

"We know how easily the cause of higher education is judged by material awards—both by those who are asked to pay for it and by those who offer themselves for exposure to it," he said. "I know that most of your energy as secondary school teachers must be concentrated on those who are not university material. But I do plead with you to encourage those who can and should go on."

Professor Etienne Gilson, director of the institute of mediaeval studies of St. Michael's College, said teaching by its very nature cannot be democratic. It assumed an inequality in knowledge—but not necessarily in intelligence.

UP TO STUDENT

Speaking at the Catholic Education Conference, Professor Gilson said the only way a student can learn is by his own effort. The teacher can cause him to think, but cannot think for him, he said, and the proper end to teaching is not to teach children knowledge, but to teach them to learn by themselves what they need to know.

Dr. E. G. Pleva, head of the geography department at the University of Western Ontario, addressed science teachers and said the revenue from iron ore transportation alone will pay for the cost of the navigation part of the St. Lawrence seaway project within 10 years.

MAJOR FACTOR

He said iron ore from Labrador has become a major economic factor because the day of an ore deficiency in the Ohio valley is only a few years away. In this way, Labrador ore was in the same category as Alberta oil.

Dr. H. Bowers, principal of Stratford Normal School, gave as his ideal of the perfect teacher one who possesses patience, tact, kindliness, courtesy and firmness.

Addressing teachers of federal government schools, he said: "A teacher should strive to cultivate cheerfulness, a sense of humor and poise. He should also have the gift of leadership."

Dr. O. M. Solandt, chairman of the defence research board, urged increased study of mathematics by scientists who are not specifically mathematicians. "We are underestimating the use of mathematics in other scientific fields," he claimed.

"We are probably giving fine mathematical training to the specialists but too little to the non-mathematicians who later will find a need for it."

U.S. PRESIDENT EISENHOWER gives final instructions to Clare Boothe Luce, new Ambassador to Italy, as she leaves for her post. Mrs. Luce, wife of a magazine publisher, is also a playwright.

Me Or I Not Important Teacher Says In Battle On Grammar

TORONTO—"You can't tell me it matters whether a child says 'It's me,' or 'It's I'". S. J. (John) Rogers said loudly, and some thought, rather outspokenly. For his remark caused many raised eyebrows and a hushed, almost stern silence befell the Urban Teachers' Section of the Ontario Educational Association.

But Mr. Rogers, a young bachelor of science employed at the junior high school in Forest Hill Village had no intention of ceasing to shock the more staid and white-haired members of his audience.

"The incidental rules of grammar are no longer important," he told the panel discussing "Is there an answer to the grammar problem?"

Despite the piercing stares of die-hard old-timers, Mr. Rogers went on: "Teachers today shouldn't become involved with whether or not to end a sentence with a preposition and whether or not a split infinitive can be used."

A. H. McDonald was Mr. Rogers' fiercest opponent on the panel. What else could he do? Wasn't he the vice-principal of the school in Mimico named "John English School."

UPHOLDS TRADITION

Doubtless upholding the traditions of John English School, Mr. McDonald replied valiantly: "We as teachers should aim high. We should set a standard. A child is like a garden. Its blooms will depend on what seeds you sow. If you sow the seeds of good English in children, they will bear fruit in later life."

The battle of grammar teaching waged on, though most members of the panel seemed to disagree with Mr. Rogers and thought that grammar should be taught regularly in schools and should not be allowed to fall into disuse. They went so far as to say that grammar should definitely be included in a school's curriculum.

Defeat was near, but bachelor of science Rogers stood up valiantly against the weight of opinions opposing him. He quoted Churchill criticizing a clerk who during the war had moved a preposition from the end of one of his sentences back to the middle.

130 Wives Of Officers Go To Germany In Spite Of Ottawa's Official Policy

Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff correspondent with the Canadian forces in Korea since 1950, has spent three weeks in Germany with the 27th Canadian brigade. In this story, one of a series, he tells how the wives of Canadians in Germany are getting along in their new homes.

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HANNOVER, Germany (CP)—Canadian Army wives here say they like it fine.

About 130 wives of officers and NCOs have come in spite of Ottawa's official policy not to "encourage" them to do so.

They say their husbands are much more upset about the policy than they are. They knew what they were coming to.

At tea in the Kroepke cafe in downtown Hannover the other day, an orchestra playing unobtrusively in the background, three of them told The Canadian Press they "wouldn't have missed this experience for the world."

After comparing housekeeping, shopping and entertainment available here with what she'd known in Canada, Mrs. James G. Scott of Davidson, Sask., said: "It took my last cent to get here—but I'd do it again."

The wives have no official status as "dependents." To the army they are simply tourists.

ON THEIR OWN

They find their own apartments, arrange for their own food and other services, and are not entitled officially to use British Army facilities for servicemen's families. Actually, they do.

If the wives are contented their husband's aren't. They want them officially to play the same role as garrison wives back home, and to raise the tone of their husbands' units.

One commanding officer said: "The official policy is to discourage wives. That's being interpreted to mean 'be nasty to them.'

"We are not allowed to have them into the mess except for one mess function a month, for which official permission is needed."

Like the soldiers, officers may not get overnight passes and are expected to sleep in barracks.

LISTS ADVANTAGES

Another battalion commanding officer said:

"Maintaining a brigade in Europe means married quarters, schools, hospitals, chapels, the whole undertaking of building a settled Canadian Army base here. If we can build $250,000,000 airbases we can certainly afford to make army service abroad attractive too.

"This would have operational consequences. It would mean normal three-year postings, either abroad or at home, with families. It would vastly reduce factors like crime and other troubles, loss of time (on one-year foreign postings the army gets something like nine months' service) and it would eliminate the need for a back-up brigade at Valcartier."

For themselves the wives say they knew they'd likely see their husbands only week-ends and the occasional evening.

Mrs. Scott said jokingly: "I'm going to divorce mine as soon as I get back. I'm only waiting to be sure I do get back!"

Then, seriously: "When we do get back we are going to appreciate things a lot more—our washing machines, our freedom, our Canadian way of life."

The women say food costs about the same as in Canada, except good quality meat, which is much cheaper, "especially the steaks."

Mrs. Herbert Brewster of Parry Sound, Ont., added: "Their pork isn't up to Canadian standards, but their hams are good."

Mrs. Scott said coffee was "fantastically expensive," eggs were cheap and butter was "about the same as home."

The women live with either British or German families. A room with three meals a day and maid service in a British home can cost about $60 a month. For about $30 one can have one or two rooms in a German home and the use of the kitchen for one meal a day.

German apartments, furnished, cost upwards of $100 a month.

The girls see a lot of one another, "puttering around, putting in time," they say.

They have coffee sessions two or three times a week in one another's homes, and every Wednesday they have lunch at the Tiergarten Officers' Club for 70 cents. Usually between 20 and 40 turn out.

ARMY WIVES ABROAD—About 130 wives of Canadian officers and NCO's have joined their husbands who are on garrison duty in West Germany. The wives say they like it fine although the Canadian government's official policy is not to "encourage" them to go abroad. Here is a group of wives at lunch in the Tiergarten, Hannover.

Tough Kazak Horsemen Won Over By Communists

HONG KONG (Reuters)—The Chinese Communists have apparently wooed and won the rough-riding Kazak horsemen of northwest China, the last major tribe to hold out against the Peiping regime.

Observers here gained this impression Tuesday from a radio announcement that the chieftains of seven minority tribes of the northwest provinces, including the Kazaks, have sent a cable of "high respect" to Communist leader Mao Tse-tung.

Mao's regime is believed to have made peace with the nomadic Moslem tribesmen, traditional enemy of communism, by giving them a tract of land to call their own.

For years these tough, squat horsemen—whose riding skill matches that of their distant cousins, the Russian Cossacks—waged guerrilla warfare against Communists and landowners without distinction.

LONG-TIME FEUD

Their feud against landlowners dates from the turn of the century when Chinese settlers grabbed Kazak land holdings in vast Sinkiang province, which adjoins Soviet Russia, India and Tibet.

The Kazaks came up against Communists first in 193, when a short-lived Communist administration, backed by Russia, took over the province.

In 1942, they revolted against the then Nationalist governor of the province, Sheng Shih-tsai, and disappeared underground, making periodic blood-chilling raids against their enemies in search of food and money.

Ottawa Plans To Prosecute Paper Firms

OTTAWA (CP)—The government will prosecute fine paper manufacturing and merchandizing companies on charges of operating an illegal price-fixing combine in the $50,000,000 industry, Justice Minister Garson told the Commons Tuesday.

Combines Commissioner T. D. MacDonald reported to the government Nov. 6 after four years of investigation that seven fine paper mills and 37 merchant companies —virtually the entire Canadian fine paper industry—were engaged in an illegal combine.

Exactly which of the 44 companies will be prosecuted has not yet been determined, the minister said. Question of whether to launch prosecutions had been under study for the last few months by Norman L. Mathews, QC, of Toronto.

Companies involved are those which produce or sell paper used in publishing books, magazines, writing paper and envelopes, but not newsprint.

Companies in Ontario alleged to have been involved in the combine are:

Mills

Alliance Paper Mills Ltd., Merritton; Don Valley Paper Co. Ltd., Toronto; Provincial Paper Ltd., Toronto.

1878

In 1878, Daniel Belleghem, cabinet maker, founded a furniture factory and store at 188-190 Hunter St. here in Peterborough. His profession often necessitated the making of caskets, hence, a few years later he entered into the funeral business. When Daniel Belleghem passed away in 1920, his two sons, Walter and Arthur, continued to carry on until 1924, when, at that time, Walter Belleghem became the sole owner.

1953

Mr. Walter Belleghem operated the business until his death in Sept. 1944. Mrs. Walter Belleghem has been actively engaged since that time.

In 1948, Jack Belleghem, the third generation, became part of one of Peterborough's oldest established businesses.

6—In Memoriam

GRAHAM—In loving memory of a dear brother-in-law, who passed away three years ago, April 3, 1950.
In our chest of cherished memories,
Are locked up thoughts of you;
Your smiling face, your tender heart
And the things you used to do.
This token of love and affection
Of a dear one we'll never forget,
His memory to us is a treasure
His loss a life time regret.
—Sadly missed by Gladys and Robert Fulton.

SMITH—In loving memory of Florence Irene Smith, who passed away April 8, 1949.
We know that she is happy
In our Saviour's home above
Growing fairer as she lingers
In the sunshine of His love.
—Ever remembered by Mother, Dad and brothers.

WATKINS—In loving memory of Joe Watkins, who passed away, April 8, 1935.
We shall meet with many a loved one
That was torn from our embrace
We shall listen to their voices
And behold them face to face.
—Fondly remembered by wife and family.

Crippled Goose To Fly Home By Plane

GREENWICH, Conn. (CP)—All's well with the feathered world today. A crippled Canada goose is going to be able to fly home to Canada by plane.

Canada finally got the bird Monday when Governor John Davis Lodge of Connecticut yielded to an appeal by the Canadian government, allowing the 15-pound goose to rejoin its kinfolk in a fresh-water sanctuary at Kingsville, Ont.

Canada wildlife authorities had claimed that the salt waters of Point Byram, in Long Island sound off Greenwich, were bad to the bird.

Ray Lawson, Canadian consul-general in New York, who directed the appeal to Lodge, expressed his appreciation and recalled the traditional friendship between the peoples of Canada and the United States.

Capt. Amos L. Horst, executive-secretary of the Wildlife Restoration Foundation at Point Byram, will attempt to catch the goose today.

It will be flown to New York and thence to Toronto and Kingsville.

COULDN'T MAKE IT

For five years a flock of wild Canada geese has been migrating seasonally between the Kingsville bird refuge and Point Byram. When the flock left here late in March for Canada one bird, whose rudder feathers had been shot off during the winter, could not take flight with the rest.

Horst said he saw two geese return and try unsuccessfully to lift the cripple between them. The story so aroused Canadians that they began collecting money to fly the goose back home by plane.

Horst wanted to trap the bird, but as a matter of policy Dr. Russel P. Hunter, superintendent of the Connecticut state board of fisheries and game, refused permission. Thomas Rose, chief game warden, hinted the goose might be a "naturalized" state bird. He pointed out that some of the Point Byram visitors did not knock themselves out trying to fly to Kingsville but summered at Bantam Lake, Conn., only 50 miles north of Greenwich.

Canadians appealed to Governor Lodge. An airline offered to fly the goose home free.

Consul-General Lawson told the governor that return of the bird "would symbolize American-Canadian goodwill."

Lodge decided Monday that "since there is a real demand from the people of Canada for the goose, I don't feel that Connecticut should stand in the way. I have every confidence that the goose will be well treated in Canada. If the people of Canada feel this goose will be a useful symbol, I am only too glad to co-operate."

Many Prices Unchanged By Decontrols

NEW YORK (AP) — The end of price controls in the United States has brought more ups than downs, but has left unchanged many items in the average American's budget.

That's the conclusion reached in an Associated Press survey on the effects of decontrol on the cost of living.

The survey shows these increases: cigarettes up one or two cents a pack, and coffee up two to five cents a pound at all points; gasoline up in eight cities; and bread up in six cities.

The 23-city check showed no significant price changes in clothing, home fuels, restaurant meals or butter since the last controls were removed March 17.

BIG DROP IN MEAT

The big item moving downward has been meat; some housewives interviewed say the drop in the meat price has balanced the increase in coffee and cigarettes, leaving their grocery bill about where it was before decontrol.

Increases in gasoline range from 3-10 cent in Cleveland and Columbus, O., to about three cents in Seattle and San Francisco.

The price of a loaf of bread has been raised one-half cent in Boston, and one cent in St. Louis, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Seattle and Pittsburgh.

COSTING MORE

Other items which now cost more than in the control period: Such building materials as cement, brick, gypsum products, wall board and plumbing supplies; copper-clad stainless steel cooking utensils; lamps and light bulbs; steel drums and pails; office machinery, and some rugs and linoleum.

One of the big price cuts since decontrol came when Chrysler slashed its prices by an average of $100 a car. Other automobile makers did not follow.

Permanent Peace Problems For Korea Carefully Studied By Officials

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Plans to make a permanent peace for Korea and perhaps negotiate with the Communists on other critical Far Eastern issues are beginning to shape up here as truce prospects brighten.

One idea receiving official consideration, it was understood today is that any long-term peace arrangements should provide for a north-south dividing line at the narrow waist of the peninsula about 80 miles north of present battle lines.

Under provisions already worked out, an armistice would become effective along this present line. However, some authorities here believe this would not make a workable division of the country during a long period.

The battle line is generally already north of parallel 38, which divided North and South Korea before the Red attack. The Communists presumably would object to any northward shift.

The belief is that the South Korean government would accept a border at the Korean waist since this would give it control over approximately 85 per cent of the country. Such an arrangement would reduce the North Korean position to a minimum, just short of extinction. It would, however, leave a buffer zone between South Korea and major Red Chinese and Soviet interests in Manchuria and Siberia. Hence there is some feeling that the Red governments of China and Russia—if not North Korea—might be willing to move the permanent peace line north. No one here has any idea what kind of compensation they might bargain for.

Among the provisions of an armistice worked out prior to the deadlock over prisoner-of-war repatriation was one stating that the military negotiators should recommend to the countries concerned a "political conference" to settle "the questions of the withdrawal of all foreign forces from Korea, the peaceful settlement of the Korean question, etc."

9 Dead, 50 Injured As Subway Trains Crash In London

LONDON (AP)—Transport officials today announced a toll of nine persons killed and 50 injured in Wednesday night's shattering crash of two jam-packed London subway trains. It took rescue workers more than 15 hours to cut their way through the tangled wreckage to reach the last four bodies, including that of a mother still clutching her two-year-old baby in death. Of the injured, eight were listed in serious condition.

Transport officials said a signal failure may have figured in the disaster.

Two men were brought out alive at dawn after being pinned for nearly 10 hours in the debris-choked tunnel between the stations of Stratford and Leyton. Doctors had to amputate one man's leg to free him.

GIVEN FIRST AID

Many persons not listed as casualities were given first aid on the spot for cuts and bruises.

The crash occurred at 7 p.m. (2 p.m. EST) at the height of the homeward rush by office workers. One train pulled out of Stratford station and piled into the rear of another stopped on the line half a mile away.

Each train carried eight coaches and about 600 passengers.

The rear coaches of the standing train and the leading coaches of the one which hit it were buckled into a mass of splintered wood and twisted steel. The tunnel, which provides only an 18-inch clearance above the tops of trains, was corked tight by wreckage.

Most of the dead and seriously injured were in the first and second coaches of the moving train and the last coach of the other.

CUT WAY THROUGH

Firemen and police hacked their way through the wreckage. They were followed by doctors and nurses, who treated the injured by the light of flashlights and electric lanterns.

Stretcher bearers carried the injured half a mile through the tunnel to the Stratford station or a mile to Leyton to reach ambulances.

Stratford station is in East London, a district of docks, factories and workers' homes. The subway line swings into an S-bend in going underground into the tunnel, making vision difficult.

Three Officers On Seriously Injured List

LANDSTUHL, Germany (CP) — Three of six RCAF officers hurt in the crash of an RCAF transport plane near Zweibruecken Tuesday are still on the seriously injured list in the U. S. Army hospital here today.

Col. Robert T. Findley, commanding officer of the newly-opened 1,000-bed hospital, said the three serious cases are:

Air Commodore K. L. B. Hodson of London, Ont., and Halifax, chief of staff of the RCAF's 1st air division in Europe.

Group Capt. R. M. Cox of Sioux Lookout, Ont., senior air staff officer.

Flt. Lt. Ross Gooder of Ottawa and Toronto.

NOT IN CRITICAL CONDITION

None of the three is in critical condition, however. Cox's condition improved slightly today, Findley said.

Gooder was the pilot of the plane which crashed on a flight from the Canadian air base at Zweibruecken Germany, to Paris. He was first described as the most serisouly injured of the six officers but a Canadian spokesman said today his condition is reported slightly improved.

Hodson and Cox were placed on the seriously injured list Wednesday night.

Air Vice-Marshal Hugh Campbell of Salisbury, N. B., officer commanding the 1st air division, today was reported making steady improvement. His injuries are described as not serious.

Flt. Lt. W. Unruh, a navigator of Lucky Lake, Sask., and Wing. Cmdr. R. A. Ashman of Ottawa, senior personnel officer, suffered only minor back injuries and facial lacerations.

German Talks May Be Touchy

OTTAWA (CP) — Konrad Adenauer comes here next week as the first German chancellor to set foot on Canadian soil. There is every indication he will be greeted warmly by a government keen to get his views on European developments.

From the Canadian standpoint, the chance for a general comparing of notes transcends any specific issues because there are no major problems between the two countries. But the 22-hour visit, starting next Friday, could raise difficult questions.

Whether the chancellor raises them or not remains to be seen. However, Canadian representatives are likely to be prepared to discuss such specific matters as the admission of recent refugees from communism and the Kurt Meyer case if Mr. Adenauer or his party of 10 raise them. Some officials doubt that the Meyer war criminal case will come up.

The 77-year-old head of the Republic of Germany is expected to see Immigration Minister Harris and may discuss the question of the stream of refugees who have been fleeing East Germany in large numbers. He has proposed that Canada take many of them as immigrants on a temporary basis.

Canadian officials feel there is no really adequate way of making security checks on their political leanings until they have been in West Germany for some time. Only a few have been granted permission to come to Canada.

Man Goes Berserk Injures Three People

HAMILTON (CP) — Two elderly persons and a two-year-old girl were rushed to Hamilton General hospital this morning after police said they were attacked by a man who had "taken a fit and gone berserk."

In hospital are Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fleming Stewart, both in their 60's, and two-year-old Lynn Foster, who lives nearby.

Police said the Stewarts were attacked with a knife in their home. The little girl was attacked by the man as she played on the roadway outside. They believe she was struck by a rock.

Later apprehended and held by police was David Stewart, son of the elderly couple.

Witnesses informed police that a man ran out of the front door of the house at 26 Craigroyston Rd. They said he was "covered with blood."

Jailed Seven Years For Bloody Campaign

KAPENGURIA, Kenya (Reuters) Bearded, British-educated Jomo Kenyatta was sentenced Wednesday to seven years at hard labor for "master-minding" the Mau Mau cult's bloody campaign to drive all white men out of this British colony.

Authorities have received warnings the terrorists would stage the greatest blood bath ever seen in this colony if Kenyatta, known to them as "The Burning Spear of Kenya," were convicted.

Kenyatta received the maximum sentence on charges of Mau Mau membership and "manager" of the terrorist campaign. Five others accused of Mau Mau membership and assisting Kenyatta in managing the campaign were each given seven years' hard labor.

Junior Farmers Plan April Conference

TORONTO (CP)—The Junior Farmers' Association of Ontario will hold its provincial conference and annual meeting April 26, 27 and 28 at the Ontario Agricultural College in Guelph.

Some 450 delegates from every county and district in the province are scheduled to attend. In addition, four Scottish youths, a junior farmer from the United States and two delegates from the Junior Farmers' Union of Alberta have been invited to attend.

Must Maintain Allied Unity Till Peace Proven—Martin

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Martin said today that, if it is possible to negotiate an honorable armistice in Korea after the prisoner-of-war issue is settled, "Korea will become a symbol of the success of collective security in action."

In an address to the Osgoode Hall Legal and Literary Society, he recalled predicting last fall that the present session of the United Nations general assembly could be a turning point in UN affairs. On that occasion he was speaking on behalf of Canada during the opening debate of the general assembly session.

"The sudden readiness of the Chinese Communists to negotiate an exchange of sick and wounded prisoners and their willingness to reopen the Korean truce talks now suggest that this session may yet be the turning point in our affairs to which I referred last October," he said.

If a cease-fire were achieved there would remain the difficult task of finding solutions to the complex political questions affecting the future of the Korean peninsula and the surrounding area.

"These wider issues will be discussed at the political conference provided for in the draft armistice agreement."

Mr. Martin said Canada has already honored its pledges to co-operate in relief and rehabilitation work in Korea.

Regarding recent Communist peace overtures to the West, he said:

"Whatever their motives may be, and several interesting possibilities suggest themselves, the Russians seem only to have decided that the time is opportune from their standpoint for an abatement in the cold war." He added:

"While the Western world is right in accepting at face value all genuine peace moves on the part of the Soviet, we must, at all costs, maintain our own unity and we must in no way lessen our preparedness.

"The world has witnessed peace manoeuvres before. We shall not shake off for generations to come the grim memory of Hitler's promise of 'peace in our time,' broken a scant 12 months later by the outbreak of the most destructive war in human history."

WHEELS WITHIN WHEEL massed at the police garage behind the City Hall to-day as 300 youngsters presented their bikes to be checked for faulty parts to inspector-members of the Delta-Rho Hi-Y Club. In co-operation with the Police department and the Peterborough Automobile Club, the bike-check safety campaign will be held again on Friday at the Drill Hall of the Exhibition grounds starting at 9.30 a.m.

Expect Poland To Offer New Proposal

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—United Nations diplomats looked today for possible new Soviet coos of peace as Poland's grab-bag proposals for ending world tensions came before the 60-country political committee.

In debate early today, the Polish delegation was ready to introduce its old "omnibus" plan, the same one proposed by Russia and rejected by the assembly last year.

Russian delegate Andrei Vishinsky was expected to attend the opening debate and delegates watched for him to give a sign of possible new softening in Red tactics.

There was general feeling that Soviet-bloc delegates would introduce some changes in the light of Russia's new peace offensive and the prisoner-of-war talks in Korea.

WANTS TO GET ON

Vishinsky heightened corridor speculation last week when he expressed impatience to get on with the committee's work rather than take a long Easter holiday because he felt the Polish item was "of great importance."

The original Polish proposal included a demand for an immediate cease-fire in Korea to be followed later by political discussions on the exchange of prisoners of war and other problems.

Toronto Sergeant Decorated For Daring Grenade Rescue

OTTAWA (CP)—Sgt. A. W. Graham, 40-year-old Toronto father, has won the British Empire medal for risking his life to save a young reserve army soldier in danger of being blown up by a hand grenade.

Army headquarters Wednesday said the award, an unusual one in peacetime, was made to Sgt. Graham for "an act of outstanding courage" during training last July at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont. The Toronto Scottish NCO shoved an unidentified rifleman to safety when a live grenade the rifleman had thrown failed to clear a parapet and fell back beside him.

The young rifleman, taking instruction from Sgt. Graham with the 4th infantry brigade support company, froze when the bomb, set to explode four seconds after being thrown, rolled back.

KNEW CONSEQUENCES

". . . Seeing what had happened, also being aware that almost two seconds had elapsed since the grenade had been made alive and knowing the deadly consequences of the weapon, Sgt. Graham with great determination, fortitude and complete disregard for his own life rushed into the grenade bay placing himself between the rifleman and the live grenade.

"At the same time he seized the rifleman bodily, throwing him out of the standing bay into the clear and following himself immediately afterwards."

Announce Plan For PoW Care

SEOUL (AP) — British Commonwealth officials today announced plans for care and transportation of Commonwealth prisoners who may be released by the Communists in an exchange of sick and wounded captives.

A Commonwealth spokesman said the specially equipped aircraft of an Australian transport squadron will fly the Commonwealth repatriates to Iwakuni, Japan. They will be taken to the Commonwealth base hospital at Kure for treatment.

From the proposed exchange point at Panmunjom to Seoul Commonwealth personnel will travel under U. S. arrangements, the spokesman said, adding that the plan called for a helicopter lift from Panmunjom to Munsan and either helicopter or hospital train transportation from there to Seoul.

Each man will be allowed to send free cablegrams to his folks.

The only Canadian listed in the U. S. armed forces list of prisoners obtained from the Reds is Gnr. John Orval Jenkins of Hamilton, Ont.

5,526 Pounds Margarine Seized

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — More than 5,600 pounds of margarine, most of it from Ontario, was seized Wednesday in raids by Quebec provincial police.

Transportation and sale of margarine is banned in Quebec.

A total of 5,526 pounds of Ontario margarine was found in the hands of a Sherbrooke merchant. A raid on a nearby Magog restaurant produced 100 pounds of the butter substitute.

Names of the persons involved were withheld. It was not known if any were arrested.

Trenton Firemen Go By Taxis

TORONTO (CP)—Firemen in two Ontario communities had their problems Wednesday.

At Trenton firemen had to take taxis and private cars to a fire 2½ miles west of the town because their truck could not cross a bridge under repairs.

At Stouffville, 20 miles northeast of Toronto, firemen had to abandon their $15,000 truck when it bogged down in a field on the way to a grass fire.

At Trenton firemen and volunteers halted a fire that had spread through about 50 acres of orchard and a reforestation nursery. At Stouffville the fire raged out of control across three farms before it was brought under control.

A tow truck later pulled the fire truck out of the mud.

Eisenhower To Meet Dewey For Parley

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House announced today that President Eisenhower will confer Friday with Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

Senator Alexander Wiley (Rep. Wis.) indicated Wednesday that a likely subject would be the St Lawrence seaway power project.

The state of New York has an application pending before the federal power commission to join with Canada in construction of a $300,000,000 St. Lawrence water power project.

Expect Reds To Sign In 24 Hours

Communists Accept Last Three Revisions In Surprise Move

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—The Communists agreed today to all major points of an allied plan for exchanging sick and wounded prisoners. The Reds may sign the agreement Friday.

Agreement on the actual mechanics of the exchange presumably was reached at a meeting of staff officers in Panmunjom this afternoon.

If an agreement is signed Friday, the exchange of disabled prisoners could start within 10 days.

In a surprise move the Reds late in the day accepted the three last revisions in the draft agreement on arrangements for the exchange.

A formal signing Friday and ironing out of minor technical details could pave the way for a resumption of full-scale armistice talks to resolve the long remaining issue blocking a truce in Korea—an over-all exchange of prisoners.

BEGIN COLLECTING

A highly-placed American source said the Communists already have begun gathering together the sick and wounded for repatriating through Panmunjom, and that the exchange probably will take place within 10 days.

The Reds turned down a UN attempt to get them to increase the number of PoWs they said they would turn over to the Allies. The Reds stuck to their figure of 600 —including probably not more than 125 Americans.

The allies have said they are ready to send back 5,800 disabled Red captives, 5,100 North Koreans and 700 Chinese.

Rear-Admiral John C. Daniel, chief UN liaison officer, said he tried three times in the meeting at Panmunjom today to get the Communists to sign the agreement. They wouldn't get out their pens, he said, but they told him they would be ready to sign at tomorrow's 11 a. m. (9 p. m. EST Thursday) meeting.

QUITE POSSIBLE

"I'm doing everything I can to have it signed tomorrow," Daniel said. "I think it's quite possible."

Only minor matters needed to be settled before the agreement, and staff officers were at work on these.

Marines Retake Top Of Hill

SEOUL (AP) —U. S. Marines clawed their way back to the top of Carson hill today after 300 to 350 Red Chinese overran the strategic west Korean outpost in a frenzied pre-dawn assault.

Attacking behind a curtain of artillery and mortar fire, the Reds swarmed up the hill and into marine defences. Communications were knocked out in the first 10 minutes, but observers on nearby hills watched marines battling Reds hand to hand, the 8th army said.

A 1st marine division officer estimated that 220 Chinese were killed or wounded.

A marine relief force started inching its way up the shell-pitted slopes at 8 a. m. and 35 minutes later the hill was reported secured.

$65,000 In Goods Warehouse Loot For Barrie Thugs

BARRIE (CP)—Tobacco and electrical goods valued at more than $65,000 were stolen from the Strathdee Transport Company warehouse early today when two masked men held up two employees at gunpoint, loaded the goods in a three-ton company truck and sped away. Charles Agnew, manager of the warehouse in this town 50 miles north of Toronto, said the value of the loot, including the truck, was about $70,000, part of which was covered by insurance. Taken were 2,000 pounds of cigarets, 44 boxes of cable, two refrigerators and two lamps.

Lloyd Nelles, night watchman, and Stan Brown, a helper, were unloading goods from a trailer when the two men slipped up behind them and bound them together with 2½-inch adhesive tape. Then the men backed a company truck into another entrance of the building and loaded the goods onto the truck.

It took Nelles almost two hours to free himself from the 2½-inch tape. He freed Brown and called police.

The truck was later reported recovered near Schomberg, about 30 miles south of Barrie.

Towers Urges Tariffs Eased

PULLMAN, Wash. (CP)—Graham Towers today appealed to the United States to help win the "cold war" by reducing American tariff barriers.

America's partners in the Free world are waiting "anxiously" for an encouraging move by the U. S., the governor of the Bank of Canada said in a speech prepared for delivry before the Pacific northwest conference on banking.

"If the signs they get are discouraging, then I fear that we face a further weakening of the basic economic structure of the Free world."

Countries in the Free world wanted the chance to sell more goods to the U. S. and thus earn more dollars to strengthen their economies.

Babe Zaharias Seriously Ill

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP)—Babe Didrickson Zaharias, probably the greatest woman athlete in history, is ill. A newspaper says she's finished in sports.

She was undergoing examination today by her home town doctor who's cared for her since she was a girl.

The doctor, W. E. Tatum, said a report from a physician who examined her earlier this week at Fort Worth described her illness as "along the line of malignancy."

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram said the 39-year-old Mrs. Zaharias is "seriously ill and has engaged in her last athletic competition."

The paper said she underwent physical examinations in Fort Worth earlier this week, then returned to her home town of Beaumont to put herself under the care of a doctor in preparation for surgery.

Deny Elizabeth To Visit U.S.

LONDON (CP) — A —suggestion that the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh may visit the United States next year was described today by a Buckingham Palace spokesman as "highly unlikely."

The report appeared in The Weekly News, a Scottish newspaper. It said "plans for a Royal visit to America next year are being considered at court."

If these materialized, the Queen and the Duke would visit New York's Columbia University in the fall of 1954 for 200th anniversary celebrations of the founding of the university by King George II.

A Buckingham Palace spokesman said it seemed highly unlikely the Queen would undertake such a trip so soon after she returns from her round-the-world Commonwealth tour, which starts in November, 1953 and ends in mid-May, 1954.

Fairytale Wedding

Belgian Princess Wed In Luxembourg

LUXEMBOURG (AP) — A fairy-tale royal wedding united the reigning houses of two-thirds of the Benelux countries today before notability of 11 European countries. Some 140,000 persons stood outside the church.

In twin civil and religious rites, the grand duchy's heir apparent Prince Jean and Belgium's Princess Josephine Charlotte, sister of King Baudouin, were married.

Jean, 32, is slim, dark, moustached and a Second World War soldier who fought with Britain's Irish Guards to free his homeland from the Nazis.

Someday he will succeed his mother, Grand Duchess Charlotte, as reigning monarch of this rich tough tiny realm of 300,000 people and valuable coal, steel and iron industries.

His bride, daughter of ex-King Leopold and the late Queen Astrid, is 25, blonde, blue-eyed and attractive.

CHILDHOOD FRIENDS

They have known each other since childhood.

The papal nuncio, Msgr. Fernando C[illegible] wearing a golden mitre and a golden cope, performed the ceremony at Luxembourg cathedral.

The bride's simple but impressive white organdy dress was covered with lace.

Holland's Queen Juliana — third royal partner in the Belgium-Netherlands - Luxembourg military-political alliance forged after the war — headed the noble guests. They included three kings, three queens, a grand duchess, an archduke, 40 princes and princesses and a score of counts and countesses.

Of the royal assemblage, though, only three — Juliana, the bride's brother Baudouin, and Grand Duchess Charlotte—still are reigning.

Some 2,400 chosen guests, including more than 100 reporters and photographers, witnessed the religious rites read in the ancient Roman Catholic cathedral.

Outside a vast assemblage packed the capital's decorated streets to se the newlyweds and the glittering array of noble guests drive from the ceremony in open cars.

Private civil rites in the ducal palace — attended only by the couple's families and royal guests —preceded the church ceremony. Luxembourg's laws require the double ceremony.

After a honeymoon trip to Italy, the newly-weds will take up residence in a 25-room mansion, 15 miles outside Luxembourg city.

House Rejects Plan For Tax Benefits To Municipalities

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition proposals for an immediate brightening of the tax outlook for municipalities have been rejected by the Commons. For a second time in little more than a week, the House declined Wednesday to force on the government the principle that municipalities should be allowed to tax federal property normally and also should be exempt from certain federal taxes. All opposition parties favored the double suggestion in a vote. The Liberals voted against it and the count was 102 to 38.

The vote came on a motion—technically want-of-confidence in the government—proposed by the Progressive Conservative leader, George Drew.

It followed a March 31 debate on the same subject in which Finance Minister Abbott said the government had turned down tax-exemption proposals for municipalities for the time being, but that it might be about time to review the "Abbott formula" under which certain civic councils get federal grants in lieu of taxes on federal property.

At that time, Mr. Abbott also said exemption of municipal councils and school boards from federal excise taxes, including the sales tax of 10 per cent, would cause a "substantial" loss to the treasury. He did not indicate the amount but said the sales tax revenue from all sources is estimated at $590,000,000 for the 1953-54 fiscal year.

Mr. Drew's motion, apart from a request for normal taxation of federal properties in municipalities, was for their exemption from excise taxes on all purchases of machinery and equipment. This would extend to school boards.

It obtained support in debate from M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, John Blackmore (SC-Lethbridge) and J. L. Gibson (Ind-Comox-Alberni), who usually votes with the Liberals but voted against them on this non-confidence ballot.

The government side was upheld by Jean Lesage, parliamentary assistant to Mr. Abbott, who said Mr. Abbott stated earlier that the question has been under consideration by the government.

Dealing with a suggestion by Mr. Coldwell that Liberal members should feel free to vote as they wished on the issue, Mr. Lesage reminded them that it involved a want-of-confidence motion against the government, passage of which would defeat the administration.

Mr. Drew said that the federal government, in granting excise-tax exemption on provincial purchases, has recognized that this is "an unjust form of taxation" on other governments.

$2,000 Fire Damages Home

LINDSAY (ENS). — Fire of undetermined origin caused $2,000 damage to the home of Donald McLennan, 56 Bond Street, Lindsay, early today.

The fire started in the basement and Chief Alex Wylie of the Lindsay Fire Department believes it was caused either by overheated pipes or defective wiring.

First to discover the fire was James Gravestock, a neighbor, who saw smoke pouring out of the house's basement windows about 9 a.m. He called the fire department, which came in full force as well as all volunteers.

Firemen were forced to use airpacks to enter the basement, but were able to bring the fire under control in a half-hour.

The greatest damage was confined to the ceiling and rafters in the basement and amounted to $1,500. The remainder was smoke damage to household furnishings.

Mr. McLennan is retired, and lives by himself.

Find Remains Woman's Body

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Decomposed remains of a woman's hands and feet were found Wednesday by two London hunters in a lonely spot in Westminster township.

Coroner Dr. A. R. Routledge said the hands appeared to have been sawed off at the wrist and the feet at the ankles "at least several months ago."

Exact location of the gruesome find was withheld by police pending further search of the area today.

Police plan to drag a nearby stagnant pool and to search a strawstack in the vicinity.

A silk stocking and a piece of print, possibly from a dress or shirtwaist, were found at the scene as well as a partly-filled whisky bottle.

Prices Weakening In Toronto Trading

TORONTO (CP) — Prices weakened in early afternoon stock market trading today and only industrials held firm.

Most uraniums slipped slightly although Nesbitt-Labine and Goldfields added pennies. New Brunswick base metals were mixed.

Industrials held firm as utilities, foods, steels, liquors and banks gained. Papers, textiles and refining oils traded lower.

Higher-priced base metals weakened but Fenimore gained in active trading. MacDonald and Steep Rock also added pennies.

Senior golds slipped and juniors followed although Campbell added 25 cents. Holding companies were lower.

Manitoba Budgeting For $530,000 Surplus

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba is budgeting for a $530,000 surplus in the 1953-54 fiscal year, based on the assumption of a slight rise in the general economic activity in the province.

Provincial Treasurer R. D. Turner, in presenting the budget to the House Wednesday, said estimated revenues would be seriously reduced by a general decline in economic activity.

The budget set expenditures and revenues at record highs but called for no increase in taxes. The only tax drop was a slight one. The maximum amusement tax was reduced from 25 to 17½ per cent. Mr. Turner said the province had enjoyed the dubious distinction of having a relatively high amusement tax.

He estimated revenues at almost $355,000,000. Expenditures already considered by the House total more than $54,400,000. The expenditure total does not include $24,000,000 to be spent on capital account for self-sustaining utilities and financed by non-current revenues.

Kidnapped Baby Returned To Mother

MEXICO CITY (AP)—A Mexico City mother has her kidnapped baby back safe today, thanks to the abductor's powerful thirst—and subsequent hangover.

Secret service agents explained it thus:

Several days ago a nurse kidnapped a 13-month-old girl entrusted to her care.

She planned to keep the infant, but Wednesday night she got drunk. She wanted money to buy more drinks to ease her hangover.

To raise the money, she offered the baby for sale in a local market for 30 pesos ($3.45).

Two secret service agents heard of the offer, arrested the nurse and returned the baby to her mother.

Joseph Morency Dies At 97, Helped Build City

One of Peterborough's oldest residents and one who had helped erect some of the city's best-known buildings, Joseph Morency, of 77 Ware St., died Wednesday night at his home. He had been in failing health for several years and was taken by his final illness and confined to bed two weeks ago.

Mr. Morency, who made Peterborough his home for the last 80 years, played a personal part in the physical growth of the city. He was a brick and stone mason by trade and was known and respected among local builders as a skilled craftsman.

He worked with the McIntyre brothers—Malcolm and the late Archie McIntyre—formerly builders and contractors. And with the late John Theobald and Harry MacDonald, who were also old timers in the building trade.

Archie McIntyre, former mayor, died two weeks ago in his 96th year.

Some of the buildings that Mr. Morency helped erect were St. John's Anglican Church Sunday School, Sacred Heart Church, Public Library, Peterborough Hardware which is now the Coca Cola plant on George St.; and brick and stone work at the industrial plants of Delaval, CGE, Martin-Hewitt, and Outboard Marine.

Joseph Morency

BORN IN QUEBEC

Mr. Morency was born in St. Anseline, Quebec, son of the late Alexandre Morency and Genevieve Elais. He was educated in Quebec and moved to Peterborough when a lad of 17. Here he learned and practised his trade.

Left are three sons, Alex of Blairmore, Alberta, and George and Jack of Peterborough; four daughters, Mrs. John Anderson (Marie) of Lethbridge, Alberta, Mrs. J. P. McNicholl (Helen) of Vancouver, Mrs. John Johnson (Margaret) of Rochester, and Mrs. Josephine Hill, of Peterborough; also 10 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

His wife, the former Mary Dundas, died in 1937.

Mr. Morency was a member of Sacred Heart Church which he helped to build 44 years ago. He was also a member of the Altar Society.

The funeral will be held from the Duffus funeral home to Sacred Heart Church for requiem mass at 10 a.m. Saturday. Burial will be in St. Peter's cemetery.

Expect Reds

The Communists today promised to hand over sick and wounded Allied PoWs at the rate of 100 a day. They said they would receive 500 disabled Reds from the Allies each day.

If the agreement on arrangements for trade of sick and wounded prisoners is signed Friday, it will have been hammered out in only five days of business - like meetings, in contrast to the full-scale armistice negotiations that began in July 1951, lagged through months of acrimonious debate, then were broken off indefinitely by the Allies last Oct. 8.

Daniel said no reference had been made at Panmunjom to a resumption of the main truce talks.

Red China Premier Chou En-lai has proposed this and UN commander Gen. Mark Clark has asked top Red leaders in North Korea for specific details of Chou's plan, but so far there has been no Red reply.

If an exchange of sick and wounded POWs goes well, Clark has indicated that he might agree to sending his armistice negotiators back to Panmunjom.

MIGHT RESUME TALKS

North Korean Maj.-Gen. Lee Sang Cho, head of the Communist liaison group, opened today's session by handing UN representatives the Red revisions of a nine-point plan on arrangements proposed by the Allies Monday.

The revisions mostly concerned wording, although the Reds asked deletion of a paragraph setting the size of convoys in which prisoners would be delivered.

Daniel also posed several questions concerning an agreement, one of which was how soon after a signing would the Communists be able to start the actual trade at Panmunjom.

Lee replied: "If this agreement can be signed on April 10, then according to the actual conditions of our side, repatriation may be commenced at Panmunjom not later than 10 days after the signing."

British Philosopher Cyril Joad Dies

LONDON (AP)—Professor Cyril E. M. Joad, Britain's razor-tongued little philosopher famed for his caustic wit, died here today at the age of 61.

He had been ill for some time and confined to his home in London's Hampstead district. Nature of his illness was not disclosed.

Dr. Joad was best known to Britons through his radio broadcasts as a member of the BBC's "Brains Trust" panel of experts.

Fellow philosophers through the world knew him for his prolific writings on wide varieties of subjects ranging from politics to religion.

Once an agnostic, he turned to the Church of England in his late life and died a devout believer.

AGING AGGIE SHOOTER—Knuckling down in London, 80-year-old "Pop" Maynard, captain of the Tinsley "Tigers" marble-playing team, gives U.S. Navy women Marlene Barnett, left, of Pasadena, Calif., and Olga Kapusta, of Cleveland, a demonstration of his mibs prowess.

Keep New Weapons Secret

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. defence department Wednesday banned public demonstrations of new weapons and equipment, in a move to tighten secrecy and apparently to curb rivalry between the services. An announcement said the decision was made for reasons of economy and security and because the demonstrations "are not in the public interest at this time." Demonstrations of new weapons and equipment have been one means used by the services to win popular support—and impress congressional appropriations committees. At times, the services have seemed to be contesting for honors in similar or related fields.

EXPRESSED CONCERN

It was recalled that on March 26 Defence Secretary Charles Wilson expressed concern over "inter-service rivalry in the weapons-development field."

In a memo to top military officials, Wilson said this rivalry and competition between defence contractors was leading to disclosure of information to hostile countries. He ordered a tightening of security regulations.

It was not clear immediately what effect, if any, the order would have on any future tests with atomic or hydrogen "hell" bombs. Reporters have been admitted to some of the recent atomic tests in Nevada.

Lindsay Grass Fire Burns 75 Acres

TORONTO (CP)—Fire raged through 75 acres of grass and young growth in the Lindsay district Wednesday, destroying most of the small trees in the area. The fire was the worst of five serious grass and bush fires in the province Wednesday.

A spokesman for the Ontario forest fire prevention service said most of the timbered areas in Southern Ontario are drying out quickly and forest fire conditions are hazardous.

Two of the fires were in the Lindsay district 70 miles north of Toronto, and two around Tweed 30 miles north of Belleville. The 75-acre blaze was believed caused by settlers.

At Ballantrae, 25 miles northeast of Toronto, 100 persons fought a 40-acre grass fire which threatened the Vivian forest, a provincial reforestation project.

Eva Peron's Brother Commits Suicide

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters)—Juan Duarte, brother-in-law of President Peron, who broke with the Argentine ruler this week over economic policy, was found today with a bullet through his head.

Duarte, brother of the late Eva Duarte Peron was 39. He was found in his apartment by his chauffeur. Details of the circumstances of his death were not immediately available.

Duarte quit his job as Peron's secretary on Tuesday saying he did not feel able to carry out the president's new policy on wages and cost of living. Peron is cracking down on black-marketeers and Wednesday night announced an all-out attack against persons he accused of smearing his regime.

See Compromise Of $2.05 Bus. On Wheat Price

OTTAWA (CP)—Representatives of 46 countries, including Canada, attempting to reach a new international wheat agreement in Washington were reported Wednesday ready to compromise on a ceiling of about $2.05 a bushel.

A final round of bargaining between the United Kingdom and the United States, the two biggest powers in the pact, was understood to have broken a 10-week price deadlock.

An announcement by the negotiators may be made within the next 10 days, signalling that the 46 countries have agreed on terms. After that there likely will be a scramble to get the pact ratified by the Parliaments of the various countries before the current agreement ends next July 31.

The ceiling compromise represents a boost of about 25 cents a bushel from $1.80 under the current agreement, but it is far below the $2.50-a-bushel top originally requested by the U.S. and the $2.25 asked by Canada and Australia, the other major exporters.

There was no indication of an agreement regarding a floor price.

.75-Mill Cut In Tax Rate Of United Counties Members Increase Pay $2.00

COBOURG. — Northumberland and Durham Counties Council Wednesday cut the tax rate three-quarters of a mill, gave salary increases to the countries' clerk and counties' assessor and also gave themselves a raise in pay.

The new tax rate is 11¾ mills as compared with 12½ mills last year and will produce a total of $416,945.00. Total levy on townships will be $281,284; on towns, $111,286 and on villages, $24,374.

Almost the entire day was spent in committee meetings and salary increases received considerable discussion in the finance committee meeting. When the regular session finally got underway it was creeping along toward five in the afternoon and the session did not conclude until 6.30 p.m.

$10 A DAY FOR MEMBERS

The per diem allowance to counties' councillors was increased from $8 to $10 a day while attending the session and $6 to $7 a day for between-session committee meetings. Mileage remained unchanged at 15 cents one way. In raising their own pay, the council took into consideration the fact that they had to hire help on the farm while attending the session and men who worked in industry or offices were out their regular pay.

The salary of Mrs. Mae McGuire, judge's secretary was increased by $300 a year. The salary of Ken Symons, clerk-and-treasurer, was raised from $3,000 to $3,300 and that of counties' assessor Dick Hall was increased from $3,000 to $3,200. Some of the "found" money came from the fact that council makes no grants to hospitals this year.

In order to strengthen the tree-cutting by-law, which leaked like a sieve when tested in court, the by-law was amended. Hitherto a man could cut trees on his own property even although they were below the minimum size, should he wish to do so to clear land. This did not stop anybody from buying land for the wood on it and then cutting everything. Under the amendment, the owner has to have had possession for two years before he can come within the clause permitting him to cut under the minimum size. The by-law also provides that the tree inspector, before laying a charge, must get his authority to do so from the reforestation committee.

What Does Peace Really Mean?

Young Canadians who have begun to take an interest in national and world affairs since 1945 have had something of a shock during the past fortnight. They have grown up to believe that war is an evil thing, and that the great threat of war comes from Russia. But when Russia talks as though she wanted peace, what happens in the free and supposedly intelligent Western world? Scores of writers hasten to tell the public and the governments not to pay too much attention to peace overtures. The stock market takes a sudden dip. There is a great deal of alarmed talk about "recession" and even "depression". An Associated Press writer can seriously talk of "the shadowy spectre of a peaceful world". The young Canadian may well conclude that at least to some of his elders peace is even more alarming than the cold war.

* * *

If the young Canadian inquisitively searches through the family bookshelves he may find a copy of a pamphlet which appeared in this country during the war years; it was called Homo The Sap, or the Permanent War, and it advanced, very seriously, the notion that as a war meant full employment and a booming economy, a permanent war was the obvious solution to all our economic difficulties. Of course the pamphlet was meant as a joke, but the funniest thing about some jokes is the large measure of truth which they contain. It is certainly a queer world where overtures of peace are received with such mixed feelings.

* * *

Of course, we cannot be sure that the Russians mean all that they say. But if they do not, they are even cleverer than we think they are; having forced us into what is virtually a wartime economy, they have removed the threat of war, leaving us with our muscles flexed, and unwilling to relax them; that is just the sort of trick a communist state would love to play on a group of capitalist states.

* * *

Have we become so warlike in our thinking that the notion of peace is repugnant to us? Would we really rather enjoy boom times, based on war manufactures, than undergo some shrinking of our national economies? Surely we are not so stupid as that. But we need to adjust our thinking to encompass the possibility of peace. We suggest that a good beginning for such an adjustment is the reading and re-reading of a book which has just appeared, called The World and The West, by Arnold J. Toynbee, the eminent historian. Toynbee, whose grasp of history enables him to think in centuries, rather than in years or decades (or from one annual statement to the next) presents us with a sympathetic, but clear, picture of what we of the Western world look like to the Russians and the peoples of Asia and Africa. They are, in his opinion, much more afraid of us than we are afraid of them and fear is the great begetter of misunderstanding and war. They fear us not only because we are very great people technologically, but because we are fanatics, and because we believe in our superiority in every sphere. We have many great qualities, of course, but we have shown our worst qualities to the remainder of the world, and it has copied those qualities in order to meet us on our own ground. This is not the picture which we cherish of ourselves, but we must admit that there is some justice in it. And if we are afraid of peace because peace is less immediately profitable to us than preparation for war, we must admit that there is great and shameful justice in what Toynbee says. If we are to have real peace, some reform in our outlook is necessary, and it cannot begin too soon.

Natural Gas For Ontario

Natural gas from the Canadian west is to be piped east. There are three possible routes: through Canada only, into the States only, or through the States into Canada. If Canadians and especially the people of Ontario, know where their best interest lies, they will insist, as Mr. Howe has thus far insisted, that the gas be piped entirely through Canadian territory, and be tapped only in Canada.

Power—and gas represents power—is unlike other commodities. In the first place, it is primary to industry. Secondly, once exported it is lost to the country whose resource it is. Export of other goods can be stopped at will: not so power. Thus the Canadian Government has refused to allow the Aluminum Company of America to tap the hydro-power potential of the Yukon and northern B.C. for a proposed Alaska (U.S.) plant. If the gas pipe is not laid through Winnipeg and Ontario but to Minneapolis and other American cities, Canadian industry and people will be robbed of their gas. If the pipe goes through American territory—where it is likely to be tapped—and ends up in southern Ontario, Canada will have lost control of the gas.

Those who argue that Western gas should be sold in the States, or at least piped through the States on the way to Ontario, say that the producers will get more money for their gas than they would from Manitoba and Ontario consumers. They say it is uneconomic to run the pipe through Canadian territory and to provide the gas only to Canadian customers. That may be, but if Canada had done only what was "economic", there would be no Canada today. Economic values are not the criteria by which Canada has been governed and developed.

Ontario people and their Provincial Government should be especially alert to any moves to pipe the western gas east through the States. Ontario is not so rich in hydro power that it can close its eye to a sell-out of natural gas to U.S. interests. Ontario does not want to build any more million-dollar electric generating plants powered by coal furnaces. Western gas is at our door, cheaper than manufactured gas which goes into Toronto, Peterborough and Montreal gas mains. The Western gas should not be piped away from central and eastern Canada by American pressure the so-called logic of economics.

Royal Progress

The Earl Marshal has announced his plans for the Coronation ceremony. They include no fewer than nine processions to Westminster Abbey, beginning with the Lord Mayor's own cavalcade, due to arrive at 8.45 in the morning, and ending with the carriage procession of the Queen herself, expected to arrive at the Abbey shortly before eleven.

Between them come, in the following order: members of the Royal Family; royal and other representatives of foreign states; a procession in which will ride the Queen of Tonga and the Sultans of Zanzibar, Johore, Selangor, Kalantan, Perak, Brunei and Lahej; the Commonwealth Prime Ministers in nine separate carriages—we note that the Canadian P.M. takes precedence in it next to the British P.M.; his carriage will be second-last, immediately preceding the carriage of Mr. Churchill; the procession of the Speaker of the House of Commons (his is the shortest run—just across the street); the procession of the Princes and Princesses of the Blood Royal (the Duke of Windsor will not be included); the procession of Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother, who will be accompanied by Princess Margaret.

The grandest procession of all will be the Queen's cavalcade. The Earl Marshal lists it as follows:

Her Majesty will be preceded by over 1,000 Guardsmen and the King's troop, Royal Horse Artillery, behind whom will come the Chaplains, Honorary Chaplains, Honorary Physicians and Surgeons, and As.D.C. of the Armed Services, members of the staff of the Admiralty, War Office, and Air Ministry, Senior Officers of the Armed Forces of the Commonwealth, Commanders-in-Chief, Air A.D.C. and As.D.C. General, Admirals of the Fleet, Field Marshals and Marshals of the Royal Air Force, Chiefs of Staff of the United Kingdom, members of the Board of Admiralty, the Army Council and the Air Council. Then come Yeomen of the Guard, the Queen's Bargemaster and Watermen, and, behind, the band of the Royal Horse Guards (the Blues), two divisions of the Sovereign's Escort of the Household Cavalry, followed by the Deputy Commander of Coronation Troops, Major General J. A. Gascoigne, G.O.C., London District, and the Commissioner of the Police of the Metropolis, Sir Harold Scott, who will be on horseback.

Following this magnificent parade will come the Queen in the State Coach, drawn by eight Greys. The Queen will be in her Parliament Robe of crimson velvet furred with ermine, wearing a diadem on her head. With her, on her left, will sit the Duke of Edinburgh in the full-dress uniform of an Admiral of the Fleet. And behind the State Coach, riding on horseback, will come the Lord High Constable and a dozen other dukes, lords, generals, aides and equerries, and squadrons of troops.

The royal throne of Britain has not lost its traditional splendour and the glamour of magnificence. We note that even Soviet Russia—which has its own spectacles—will add a jot to the Coronation celebrations, though not in the parade to the Abbey. The U.S.S.R. is sending a ship to take part in the naval parade in that first June week.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A Texan has divorced his wife because she criticised the way in which he washed the dishes. And that is something that no really manly man will tolerate.

It appears that there are more TV sets than bathtubs in Chicago, but of course if you spend all your time watching TV you don't need a bath.

Though expensive in themselves, atom bombs are so destructive that they kill people for as low as $2.80 a head. Pooh, where's the glory in that? Let's find something really expensive, and give the taxpayers a chance to get in on a really big war effort!

Coronation Theatre

By IVOR BROWN

IT IS by no means certain that the Coronation will enrich the London Theatre financially: the experience of the previous crowning and its revels was that, on a fine summer night, the crowds were more eager to look at illuminations in the open than to gaze at stars under cover. But there is no doubt that the Industry of Entertainment is ready to put up a lavish programme in which the art of the theatre will be well displayed. There will be no theatres vacant in the West End.

✧ ✧ ✧

ON THE CLASSIC SIDE, the "Old Vic" will have its special gala night on May 6., with Tyrone Guthrie's production of "Henry the Eighth" which is to be attended by the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh Court mourning will be over by then and it is to be hoped that this royal engagement can be kept and will not be crowded out by other postponed obligations. (Alexander Knox, Canadian actor from Strathroy, Ontario, will play the part of Cardinal Wolsey in this production). It will be an exciting occasion when the audience hears, in the reigning Queen's presence, Archbishop Cranmer speak the famous benediction and prophecy of peace and plenty under a bounteous Crown. This Shakespeare makes him deliver at the mimed christening procession of the first Elizabeth, who "promises upon this land a thousand thousand blessings."

✧ ✧ ✧

AT THE END OF MAY, Robert Atkins will be praying for early night-time warmth to favour the start of the twenty-first summer season of the Open Air Theatre in Regent's Park (London). His first play will be "Twelfth Night." On the other side of London, Bernard Miles will be taking Shakespeare in the opposite direction and actually into the centre of the City. He has been allowed to set up a platform in the Royal Exchange and there will give three productions. There will be "As You Like It," "Macbeth" and "Eastward Ho!"; the last is a City play by Ben Jonson, George Chapman, and John Marston. This experiment with work of Shakespeare's rivals is the more valuable since it has been alleged that London's Coronation programme is too full of familiar things. Then John Gielgud's production of Thomas Otway's "Venice Preserved" at the Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith, with Pamela Brown and Paul Scofield, will reintroduce to the English stage a Restoration tragedy which held the stage through constant revivals during the following century, but has since been very rarely seen.

✧ ✧ ✧

CERTAINLY there is novelty only of casting the Noel Coward's promised appearance at the Haymarket in a revival of Shaw's "The Apple Cart." With him will be Margaret Leighton and Margaret Rawlings to project this still lively and relevant comedy upon the nature of kingly government and the art of ruling the foolish, unruly creature that is man.

✧ ✧ ✧

BUT, in addition to new plays now running, there will be new arrivals of distinction. It is uncertain at present, owing to Vivien Leigh's illness, whether she and Sir Laurence Olivier will be ready to appear together in Terence Rattigan's new play. It is everybody's hope that they will be able to do so. Fresh to London, after a much-discussed tour, will be Graham Greene's "The Living Room" (with Eric Portman) and Arthur Macrae's adaptation from the French of Andre Roussin "The Private Life of Helen" (with Diana Wynyard.)

✧ ✧ ✧

WHETHER or no Sir Laurence Olivier is acting, his film of "The Beggar's Opera" will be one of the chief attractions in the near future, and he has ensured foreign representation before the great week of ceremonial and rejoicing by bringing to the St. James's Theatre Ruggero Ruggeri, the famous Italian actor and his company in two plays by Pirandello, at the end of April.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE CHIEF PRODUCTION among the "musicals" will be "Guys and Dolls" at the Coliseum. Several visitors to New York, including J. B. Priestley, have told me that this fabrication, based on Damon Runyon's stories and with a most catching score, is one of the liveliest entertainments of its kind they have ever seen. So we shall look forward to this alien, while we rejoice that we shall probably have two new, intimate and native revues, "High Spirits" and "Airs on a Shoestring", both of which are now "on the road" and awaiting entry to the West End. In the music-hall there will Gracie Fields, the voice of the nation, at the Palladium, making a well-justified break in the series of American film-stars and vaudevillians who are always so popular there.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE IDEA that there is too little of new invention and too much of revival in the coronation programmes is further dispelled by the certainty of a new Benjamin Britten opera at Covent Garden. It will be called "Gloriana." The ballet there will offer a new piece of choreography by Frederick Ashton with Oliver Messel's decor and Malcolm Arnold's music; it is to be called "Homage to the Queen." It will be something of a reginal masque— if there is an adjective regal, why not reginal too?— and will bring several British queens into prominence.

✧ ✧ ✧

VISITORS to Britain will therefore have a wide variety from which to choose and, of course, outside London there will be plays and pageants of all kinds, with Stratford-Upon-Avon offering Shakespeare as usual with the highest level of production and performance. In the matter of writing they may decide that the British theatre is feeling the departure of Shaw, the long silence of Somerset Maugham, and the absence of new Priestley plays. It does seem at present that acting and the personality of actors are what chiefly govern the choice of entertainment and it is generally admitted, when British actors go on tour overseas, that the standard of production and playing is extremely high. Thus to find all the leaders at work at once in London means certainly a blaze of performance and, as I said, there will be enough new writing to prove that the British theatre is not playing for safety only by relying on the old favourites of the classic and the popular stage.

An American View: WITCHES' BREW

Einstein And The Apple

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

MATHEMATICS has come a long way since teacher used a knife on a nice red apple to show how fractions are formed. The development of electronic calculators has given those who find figures a little baffling the feeling that they can forget the whole thing and let machines do it for them.

Unfortunately, the machines still depend on human minds to feed them their stocks of equations. Only when their "memories" are completely stocked can they be called upon to solve further problems.

Of all the men who establish such primary principles, Albert Einstein is by far the most famous. His methods, however, remain a mystery to most of mankind. He seems to work in a very different manner than teacher did with the apples. In most cases, he establishes the mathematical principle first and the proofs follow after.

Sometimes it takes quite a while for the proofs to follow at all. His precise formula for the relationship of energy and matter was set down by him in 1905. The proofs were not obtainable until atomic fission became an established procedure.

This division of formula and proof is emphasized in his latest declaration of the discovery of a unified field theory which would explain, mathematically, all physical laws from the structure of the atom to the structure of the universe.

The theory, says Mr. Einstein, is mathematically correct. "But I have not been able to find out if there are any physical truths in it."

Such a statement leaves the layman wondering if he reads it right. If it were made by anyone else but Mr. Einstein, it might be considered pompous balderdash. As it was Mr. Einstein, it will be accepted on faith.

Meanwhile, a nice red apple and a sharp knife are still useful in explaining fractions.

Weird And Wonderful In Hockey

(MONTREAL STAR)

HOCKEY in the Maritimes produced some unconventional situations last year. This year it has outdone itself, winding up in a blizzard of protests and suspensions that seems to have got even the august Canadian Amateur Hockey Association talking to itself — and not listening.

The C.A.H.A. authorized Charlottetown to use a player who until late in the season played in the Quebec Senior League, Erwin Grosse. After Charlottetown, with his help, won the semi-final series from Glace Bay, the C. A. H. A. changed its mind about his eligibility. The Maritime Major Hockey League then ordered a new two-game final. Charlottetown protested, for an obvious reason. For some reason we can't recall, Sydney and Halifax protested, too. The Maritime Hockey Amateur Hockey Association upheld the protest. Tuesday Association and League officers met concurrently, and respectively declared Charlottetown winner of the semi-final and threw her out of the playoffs altogether.

Wednesday, the C.A.H.A. ordered the Maritime Association to suspend Glace Bay and Halifax, because they failed to obey the Maritime Association which, unless we are as mixed up as everyone else (which is altogether likely) had failed to obey the C.A.H.A.

Now, as the only team for one cause or another not suspended, doesn't that leave Sydney champions by default? If not, we protest, too.

LET'S LAUGH

(Saskatoon Star-Phoenix)

The sports pages, at this season, always provide us with a giggle, two giggles this year as the playoff schedule of the Western Hockey League has been published twice. With eight teams in the league, the first six have a chance at the Leader trophy. In these days of looking after our fallen brothers, would it not be a kindly gesture to give the seventh and eighth place teams a chance at the trophy? Then we could really laugh out loud.

New Barley

(Edmonton Journal)

—A notable achievement for the faculty of agriculture at the University of Alberta is the official licensing of its new "Gateway" barley.

The new variety is the product of many years of intensive work and testing in the plant science department of the faculty. The objective was to obtain a malting barley which would mature as early as the widely used Olli variety, but have a higher yield and stronger straw. The solution was finally found by crossing Olli with Newal, a feed barley developed earlier at the University. The final result, after a long series of crosses, was Gateway.

The seed will not be ready for general distribution until the Fall of 1954. but in no time it should have wide popularity.

Jamaica Soil

(Charlottetown Guardian)

The island of Jamaica expects to export some 320 million tons of red soil containing bauxite to be converted into aluminum. It is to be hoped that no such use is discovered for Prince Edward Island soil or the province would soon be under water.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy, and eat; yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price. Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? and your labour for that which satisfieth not? hearken diligently unto me, and eat ye that which is good, and let your soul delight itself in fatness.

Incline your ear, and come unto me: hear, and your soul shall live; and I will make an everlasting covenant with you, even the sure mercies of David . . . Seek ye the Lord while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near: let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon.

For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts . . .

For ye shall go out with joy, and be led forth with eace: the mountains and the hills shall break forth before you into singing, and all the trees of the field shall clap their hands. Instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree, and instead of the brier shall come up the myrtle tree: and it shall be to the Lord for a name, for an everlasting sign that shall not be cut off. (Isa. 55: 1-3, 6-9, 12, 13.)

✧ ✧ ✧

I will greatly rejoice in the Lord, my soul shall be joyful in my God; for he hath clothed me with the garments of salvation, he hath covered me with the robe of righteousness, as a bridegroom decketh himself with ornaments, and as a bride adorneth herself with her jewels. For as the earth bringeth forth her bud, and as the garden causeth the things that are sown in it to spring forth; so the Lord God will cause righteousness and praise to spring forth before all the nations. (Isa. 61: 10, 11.)

Reverend Dan

(Ottawa Journal)

There never was a better Liberal than Rev. Dan McIvor, MP, who has been honored at a testimonial dinner in his home constituency of Fort William.

"Dan" is 80 years old, he has been in Federal politics 18 years, he preaches every Sunday in a United church, whether in Fort William or in Ottawa, and with all the righteous anger of the Irish fights every day against cigarettes, liquor and all other snares of the devil.

Here is a militant Christian, ready to lift a strong fish and a stronger voice in defence of rights and customs clearly masked in his own mind. Here is the organizer of baseball games on Parliament Hill, the friend and confidant of the page boys, the front-bencher who listens with touching eagerness to the opinions of every other member. We wish him many more years of public service, no lessening of his vigor and a continued zest for battle.

A teacher who had just received her salary took the money out of the envelope and held it up for the class to see. "What is this, Teddy Jones?" she asked.

"A pay envelope that contained your wages," said Teddy.

"Any questions, children?" asked the teached.

"Yes, please, teacher," said one little boy. "Where do you work?"

Self-Help Services Releases Manpower To Canadian Industry

By BARBARA MAY

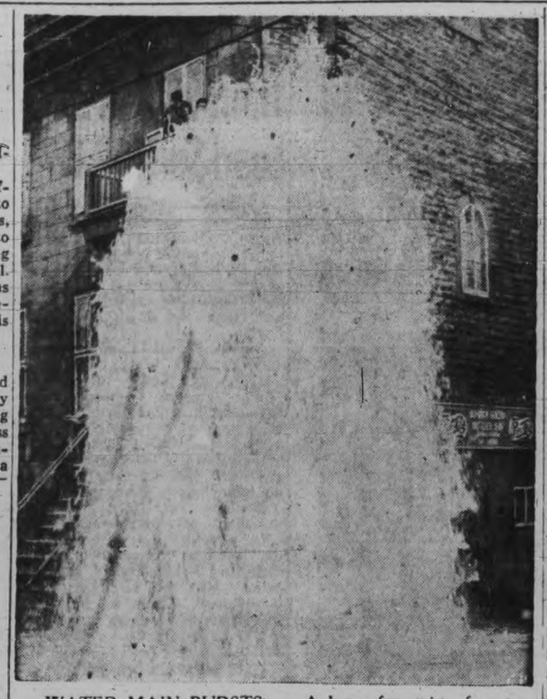
Of the 800,000 Canadians known to be suffering from arthritis and rheumatism, 15,000 are permanently confined to bed or wheel-chair. Of the number remaining, many are intermittently confined to bed and it is safe to say that at least half the sufferers require help in looking after themselves.

Already, industry in Canada loses ten million working days annually from arthritis and rheumatism. Workers concerned are out of pocket to the tune of $70,000,000 a year. This is a black enough picture in itself, but when men and women who look after these sufferers are also unavailcomes even more alarming.

In the majority of cases the sufferer resents not being able to look after his or her own needs, and the person who is forced to stay at home to do the nursing or housework is also resentful. In some instances outside help has to be secured when the wage-earner is laid up and money is hard to come by.

ADDITIONAL SERVICE

The Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society is not only making a start at rehabilitating patients from a life of idleness into jobs suitable to their particular disabilities, but has gone a step further. It has just lately developed a series of self-help devices which, in many cases, release the services of a helper and restore the morale of the patient.



Patients themselves have been responsible for the invention of some of these gadgets, for instance a set of stout metal clips on the end of two sticks with which an arthritic patient unable to bend down can pull on shirt, pants, underclothing, etc.

Patients whose backs are permanently stiffened find giant wooden tongs a tremendous help in retrieving articles otherwise hopelessly out of reach even though they may just have fallen at their feet.

Sufferers who previously could not comb their own hair or put on their shoes may now do both with the aid of long-handled combs and shoe horns.

Men and women who had to have someone feed them can now do the job themselves, using long-handled spoons, forks and knives, some of which fit into a gadget which slips over the palm of a crippled hand and has a slot into which the utensil is inserted.

Through the aid of such devices, patients become self-sufficient and through such self-sufficiency, get a tremendous boost in morale. Those persons who previously had to give up their employment to look after such patients are available again to industry.

WATER MAIN BURSTS — A huge fountain of water gushes more than 20 feet into the air following a break in a water main at a west-end Montreal intersection. The force of the break ripped up a 70-foot square of asphalt and caused considerable damage to the pavement in the vicinity. Residents of nearby houses reported almost a foot of water in their cellars.

Midgets Steal Mat Show With Terrific Display Before The Largest Crowd

The mighty midgets made their pro mat debut in Peterborough last night and their local "coming out party" was a tremendous success. They dished up terrific and often hilarious action to a packed Brock Arena, demonstrating more speed, agility and acrobatics than the big fellows of the ring by a wide margin. Timothy Geohagen and the Red Mask went to a time limit draw in the main bout, while Larry Moquin pinned Bert Ruby in the prelim. Both were real pleasing tussles, but the midgets stole the show for the big crowd. Muscular and in fine condition, they were so short that even Referee Sam Gotter towered over them in the ring.

NOT SO HEAVY

Major Tom Thumb at 98 pounds was the heaviest of the midgets, and he teamed up with Mighty Schultz, weighing a pound less, against Prince Salie Helassie, 97, and the 95-pound Little Beaver. The latter was the most agile and most popular, while Salie had the hardest head for bonking purposes, and Schultz was the strongest. It was a tossup between him and Thumb for which one was the biggest (or smallest) villain of the four.

Schultz downed Little Beaver in 14 minutes for the first fall with slams after giving the speedy little Indian the business. They teamed up better in the corner and roughed the Prince and Beaver in turn Salie evened it in 13 minutes with a crotch hold and slam as he caught Schultz coming off the ropes in a tackle. The referee took quite a beating in this round, and Helassie used his noggin to advantage. He and Little Beaver had a neat crack-the-whip routine to daze their rivals. Little Beaver dumped Thumb in six minutes for the deciding fall with drop kicks on the Major and also on Schultz, who tried to interfere. For good measure he drop-kicked the ref also, and then was acclaimed the winner as the big crowd roared approval.

TOOK OPENER

The 251-pound Red Mask won the opener of the main bout in 27 minutes over Tim Geohagen, the Irish strong man, scaling 226. Mask made Tim concede with a punishing leglock after roughing it on the ropes repeatedly. He started the bout in clean fashion but finally reverted to form to use chokes, ropes, fists and feet. The powerful Irisher got in a few good licks, too.

Tim squared it shortly with his "Irish sleeper," the unconscious neckhold, which the Mask protested was a choke grip. Before that, the hooded horror had choked Tim plenty and worked on his game leg. After the fall, Geohagen gladly demonstrated his pet hold on several willing fans, but the Red Mask still argued that it was a choke.

THE BELL SOUNDED

Time ran out on Tim for the third fall as he had his rough opponent groggy with that grip again, but the Mask kept hanging onto the ropes to beat the fall, and Gotter kept pulling Tim off and waving him back. Each in turn had been tossed out of the ring before that, and the Mask used a piece of paper to rasp the Irishman's eyes, but Tim finished much stronger. He also tackled the red one after the bell just to show how he felt about him, while the fans applauded.

Moquin, at 220, was just five pounds heavier than Ruby, and the pair dished up a sizzling prelim which went 22 minutes before Moquin got Ruby with a standing reverse nelson. They played it cleanly but showed plenty of speed, action and ring stuff to keep the crowd yelling. There were no dull moments as aerial attacks were interspersed with smart grips on and off the floor. The action was terrific toward the end.

List Probable Open Day League Pitchers

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Despite a large number of rookie hurlers on the major league squads, opening day of the 1953 baseball season will feature all seasoned pitchers at the starting roles.

Eager to get off on the right foot, the 16 big league pilots will place their reliance on their biggest 1952 winners, in most cases of the 23 starters (including the Milwaukee-Cincinnati and Washington-New York early openers) who figure to inaugurate the '53 season, 10 are repeaters from last year.

These are the probable opening day pitchers (with their 1952 records in parentheses):

April 13

National League

Milwaukee at Cincinnati—Spahn (14-19) vs Raffensberger (17-13)

(Only game scheduled.)

American League

New York at Washington—Reynolds (20-8) vs Porterfield (13-14)

(Only game scheduled.)

April 14

National League

St. Louis at Milwaukee—Staley (12-14) vs Wilson (12-14) or Surkont

Pittsburgh at Brooklyn—Dickson (14-21) vs Erskine (14-6)

New York at Philadelphia—Jansen (11-11) vs Roberts (28-7)

Cincinnati at Chicago—Wehmeier (9-11) vs Rush (17-13)

American League

Philadelphia at New York—Shantz (24-7) vs Raschi (16-6)

Washington at Boston—Marrero (14-8) vs Parnell (12-12)

Detroit at St. Louis (night)—Garver (8-10) vs Pillette (10-13)

Chicago at Cleveland — Pierce (15-12) vs Lemon (22-11)

Not all of these pitchers are guaranteed starters since only about half the managers have made their choices public. Others are waiting to see how their pitchers fare in the final week-end of exhibitions before they make their decisions.

Barrie Flyers Beat St. Mikes

TORONTO (CP)—John Martan clammed home the tie-breaking goal Wednesday night to give Barrie Flyers a 5-4 victory over Toronto St. Michael's in the sixth game of their Eastern Canada Memorial Cup playoffs. The best-of-nine series is tied 3-3.

St. Michael's stormed around the Barrie net near the end of the game but the Flyers' defence could not be penetrated.

Flyers went ahead after six minutes of play in the first when Skip Teal deflected Fred Pletsch's shot from behind the net. Murray Costello tied it less than a minute later with a screened shot that impressed goalender Marv Edwards did not see. Edwards was obtained at the last minute by the Barrie club, whose regular netminder, Bill Harrington, was injured in the last game. Edwards played for St. Catharines Teepees during the first part of the past season.

GIVEN EDGE

Don McKenney clicked seven minutes before the end of the period to give the Flyers a 2-1 edge going into the second. The middle period was only 17 seconds old when Bill Lee knotted the count for the Collegians. Costello notched his second of the night to give the Irish a 3-2 edge. Jim Robertson put the Flyers on even terms four seconds before the end of the second.

Little Tony Poeta went around defenceman Marc Reaume and had a clear shot on Chadwick for the fourth Barrie goal after six minutes of the third. But again the Collegians came back, Ed Plata deadlocking the score with a long shot from the left. Martan fired the winner with only four minutes remaining in the game. St. Michael's had many close chances after that but they couldn't get by the strong defence of the Flyers.

The seventh game of the series is slated for Barrie Friday with the eighth here Saturday.

National League Revises Schedule

CINCINNATI (AP)—The National League Wednesday completed the job of revising its 1953 schedule—a job made necessary by the moving of the Boston franchise to Milwaukee.

In the main, the changes involved giving Pittsburgh, now in the loop's eastern division, the schedule originally arranged for Boston and giving Milwaukee the original Pittsburgh program.

As a result, Cincinnati will open its home season against Milwaukee instead of Pittsburgh next Monday. All other season openers will be played April 14 with Pittsburgh at Brooklyn, New York at Philadelphia, St. Louis at Milwaukee and Cincinnati at Chicago.

Milwaukee will wind up the season in Cincinnati instead of at home.

Milwaukee will play at Cincinnati Sept. 26 and 27.

To compensate for loss of those two home dates, the Sept. 19 and 20 Milwaukee at Cincinnati dates were transferred to Milwaukee.

Milwaukee Goes Wild As Braves Come To Town

MILWAUKEE (AP)—This town went baseball nuts Wednesday as the Milwaukee Braves came home for the first time.

An estimated 60,000 persons, some of them in Indian headdresses and most of them screaming, lined a five-mile parade route through the downtown district to welcome the National League team which until 21 days ago belonged to Boston. The roaring reception was one none of the players ever will forget.

"This is the greatest thing I ever saw," beamed manager Charley Grimm, peering from a parlor car window as the Braves' train pulled in from Chicago

The trainshed was jammed with several thousand persons, including two brass bands. A battalion of models in tight white sweaters with Indian bonnets atop their curls lined both sides of a long red carpet which stretched from the tracks through the trainshed and depot out into the street.

10,000 YELLING FANS

Outside the depot, packed into the street and overflowing a block-square park, were an estimated 10,000 fans all yelling at the tops of their voices. The noise hit a crescendo whenever a recognized player appeared.

The players, each escorted by a pretty model, climbed into convertibles and the parade started Early on the route, before the long line of cars reached "Braves Drive," the newly-renamed main downtown street, a truckload of real Indians and a cavalcade of horsemen wearing Indian garb pulled into the caravan.

Slashes Throat Lombardi Likely To Die

OAKLAND, Calif (AP) — Ernie Lombardi, former major league catcher who twice won the National League batting championship was found with his throat slashed from ear to ear Wednesday night.

His wife, Bernice, and police said Lombardi resisted their first attempt to take him to a hospital, yelling "let me die!"

Hospital authorities said they did not expect the 45-year-old Lombardi to live.

Mrs. Lombardi said her husabnd had been despondent the last week and had threatened to take his life. They had been visiting a friend's home and Mrs. Lombardi said she found Ernie in a bedroom. His throat was slashed and a razor blade was on the floor.

COLORFUL CAREER

Lombardi operated a liquor store in nearby San Leandro since retiring from baseball in 1948. In his last active year, he played for Oakland Oaks, helping them win their first Pacific Coast League championship in 20 years.

A six-foot-two power hitter, he played for Cincinnati Reds, Boston Braves and New York Giants during a long and colorful major league career.

He won the National League batting crown in 1942 while playing with the Braves, clubbing out a .331 average in 105 games.

In 1938, when he was with the Reds, Lombardi was voted the National League's most valuable player. He also won the NHL batting title that year with .342.

He equalled two major league records with his hitting. On May 9, 1937, he made six hits in six consecutive times at bat and on May 8, 1935, he got four doubles in one game.

His over-all major league batting average was .307.

SELKE BLASTS CAHA

MONTREAL (CP)—Frank Selke, managing-director of Montreal Forum, sharply criticized the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association Wednesday night for its action in suspending the Quebec branch and indicated there will be a new set-up in junior hockey in this province next year.

Addressing a banquet in honor of the Montreal Canadien juniors, Selke said he regretted "the unfortunate incident which bars you boys from competing in the Memorial Cup series" and promised them "we will have a nice league for you next year."

At the same time Selke congratulated the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association for its stand in opposing the CAHA in the recent dispute over player Ron Attwell.

"As long as you keep fighting," said Selke to the QAHA officers present, "you will have the Forum in your corner—without telling you how to fight either."

"The CAHA has grown into a frankenstein because too much authority has been delegated to one man," said Selke, without naming anyone.

"I congratulate the QAHA for having the guts to stand up to this frankenstein of amateur sport because the QAHA did what it thought was right."

The QAHA and all its leagues and clubs were suspended because it "defied" the CAHA by issuing a playing certificate to Attwell.

HOSS PLAYER—Salvatore Ambrozio didn't get that hole in his shoe trudging to the cashier's window at Jamaica. Precession, Hedley Woodhouse up, is the winner here. Our John Wm., Tony Falco aboard, was second.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

With the ice going out of Civic Arena this week—though teams like Kingston, Belleville, Lindsay and Campbellford are still playing hockey— one sees the value of artifical ice in a town. When you recall local teams going as far as provincial finals in just 14 OHA games, you can see the difference natural ice makes. The Petes didn't even make group playoffs this past winter, yet they played 30 OHA games and some exhibitions, as well. And, of course, kids teams here for the past several years have had far more time on artifical ice at Civic than ever had at the Brock or on outdoor cushions. The season is now at least five months long, double what it used to be.

* * * * * *

Hence, it is not so surprising that Peterborough's young puckists are starting to go places, and that pro scouts are after a few of the boys from here. Which leads one to the thought that 'tis better to have these NHL tryout schools in the spring when the players are in the pink of condition than in the fall when thy've been off skates for months. Another thought occurs to us, and that is that present players must be better than the oldtimers as they have much longer seasons and more time on the ice, even if there are more players on a team and frequent changes are made during today's speedy struggles. NHL schedule now has 70 games. The 1953 model should be better than the 1920 one, and it is.

One Game For The Cup

Stanley Cup finals open tonight in Montreal, and we like the Bruins' chances. Come to think of it, here's another reason why present players see more action. Playoffs are frequently best-of-seven, as in the cup series betwixt Canadiens and Bruins. Down in Quebec, the seniors stage a best-of-nine set, no less! When the Stanley Cup was first put up in the 90s, the playoffs were sudden-death affairs. Yes, just one game. For many years after the turn of the century, the playoffs were home-and-home (or just two) games. Why, nowadays, even the semi-finals are best four out of seven melees. No wonder the pros need all summer to rest up for the next long, gruelling campaign, eh?

Comes to hand a lengthy list of pro wrestling names to prove that a real record is kept of world's heavyweight champs. Most folks scoff at the claims of this or that so-called world's champ, since too many grapplers calmly lay claim to the title when they have no right to do so. But the National Wrestling Association does keep a list of the recognized champions dating from 1905 without interruption to the present life. From the days of Frank Gotch, down through Steecher, Lewis, Zbyszko, Munn, Sonnenburg, Don George, DeGlane, Shikat, London, Casey, Robert, Longson, Watson, and so forth to the present champ, Lou Thesz. We've omitted many names of those years, but they're all included in the championship list.

Midget Matmen Popular

Best mat crowd of the season at the Brock last eve saw an uproarious tag team bout featuring four midget grapplers. They were really something. Darted in and out of the ring and over the ropes in furious fashion and had more tricks of the trade than the big guys. They kept the crowd in an uproar throughout, with Little Beaver most popular. He and his dark mate, Saile Helassie, won two falls o'er Tom Thumb and tough Schultz, and they also won a few over Ref Sam Gotter. No fooling, we'd like to see those mighty mites again, but they aren't available for a time up this way. Tim Geohagen and Red Mask drew in the main bout, while Larry Moquin pinned Bert Ruby in a lively prelim.

Reluctant to give up the senior ball ship here, a bunch of fellows at a "Y" meeting last night postponed disbanding for another week. Meantime, Cy Whatley will contact Prexy Roy Dodge of the Lakeshore League to see if there's a chance of the Petes being included for the schedule, taking a bye later into OBA senior playdowns. If that happened we'd have two local clubs in the loop, as the juniors have entered already. If the Petes aren't accepted, they'll have to suspend operations for the year since they have no other league in which to play, and carrying on only exhibitions is a losing proposition. They also feel they should be able to use good players here of junior age, if the boys want to step up. But more again on it when word is received from the Lakeshore League.

Quebec Whips Timmins 8-1, Lead Series 2-0

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec Citadelles, the team which waltzed into the Memorial Cup playoffs by walking out of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association, today appeared a sure-fire bet to eliminate Timmins-Porcupine Combines and enter the Eastern Canada final.

Paced by little Camille Henri with four goals—bringing his junior hockey points total to 303 in three years—Citadelles Wednesday night defeated the Northern Ontario champions 8-1 to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-five Eastern Canada semi-final. Henri now has 116 goals and 137 assists as he ends his junior career this year

Citadelles outclassed Combines throughout most of the game

The Quebec team, suspended by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association last month along with the entire QAHA, was reinstated when it withdrew its support from the Quebec body in a dispute involving a playing certificate for Ron Attwell of Montreal Junior Canadiens.

RUN UP SCORE

The hard-fighting Combines, sparked by Art Mousley's able goaltending, held the Cits to only one goal in the first period Quebec ran up the score to 6-0 in the second period before Paul Piche connected for Combines.

Jean-Jacques Pichette sent Quebec into the lead in the first period on a breakaway while Citadelles were a man short. Gaby Alain and Bertrand Lepage scored within 36 seconds early in the second period to make the score 3-0.

At 6:40 Henri blasted a slap-shot for his first goal and seven seconds later, right off the centre ice face-off, he came in alone to score on Mousley. He got another at 14:47.

Henri and line-mate Aggie Kukulowicz completed the scoring spree with two minutes of each other early in the last stanza

Frick Predicts Third League Within 10 Years

NEW YORK (AP)— —Commissioner Ford Frick today predicted formation of a third major league within 10 years but warned that baseball must "decide something" about television soon.

"Very definitely there will be another major league, maybe two, in 10 years," he said in an interview. "We must have more towns represented in the major leagues."

Frick tempered his enthusiasm for the future with his warning about the TV problem, particularly network television into minor league territory.

"I think the time has come for us to make up our minds about television," he said. "If making up our minds means making an agreement, maybe we'd better do it by agreement and find out where we stand."

INVOLVED IN SUIT

The majors dropped agreements on league control of radio and TV a couple of years ago when advised such rules might be in violation of federal anti-trust laws. Professional football, which controls TV rights on a league basis, is involved in a federal suit.

Frick directed his warning against any network telecasts of big league games into minor league cities.

"I don't think television hurts the individual major league club," Frick said. "If it does, that is a matter for the club to decide. But there is no question in my mind that network television that would take major league games into minor league territory would be bad. It would be extremely harmful to the minors. Without the minors, the majors could not operate."

OFFER 2-YEAR CONTRACT

KINGSTON (CP)—Frank Tindall, who recently resigned as head football coach at Queen's University, has been offered a two-year contract. If Tindall accepts it will make him the record-holder of that office in the modern history of Queen's. Ted Reeve, who coached from 1933 to 1938, and Tindall who was coach in 1939 and from 1948 to 1952, jointly hold the record. There was no intercollegiate play during the war.

Kawartha Club Planning Biggest Golf Tourney For Amateurs In Canada

Plans are going ahead to organize the biggest amateur golf tournament in Canada this summer at the Kawartha Golf Club. Tournament chairman Lionel Browne met recently with his various committees and outlined the program for the forthcoming Kawartha Lakes Amateur Tourney, one which is growing in popularity every year with top golfers of the province and outside. The open competition is slated for August 1-2-3 (the Civic holiday weekend) and will consist of 54 holes. The meet features no less than $2,500 in prizes, an increase of $500 over last year.

The impressive prize list is the most extensive in Canada and few other tournaments in the country come anywhere near equalling the splendid array of awards put up. The list includes the Lord Calvert Cup, the Calvert team competition trophy, the Dawn Patrol Trophy and the Sunset Serenade Trophy.

MANY PRIZES

Apart from the trophies, competed for annually, other prizes are offered, including many daily ones during the tourney. And there will be gross and net awards valued at hundreds of dollars.

Entries this year will be limited to 250 names, the entry fee being $10 and the closing date for entries set at July 25.

Various forms of entertainment are planned by the entertainment committee, including a cocktail party and dance on Saturday, Aug. 1.

Mr. Browne will have entry forms mailed shortly to every golf club in Ontario, and a special invitation is being extended to Quebec's top-ranking amateur golfers.

THE COMMITTEES

Committees set up for the big show are: Management—Gordon White, Frank Buckland, Bill Moffat, Arnold Sanderson and Lionel Browne; prizes—White, Buckland and Tracy Shaw; entries—Steve Csumrik, Fred Welford, Dick Ouimet and Don Meredith; rules—Lex Robson, Buckland and Sanderson; publicity—Russ Baer, Bud LaBranche, Cec. Perdue and Shaw; course—Robert MacMorran, Robson, Buckland and Welford; locker room and caddies—Alex MacGregor, Meredith, Sanderson and Harley Weir; entertainment—John McIntyre, Ouimet, Weir and Shaw; draw — Browne, White, Sanderson, Weir, Buckland, MacGregor, Csumrik, Welford and Baer; starters—Robson, Weir, Sanderson, Baer and Browne.

Chicago Clips St. Louis By 7-6

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

Chicago Cubs have won the National League's section of the Grapefruit circuit for the last three years. They're in a position to do it again.

When the Cubs scored their third straight one-run victory over St. Louis Browns wednesday they boosted their over-all spring record to 18-13. Only Brooklyn Dodgers with 18-11 and Pittsburgh Pirates with 10-6 top the Cubs.

The Cubs beat the Browns 7-6 with the deciding runs coming on a homer by Bob Addis. They have four spring games left.

The injury jinx which has struck the major league clubs in the closing weeks of the training season hit New York Giants again Wednesday and benched their No. 1 rookie, third baseman Daryl Spencer, for at least two weeks.

HIT IN FACE

Spencer was hit in the face with a fast ball thrown by Cleveland pitcher Mike Garcia at Nashville, Tenn., and suffered a minor fracture to his left cheek bone.

The Giants whipped the Indians 11-10 despite a four-run Cleveland rally in the ninth.

Playing before his homefolks at Richmond, Va., Granny Hamner of Philadelphia Phils supplied all the runs as the Phils edged Boston Red Sox 2-1. Hamner homered in the second and the fifth innings.

Brooklyn was blanked for the second time this spring as Bob Porterfield of Washington Senators gave up only four hits in a night game at Washington. The Senators pounded four Dodger hurlers for 11 hits to win 7-0.

Tri-Bells Win Championship; Will Meet West

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Nortown Tri-Bells will meet the Western Canada senior basketball champions in the finals for the Canadian title.

Taking the lead in the first minute Wednesday night, the Tri-Bells won the Eastern Canada championship by defeating Ottawa Brookes 85-58 to take their best-of-three series in two straight games. Toronto won the first game Tuesday night 76-70.

The Tri-Bells will meet either Vancouver Cloverleafs or the University of Alberta Golden Bears in the best-of-five final series in either Vancouver or Edmonton. Vancouver leads the best-of-five series 2-1.

Last year's titleholder, Tillsonburg Livingstons, was eliminated by the Toronto team in the Southern Ontario playdowns.

TAKE LEAD

Ray Thomas gave the Tri-Bells the lead Wednesday night within a minute after the opening of play. The Toronto crew led 21-13 at the first quarter, 45-31 at the half and had a 65-41 margin at the three-quarter mark.

Glen Pettinger, captain of the Bells, counted 32 points.

Top scorer for the Brookes was Tommy Holmes, six-foot four-inch centre, who notched 17 points.

Rule Houghton Still Ineligible

MIDLAND (CP)—George Dudley, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, announced Wednesday that defenceman Mid Houghton is ineligible as a replacement for the injury-riddled Lethbridge Native Sons.

The announcement came as the result of a CAHA vote received by mail.

The dispute over Houghton began when Lethbridge found itself in the Western Canada junior semi-finals with three regular defencemen out with injuries. It got permission from the CAHA to sign player.

The Sons' opponents, Flin Flon Bombers, claiming that Houghton was the best junior defenceman in the west, protested. They were joined by St. Boniface Canadiens and Fort William Canadiens, engaged in the other bracket of the semi-finals. Both clubs said they would not meet the Sons if Houghton was in the line-up.

The CAHA held a vote and declared him ineligible and the Native Sons, without Houghton, downed Flin Flon. However, the Sons again sought permission of the CAHA to use the all-star western defenceman, bringing on the vote announced Wednesday.

Boston, Montreal Open Fight For Stanley Cup, Predict Very Long Series

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP)—Boston Bruins and Montreal Canadiens take up again tonight the struggle they waged a year ago, only this time it's for the big prize. Last year the teams wore themselves out in the Stanley Cup semi-final in seven games. Canadiens won out but lost four straight to Detroit Red Wings for the cup. This year Bruins and Canadiens are in the final. The Bruins got there by upsetting Detroit in six games; Canadiens took seven to eliminate Chicago Black Hawks.

The last time either team was in the final was seven years ago. It was Bruins against Canadiens then and the Montrealers won in five games. The Bruins haven't won the cup since 1941.

SEES LONG SERIES

Coach Lynn Patrick and his Bruins arrived Wednesday night. Patrick says he looks for "a long series—too long."

The Bruins have been resting since eliminating Detroit last Sunday. The Boston Garden wasn't availabe for practice. Asked whether he thought the layoff would affect his team, Patrick merely shrugged.

Patrick said he will use the same players he had in Sunday's game. Seated beside the Bruins' general manager, Art Ross, Patrick was asked if he would assign a special player to check Maurice (Rocket), Richard.

Ross commented: "Let's see, we dress 16 and the goalie. Well, we'll assign 16 men to Richard."

It was Richard who put the finishing touches on the Bruins in last year's semi-final, scoring the deciding goal in the deciding game.

Patrick wasn't too concerned about the rookies who have given Canadiens new power. He said he has never seen goalie Jacques Plante in action "but we hear he wanders everywhere outside the net."

CONFUSES EVERYBODY

"I know that when Plante went to Buffalo he confused everybody for about four games. Now he's back with Canadiens—and he has used up two of those four games."

Coach Dick Irvin of Canadiens will also go along with the same line-up that beat Chicago in the last two games. Plenty of attention will be paid to Eddie (Spider) Mazur, Winnipeg-born rookie from Victoria Cougars of the Western Hockey League who ruined Chicago with two goals in Canadiens' 4-1 victory Tuesday night.

Irvin knows the Bruins will be hard to get past because of the record in the regular season. Canadiens could take only three games in 14; the Bruins won nine, and two were tied.

Irvin figures most of his trouble will be against the Bruins' centre men and goaltender Jim Henry. Veteran Milt Schmidt and Fleming Mackell, a 20-goal man, head the centres.

Smiths Falls Upsets Dutchmen, 6-2 Win

OTTAWA (CP)—Smiths Falls Rideaus moved out of their under-dog role Wednesday night with a 6-2 victory over Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen to take the opening game in the Eastern Canada senior hockey finals.

However, they don't expect to have such an easy time in the rest of the best-of-seven Allan Cup playoff series which resumes here tomorrow night.

"It's going to be a tough series yet," said Rideau coach Hal Dewey after the game.

He said he was afraid his team would be stale after its two-week layoff following the semi-final series with Saint John Beavers, won in four straight games.

Instead the Dutchmen showed the effects of their rugged series against Sudbury which ended, after seven games, only three days ago. The Kitchener club lost some of its starch after Smiths Falls overcame a one-goal lead in the second period, and they fell apart in the final frame when Rideaus scored three times.

SCORES TWO GOALS

Gordie Scott scored two of the Rideau goals, with the rest earned by Don Thomson, Connie Tudin, Ed Mulligan and Stu Smith. Paul Oliver and Maurice Levesque got the Dutchies' goals in the first and second period.

Coach Dewey praised his defence players, who kept a close check on the Ontario Hockey Association champions. But the Dutchmen played well too in the tight spots, and allowed no serious scoring threats when they were short-handed through penalties.

TEMPERS FLARE

Tempers flared in the last period when Orval Gravelle of Smiths Falls and Al Buchanan were given majors for fighting. In addition, the Dutchmen got six of the nine minor penalties.

Both clubs came through with no serious injuries. Greg Hicks left the ice in the second period with a cut on his mouth from a hard body-check, but returned to action before the period ended.

Thomson's opening goal for Smiths Falls was a lucky shot, bouncing into the net from an opposing defenceman. Hicks and Art Hurst teamed with Oliver for his goal that tied the game, and Doug Verity and Bobby Schnurr fed the passes to Levesque that put Kitchener ahead briefly.

RIDEAUS' GAME

After that it was Rideaus' game. Tudin's goal tied the score and Smiths Falls went ahead when Scott scored behind the back of Kitchener goalie Keith Woodall, who was drawn far out of his net. Third-period goals by Mulligan, Smith and Scott made it certain.

If Kitchener wins tomorrow night's game, the third in the series will be played here Monday. Otherwise the rest of the games will be at Kitchener.

Pray Lord To Thwart Building Of Track

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Baptists at simultaneous revivals in 70 churches here Wednesday night prayed for the Lord to thwart a proposal to build a horse race track in east Arkansas.

The campaign of prayer was aimed at the St. Francis Valley Turf Association's efforts to establish a track near Forrest City, about 45 miles west of here.

Religious leaders adopted a resolution calling for "a determined and Christian battle to win" the special track election April 21.

Jockey Richards Sets More World Marks

LEICESTER, England (AP)—A sallowfaced little man, crouching so low in the saddle that his knees were almost level with his mouth, flashed past the finish line on two more winners Wednesday and set two more world's records for winning jockeys.

Gordon Richards rode his first winner at Leicester 32 years ago. His latest victories were his 4,633rd and 4,634th.

Every time Richards rides a winner, it's a world mark.

It was at Leicester that he passed Fred Archer's mark of 2,749 winners to break a world record.

All Saints' Comedy Provides Full Evening Of Laughter

All Saints' Dramatic Club had the audience rollicking on the edges of their seats every time Adrian was forced to sit down a minute and by final curtain when Adrian's wife in her turn had to sit down a minute, laughter was infectious and the applause prolonged.

The play is a modern English domestic comedy, "Sit Down A Minute, Adrian," by Jevan Brandon-Thomas. Adrian is the father of the well-to-do household, but not quite its master. He seemed more successful as an architect than as a father to his three grown-up daughters. He was continually putting his foot in his mouth and in the domestic apple-cart. Therein lies the comedy on which this blithe play turns, and everybody has to tell the bemused Adrian to sit down while matters are untangled for him.

BEMUSED FATHER

Douglas Weir was Adrian, looking the part and acting it with force and a good feeling for the stage. Edith Abraham, as his wife, played sympathetically, giving the part a deliberateness which made it firm. The three daughters were Barbara Outram, gayly light and free as a teenager; Marilyn Galbraith, who played with great charm and winsomeness; and Florence Townsend competently playing the role of eldest daughter who eloped.

Arthur Dixon was Adrian's secretary, looked romantically well and used his voice easily. Frank Booth played the part of class-conscious suitor to the second daughter and made love as if he were in the Albert Hall. His acting gave the stage bounce, his accent was wonderful; he has a very good sense of comedy. Kelvin Johnson played his namesake Abel Johnson and looked the part.

Eleanor Carroll acted the visiting neighbor with poise and clarity; the role of her husband was taken by Don Ketchabaw, who looked urbane and handled his lines effectively. The part of the housekeeper was inconspicuously taken by Grace Webb.

GOOD PACE

The acting and well-contrived moments in the production showed careful thought and attention to details of grouping, gesture and climaxes. There was a good use of varying stage levels. The first act was a little uneven in timing and the entrances and cues dropped the audience now and then, but the second and third acts warmed and went with gusto and good pace.

The set was pleasing to the eye and well-contrived for the physical limitations of the stage. It looked like a pleasant room in a comfortable bourgeois home. It deserved applause.

Eleanor Carroll was stage manager and William A. Brown produced the play. It is being repeated tonight and Friday in All Saints' Parish Hall. Happy, pleasant entertainment.—T.J.A.

NELSON, B. C. (CP)—The marvellous Doukhobor dish borscht is treat enough for me. It just doesn't need the added fillip of a radical Sons of Freedom strip tease or the accompaniment of a naked choir.

It happened at Shoreacres during an Easter Day religious ceremony.

It was all supposed to be very symbolic, so we were told. But between trying to get a full taste of that good rich soup and maintain a nonchalant air in mixed company with 15 clothesless chanters standing by, the symbolism somehow escaped me.

The religious ceremony ended in a small riot when Doukhobor men and women, boys and girls stripped, and burned their clothes on a huge bonfire.

INVITED TO DINNER

And then, I and a small group of other non-Doukhobors were invited to share the dinner table.

The meal, tendered in typical hospitable style of the Sons to cap one of their ceremonial days, had hardly begun when a door opened and in stepped 15 young people, naked from head to toe. They just stood there and sang.

After five minutes of this—and a smile gets weaker by the second under such conditions—I sought an explanation, and host Fred Makortoff informed me that the young people, mostly from Gilpin and Grand Forks, 100 miles west, were declaring their innocence and purity. They had nothing to hide; they had burned their tempting nylons and silks, "they are a luxury." They were bought because the owners "were tempted."

NOT TO BLAME

Finally they implored us not to lay the blame of recent blastings and burnings on the Reformed Sons of Freedom. Several times, Andy Makortoff repeated one of the commandments "Thou shalt not kill" implying that non-Doukhobors broke this by fighting in wars.

The nylon and silk burning had come earlier. The occasion had been intended for the declaration by the Reformed Sons of Freedom—a large group who assert they are attempting to live good lives without violence and without causing concern to their Canadian neighbors—of the acceptance of Stefan S. Sorokin as "astrebow" or the third leader. Peter Verigin I and Peter Verigin II were earlier leaders, both now dead.

A nude grandmother-type pulled down one of the banners announcing Sorokin as leader and others joined her in a tussle with the clothed reformed group.

Later the nudes explained their action was not a protest against Sorokin but against the banners—idols, they called them.

Chinese Report Jet Ace Captured

TOKYO (AP) — Red China's Peiping radio said today that double jet ace Harold Fischer was shot down and captured in Manchuria Tuesday.

Fischer shot down 10 MiG jets in 66 missions.

The radio quoted a dispatch from Mukden, Manchuria, near the Yalu river saying Fischer bailed out of his Sabre jet.

Peiping said Fischer's plane was intercepted by anti-aircraft units and the "people's Air Force."

Man Trapped In Auto When Overturns

BANCROFT (ENS)—One late model car was completely wrecked and another suffered damage to the extent of around $300 in an accident which occurred about midnight Easter Monday three miles west of here on Highway 28.

A car going west driven by Lloyd Knapp, 23, employed by the Malvern Construction Co., was in collision with one proceeding in the opposite direction and driven by Jack Cox, of Bancroft.

After the collision, the Knapp vehicle apparently went out of control, left the road and rolled over, coming to rest on its roof.

Knapp was trapped in the wrecked car and was helped out by passing motorists. He suffered facial injuries and was taken to Bancroft where he was treated by by Dr. S. S. Lumb.

Bancroft OPP detachment investigated and Knapp was charged with careless driving.

Car Strikes Tree, Two Men Injured

LONDON, Ont., (CP) — Two London men were injured—one critically—when their car failed to negotiate a curve on No. 2 highway two miles west of Lambeth early today.

Clarence Larson, 26, suffered head injury. He was unconscious when brought to Victoria hospital and attendants termed his condition as "serious."

The second man, Ken Lucas, 26, has possible fractures of right shoulder and left wrist.

Police said the car driven east by Larson went off the north side of the road, hit a tree and turned on its right side.

Impact jarred Larson onto Lucas who was in danger of suffocation when passers-by including Clarence Sawyer of Windsor righted the car.

Safety Expert Urges Workers To Use Courtesy

There would be fewer accidents if people would live by the Golden Rule and practise courtesy.

This was the gist of an address by Gordon Anderson, general tario division of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, at an Industrial Safety Rally in the auditorium of St. Peter's School Wednesday night. The rally was sponsored by the Peterborough-Lindsay section of the Central Ontario division of the Industian Accident Prevention Association.

Mr. Anderson presented a "Wise Owl" award to William Steenburgh. The Wise Owl Club is sponsored by the Society for the Prevention of Blindness in New York and by the IAPA in Canada. It has more than 4,000 members and is sustained by more than 63 companies in Ontario where there are 392 members.

Mr. Steenburgh operates a melt-down furnace for zinc in the die-casting department of the Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co. Ltd. When he put a ladel in the molten metal, a minor explosion occurred, spraying molten zinc over a wide area. He was severely burned about the face, neck, arms and chest. Had he not been wearing goggles, he would have lost his sight as the molten metal adhered to the lenses.

ESCAPED SERIOUS INJURY

Another recipient of the award who was unable to be present was William Corrigan, who was operating a polishing machine for the same company when the wheel broke loose without warning and shattered the left lens of his safety glasses, which protected him from serious injury.

"We have a lot of trouble getting people to wear safety goggles," Mr. Anderson said. "They are uncomfortable, hot and steamy but these are minor inconveniences compared to being blind."

The speaker said that industrial accidents were fewer than those on the highway or in the home and those in manufacturing plants were fewer than in other industries.

The direct cost of accidents in Ontario last year was more than $75 million, he said, and we pay that cost in everything we buy.

The reason we have accidents, he said, is that people are always in a hurry. Safety measures take time but so does everything else. Taking safety measures can become a habit, he said.

This was also the theme of an address by Gordon Stephens of Lindsay, who insisted that people should be taught to perform their duties in the right way in order that the habit of safety may become a fixed attitude.

"Safety must be built into our thinking," he said. "Cultivate safety in all your habits and then you will have the habit of safety in everything you do."

SAFETY MEETING

A brief sketch demonstrating a typical meeting of a plant safety committee meeting was presented by a group of CGE employees. They were Dudley Freeman, Dave Fowler, Ronald Walsh, Walter Mason, James Dutton and Frank Hinton. The script was by Tom Lester.

An outstanding item on the program was a demonstration of the Holger-Neilson method of artificial respiration which is widely used in Europe and is held to be superior to other techniques. In place of straddling the back of the distressed person, the rescuer kneels at his head, alternately applying pressure to the back and lifting the arms of the patient. Members of the city fire department also demonstrated use of the resuscitator.

Music was supplied by the PCVS band under the direction of Arthur Croasdale, and a double trio from the PCVS choral club, consisting of Betty McDonald, Anne Grant, Barbara Woodcock, Elaine Graint, Mary Lou Waterman and Catherine Waterman, accompanied at the piano by Donalda Powers. Adam Hawley was soloist for the evening with piano accompaniment by Harry Northrop.

Program chairman was Clarence Corbett who spoke with pride of the work done by the Peterborough-Lindsay section of IAPA. The Peterborough group is unique in that meetings are held every four to six weeks and visits are made to firms in the city to see what can be done in the way of safety measures.

Cross has thus far gathered up six sentences of 18 months definite and one year indefinite for his part in the offences. All terms are to run concurrently.

Gillian, for his part as "brains" of the team, has been given terms amounting to 22 months definite and one year indefinite in the Ontario Reformatory.

EASTER PARADE—Crowds estimated at more than 1,250,000 persons jam New York's Fifth Avenue in front of St. Patrick's Cathedral for the annual Easter Parade. This view, taken from the terrace of one of the Rockefeller Centre buildings at Fifth Avenue and 50th Street, shows the crowd stretching northward for blocks with few open spaces for viewing the finery. It was a record crowd and, police, said, "one of the most orderly" in years.

Mann Family Places Chimes Gilmour Church

In spite of the threatening rain Easter Sunday, the church was filled to capacity to hear the Easter message by the pastor, the Rev. Wm. Leaton and the dedication of the chimes, a recent gift from Mr. A. B. Mann and family. Mr. C. E. Moore conducted the service. Four member of Mr. J. B. Mann family, Mrs. John Due (Jean) Illinois; Dr. Dorothy Mann, Hamilton; Braden and Burrett Mann, presented the chimes in the following words:

"To the Glory of God.

For the advancement of God in Gilmour.

In memory of our parents, grandparents and great grandparents.

We present these chimes:

Mr. C. E. Moore spoke briefly saying that in this unsettled and changing world to-day men are everywhere losing sight of the meaning of this Easter time. Man still strives with his fellowman, forgetting the supreme sacrifice made nearly 2000 years ago.

Gilmour Memorial Baptist church had recently a gift of chimes presented by Mr. A. B. Mann and family in honour of their parents and forefathers.

The sons of Mr. and Mrs. Braden Mann are the sixth generation of one family, who have without a break worshipped in this church and its predecessor for 115 years.

I like to think, stated Mr. Moore that the donors of the chimes have not only in mind their own forbears, but also the forefathers of many families who worship here today, namely: The other branches of the Mann family, also the Waltons, the Taylors, the Telfords, Tyndels, Grahams, Darlings, Scotts, Pauls, Youngs, Sandersons, "speaking for the congregation," said Mr. Moore. "I say to the donors of this beautiful and costly set of chimes, that we gratefully accept it, knowing that in the years to come our services within this church will be enriched."

Rev. Leaton offered prayer of dedication. The choir sang Belles of Sabbath led by Mr. Clayton Telford at the electronic organ and the blending of the chimes with the voices of the choir will long be remembered by all those present.

Rev. Leaton brought the morning message of the Easter story pointing out what it means to the world today.

Miss Fern Rahmel Writes Series Of Radio Scripts On Coronation

A PCVS English teacher, Miss Fern Rahmel, has scripted a series of stories on the monarchy with the purpose of acquainting school children with the significance of the coronation ceremony on June 2. The narrated stories will be broadcast over the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation for junior and intermediate school children throughout Ontario.

There will be 15-minute broadcasts from 9:45 to 10 a.m., Monday to Thursday, beginning May 25, on England's former queens.

Miss Rahmel's stories will illustrate how Queen Elizabeth has inherited a tradition of queenship that dates back to the earliest days of British history. They are designed to make the young listeners aware of the various duties of a queen—as head of State, as a mother, as an example for her subjects, and as a wife.

The series was arranged with the co-operation of the Ontario Department of Education and will be presented in the regular Ontario School Broadcasting series.

Miss Rahmel taught public school in Peterborough for some years and in 1947 joined the staff at PCVS where she teaches English. She is a BA graduate of Queen's University and is also active as a coach of the junior dramatic club.

Plan Civic Affairs Meeting

BANCROFT —(ENS)—A plea for a bold scheme of civic improvement and the provision of greater incentive for industry to come to Bancroft highlighted the meeting of the Bancroft Lions Club at the Bancroft Hotel.

President Mike Burns announced during the meeting that Lion Whitney Martin had agreed to stand for election as Deputy District Governor for the coming year.

Five members were nominated to attend the Hamilton Convention commencing June 7. They are: Lions John Hawkins, Nubby McAlpine, Brian Murray, Ernie Thomas and George Whitfield.

Duke To Wear Uniform Of Admiral

LONDON (Reuters)—The Duke of Edinburgh will wear the dazzling full-dress uniform of an admiral of the fleet under a ducal robe for the Coronation of his wife, June 2.

He is having new ones made. The robe will probably cost about £700.

The Duke will go to the abbey in the full dress naval uniform, seen for the first time since the war when it was laid "in abeyance." Only a limited number of naval officers will wear it for the Coronation.

Described by an expert as "the finest full dress in existence," it has a full-dress double breasted coat with tails and a stand-up embroidered collar. The rank is gold embroidered in oak leaves and acorns on the sleeves.

There are gold epaulettes and a full dress belt with oak leaves and acorns embroidered on it. The blue trousers have a gold stripe down the side of the leg. A cocked hat is part of the uniform.

Rail Freight Rate Suit Taken Off Court's List

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—A Supreme Court of Canada suit challenging the legality of $7,000,000-a-year reductions in rail freight rates between Eastern and Western Canada has been removed from the court's case list.

Canada Steamship Lines, which almost a year ago asked the court to disallow the federally-subsidized reductions of its rail competitors, has received from the court an indefinite postponement of hearings on the action.

The case has been dropped from the list for the court term opening April 28, though it still could be replaced for that term or a later one.

The CSL, whose lake and river fleet vies with the railways for traffic between East and West, had challenged a board of transport commissioners order applying the rate-reducing subsidy voted by Parliament in 1951.

The reductions, averaging about five per cent and largely for the benefit of Western Canada freight payers, went into effect May 1, 1952. They applied on traffic moving across the Northern Ontario "bridge" between East and West.

Purpose of the subsidy was to have the federal treasury absorb some of the cost of running rail freight across the relatively non-lucrative "wilderness" area north of the Great Lakes. It was recommended by the royal commission on transportation in 1951.

Basis of the subsidy was the maintenance costs of Northern Ontario trackage of the two transcontinental railways, with an annual ceiling of $7,000,000,000 imposed by Parliament.

The steamship company, in its initial submission to the Supreme Court, attacked the transport board order on the main claim that it was illegal because the board did not determine actual maintenance costs of the Northern Ontario lines.

A second argument of the CSL was that the board was not permitted in the legislation to exempt certain classes of traffic from the subsidy, as it did. The exemptions included the low-rate export grain business and the depressed "transcontinental" rates between British Columbia and the east.

One-Act Play At St. John's Wins Praise

The one-act play, Mr. Sampson, was presented by the Church Year of St. John's Anglican Church in the parish hall Wednesday night to encourage the organization of a theatre group in the church.

Wednesday night's performance was of a calibre to indicate that such a project will not lack talent if it becomes a reality. The three members of the cast all played their parts admirably. The Venerable Archdeacon W. P. Robertson is to be congratulated for his directing, as is Miss Ruth Lewerds who designed the realistic stage setting.

The setting is the kitchen of a little country cottage. The humorous plot was of a middle-aged bachelor who is befriended by two maiden sisters and decides he would like to marry one of the sisters, but can't decide which one.

Mr. Sampson, the bachelor, played by Harry Tasker, first asks the sisters, Caroline (Mrs. R. W. Sutton) and Catherine (Mrs. Ralph Weeks) to decide between themselves whom he is to have. Following their refusal to carry out this unmaidenly procedure, he tosses a coin to settle the issue. But this too proves unsuccessful.

The sisters finally drive him away, deciding that the unhappiness for the unlucky one who doesn't get him is too great a risk.

The play was the entertainment for the regular monthly meeting of the Church Year, and was arranged by Miss Margaret Stevenson, month convener. Miss Stevenson also was the prompter.

The pianist for the evening was Miss Florence Gladman.

MAIDENLY MODESTY at its greatest is shown in this scene from the one-act comedy "Mr. Sampson," presented by members of the Church Year of St. John's Anglican Church Wednesday night in the Parish Hall. Mr. Sampson (Harry Tasker) pleads for the hand in marriage of one of the two maiden sisters, Caroline (Mrs. Ralph Sutton) and Catherine (Mrs. Ralph Weeks). He doesn't care which one.

Grenfell Mission Seeks Supplies

Peterborough branch of the Grenfell-Labrador Medical Missions are making their annual appeal for funds for the purchase of hospital and medical supplies for the Labrador and Newfoundland coastal communities.

Formerly, from now until June each year the branch have prepared a used-clothing bale. Ottawa headquarters have changed the plan this year and request that the Peterborough women ask for such new hospital supplies as blankets, nightgowns and pyjamas and, for fishermens' homes, baby layettes and new toys.

The only used clothing articles the branch is asking for is silk, lisle and rayon underwear and stockings which go into the manufacture of rugs and cottage handicrafts.

Again, the depot for pooling supplies will be the Grafton store on George St., where contributions are already being accepted. Cash donations will be reecived by branch treasurer Miss Linden Hall, 17 Fleming Place, and further information may be obtained by phoning her at 4981.

Wild Goose Hunt In Swing To Trap Winnie

GREENWICH, Conn. (CP)—A wild goose chase was in full swing today to trap Winnie, the grounded Canada goose.

Game officials hoped to catch Winnie in time for it to be flown to Toronto for the opening of Canada's wildlife conservation week Sunday.

The bird has been wintering at Byram Point, a Long Island Sound inlet surrounded by estates. It could not fly north with the rest of the flock because its tail feathers had been shot off.

Its plight drew international attention two weeks ago. At the request of Canadian officials, Governor John Davis Lodge of Connecticut relinquished Winnie Wednesday in the interest of Canadian-American goodwill and appointed his chief game warden to lead the hunt.

TO ABDUCT BIRD

Governor Lodge requested his warden to abduct the bird from the Byram Point sanctuary. Chief Warden Stephen Muska, who received the assignment, said capturing a wild Canada goose alive calls for special equipment.

"We must have nets so as not to break its neck and a crate big enough to hold it. Moreover, there must be a minimum of excitement and the tide must be right."

The goose is swimming in the salt waters of the inlet, fed by shoreside residents. Canadian game officials claimed that salt water was bad for the goose. They said it needed the fresh water of the sanctuary at Kingsville, Ont., near Windsor.

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — A Swedish count who exploded a bunch of balloons with his cigaret lighter at a ball was ordered by the city court Wednesday to pay 30,000 crowns (about $5,400) to six other nobles who were badly burned. Blind Man Named Editor

TORONTO (CP) — A blind man has been appointed editor of a magazine for the sighted, it was announced Wednesday at the annual meeting of the music committee of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

The Quebec division reported that Conrad Letendre of Montreal is the new editor of Musique et Musiciens, a French-language music publication. He is not only concerned with gathering information, but also takes an interest in lay-out, photographs and other aspects of editing, it said.

Mrs. E. C. S. Simpson, CNIB music consultant, said five blind students are studying music at the university level in Canada. She also announced that the CNIB's White Cane Choir in Vancouver took the best choir award at the Vancouver music festival for the second year in succession.

Representatives from the Ontario School for the Blind at Brantford said at least 20 minutes a day is devoted to music. The school choir received high marks at the recent Brantford music festival.

Penicillin Discoverer Weds War Heroine

LONDON (AP) — Sir Alexander Fleming, 71-year-old discoverer of penicillin, married Dr. Amalia Coutsouris, titian-haired Greek war heroine and herself a scientist, in a brief civil ceremony here today.

The new Lady Fleming, who is 40, met Sir Alexander in 1947 when she worked on his staff at a London institute as a bacteriologist.

Sir Alexander, Nobel Prize winner and emeritus professor of bacteriology at the University of London, was previously married to Sarah Marion who died four years ago. They had a son.

Dr. Coutsouris, once condemned to death by the Nazis for aiding Allied soldiers escape from German-occupied Greece, was previously married to a Greek architect. That marriage ended recently in divorce.

Cancel Licence For Broker

TORONTO (CP) — O. E. Lennox, chairman of the Ontario securities commission, today criticized irresponsible recommendations on speculative stocks made by certain investment counsellors.

The current OSC bulletin reported that the licence of Howard J. Rutsey as an investment counsel type one has been cancelled. Mr. Lennox said Rutsey did not know the location of the property of an oil company he was recommending to his 1,300 subscribers.

"It is apparent he had no actual knowledge to support his unqualified recommendation and that he is accordingly a menace to subscribers to his service," the OSC bulletin said.

The commission suspended for six months the registration of D.J. Scanlon and Co. Ltd. of Toronto as a broker-dealer. The commission considered that certain statements were used in stock promotional literature in such a way as to be misleading.

Westwood Guests Of Hastings WA

HASTINGS (ENS) — The Women's Association of the United Church at Westwood were the guests of the Women's Association of Trinity United Church at their quarterly meeting, held in the church, with Group 3 in charge.

Mrs. J. G. Thompson led in prayer. The ladies from Westwood had charge of the worship them, "The Working Christian." Mrs. Geo. Rigby gave the Easter message, taking the main part of her address from the United Church Moderator. Mrs. John Knox, of Norwood, sang a solo. The Rev. N. Cole offered prayer in memory of the late Queen Mary.

Mrs. J. M. Baker played an organ solo. Mrs. R. Burnham voiced the thanks of the ladies to those who so willingly helped with the worship and program. Mrs. Graham, for the Westwood ladies, thanked the Hastings WA.

The offering was dedicated by Mr. Cole. Mrs. J. S. Thompson presided for the business period. A letter was read acknowledging a parcel for Korea.

Mrs. Metcalfe said that if the new furnace, when installed, were placed in a cement room, entirely separate from the basement, with a fireproof door, that the insurance rate would be considerably lower. It was moved that the WA finance this project, if undertaken. Mrs. H. Young and Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe were appointed to take a recommendation to the church board to this effect. The kitchen committee are to make enquiries about renovating the basement and the cleaning of the church.

Mrs. Thompson reported that membership cards had been purchased for the junior choir, also that gowns would be needed and the choir loft extended, involving considerable expense. On a motion by Mrs. Humphries and Mrs. Hess, the WA will be responsible for this.

Mrs. Young was appointed a delegate to the WA convention at St. James' Peterborough, on April 23, Mrs. J. Richardson to be alternate. Mrs. C. Oliver was appointed citizenship convener.

A Coronation Tea is to be held on June 17 on Mrs. J. H. Hess's lawn. Plans were also made for a bake sale on June 22, group leaders to be the conveners.

A social half-hour was held.

Suggests Conference On Medical Care

KITCHENER (CP) — Dr. W. G. Blair, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Lanark, urged Wednesday night that a Dominion-provincial conference be held to improve methods of meeting costs of medical care.

Speaking at a meeting of the Kitchener-Waterloo Academy of Medicine Dr. Blair said:

"Cost to the patient has risen to a point where sickness is getting beyond the means of the average citizen. To achieve improvement in the methods of meeting medical costs will require the full co-operation of the provinces, the hospitals and the general public."

Plan Ceremony Of Lifting Corner Stone

NORWOOD (ENS)—The work of demlition of the United Church, recently destroyed by fire is making splendid progress. During the past week through the untiring efforts of loyal voluntary workers under the efficient leadership of George Millett, the huge walls including the 60' tower have been razed to the foundations. All usable material has been salvaged and much of the irreplaceable hard limestone walls has been preserved stone by store and the debris removed.

A small section of the tower wall has been left intact pending the official ceremony of lifting the cornerstone and removal of documents therein on Saturday, April 11, at 2 p.m., weather permitting, otherwise Monday, same hour. All interested in this historic ceremony, including many "oldtimers" who saw the cornerstone laid on May 24, 1891 are cordially invited to attend.

Canadian Ordnance Depot Ships Arms Under NATO

MONTREAL (CP)—An army ordnance depot at east-end Longue Pointe has been turned into a giant marshalling yard for shipment of Canadian military equipment to European countries under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization plan.

Nearly 1,000 jeeps and other rebuilt wartime equipment, including guns, tanks and trucks, are expected to be shipped shortly from 25 Central Ordnance Depot to such NATO countries as France, Italy, Belgium and Denmark.

Although actual shipping dates have not been announced, a large portion of the equipment is scheduled to be sent overseas from here before the end of April.

Under present Canadian Army policy, equipment designated for NATO countries will be replaced by standard United States equipment.

The British-built Centurion tanks, which proved valuable in Korea, are a familiar sight at Longue Pointe. It is understood they are being held here for distribution to the two Canadian brigades overseas and for active force units in Canada.

LARGEST WAREHOUSE

Rebuilding and storing of Canada's NATO contribution is only one phase in the bustling activity at the 256-acre depot, largest army warehouse in the country.

The base also is the main centre for army technical stores, including those held for reserve forces.

One of the most important component parts is 202 Base Workshop, Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers. The workshop has put into operational use all the equipment destined for Europe.

At present, military and civilian tradesmen are polishing up model army rifles for use by Canadian soldiers and the RCMP at Coronation ceremonies.

About 2,400 civilians and 1,200 army personnel man the depot.

An elaborate identification library, a new locater index branch and the profusion of paper work detail help the army keep track of 130,000 technical store items and thousands of others in the 2,000,000 square feet of warehouse space.

Ice Cleared Out Of Locks

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) The end of ice problems at the upper end of the locks in the St. Mary's river is in sight, a shipping spokesman said today.

He said that during the night the icebreaker Mackinaw drove ice away from the locks and pushed it into rapids where it escaped into the wider, lower river. Now the ice area has been reduced to a half-mile mass stretching from the lock gates up the river.

Freighters coming through the locks should be able to push the remaining ice into the locks in front of them and clear it to the lower river by late today or early Friday, the spokesman said.

Wednesday 100 ships gathered at both ends of the locks, waiting for ice to be cleared from the upper end so they could get through. High winds had driven the ice in from Whitefish Bay on Lake Superior, in places piling it 15 feet thick.

WHERE FIVE DIED—A young pup which survived a fire that killed five persons on the Blackfoot Indian reserve, 75 miles southeast of Calgary, sits in the rubble of the house which was burned. The RCMP arrested Alex Standing-At-The-Door and said he would be charged with the murder of Garry Bull Bear, one of the persons killed when a bottle of gasoline was tossed through a window of the home, setting it afire. The wife and child of the arrested man were among the victims. Only one person escaped the flaming cottage.

Railway Planning School For Future Executives

TORONTO.—The gates of the University of Western Ontario will be swinging open in June to admit a special crop of summer students, supervisory officers of the CNR, who have been considered as candidates for top executives' posts in the railway.

The college course for junior executives is believed to be unique among North American railways and will run for six weeks—three weeks to be spent in intensive study in Montreal.

First batch of "students" will number 40, selected from 100 nominees for the course.

If the experiment is successful the CNR may establish a full-time staff training college to give the junior executive and administrative executive and technical officers a chance to equip themselves for greater responsibilities.

GIVE PERSPECTIVE

The course is aimed at giving the executives-in-making a perspective of the whole corporation, a knowledge of modern management principles and their application to railway problems.

Need for the course is attributed by CNR officials to a number of factors, including the static conditions during the depression, when few opportunities for promotion were available.

Two other factors have been considered in designing the school: The need for an enormous reservoir of supervisory talent—there are 1,100 supervisory officers who will be retiring within the next 15 years; and the increasing recognition that scientific principles common to administration in all industries can be made the subject of instruction.

Halt Hydro Line

TORONTO (CP)—A permanent injunction against the Ontario hydro commission erecting overhead lines and towers through the district of Rosedale, a north-central Toronto residential area, was granted Wednesday. The judgment was handed down by Mr. Justice J. L. McLennan of the Ontario Supreme Court.

2 Die In Car Collision

MONTREAL (CP)—Two women were killed and six other persons slightly injured Wednesday in a collision between two cars at an intersection of the Metropolitan Boulevard in suburban Lachine.

Dead are Mrs. Ernest Benoit, 65, of Ville St. Laurent, and Mrs. Jean Charles Paquin, 38, Ste. Genevieve. Benoit's car collided with one driven by Francois Charlebois, 28, of Sudbury, as he crossed the busy highway.

FIRST DAY'S TALKS—Lee Song Cho, (right), North Korean senior truce delegate, leaves the Panmunjom first day's talks on exchange of sick and wounded prisoners of the Korean war. Behind him come subordinates.

Ottawa Losing Best Geologists

OTTAWA (CP)—Veteran government geologists, some of the best in their field, are unable to live on their salaries and are being grabbed off by industry in Canada and other countries, the Commons atomic energy committee was told Wednesday.

Marc Boyer, deputy minister of mines, said the situation is so bad that the geological division of his department is getting into a "situation of panic."

Dr. W. A. Bell, director of the geological survey of Canada, said that 14 geologists, all with doctors degrees, have left in the last 15 months. This represented 20 per cent of his staff and replacements were hard to get.

Some had gone to India, East Africa and Trinidad and their services were lost to Canada. They had been getting a starting government salary of $4,300 a year, with a chance to work toward a maximum of $7,200. Industry was offering 60 per cent more pay.

Former MP Dies

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP)—Joseph Needham, 77, member of Parliament from 1935 to 1940 for the former Saskatchewan riding of South Battleford, died in hospital Wednesday from injuries suffered in a traffic accident. Mr. Needham was elected to Parliament as a Social Crediter in 1935 but met defeat in 1940 when he ran as a New Democracy candidate.

Defer Consideration Of Danger Pay Item

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Board of control Wednesday deferred consideration of a demand by city firemen for danger pay ranging from $25 to $100 a year.

The board said it would again consider the demand after receiving a report from the Ontario Municipal Association on salaries and other benefits paid firemen in various other cities.

Albert Hazel, president of local 445, International Fire Fighters Association, (AFL), said Sarnia and Chatham now give service pay to their firemen.

Mayor Arthur J. Reaume said Windsor now is paying a high salary to firemen as compared to that paid in other Ontario cities.

Ontario Schools Need 1300 More Teachers Yearly

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario schools can use 1,300 more teachers every year than they now are getting, F. S. Rivers, superintendent of professional training in the province's education department, said Wednesday.

But, he added, the profession won't lower its standards to obtain them.

Mr. Rivers addressed a meeting of the elementary school department at the annual conference of the Ontario Educational Association.

He claimed there is no shortage of teachers in urban centres such as Toronto and Montreal. "All the cities stretched along the Great Lakes are getting an adequate supply of experienced teachers, but the shortage shows up in the remote rural districts."

HOPE TO EASE SHORTAGE

Mr. Rivers said the education department has hopes of offsetting the shortage. Reasons included: Increasing number of students reaching grade 13, more married women taking up teaching, teachers remaining in service longer and emergency measures to train more teachers.

Problems that have to be faced in educating Indians were described by R. F. Davey to teachers in federal government schools in Ontario.

Mr. Davey, assistant superintendent of education, Indian affairs branch, Ottawa, said Indian parents need general information. Lack of it led to misunderstanding and suspicion and made it difficult to educate their children.

Another problem is to reduce barriers that tend to segregate the Indian people from the rest of the population, Mr. Rivers said. Most Indians were educated on the reserve.

RURAL PROBLEMS

Rural teachers have special problems to cope with and to overcome them they need patience and understanding, Dr. C. G. Stogdill, a school psychiatrist and chief of the Toronto board of education's child adjustment services, said.

He told a rural teachers meeting that residents of small communities are apt to regard strangers as a little queer until they enter into the community life.

Dr. Stogdill said: "In teaching, it is necessary to get along with children of very different backgrounds and with very different standards of neatness, cleanliness, politeness and honesty and this is a source of stress to some personalities."

STRESS 5 POINTS

The trustees and ratepayers department heard Dr. Raymond Hatch, director of guidance at Michigan State College, recommend schools to stress five points.

Students should be taught the three Rs, how to maintain their health and develop good characteristics, civic responsibility, economic efficiency and human relations.

Elwood Oakes of Strathroy, a school inspector, told the convention that many schools have too many topics and sub-topics in the course of study, and at the same time education in this province is handicapped by meagre training and by inefficient rural ungraded schools.

Announcement was made of the annual meeting of the Women's Associations of Peterborough Presbytery to be held in St. James' United Church, April 23. The arrangement of delegates and their transportation was left with Mrs. Coppins.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Frank Bigelow, leader of group four, who gave a reading "Easter And It's Meaning" and conducted a short contest on Easter traditions. Mrs. Gervin Mulligan read "Our Easter Meditation." Mrs. Ralph Preston told "The Easter Message" and related the different traditions and customs used in various countries to celebrate the holiday. Easter hymns were sung throughout the meeting. A collection of $4.95 was received.

Donkey "Parking Lots" Used At Oaxaca Market

By JEAN E. STENTON

OAXACA. — Although most people who bring their wares to the Oaxaca market do not have trucks and cars and they make their goods as their forefathers did many years ago, in one respect they are absolutely modern and that is in the donkey parking lots.

* * * *

Except that donkeys and not cars are "parked," and the meter mechanism is lacking, you would swear you were in any Canadian city metered square. Through a tip from an American who had been here many times I found three lots. The most modern one had wooden posts the size of the car meter posts and a donkey was tethered to each one. There was a big fountain at one end for their water and attendants to look after them.

* * * *

In the other two, the animals each had a little square and their food and water was brought to them. The owners unload their goods at their stalls in the morning when they arrive and then "park" their donkeys. When they are ready to leave in the evening they call and get them. In one parking lot there were a few oxen too. A number of farmers in the mountains bring their loads on peculiar carts drawn by oxen.

* * * *

POTTERY SECTION

The Oaxaca market is one of the biggest and best known in Mexico. It sprawls over many blocks and is particularly famous for its pottery section. The pottery is brought to town bundled in something that looks like a big fish net. In some cases it is loaded on a donkey's back. In others, it is carried on a man's back. The average load seemed to be about 20 big pieces of pottery. A man carrying that is bent almost double.

* * * *

As you push your way through the crowded lanes dodging donkeys, oxen, people and stalls, you see all kinds of foods, including pieces of sugar something like Canadian maple sugar, about the size of a pie plate. There are stalls with yard goods, dresses, shoes, sugarcane, gadgets and almost anything you can imagine. The pottery section is quite large and each type of article has its own section in the market.

* * * *

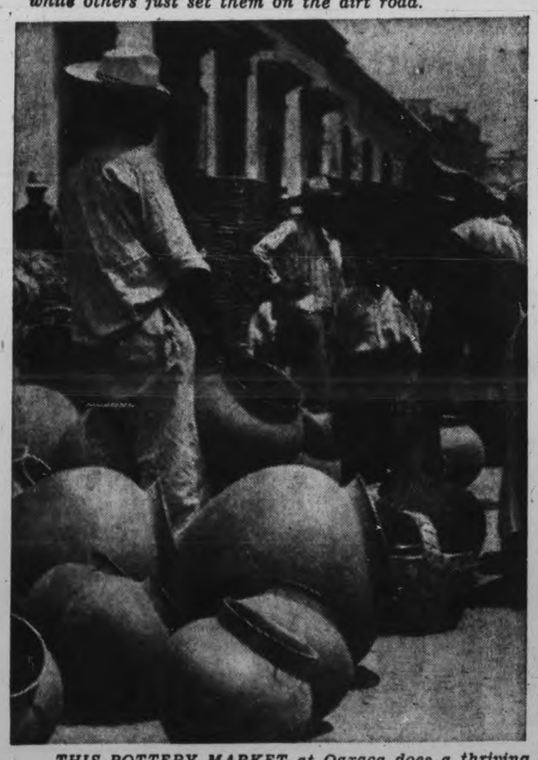
There is a black pottery that is made in only one village in the area, and the method used is hundreds of years old. Its color is created by forcing the smoke into it when it is baking. Usually the inside has a faint design traced. There is red and green pottery too.

* * * *

Sometimes you can bargain at this market depending on the whim of the seller. I bought two little green pottery jars for 30 cents, the set price. Then the merchant offered a third piece at a cut rate. Some of the articles are quite crude, while others are artistic in design and shape. It is always wise to look around before you decide to buy. There are dishes, animals, cups and saucers, etc. The pottery is strong enough to be used for frying or boilings things on the fire.

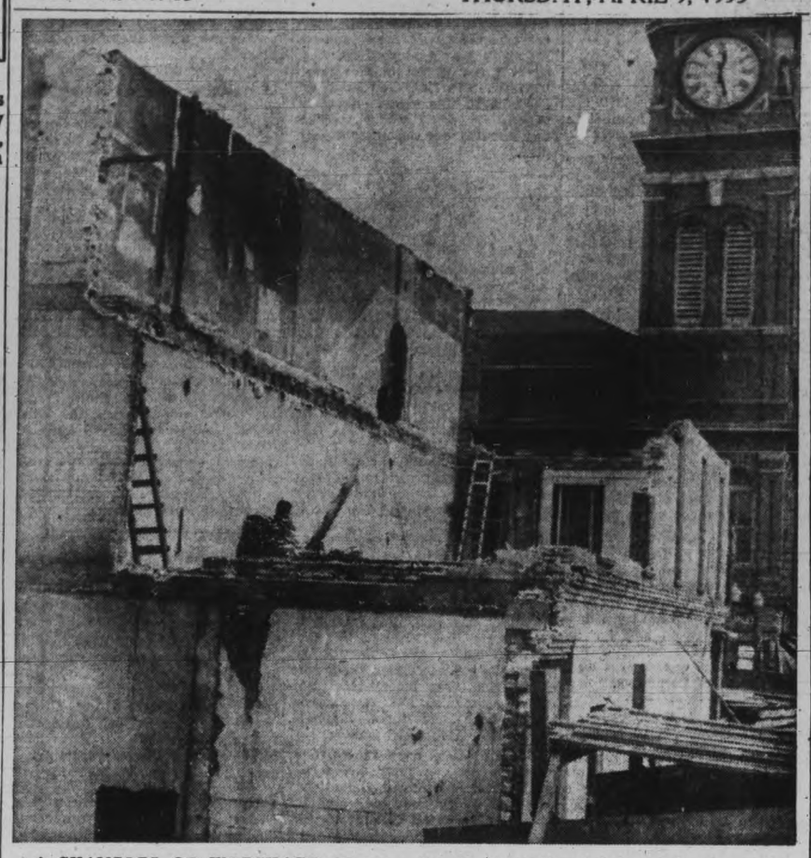
* * * *

GREAT CONFUSION



Saturday is the big day for the market here and the place is bedlam with crowds buying, animals and pedestrian traffic, and trucks trying to get through. You move by inches but it so colorful it is worth being crowded. Since all the roads around the market are dirt, the amount of dust flying adds to the confusion.

* * * *



Many of the women here wear their rebozos on their heads in the form of turbans, and they carry big baskets loaded with things on top of them. Their sense of balance is perfect and they trot along with not a care in the world. At the market some people wear leather sandals while others pad along barefoot. Young and old throng the narrow lanes between the stalls.

* * * *

Most of the vendors pay the city 1 peso a week rent for their stall space. The few who do not pay just take catch as catch can in the areas that are left. Each person has only a very small square just large enough to set some of their wares and a place to squat behind them. Some have their things displayed on straw mats while others just set them on the dirt road.

THIS POTTERY MARKET at Oaxaca does a thriving business. It is one of the most interesting and picturesque in the Republic. Saturday is the big day when natives come in from neighboring villages with all kinds of wares.

A SHAMBLES OF WRECKAGE frames the Market Hall clock tower as fast progress is being made with the demolition of the business block on the north-west corner of George and Charlotte Sts. The operation is of continual interest to passers-by and is the topic of many nostalgic conversations by old timers, many who remember when the business block was built.

300 Youngsters Have Bicycles Checked Over

More than 300 youngsters with their bicycles showed up at the police garage today to have their bicycles inspected for faulty parts by members of the Delta-Rho Hi-Y Club in co-operation with the police department and the Automobile Club who are sponsoring a Bicycle Safety Lane Garage.

All the bikes were inspected for faulty brakes, checked to see if the bicycle seat was at the right height, pedals, reflectors, front and rear fenders were properly attached and handlebars and bicycle chains were in proper working order.

The owners of the bikes were presented with a scotch light and a jewelled reflector. There has already been a large response from the parents in approval of the Bicycles Safety Lane Garage. The children who failed to pass the test are already lined up at bicycle shops in the city waiting to have their bikes put into proper working order.

The nine members of the Delta-Rho Hi-Y who were on hand at the police garage to inspect the bikes with the help of Constable Donald Mackay were: Jack Prest, Gordon White, Jack Waters, Larry Wilson, Dennis and Paul Dorrington, Donald Long, Robert Tompson and Paul Sparrow.

There will be another nine members of the Hi-Y on hand Friday morning at 9.30 at the Drill Hall in the Exhibition Grounds to finish off the inspection of the bicycles.

Man Admits 4 Charges In Thefts

Asks To Be Sent To Penitentiary, Arrested In Store

Magistrate W. R. Philp reserved judgment until Monday when Edward Brooker, 23, of 105 Hay St., Mimico, pleaded guilty to four charges, two of breaking, entering and theft, one of theft, and one of attempting to break and enter with intent to commit theft.

Crown Attorney J. A. Bradshaw, QC, told the court that the 23-year-old machine-shop worker had asked to be sent to penitentiary because when he was arrested in Peterborough March 26 he was on parole from the Ontario Reformatory. He was released from Burwash February 20 and at present is wanted by Scarboro police in connection with car theft.

CAUGHT IN STORE

Detective Dennis Traynor of the Peterborough Police Department gave evidence today that he and Sergaent of Detectives John Stevenson were called to Ostrander's jewellery store at 11.15 p.m. March 26. Through the front door of the store he saw the accused crouching behind a counter and then crawl into the office.

The detective went to the back door and saw where a window had been forced open. He climbed up to the window and saw the accused crouching in a corner of the office. The detective told him to come out and when he came to the back door PC Grant Gillespie showed him how to open the door.

Detective Traynor said the accused had a number of rings and watches valued at $918.05 in a couple of bags which were found on the floor of the store.

Brooker admitted breaking into Vince Crowley's Men's Wear store and stealing a quantity of clothes, including 10 pairs of pants worth about $300. He also admitted theft from a car parked by the Grand Hotel of a mantel radio, camera and case, a suitcase containing a quantity of women's clothing and a box containing towels, curtains and a blanket.

In addition the accused pleaded guilty to a charge of attempting to break and enter the S. S. Kresge store with the intent to commit theft. A blue top coat, which was produced in court, was said by Detective Traynor to have been found in the Kresge store and Brooker admitted he was the owner.

Brooker admitted a number of previous convictions in British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Ontario, dating from 1948.

Born in Cottringham, Ont., he lived in Peterborough for 3½ years about 12 years ago. He has a wife and one child living with his parents in Mimico.

"What have you got to say for yourself?" the magistrate asked him.

"There's not much I can say," the accused replied.

"Are you in agreement that this boy go to Kingston?" His Worship asked the Crown Attorney.

"I understand he might go to Collins Bay where the rehabilitation officers say they have an excellent trade school," said Mr. Bradshaw.

Just As Warm

Peterborough's temperature Wednesday matched all but one point in Canada when it climbed to 59. Other centres that registered a high of 59 were Victoria, B.C., Ottawa and Montreal. Only Saint John, N.B. was higher—by one degree. By noon today without the help of much sun, the mercury had climbed to 52. The chilliest spot in the country Wednesday was Regina which had a high of 32.

Suggest Students Operate Traffic Lights

Manually operated traffic lights at two busy intersections, and to be controlled by older school children, have been proposed to the council by Don S. Mackay, director of school safety patrols.

One location is at Reid and Sherbrooke Sts., and the other at Reid and Charlotte Sts.

More than 300 school children cross daily at Sherbrooke St., Constable Mackay mentioned in his letter to the council. It was referred to the special traffic committee.

He suggested that senior pupils from the trained patrol could take charge of vehicular traffic, enabling the children to cross east and west on Sherbrooke St. while cars were held up on Reid St.

PATROLS NOW

Patrols are in charge at that crossing now, but the signal lights to be operated by hand were proposed as an improvement in safety precaution.

At Reid and Charlotte Sts., Constable Mackay said, lights should be installed for use during the rush hours at noon and 5 p.m. five days a week. The lights could be operated from the curb by one of the trained students and traffic officer.

FOREARM LACERATED

Donald Sutherland, 18, of RR 1, Bancroft, was given outpatient treatment at Civic Hospital early today when he showed up with multiple lacerations on his right forearm. Details of the events leading to the injury are not known.

Three Hurt As Cars Hit Head-on

One Driver Sent To Hospital Man, Wife Treated

An Oshawa man is in Civic Hospital and a Belleville couple required outpatient treatment as the result of a head-on crash Wednesday night on Highway 2S half a mile west of the city.

Louis Roy Varty, 22, of 521 Cromwell Ave., Oshawa, is in hospital with undetermined head and chest injuries. He has cuts and bruises on his face, including a deep cut on his left cheek, and scrapes on his knees and chest.

Varty, who is employed at General Motors in Oshawa, was driving east along the highway when he came into collision with the westbound car of Michael Palanuik, 23, of 270 George St., Belleville.

Palanuik was starting to make a left turn to enter the driveway of the Rockhaven Motel, located on the south side of the highway, when the crash occurred. His 1951 - model car was turned around by the impact and received $700 damage, mostly to the front end.

Varty's car, also a 1951 model, was jolted into the south ditch where it rolled over, wheels upward. He was taken to hospital by Dr. Louis Zacks.

TEETH KNOCKED OUT

Palanuik and his 21-year-old wife were also taken to Civic where he was treated for a cut on the left knee and scrapes; she had a couple of teeth knocked out and a cut on her lower lip. After treatment they were permitted to leave.

Varty, a fisherman, was going to visit his father who lives near Havelock and he had a gift of smelts that had been caught earlier in the day.

Damage to his car was estimated at $1,500.

OPP Constables Wallace Mohns and Don Lacombe investigated the accident that occurred about 7.30 p.m.

SAP-RUNNING TIME — Pails hang on spouts bored into maple trees to gather the sweet sap in the Queensbury district, near Fredericton, N.B., as the month-long maple season is under way. Sugarmen work day and night in a rush against time to collect the sap and boil it in evaporators for transformation to syrup and sugar. Last year New Brunswick produced 10,000 gallons of syrup and 90,000 pounds of maple sugar, representing a gross value of nearly $85,000 to farmers. The Canadian total was $653,000.

Expropriation Urged For Pinery

PARKHILL (CP) — Immediate expropriation of the Pinery at an appraised value of $35,000 was recommended here Wednesday to Ausable valley conservation authority.

The 4,066-acre tract along Lake Huron's shore must be managed with care to prevent the area from reverting to a desolate waste, authority members were told.

The report was submitted by the parks and recreation and reforestation advisory boards.

SEEK ASSISTANCE

Federal assistance to deepen and widen the old Ausable river channel for nine miles back from Grand Bend is to be sought by the authority.

The project would cost $325,000 and would be part of a $1,862,800 plan involving three dams to tame the Ausable.

A request will go to the Ontario department of planning and development asking the province to contribute 37½ percent. Approval there would be followed by a delegation to Ottawa to ask for another 37½ percent under a new conservation act passed last week by the House of Commons.

Plenty of Food, Recreation For Troops

Editor's Note:
Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff correspondent with the Canadian forces in Korea since 1950, has spent three weeks in Germany with the 27th Canadian infantry brigade. In this story, one of a series, he describes a typical day's routine for the average soldier.

By BILL BOSS

HANNOVER, Germany (CP)—A typical day in the life of a Canadian soldier in Germany includes a lot of training, plenty of good food and ample time for recreation.

Well-constructed, centrally - heated barracks built for the German Army before the war house Canada's NATO brigade.

Some rooms are double, occupied usually by corporals or lance-corporals. Most sleep four and there are dormitory-type rooms sleeping as many as 10.

Col. H. A. Phillips, commander of Canadian base units and officers responsible for construction under way at the Canadians' new site at Souest in the Ruhr, says experience indicates the troops prefer the dormitory-type accommodation.

Sergeants and officers have their own quarters, lounges and dining-rooms.

GETS STEEL BED

Every soldier has a barrack box and a locker. He sleeps on a steel bed, uses three biscuit-type mattress segments, has two sheets, pillow case and three blankets. One sheet is changed weekly

Some soldiers have radios, over which they can hear the forces program "Calling All Canadians" at 6:45 every morning, and the one-hour noontime broadcast every day of recorded CBC features from Canada. Every Sunday there is a weekly program of request recordings.

A daily news sheet also is circulated to keep them up on events in Canada. No other Canadian-type entertainment is provided.

Most have bought themselves electric irons and the men are immaculate when they leave barracks.

UP AT 6 A.M.

A typical day would go something like this:

6 a.m.—Reveille, blown on a bugle. Fall out into the corridor in pyjamas and answer roll call.

6:05—Wash, shave. There are communal wash-rooms with hot water.

6:30—Breakfast. One morning this consisted of tomato juice, corn flakes, fresh milk, sugar, grilled egg, bacon, bread, butter, marmalade, coffee with canned milk Service in the mess is cafeteria style.

Canadians get the full British ration scale plus 25 per cent and added supplements.

Fresh milk is trucked from Denmark every two days, and the ration includes Danish hams fresh fish, frozen beef and pork, New Zealand butter and seven eggs a week. British troops get four. There is cheese on the table at every meal. Canadian items such as honey, peanut butter and tomato ketchup also are included.

READY FOR INSPECTION

7:00—Make bed. Clean room for inspection by platoon or company commander.

7:30—First parade. Platoon commander's instructions for the day.

8:00—Parade-square drill.

9:00—Weapons training, or perhaps PT or swimming.

10:00—NAAFI break. They go to the canteen, buy coffee (three cents) and buns or doughnuts (three cents each.)

10:20—Resume weapons training.

LUNCH MENU

12 noon—Lunch. One noon this was chicken rice soup with croutons, salisbury steak with gravy, mashed potatoes, buttered carrots, fresh milk, rice pudding, bread, butter, tea with canned milk.

1:15 p.m.—Parade-square drill.

2:00—Recreational sports or education. Most of the brigade is below grade eight education standard and 12 hours' instruction weekly is ordered. The subjects are reading, spelling, arithmetic, geography. This usually is finished about 4:30.

5:00—Supper. One day this was beef and barley broth with toasted croutons, fried liver with gravy and lyonnaise potatoes and green peas, currant cookies, canned fruit, bread, butter, tea with canned milk.

By 6 p.m. the soldier has fed and changed and his ready for his evening. More recently arrived men head for the bright lights downtown. Those longer here have found little pubs not far from the barracks.

UNIT CANTEENS

Beer-drinking in unit canteens is popular and enthusiastic. Downtown, most soldiers head for the unsavory joints with cheap (20-cent) beer. Few go to any of the great number of decent establishments. They say the beer, which may go as high as 40 cents, is too expensive there.

Soldiers are entitled once a week to a 2 a.m. pass. They can get a midnight pass anytime if in good standing. But uniformed soldiers must leave public places at midnight, say the regulations. The only course for soldiers with 2 a.m. passes is to walk the streets.

This is tough on the soldier who can afford only one or two good nights out a week.

Two who have settled the problem of what to do of an evening are 20-year-old Corporals Earl Chew and Charlie McGraw of Montreal, who bought billiard cues for $2.70 each. They play snooker in their unit canteen.

However they spend their evenings, most men manage to be back in their barracks blocks in time for the pyjama-clad roll call at 6 a.m. How they get back into the lines is strictly their own business.

Sugarmen Work Day And Night Collecting Sap

FREDERICTON (CP) — With sweetness in the air and pungent smoke of blazing hardwood in the camps of sugar-makers, the month-long maple sugar season in New Brunswick is nearing an end after being handicapped by cloudy and rainy weather.

Last year New Brunswick produced 10,000 gallons of syrup and 90,000 pounds of maple sugar, representing a gross value of nearly $85,000 to farmers. The Canadian total was $653,000. This season's yield won't be known until late April.

Sugarmen work day and night in their rush against time to collect the colorless maple sap and boil it in evaporators for transformation to syrup and sugar. They start the season when melting days follow frosty nights.

WEATHER FACTOR

The irregular flow of sap, greater in daytime, depends mostly on weather conditions, as well as size of the trees and condition of the ground.

The reducing process takes a lot of sap. Normally 15 to 20 gallons boil down to three or four pounds of sugar or only 1.2 to 1.6 quarts of syrup.

Sugar-making originated with Indians long before white settlers invaded their domain. It's hard labor but fascinating. As Fred C. Heustis, elderly Queensbury resident and veteran of the industry, says:

"I wouldn't want to miss a spring in the sugar bush. I guess a fellow sort of gets to look forward to March and April after being more or less cooped up all winter. Sugar-making does something for a man. It's hard work, sure, but you get something more out of it than just profit."

Some of the trees near his camp are believed nearly 300 years old. Year after year they produce sap in undiminishing quantity without affecting their health.

The New Brunswick Maple Sugar Products Association was formed a few years ago. Its members are pledged to produce only high quality products, manufactured under the most sanitary conditions.

Group Capt. Hall Dies

OTTAWA (CP)—Group Capt. C.H. Hall, 55, of Toronto collapsed and died Wednesday in his office at air force headquarters. An RCAF spokesman said he is believed to have suffered a heart attack. Group Capt. Hall, deputy director of accounts and finance for the RCAF since 1947, was born in Uxbridge, Ont. He served in the Canadian Army during the First World War, rejoined in 1940 and transferred to the RCAF the same year.

PRINCESS IN A HURRY—Denmark's Princess Margrethe, the 13-year-old miss who may rule her country some day, flies down the stairs in typical teen-age fashion after a recent dance in Copenhagen. Her bewildered-looking escort is left far behind. Princess Margrethe, eldest daughter of King Frederik IX and Queen Ingrid, is heir-presumptive to her father's throne.

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

By G. E. GROOMBRIDGE

PAPER DRIVE

Hello, folks, here is your chance to help the Scouts and Cubs finance their camping this summer. Proceeds of the paper you save and put out for the Scouts on Tuesday, April 21, at 6 p.m., will go towards financing the camp. We would like to suggest that all bundles be tied as securely as possible and should there be any special cases you notify the committee, phone W. G. Shiner 5368.

We are not asking for money, but just the paper you throw into the garbage collection.

CAMPOREE

We have received word from Port Hope inviting all troops in Peterborough to send a patrol or two to the camporee being held at the Ganaraska Reforestation site in connection with the annual tree planting day. The camporee will be held May 1, 2 and 3. All patrols will have to be self-contained, which means tentage, foods, bedding, etc. Patrols will be judged on a point system from a given point on the approach to the site and all patrols will be rated in classes A, B, C, etc, no first or second winners. We would certainly like to see Peterborough represented and would suggest that those troops planning to take part, contact Commissioner G. R. Langley and perhaps a real contingent can be arranged.

FIELD DAY

This is a reminder that field day is just five weeks off from this coming Saturday and, from the many reports received, it would appear that the Cubs are certainly out to make a showing. It is also getting short, if you are still thinking about that uniform for the parade. Don't forget, only those in uniform will be able to take part in the grand parade in which the CGE Pipe Band will be supplying the music.

CLEAN-UP TIME

This is a definite challenge to every cub, scout, brownie, guide, leader and anyone interested in scouting. Peterborough has been called a clean city but we note that many people throw paper on the streets from gum wrappers, popcorn containers, and Dad that cigarette box. We would like to see those waste-paper containers placed along the main streets used.

3RD PETERBOROUGH

The white six were the winners of the pennant for March. Many tests were passed at the last meeting. Roger Smith, Douglas Black, Art Houghton, Don Hines, Art McClaren, and David Farr passed time telling; Robert Smith, Art McClaren, Gary Shambo, Wayne Warr, Ron Painter, Ron Stevenson and Gary King—Union Jack; Doug Black, Allen Field, Bob Field, Art Houghton, Ron Painter, Allen Keating, Bob Wilson and David Williams passed knots. Brent Warren and Morris Hill were presented with their first stars and led the closing grand howl.

4TH PETERBOROUGH CUB PACK

Sunday, April 12, is the monthly Communion Sunday for the pack, troop, crew and committeemen. All Cubs are asked to meet in the basement of Sacred Heart Church by 7:45 a.m. in full uniform, or with as much of it as they have. The pack and troop will sit immediately behind the choir, as they did last time.

Tuesday, April 21, is the date of the father and son banquet. Every dad should try to keep this night open for his son. If there are two (or more) lads in the same family in the group, or if a lad's father is dead or cannot possibly attend, he should try to arrange for his grandfather, uncle, friend of the family, an older brother, or some other adult male, to attend with him. The Pack have put a lot of work into preparing entertainment that we think is pretty good. There will be a meeting this week as usual.

5TH PETERBOROUGH

The Pack met at the cub hall in All Saints' Church last week. Akela Wooden had arranged an outside visit. The pack visited Provincial Police headquarters, and on arrival the pack were ushered into a waiting room where three OPP's acted as guides. They split into three groups. The first call was the radio room, where the Cubs had a chance to see modern police methods in action, as a radio message was received regarding a car believed to have been stolen, the guide indicating the places mentioned on the map in the room. The second stop was the filing room, where the Cubs were shown the file index on wanted men, police methods of photography and recording data on the individual cards. On a blackboard were recorded details of cars and motorcycles that had been stolen. In this room were kept details of current investigations. Next came the room in which were details of all traffic accidents. The Cubs saw another map on which the location of accidents were marked with colored pins, the color denoting the seriousness of the acident. Finally the boys returned to the waiting room where they were each handed pamphlets on road safety.

7TH PETERBOROUGH

Patrol work took the main part in the evening's program last week in St. Paul's troop, where the attendance suffered a slump. Keep up the good work, Bill Watters; your weekly report may pay dividends.

8TH PETERBOROUGH

Another grand night of fun and work was enjoyed at St. Andrew's as the Pack, led by Fred Rowell, started off along the jungle trail. Akela McLeod of St. Paul's was with us and assisted Akela in test work, with Bill Richardson, Ken Stickle, Randy Armour, and Ken Wood passing cleaning boots, Fred Rowell Union Jack, Don Gaskell somersault.

Plan To Beautify Waterfront Area

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Plans for beautification of Windsor's downtown riverfront area are going ahead following approval of two bylaws which clear the way for expropriation of land for a park, off-street parking facilities and a proposed civic auditorium.

Meanwhile, L. E. Mitchell of Montreal, special projects engineer for the Canadian National Railways, said Wednesday the railway is ready to survey Windsor's needs and requirements for new railway facilities.

A new railway station to replace the present one near the land earmarked for the park has been sought by the city for a number of years.

Earlier, railway officials said they were not prepared to enter into renovation unless the city is prepared to "do its share."

The bylaws, passed at a city council meeting which lasted into the early hours Wednesday, approved the borrowing of up to $1,500,000 to be used in acquiring the riverfront land.

Walks 11,700 Miles To Visit Niagara Falls

BUFFALO, N. Y., (AP)—Just about everyone wants to visit Niagara Falls, but Dick Cook is probably the only one who ever walked 11,700 miles on his way there.

He pulled his 450-pound red wagon into Buffalo Tuesday and said he expected to make the 20-mile trip to Niagara Falls by tonight—if he doesn't do too much visiting here.

"The secret of the whole thing is not to hurry," he said. "If I come across friendly people, I just sit around and talk for a spell. Never have a schedule."

Cook, 52, says he left his home town of Gainesville, Fla., April 1, 1951, and has hiked 11,700 miles through 44 states, at about 20 to 25 miles a day. When travel was tough or his money ran low, he worked as a cook.

He figures he's worn out 18 pairs of shoes without getting a corn or a callous.

Soviet Cruiser To UK

MOSCOW (AP)—The British embassy announced Wednesday that the Soviet Union will send the cruiser Sverdlov to participate in the Coronation naval review June 15. Britain invited Russia, along with other countries, to send a ship for the Coronation review. Last week the Russians replied they would do so.

Grant System To Schools Called Archaic

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A report of the educational finance committee of the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation Wednesday termed the present system of provincial grants to schools as "archaic."

The report, presented at the final session of the federation's two-day annual convention, said the grant system has changed little from that of 100 years ago.

"The ability of communities to pay for education has varied so much that no matter what system of grant payment has been used the poor community has always suffered or been at a disadvantage," it said.

NO EQUALITY

"It would appear" grants have been apportioned on a basis that did not "aim at equality in education," the report added.

Men teachers, the report continued, are living in communities that are unable to finance higher salaries, and the present salaries "are hopelessly inadequate."

Retiring president Everett G. Peterson of Welland said finances have a direct bearing upon the reported shortage of more than 5,000 teachers throughout Canada.

He said some source of revenue other than property taxation will have to be found to meet the rising costs of education.

Life Insurance TO PROTECT YOUR ESTATE

Long recognized as a great Estate builder, Life Insurance also plays an important role in protecting other assets of an Estate.

Succession Duties and Income Taxes, priority obligations of an Estate, must be provided for in cash before there can be any distribution to heirs. When funds are not readily available, it may be necessary to raise money by the sale of assets in an unfavourable market, at considerable sacrifice.

One way to avoid the danger of such a loss is to arrange now for Life Insurance to cover the expenses to which the Estate will later be subject.

Why not talk over, with one of our experienced Officers, plans for the protection of your Estate?

Guinness Denies Canada Trip Timid Move

LONDON (CP)—Alec Guinness says he doesn't think there's anything timid about his decision to appear in Canada this summer.

Guinness, the versatile British actor who has made a post-war reputation on stage and screen has accepted an invitation to take leading roles in two plays at a Shakespearian festival in Stratford, Ont.

In a recent column, theatre critic Harold Hobson claimed many leading British actors seemed to be taking the easy way out in Coronation year, either by appearing in old plays or leaving town. Writing in the Sunday Times, Hobson mentioned Guinness putting some "3,000 miles of ocean" between himself and London.

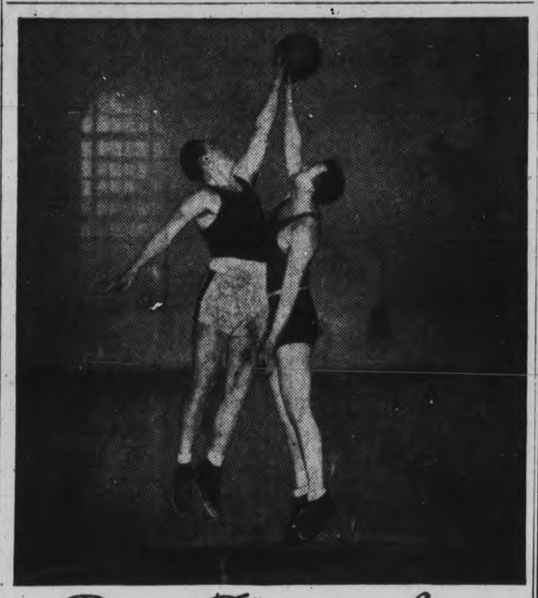
GUINNESS REPLIES

In reply, Guiness wrote:

"I do not consider that accepting an invitation to go to Canada to play in a theatre-in-the-round not yet built, in a town with a population of only 18,000, a program . . quite impossible to present commercially in the West End ("Richard III" and "All's Well That Ends Well') is entirely unadventurous. The possibilities of disaster are quite formidable."

Guinness is to appear at Stratford with British actress Irene Worth and a supporting cast of Britons and Canadians. The program marks the first presentation of what is hoped will be an annual event.

Mrs. G. T. Howden



The funeral for Mrs. George T. Howden, the former Margaret Elizabeth Kinyoun of Port Hope and formerly of Millbrook, who died Sunday, was held Wednesday from the Comstock funeral home.

The Rev. J. M. Chrisall of St. John's Anglican Church, Port Hope, conducted the service.

Pallbearers were William and Walter Howden, Alex and George Harkness, Douglas Fraser and Lewis Osland. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Maple Leaf Quartet Of Lindsay Delights Large Audience With Show

OMEMEE (ENS). — Coronation hall was almost filled Monday for a concert of unusually high quality by the Maple Leaf quartet of Lindsay, sponsored by the Omemee Volunteer Fire Brigade.

The quartet is composed of Robert Trotter, tenor; Eric Freeborn, tenor; Francis Taylor, baritone, and John Moore, bass. The versatility of these fine artists was displayed as they presented with equal ability operatic arias, classics, spirituals, and humorous numbers in solo, duet and quartet settings.

John Moore sang Verdi's bass aria "Eri Tu Che Macchiavi," "Dusty Road" by Rene, and the delightful Irish ditty, "The Dear Little Girl." John is well-known in Omemee, having grown up a few miles outside the village.

Robert Trotter sang the tenor aria "Le Fleur Que Tu M'Avais Jetee" by Bizet and two numbers by O'Hara in the French-Canadian dialect, "The Wreck Of The Julie Plante" and "Leetle Bateese." In an encore he delighted the children especially with "A Big Brown Bear."

Eric Freeborn, lyric tenor, sang the aria by Flotow, "M'appari Tutt-Amor," "I Love Life" by Mana Zucca and "The Road To The Isles."

Francis Taylor, youngest member of the quartet, was outstanding in both voice and acting ability. He sang a baritone aria by Mozart "In diesen heil 'gen Hallen" and brought down the house with his rendition of "With Her Head Tucked Underneath Her Arm" by Weston. As an encore he sang the title song from "Oklahoma."

Two duets were well received by the audience, Verdi's "Solenne in Quest 'Oro," by John Moore and Robert Trotter, and Hoffman's "I Feel Thy Angel Spirit," sung by Francis Taylor and Robert Trotter

In their group of traditional spirituals the quartet sang "Were You There" and "I'm On My Way Up There." For the third number they were assisted by Miss Madeline Geach of Lindsay who sang a soprano obligato to the quartet's rendition of "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot." Also adding delight to the program was Miss June Waddell, contralto, who sang Aylward's "Beloved It Is Morn."

The quartet opened and closed the program with Rodger's "It's A Grand Night For Singing" and during the evening sang "It's O, To Be A Wild Wind" by Elgar, "The Old Woman" by Robertson, an exceptionally fine setting of Jerome Kern's "Old Man River." "Fantasie Of Sea Songs" arranged by James, "Kansas City" by Rodgers and "Dear Land Of Home" by Sibelius.

The artists are all senior pupils of Mr. Robert Cutt of Lindsay who accompanied them throughout the program.

Denounces Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Yu Chan Yang, South Korean ambassador to the United States Wednesday denounced any plans to settle the Korean conflict without unifying the country. He said the South Korean republic would carry on the fight against communism in the Far East alone if necessary, even "if it means annihilation of the Korean race."

Actor Seeking $63,666 In Compensation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Franchot Tone seeks $63,666.66 in insurance compensation for "accidental" injuries received on the day of his celebrated fist fight for the love of actress Barbara Payton.

Tone's suit does not, however, mention the brawl he lost to actor Tom Neal which put him in a hospital for facial repairs.

Although Tone won the girl, it was only temporary. Miss Payton divorced him a few months after their marriage.

The fight was Sept. 14, 1951, the day concerned in the suit Tone filed Wednesday against Lloyd's of London.

The complaint said only that on that day Tone "sustained bodily injury caused by accidental, violent and visible means." He claims he suffered facial disfigurement and impairment of his voice, permanently interfering with his actor's work.

The claim is based on a 1948 $100,000 accident policy. Tone says he filed a claim last May 8 but Lloyd's refused to pay on the ground the injuries were not accidental.

Wins Top Award

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—John M. Miller's dramatic picture of a returned Korean veteran embracing his fiancee brought the Seattle Post-Intelligencer news photographer the top award Wednesday in the 1952 Associated Press national contest for excellence in news photography. "Back from Korea," shows the soldier and his fiancee on a Seattle pier amid a litter of paper cups left behind by troops dis-embarking from a troop transport.

Immigrant Held For Murder

ATIKOKAN (CP)—A Finnish immigrant in Canada less than 16 months was charged with murder Wednesday in the deaths of a man and woman in a remote lumber camp 22 miles north of here.

Slain were Mrs. Kauko Tuusa, 28, and Nesteri Raninen, 31. Police blamed the deaths on a mixture of jealousy and liquor.

Constables of the Ontario provincial police arrested Nulo Karhalainen, a 33-year-old immigrant bushworker. He is to appear in court at Fort Frances today.

Police said Raninen was killed by a bullet from a .306 rifle in the presence of his wife. The slug crashed through the window of his house at the camp owned by the Minnesota Pulp and Paper Company. A few minutes later, Mrs. Tuusa heard a knock at her door and the blast of a rifle met her as she opened it.

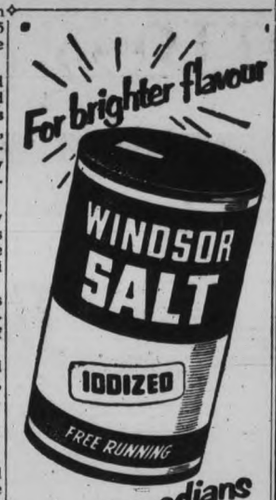
Russ Embassy Gives Half Crown To Scout

LONDON (Reuters)—A British Boy Scout Wednesday earned 35 cents out of Russia's new "peace offensive."

Scout John Jackson knocked on the Soviet Embassy door and offered to clip the embassy's hedges for a shilling. This week, Scouts throughout Britain are doing jobs for a shilling, commonly called a bob, in a Bob-a-Job fund-raising campaign.



A smiling Russian secretary handed Jackson a pair of clippers and in a half-hour he had done a neat job on Ambassador Andrei Gromyko's hedges.

The secretary shook the Scout's hand and, with a broad smile, slipped him a half crown instead of the expected shilling.

"I really don't think I earned the half crown," Jackson said, "they wanted me to take more."

Second Chance

FREDERICTON (CP) — Annual police report to the legislature showed 608 applicants failed to pass their driving tests in the last nine months of 1952. But 367 of them won permits on the second trial. The test is conducted by RCMP officers except in the larger cities of New Brunswick.

Attends Easter Sunrise Service In Hollywood

In a letter to the Examiner, Mrs. L. R. Groombridge of Chemong Rd. described the Hollywood Bowl Easter service she attended while holidaying in California.

Leaving Los Angeles in the early morning for the Hollywood area, Mrs. Groombridge arrived there and stopped at a roadside clearing.

"By now the air was full of movement and color while the grey mists of morning clouds eddied and floated around us. Now we were part of the throng all moving to the one Mecca."

Access was gained to the great bowl by ascending a long ramp. Once inside, "wrapping ourselves in our blankets and settling our pillows we watched the throng arrive and, looking about us, found we were in a beautifully terraced amphitheatre with eucalyptus trees on one side and terraces on the other. The seats were divided by green hedges in long sections.

18,000 ATTEND

"The 33rd annual sunrise service was attended by about 18,000. For the most part people sat quiet and expectantly. A few whispered and gazed at the brave ones who sported new Easter finery, knowing the fine misty rain falling would do much to lessen its crispness.

"Suddenly a bell gonged out five strokes indicating it was time the service would start. Lights flashed and in a bright white light on a terrace high up on our left were 10 maidens dressed in white. With one movement they rose trumpets to their lips sounding the 'Gloria Patri,' the Sunrise trumpet call. As their call ended the lights faded and they disappeared. Then lights came on and in front of us was the rounded shell, deep blue in the background gradually getting paler until the outer shell was a gentle glowing white."

"The service started then and concluded with the orchestra playing 'Dona Nobis Pacem.'

"To the chimes playing on the carillonic bells the people rose and like a moving river began to go down the hillsides and away.

"Such an Easter service I shall never forget and I feel privileged that I have been fortunate to have seen and attended such an inspiring ceremony."

A CORONATION SCENE — IX

QUEEN IS CROWNED—Climax of the Coronation service of Queen Elizabeth is the moment when the Archbishop of Canterbury places on her bowed head the sacred crown, that of St. Edward the Confessor, which has been used for the crowning of 39 kings and queens. In this artist's drawing of the ceremony to be enacted in Westminster Abbey next June the young Queen sits a moment before going forth to her life work of leadership.

DIED UNDER HANDCAR

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A coroner's jury Wednesday night found that Jack Brothers, 23, of Stratford and London, was decapitated when a handcar's wheels passed over him near the Canadian National Railways-Highbury Avenue crossing, March 27. The verdict noted also that Brothers was riding on the car "without permission from the proper authorities of the CNR."

Mayor Has Boundless Energy

TORONTO (CP)—The supermayor of the newly-created Toronto metropolitan area is Fred Gardiner, a 48-year-old corporation lawyer whose accomplishments bear out the old adage that "if you want to get a job done, get a busy man to do it."

So busy is this former reeve of adjoining Forest Hill Village that his recollections of his favorite sports of golfing and fishing have become almost as dim as memories of his basketball playing in his student days.

The pattern of his life as president of Mission Sawmills Company of British Columbia, vice-president of McQuay Tanning Company of Owen Sound and of Supreme Aluminum Industries of Toronto, and a director of several other firms, was set during his high school days when his energy and enthusiasm brought him a scholarship in political science.

The beetle-browed grandfather knows almost every inch of Toronto and the 12 suburbs in the metropolitan area. As chairman of the 24-man metropolitan council, which will hold its organizational meeting April 15, he will receive $15,000 a year.

He is interested in sewage disposal and waterworks problems but he says a metropolitan system of highways is uppermost in his mind. He says construction of a waterfront by-pass highway to ease traffic congestion should be given priority over other problems.

Hopes Early End To Month-Long Strike

STRATFORD (CP)—Hope for an early end to the month-long Swift Canadian Company strike was voiced Wednesday night by alderman F. W. Cox on his return from a conference with chief conciliator Louis Fine of the Ontario labor department.

Although he declined to give details about his meeting with Mr. Fine, Mr. cox termed it "thoroughly satisfactory."

He said he, with Ald. A. G. Skidmore, who accompanied him, would submit a report on the conference to a city council committee meeting April 14. Aim of the Toronto visit early in the day, he said, was to gain "direction and advice" on ways to effect a strike settlement.

Soon Have To Compel Processing In Canada

SARNIA (CP)—Government policy to compel the processing in Canada of Canadian mineral resources must soon be established, J. W. Murphy, Progressive Conservative MP for Lambton West, said Wednesday night.

A similar policy related to pulpwood resources had resulted in a Canadian newsprint industry second to none in the world, he said.

In an address before the St. Clairview chapter of the Rebecca Lodge Mr. Murphy said: "Our first consideration must be to employ our tremendous national resources in the best interests of Canada and Canadians.

ST. PETER'S JUNIOR SODALITY chose Miss Marlene O'Neill (centre) as the 1953 Bunny Queen and she was crowned at the annual Easter formal dance, the Bunny Hop. Standing behind is her sister Miss Lillian O'Neill, prefect of the Sodality. At the Queen's left is vice prefect Miss Marie Begley who placed the crown and at her right is the latter's twin sister, Miss Theresa Begley who was runner-up to the Bunny Queen. —Duke Studio Photo

Jr. Sodality "Bunny Hop"

The Easter Bunny Hop of the St. Peter's Sodality was a gay affair of Wednesday evening in the auditorium of St. Joseph's nurses' residence. Drums were rolled to announce the arrival of this year's Bunny Queen, Miss Marlene O'Neill, and the crowning ceremony took place during the dance.

Miss O'Neill was attended by Miss Theresa Begley who was runner-up for the honor. Sodality prefect Miss Lillian O'Neill explained that the queen was selected on a basis of her good work and co-operation during the year. The crowning was performed by vice prefect Miss Marie Begley and the prefect presented a bouquet of red roses to the queen, and a gift to her attendant. Miss Helen Strano, moderator of the sodality, was presented with a corsage in appreciation of her help.

The Rev. R. J. Garvey, spiritual director, addressed the guests and also made the draw on a toy bunny that was being raffled. The winner was Margaret Sheehan, Weller St.

Spot dance winners were Phyllis Gosselin and Elmer Gosselin and Kathy Howell and Leo Ross.

Trinity Mothers Hear Of CAS Work

Baby Band mothers of Trinity United Church met Wednesday evening and had as their guest speaker Miss Rachael Young, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, who gave the group an insight into the worthwhile work they do, not only in the city, but the county as well, working with all religious groups. Some cases are referred to the Society, but about one-third come on their own, Miss Young stated.

She spoke of the many problems the agency is called up to help solve, such as the home where the living conditions are below minimum standards; of the unmarried mother who feels a great need for love and affection which is so often lacking in her homelife; and of the care of the babies either in foster homes or by adoption. At present there is a waiting list of from two and one-half to three years for adoptions.

Miss Young stressed the importance of community attitude toward wards of the Children's Aid. "They must not be pitied and protected; but treated the same as other children," she said.

Some of the money used in this important work comes from the Red Cross Community Fund. Layettes are made and donated by various organizations; the Baby Band Mothers being one of these. Each week a sewing meeting is held at the Home by church groups, to mend clothes and make new ones.

Miss Young was introduced by Mrs. W. B. Gordon and thanked by Mrs. O. Jamieson.

The program was in charge of Mrs. T. Clarke's group. Mrs. H. Coon read the scripture, Mrs. T. Clarke the meditation and Mrs. R. McDonald offered prayer. Two piano selections were given by Elizabeth Latimer and little Christine Logan played two piano solos. These very young artists delighted the group with their selections.

Mrs. Wm. Taylor presided for the business meeting. New members introduced were Mrs. Gordon S. Maxwell, Mrs. John Murray, and Mrs. Herbert Henry.

Reports wre received from the various convenors and committees, and Mrs. W. B. Arnup, Mite Box Secretary, gave an interesting paper on Africa, the first in a series.

The springtime tea is to be held Wednesday, April 29th and Mrs. J. Skitch is general convenor. She discussed final plans with the members. Mrs. Wm. Wildman and Mrs. T. Clarke were appointed convenors for the annual picnic, to be held in June at Nicholl's Oval. Mrs. T. Clarke's group served lunch at the close of the meeting.

PIONEER NIGHT was presented last night in the hall of St. Luke's Anglican Church by members of the congregation, featuring songs and skits of the Victorian era. Members of the cast which took part in the program, including a short play "Pepper and Spice" are shown above. At front, from the left are Mrs. Alice Leach, Mrs. J. W. Ebbs, Eleanor Watson and Mrs. R. G. Maniece. At back (left to right) are Mrs. W. J. Gilling, Tom Gracie, Mrs. John McKibbin and Mrs. Cecil Hope. —Examiner Staff Photo

"Surplus Sale" To Raise Funds YW Convention

All groups of the YWCA are busy this week arranging for the "Surplus Sale" which will be held this Friday and Saturday in the Y. The sale has been planned to raise money for sending delegates to the Y National Convention being held in Quebec this June.

It is a sale of "surplus articles" possibly put into discard during housecleaning in some homes. Dishes, glassware, ornaments, antiques, pictures, jewellery, furniture, books, curtains, games, toys, children's clothing, dresses, coats, hats and shoes are expected in the collection.

A surplus sale committee composed of representatives from all Y groups was set up and put under direction of Mrs. Walter Perks and Mrs. Stan McBride. The members have telephoned some Y members and friends asking for donations, and are hoping that others will also contribute.

Sale hours on Friday are 12 to 9 p.m. and on Saturday 9 to 12 a.m.

300 Enjoy YW Bunny Tea

An event that even brings young guests from Toronto is the annual Bunny Tea of the YWCA swim department. On Wednesday afternoon there were 300 children came for the tea, all dressed in Easter finery and looking as adorable as well-behaved tea guests of two and a half to ten years can look.

They were greeted in the lobby by two bunnies (who were really Cathryn and Sharon Porter), and a squirrel (who appeared later as David Epston), and each was given a pink felt bunny lapel ornament to wear to the tea. On the tables there were candy baskets as favors.

The tea was in the gymnasium where a false ceiling of mauve, yellow and green streamers and clusters of balloons gave a festive appearance and bunny, duck and chicken cut-outs on the walls carried out the Easter theme.

A magician's tricks kept the children entertained for three quarters of an hour and also held the rapt attention of the adults present. Mr. Ted Bradshaw highlighted his sleight of hand performance by bringing out a live bunny. A tap dancing number by Joanne Whitton was also appreciated.

Refreshments for the children included sandwiches and bunny cookies with orange drink and the mothers had tea.

Draw prize of this event was a stuffed bunny which was won by Joan Mahoney. Three year old Lynne Strickland made the draw.

Miss Roselyn Stone, health education director of the Y, was assisted by the swim department committee and various classes and groups in this very successful effort. Proceeds were expected to be almost $100, an increase over last year, and are to go entirely to the Y World Service Fund.

The tea convener was Mrs. R. L. Wilkinson; Mrs. John Buckley was refreshment convener; Mrs. W. J. Hardill and Mrs. Clarence Porter were in charge of decorating; Mrs. B. Epston and Mrs. E. G. Baker looked after the entertainment and Mrs. J. E. Watters was master of ceremonies.

The felt bunnies were made by the Monday swimming classes; the candy baskets by the Tuesday gym class; sandwiches were made by the health education committee and bunny cookies by the Senior Swim Club; serving and assisting in other ways were members of KCY Co-Eds, health education committee, swimmers' mothers, members of Aquatic Club and of the Rotary handicapped swimmers' class.

Crowd at St. Luke's Enjoys "Pioneer Night"

"Pioneer Night", arranged by St. Luke's Church Year, drew a large crowd to the St. Luke's parish hall on Wednesday evening. Their attendance was rewarded with a most entertaining program, spiced with comedy, and an opportunity to sing the favorite songs of long ago.

The 75th anniversary play titled "Pepper and Spice" was presented again by request. It is the story of the first harvest festival at St. Luke's in 1876 and the Rev. John McKibbon of Campbellford takes the part of the first rector, the Rev. Mr. Bradshaw. Mrs. R. G. Maniece plays the rector's wife and parts of other parishioners are taken by Mrs. Alice Leach, Mrs. John Ebbs, Mrs. Cecil Hope and Mrs. W. J. Gilling.

Mrs. McKibbin highlighted the program with her Victorian songs, "Only a bird in a gilded cage" and "Walter, Walter, lead me to the altar." Then she and Mr. McKibbin did a skit on "Proposals then and now." They received resounding applause at each appearance. Mrs. J. O. Benor of Campbellford was Mrs. McKibbin's accompanist.

Miss Eleanor Watson was pianist for the play and played for the group singing which was led by Mr. Tom Gracie. The rector, Canon W. J. Gilling, was chairman. Mr. Max Swanston related the early history of Ashburnham previous to the play.

Chick and Bunny Cut-Outs Tea Decorations

A most delightful Easter tea was held Wednesday afternoon by the King's Own Bible Class of St. James' United Church. They had about 200 guests and entertained them in a veritable Easter parade of bunnies, ducks and tiny chicks.

The decorative cut-outs, all in natural colors, were everywhere in the tea room and showed up too on the bazaar tables. Small serving tables were centred with little nests of candy eggs each guarded by a fluffy chick and these novelties were made by Mrs. W. Downer.

Mrs. H. F. Doig did the main tea table and it was exceptionally lovely with the bouquet set in clouds of mauve and yellow tulle dotted with fluffy forms of yellow baby chicks. The flowers she chose were mauve sweet peas and stocks and she arranged them in a silver basket and put yellow candles in matching holders.

Tea pourers for the afternoon were Mrs. A. Clark and Mrs. G. Pearson and serving were Mrs. K. Sloane, Mrs. E. Hunter, Mrs. W. Downer, Mrs. W. Morrison, Mrs. J. H. Freeman, Mrs. L. Allen, Mrs. N. Gilders, Mrs. J. Manley, Mrs. M. Hess and Mrs. L. Webb. The tea was made by Mrs. Pullyblank and Mrs. E. Kent assisted in arranging the refreshments. Assisting Mrs. Doig to replenish the table were Mrs. B. Pitchford and Mrs. E. Lillico.

Young Misses Ruth Pitchford and Carol Orvis provided a setting of piano music for the tea while Anne Gibson operated a baby-sitting service for guests upstairs.

Streamers in the Easter colors marked off the tea room section, and beyond were the bazaar tables. Home baking and candy stocks were completely sold out and the miscellaneous table was considerably depleted. Mrs. L. Bird and Mrs. J. Finnie sold the baking, Mrs. Frank Turner and Mrs. H. Ball the candy and Mrs. C. Murduff and Mrs. Marcus Fowler were in charge of the aprons and novelties.

Some of the quilts made by the sewing committee of the class were on display, only one being without a "sold" sign. Mrs. K. Sloane is convener of the sewing and the ladies often meet three times a week. Since January they have made about nine quilts. Often they do custom quilting.

Mrs. L. Gibson, president of the class, and vice president Mrs. W. A. Poast welcomed the tea guests. Their tickets were taken by Miss M. Collins.

PCVS Choral Club To Give Concert

A coming event worthy of patronage is the PCVS Choral Club's concert being held next Wednesday evening, April 15th, in the Collegiate auditorium.

Because of the interest shown in the club's achievements at the Toronto Festival recently, it has been decided to hold this sixth annual concert separately from the school band.

The program will present songs by a mixed choir, a girls' double trio and a girls' triple trio, a mixed quartette and the boys in a barbershop chorus. There will also be a piano duo number by Betty Lapp and Mary McBride who are playing for the choir and the chorus. The trios each have their own accompanists.

There are 82 girls in the choral club now and they are directed by Mr. Melvin J. Curtis. At the Kiwanis Festival in Toronto early this year they placed first in one group and second in another and won the shield for the best class of school girl choirs. Last year, with a 75-voice choir, they were also first and second in two classes of the Festival and were afterward invited to sing in Massey Hall in the "Stars of the Festival" concert.

Lakefield Couple Honored On Golden Wedding Day

LAKEFIELD (ENS).— Mr. and Mrs. William James Charlton were at home to their friends on Wednesday afternoon and evening on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary, and hundreds from the village and surrounding district called to offer congratulations.

The afternoon reception was held at their home, Regent Street, where a three-tier wedding cake centred the table, flanked on either side by bowls of roses. Tea was poured by Mrs. John Hendren, Mrs. Ed. Dunford, Mrs. Evie Dunford, all of Lakefield, and Mrs. E. Rowe of Peterborough. Assisting in serving were three granddaughters, Margaret Calberry, Jean Lee, and Barbara Charlton, Mrs. W. H. Fife and Mrs. Harold Hamblin.

Following the afternoon reception the family were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charlton at a dinner, served by the Women's Association, in the United Church Sunday School rooms.

The evening reception was held in Memorial Hall, where the guests enjoyed euchre and dancing. Assisting in serving the evening refreshments were two daughters, Mrs. M. Calberry and Mrs. Charles Lee, and two daughters-in-law, Mrs. Arthur Charlton and Mrs. Roger Charlton.

Mrs. Charlton was the former Margaret Ann Hurl, and she and her husband were married in the Presbyterian manse — the house now occupied by Mrs. W. R. Archer — by the Rev. Charles Campbell.

For the first six years of their married life they resided in the village, where Mr. Charlton was employed by the Lakefield-Portland Cement Co. They then moved to the family homestead in Douro where they lived for 10 years, moving from there to their farm in Smith where Mr. Charlton farmed for 28 years. Several years ago they retired and moved back to Lakefield.

They have two sons, Arthur Charlton and Roger Charlton, both of Smith, and two daughters, Mrs. M. Calberry of Lakefield and Mrs. Charles Lee of Lakefield Highway. A son Laurence was killed overseas in the Second World War. There are 14 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Among the many gifts received by the happy couple were gold watches from their children, and two gold-lined cups and saucers, a teapot and cream and sugar from their neighbors in Smith. The Women's Association, of which Mrs. Charlton is a member, presented them with a basket of yellow roses, and their eldest granddaughter, Mrs. T. J. Chalmers, the former Lillian Calberry, now living in Courtenay, B.C., who was unable to be present, also sent flowers.

DOROTHY DIX:

Woman's Facial Defect Makes Her Very Sensitive

DEAR MISS DIX: Some of us are born with beauty; some are not, and I'm one of the latter. My features aren't bad with the exception of my nose which is quite prominent. I have always been self-conscious about it, and have been subjected to many taunts. I'm in my late thirties now and the defect seems to bother me more as I grow older. Young people, especially, seem to find my nose amusing and their rudeness is making me so uncomfortable that I hate to go out.

I should be very happy, as I have a fine husband and nice children. I'd like to have plastic surgery done, but it is so very expensive.

MRS. A.

❖ ❖ ❖

ANSWER: I'm sure you're making much more of a slight defect than it warrants. Since you have a good husband, have a nice family and home, you have achieved the most important things in life. Doesn't the thoughtlessness of others seem trivial in comparison?

As young people aren't accustomed to feasting their eyes on undiluted beauty all day, I'm sure your nose attracts far less attention than you imagine. Proper make-up, and the right type of hat, will tend to detract attention from the prominent feature.

TOO SENSITIVE

If you are interested in plastic surgery, why not investigate its possibilities instead of dismissing the whole idea with the shrug of being "too expensive"? You live in a city noted for its fine hospital. Find out which one specializes in this type of work, and make an appointment to present your problem. The fee may not be as large as you expect.

First and foremost, however, you must not be so sensitive about your appearance. As you say, everyone is not born beautiful, but most people do learn to live with their defects. In fact, as a glance over a show-business roster will show you, some folks have become famous by turning physical flaws into assets. Large noses, mouths, or ears are not scarce among the great of the amusement world. Surely, these folks didn't go through childhood without hearing taunting remarks. However, rising above such trivialities, they achieved the heights of stardom. No one expects you to become a television star, but you can most assuredly ignore the rudeness of a few outsiders and take pleasure in the admiration of your family.

❖ ❖ ❖

DEAR MISS DIX: We are two sisters 19 and 21. Our mother has made a ruling that twice-a-month dance dates are sufficient for girls our age. Even these must be double dates. Do you think she's being fair to us?

EVE AND DEE

❖ ❖ ❖

ANSWER: You certainly should be entitled to more liberal dating privileges. If your mother can't trust girls of your age, when does she expect to trust you? Since you are both working, surely she must realize that you have grown past the stage of constant chaperonage. Could you get some friend, or relative, to intercede for you?

❖ ❖ ❖

DEAR MISS DIX: My girl friend and I disagree on the closing of a letter. We both write to servicemen whom we have known from childhood. We regard them just as friends, but she signs her letters, "Love, so and so," while I feel this may be misunderstood.

❖ ❖ ❖

ANSWER: "Love" as a closing to a letter, even to a friend, is quite commonplace and usually carries no particular significance. It is quite possible, though, that the boy might misunderstand, so to prevent future hard feelings, it would be wiser to use a closing that will not be misunderstood.

MR. AND MRS. W. J. CHARLTON, Regent St., Lakefield, celebrated Wednesday their golden wedding anniversary. They received many gifts, cards and flowers from friends and relatives congratulating them on their 50 years of marriage. Mr. and Mrs. Charlton (above) cut the anniversary cake. They proudly displayed another cake, the top of their wedding cake. (Examiner Staff Photo.)

Meat Loaf Made With Care

Meat loaves do not have to be humble fare. With a little thoughtful manipulation they can be raised to the status of dinner for guests. My friend Margie is the gal who does it too.

What would you think of paying $1.20 for the meat for a meat loaf to serve ten people? That ought to be music to the ears of many a budget-balancer.

This meat loaf looks like a roast of meat when reposing on the platter before the carver, for it has a shiny brown glaze.

MARGIE'S MEAT LOAF

Two lbs. ground beef, 1 lb. ground pork from the shoulder. (If you have made a friend of your butcher he may grind these 2 meats together for you.) You also need 1 cup quick-cooking oatmeal and 1 cup of prepared breakfast cereal such as corn or bran flakes or rice krispies, 2 eggs, ¼ to ½ cup tomato juice, 2 teaspoons salt and ½ teaspoon crumbled marjoram or oregano. (If you do not have either of these last two herbs on hand use sage.) Mix all of those ingredients together well in a large bowl. Shape into an oval something like a football and place on a lightly buttered flat baking dish. Cover with the following glaze: ½ cup catsup, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, ½ teaspoon dry mustard, ½ cup hot water. (Instead of water, once Margie used the juice from a 10-oz. tin of button mushrooms, and the mushrooms.) Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1¾ hours. Transfer to hot platter and garnish with parsley. Margie served new green beans with this and scalloped potatoes. She decided on scalloped potatoes because they would bake at the same temperature and for the same time as the meat loaf. She served a marvellous fruit cup consisting of her own home canned melon balls and peaches and pineapple and fresh grapefruit sections and sliced bananas. Her 15-year-old daughter Anne made a glorious angel food cake—but that's another story.

The point to remember is that that meat loaf served ten adequately and it was delicious

❖ ❖ ❖

ANSWER (to Mrs. F.H.T., continued): Figure on 8 pecks of potatoes to make enough potato salad to serve 160—this leaves you some extra, but it is one of the least expensive items you will be serving, and you can go around with extra bowls of it offering a second helping which is always a generous gesture. If the potatoes are new they should be cooked with skins on, but potatoes are old at this time of year and usually darken when boiled with skins on. You will need nearly 4 quarts salad dressing. Amount of potatoes depends on what other ingredients you are adding to the potato salad. Reduce the potatoes in proportion to other ingredients added, such as celery, green onions, hard-cooked eggs, parsley, cucumber, etc.

Twenty-two lbs. shredded cabbage will serve 150 adequately—and I think since it is such a big job to shred it you should do it the night before and store it in refrigerator in plastic bags or double towels. Cole slaw requires less dressing than potato salad. Why not use French dressing to change it entirely from the mayonnaise in the potato salad. Make your own French dressing. It would cost too much to buy it in small jars.

I answered your questions re meat loaf above. You could use 1½ cups quick-cooking oatmeal and omit the packaged cereal. Make the tea in separate batches. Three ozs. of tea brewed for 4 minutes in 6½ quarts boiling water will serve 50. Pour the tea off the leaves, into preheated porcelain pots. Have one girl looking after the tea—so that it is fresh, brewed exactly the right number of minutes, and kept as hot as possible.

I WANT 2,000 PEOPLE TO TRY SYNTONA FOR ONLY 25 CENTS

SUFFERERS FROM STOMACH TROUBLE, WEAK KIDNEYS, LAZY LIVER, NERVOUSNESS AND GENERAL RUNDOWN CONDITION

WHAT IT IS!

SYNTONA is an advanced medical comoound of 12 of the finest medicinal herbs, and not one a habit-forming drug. It is taken before meals and mixes with the food in one's stomach, thus throwing off the poisons that foster stomach troubles. It acts within ten minutes to stop gas and pains, sourness, bloating and belching. At the same time SYNTONA drives the poisons from the kidneys and relieves backaches, bladder irritation and weakness.

WHAT IT DOES!

It acts on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It DRIVES OUT rheumatic and neuritic pains, puts a stop to boils, pimples and other common blood disorders by ELIMINATING THE CAUSE! It builds strong, healthy nerves. It will free your system of its over-supply of acidity. Those ravaging acids that accumulate and irritate your stomach—fill you with gas—sour your food and cause constipation.

Now, whether SYNTONA will help you as it has thousands of others — whether it will end your sufferings in a day or week—remains to be seen, but in the light of what it has done for others, it is surely a mistake not to try it for 25c, only a fraction of its worth. This introductory offer is good this week ONLY. Act at once. Do this in fairness to yourself and your family.

Measles Top List Of Diseases

Measles continued to lead the list of communicable diseases in Peterborough during March.

Dr. J. P. Wells, medical officer of health, reported at the Board of Health meeting Wednesday afternoon that 343 of the 379 communicable diseases reported to the department during the month were measles.

The remainder of the diseases reported were: chickenpox, 10; German measles, 3; mumps, 6; scarlet fever, 5; whooping cough, 5; infectious jaundice, 5; dysentery, 1; syphilis, 1.

Dr. Wells also reported that three referred chest clinics were held during the month with a total attendance of 121. One old re-activated case was admitted to sanitorium and one case discharged.

Fifteen child health clinics were held with a total attendance of 240. The new aspect in the child health clinic picture is the new accommodation for the south end clinic held for the first time in St. George's Anglican Church, March 18. Formerly these clinics were held in the De Laval plant.

Miss Gene Clark, supervisor of nurses reported that staff nurses made 376 visits to home and 649 visits to indivuals during the month.

Miss Clark also reported that the immunization program in the city's Separate Schools was carried out in March.

Miss Marion Parks' application for a six-months' leave of absence to attend the coronation and spend some time in Europe was approved. The leave will begin in May.

Eastview Principal Heads Association

OTTAWA (CP) — Ovide Proulx, principal of suburban Eastview high school, today was elected president of the Ontario French Teaching Association at the conclusion of a two-day convention.

Mr. Proulx succeeds Arthur Savard of Ottawa, who was named a governor of the association.

Brother Frederic of Hawkesbury was elected first vice-president, Lucien Renaud of Minnow Lake second vice-president, and Miss Anne Mary Deschesne of Ottawa, third vice-president. Miss Louretta Levesque of Ottawa, was elected secretary-treasurer.

Some 300 French teachers from across Ontario attended the convention. Salary, working conditions and every day problems of the teachers were discussed.

Insist New School Built On Old Site

NESTORVILLE (CP) — A minority school board group said today it won't pay taxes if the board builds a new school anywhere other than on the site of the old one.

A school board majority in this community of 160 persons favors putting the new $10,000 school, to which $9,200 is to be contributed by the Ontario government, on a site owned by a lumber company.

Taxes of the minority group are needed for the town to raise $800 to help pay for the school. Nestorville is about 50 miles east of Sault Ste. Marie.

Pope Warns Against "False Gods"

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Pope today warned against "false gods," whose philosophies lead to decline and ruin. He clearly indicated his conviction these false gods include communism.

The Pope spoke in French to some 7,000 pilgrims including Canadians received in audience in the chambers of the Vatican palace.

He urged his listeners to live irreprochable lives anchored solidly in Christianity.

Those who live negatively, he said, "neither conquer the earth nor win heaven."

Directing his words especially to students and teachers of the Sorbonne, Paris, of whom there were many in the gathering, the Pope urged them to broaden their outlook to include all countries and all people, and to dedicate themselves to social jjustice.

DENIES ACCUSATIONS

Again, as he has many times in the past, the pontiff denied accusations—most frequently voiced by Communist authorities—that the Roman Catholic Church opposes labor and laboring classes.

No organization, he said, is more impartially concerned for all classes than is the church.

The Pope advised his listeners not to be disconcerted at what might seem to be contradictions between science and their religion.

"In your studies and scientific research," he said, "be assured that there can be no possible contradiction between faith and science.

"Nature, like revelation, comes from God and God cannot contradict Himself."

Find New Pill Temporarily Halts Leukemia

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

CHICAGO (AP)—A new pill often stops leukemia, incurable cancer of the blood, for a while, it was announced today.

It is the first in a new family of drugs that show promise against leukemia. It is not a cure. Like other anti-leukemia drugs, it brings only a few extra months of life and health—up to six months—and it doesn't benefit all victims.

The drug is named 6-mercaptopurine, nicknamed MP. In effect, it throws a monkey wrench into cancerous leukemic cells. It closely resembles a chemical adenine, which the cancerous cells need for life. It's just enough different so that when cancer cells start using it, it jams their machinery.

Its development was announced today to the American Association for Cancer Research by a team of physicians and scientists from Memorial Centre for Cancer and Allied Diseases, and Sloan-Kettering Institute for Cancer Research, New York, and the Wellcome research laboratories, Tuckahoe, N.Y. Y.

Used on 45 children with acute or fast-acting leukemia, MP temorarily knocked out the disease in 14 youngsters, and substantially improved 11 others, said Drs. Joseph H. Butchenal, David A. Karnofsky, M. Lois Murphy, Rose-Ruth Ellison and C. P. Rhoads of Memorial Centre.

The good effects lasted one to six months, then the disease flared up again when patients became resistant to the drug. This is true of all other anti-leukemia drugs.

Mrs. H. Gainey Funeral Saturday

The funeral of Mrs. Harry Gainey who died suddenly at her home, 368 Rubidge St. will take place Saturday morning at 9.30 a.m. from her late residence to St. Peter's Cathedral. Interment will be at St. Peter's Cemetery.

Mrs. Gainey had apparently collapsed and died while preparing to retire for the night some time after 11.30 p.m. Tuesday. She had been living alone since the death of her husband. The second of telephone conversations with her son and daughter Tuesday night was around 11.30 p.m. Her body was found on the floor of her room Wednesday at noon. The family doctor suggested then that she had been dead about eight hours.

The death of Mrs. Gainey has been a shock to her friends and the members of her family. She had always appeared to be in good health, and there had been no sign to her children of any impairment of strength. It was believed that death had been caused by a heart attack.

after 11.30 p.m. Tuesday. She had attack. She was a member of the Catholic Women's League, St. Peter's Altar Society, and the Women's Auxiliary of St. Joseph's Hospital.

Mrs. Gainey was born at New Hamburg, Ontario. Her maiden name was Clara Schultz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Schultz. She leaves her daughter, Mrs. Helen O'Toole of Peterborough, and two sons, Harry of Hamilton and John of Peterborough, and two sisters, Mrs. T. Campbell of New Hamburg, and Mrs. Louis Buckle of Youngstown, O.

Her husband, M. H. Gainey, died nearly four years ago.

Frozen Bread Proves Popular

NEW YORK (AP) — Arnold Bakers, Inc., today announced it is beginning the large-scale marketing of frozen bread to consumers in many areas of the country for the first time in the history of the bread industry.

The company said frozen bread will tend to eliminate the problem of stale and left-over bread and will have a better flavor. It forecast an ultimate reduction in bread prices because frozen bread will reduce returns of stale loaves to the bakers and permit bakeries to work at capacity on slack days, cutting down on the necessity of overtime pay and eliminating holiday work.

The company added that more than 1,000,000 loaves of frozen bread have been sold experimentally and that acceptance has been excellent.

OBITUARIES

MISS HENRIETTA WHITE

BEWDLEY (ENS)—Another lifelong resident of Hamilton Township, in the person of Miss Henrietta (Hattie) White, was laid to rest Tuesday afternoon in the family plot in Bewdley cemetery.

The last member of the White family, Miss Whie died in Cobourg Friday night at the age of 89. Until recent years whe she went to Cobourg, she had spent her entire life on the homestead farm.

The funeral service was held at Georges' funeral home in Port Hope with Rev. J. M. Crisall, Port Hope, conducting the services there and at the graveside.

Miss White is survived by a few nieces and nephews. The pall bearers were all one-time neighbors, Messrs. Arthur Buttars, Andy Rosevere, Bill Benson, Stan Little, Frank Halligan and William Gordon.

HILLIARD McCALLISTER

BEWDLEY (ENS)—Funeral services for Hilliard McCallister were held Monday afternoon from his late residence in Bewdley with Rev. P. H. Gardiner of Canton conducting the service.

Mr. McCallister died Thursday evening at the home of his daughter, Mrs. William Whitehead, after an illness of several months. He was in his 84th year, and the last member of a family of six, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jim McCallister. He had spent his entire life in Hope township on his farm about two miles south of Bewdley and west of Highway 28, until about eight years ago when he and his wife, on retiring, moved into the village.

Fifty-nine years ago in March he married Grace Kinsman, also of this locality. They had six children, all of whom had been assisting their mother in the recent care of their father.

Mr. McCallister was a man of quiet and retiring nature and highly esteemed in the community. Beside his widow his bereaved family are: Mrs. Wiliam Whitehead (Mae) near Bewdley, Mrs. George Watkins (Anne), Dale, and Mrs. Alman Taylor (Gladys), Port Hope; also three sons, Frank and Harold of Bewdley and Stanley, Port Hope, and eight grandchildren.

There were many beautiful floral tributes and the funeral was very largely attended. Pallbearers were Messrs. Irwin Whitehead, Fred Maybee, Kenneth Benson, Robert Dixon, Will Kennedy and Charlie Huntington. Interment was made in the Providence cemetery.

Friends and relatives attending the funeral and calling previously were from Toronto, Oshawa, Orillia, Brechin, Lindsay, Peterborough and Port Hope as well as the surrounding community.

Legion Members To Present Ministrel Show

Something above the level of a who-was-dat-lady-I-seen-you-wif last-night routine is promised for tonight when Branch No. 52 of the Canadian Legion presents "Darky Daze", a minstrel and variety show.

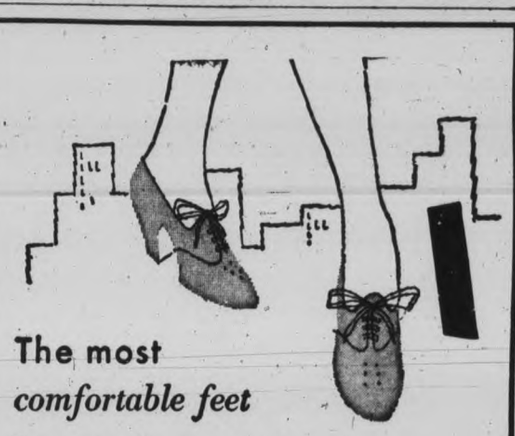
Though all amateur talent the minstrel troupe have been hard at it for the last two months perfecting the blackface patter, song and dance routines, skits, and instrumental numbers. Nearly all of them are members of Branch 52.

The show—directed by Homer Lundy and produced by Hose Vinette—will be in the PCVS auditorium tonight and Saturday, the curtain going up at 8.15 p.m. If it proves a success it may be continued elsewhere next week.

PROCEEDS TO WELFARE

Proceeds will go to the Legion welfare fund that is doled out with a minimum of fanfare to help needy veterans and their families. Recently the Peterborough branch helped pay the cost of flying three Newfoundland children from their home in St. Johns to Toronto where their father is seriously ill in Sunnybrook Hospital.

The six "end men" will all be in blackface. They are Homer Lundy, Hose Vinette, Reg. Mongraw, Ray Young, Rollie Johnston and Joe Lowrey. Singers will include Mr. Lundy, Tony Burns, Bob Baldwin, Muddy Marshall, Dick Astley, Roy Springham, and Messrs. Vinette, Lowrey and Johnston.



The irrepressible Rollie Johnston will be the triple-threat man. Besides being a jester in the blackface troupe he will sing and do a "golden slippers" tap-dance number. Bert Jones will also tap dance.

Rounding out the program will be skits, trios, and several accordion and banjo numbers.

Laing To Lead B.C. Liberals Into Election

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia Liberals will be led into the provincial general election, only two months away, by Arthur Laing, who is leaving federal politics for the job.

Mr. Laing says he will resign the Vancouver South seat he holds for the Liberals in Parliament and run as a candidate in the June provincial balloting, probably contesting Vancouver-Point Grey riding.

The 48-year-old "native son," who says he attended his first political meeting at the age of 11, was elected by acclamation Wednesday as leader of the provincial Liberal party.

He succeeds former premier Byron Johnson, who announced he was retiring following personal defeat in last year's June 12 election.

The June 12 election was the one which ended in the defeat of Mr. Johnson's Liberal administration and gave Social Credit the reins of minority government.

The legislature was dissolved following Social Credit's defeat on the floor of the house March 24. An election was called for June.

Chief Justice Gordon Sloan and Fisheries Minister James Sinclair were among those mentioned as possible successors to Mr. Johnson but when the time came for nominations Mr. Laing's name was the only one proposed.

"We are a party that is in defeat," Mr. Laing told the 789 delegates. He added: "There are worse things that can happen to a party . . . . and that has not happened to the Liberal party."

"We will win the June election," he said, "on the platform you delegates have drawn up today. And we will win the federal election this fall by a majority of 175 seats, mark my words."

The platform hammered out at the one-day convention proposes reductions in taxes and calls for increased government aid in he financing of education.

The finance division of the platform pledged the Liberals to (A) Reduce taxation (B) Reduce all passenger car licences to $10 (They average $25 at present) and (C) Remove the three-per-cent sales tax on meals and on all purchases 30 cents and under.

WASHED ASHORE at Kitty Hawk, N.C., this 50-ft. whale was quite a surprise for strollers along the beach. Youngsters Larry Swain and Billy Brown find it's a big job to lift the sea mammal's tail flippers.

Killed By Auto

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Charles Brondenburg, 64, of nearby Maidstone township, was killed Wednesday night when struck by a car on the highway near his home. Driver of the car was Jewell Scott of Van Dyke township, Mich. Police said Brondenburg walked in front of the car.

Newcastle Upon Tyne Decides To Drop Hyphens

NEWCASTLE UPON TYNE, Eng. (CP)—Newcastle Upon Tyne has finally decided how to spell its own name.

After decades of shilly-shallying, which drove pedants potty and postmen into helpless fury, this historic city and county in Northumberland has shed its hyphens.

No longer will local newspapers carry advertisements variously employing Newcastle upon - Tyne, Newcastle-on-Tyne and Newcastle on Tyne.

Town clerk John Atkinson, after correspondence with the Times and a study of records back to 1068, has ruled for once and for all that Newcastle upon Tyne shall henceforth be the only recognized style.

"The use of hyphens," Atkinson said in explaining his decision, "seems to be very largely a late 19th-century innovation."

NAMED IN 1068

The Tyneside city, now with a population of about 300,000, got its names in 1068 when Robert Curthose, eldest son of William the Conqueror, built a new castle on the river, the old castle was built in Roman times to protect the eastern flank of Hadrian's wall.

Hyphens didn't creep in until much later, though they now appear in virtually all reference books. One reason may have been that the hyphens formerly saved money, the telegraphic address Newcastle - upon - Tyne being counted as one word instead of three.

Hyphens or no hyphens, citizens here confidently expect letters to find their proper destination, instead of going to one of the Newcastles in Shropshire, Staffordshire, Tipperary, Wicklow or County Down.

Three Barns Burned

THORNDALE, Ont. (CP)—Fire of undetermined origin Wednesday night destroyed three large barns, two silos, a driving shed, grain and implements on the farm of R. M. Hyatt, concession one, West Nissouri, about four miles northwest of here. Damage was estimated at $25,000.

Pretty RCAF Girl 22, To Meet Japanese Prince On Tour

OTTAWA (CP)—A pretty, 22-year-old RCAF girl left the capital Wednesday to meet Prince Akihito, 19-year-old crown prince of Japan.

LAW. Tomika Honkawa—friends at Rockcliffe airport here call her Grace—will be one of six Canadians accompanying the prince on his 10-day tour of Canada.

Prince Akihito, surrounded by grand chamberlains, advisors and secretaries, will arrive at San Francisco by ship Saturday. The party will be flown to Victoria the same day by an RCAF C-5 aircraft. The plane, piloted by Ft. Lt. Dave R. Adamson of Lloydminster, Sask., left for San Francisco Wednesday.

LAW. Honkawa, who speaks Japanese fluently, will act as clerk. She was born in British Columbia but her family now lives at London, Ont.

OTHER MEMBERS

Other Canadian members of the party will be Howard Measures, director, special division, department of the secretary of state, C. E. McGaughey, press liaison officer, and an RCMP inspector and two corporals.

The royal visit includes stops at Victoria, Vancouver, Toronto, Hamilton, Niagara Falls, Ottawa and Montreal, where it ends April 21. Short stops also will be made at Fort William and Sudbury in Ontario.

The prince will visit the Ontario legislative building April 17, escorted by Premier Frost. He will be received by Lieutenant-Governor Breithaupt and later drive to Hamilton to tour the Steel Company of Canada plant.

The following day, April 18, Prince Akihito will take a side trip to Niagara Falls and arrive at the capital April 19, where he will be the guest of Governor-General Vincent Massey.

Some 22 Japanese newspaper men will accompany the prince on his Canadian tour. All Canadian reporters and photographers must be accredited.

Accreditation can be obtained by applying to Mr. Measures in the state department, Ottawa, or to Mr. McGaughey in Victoria April 11-13. At stops en route reporters and photographers assigned to cover the tour also can obtain accreditation from Mr. McGaughey.

35 Arrested In Roundup; Not Finished

Espionage Group Specialized In Industrial Spying

BONN—(AP) — Vice-Chancellor Franz Bluecher announced today the smashing of a widespread Soviet spy ring in Western Germany. He said it was directed by Russian Army officers at Soviet headquarters in East Berlin and specialized in industrial espionage in the vital Ruhr valley.

Bluecher said more than 35 persons—all Germans—had been arrested and more will be jailed. He termed the ring "the largest Soviet secret organization uncovered in Western Germany since the beginning of the occupation in 1945."

Bluecher called a press conference to announce the police action immediately after a meeting of the West German cabinet. He was accompanied by federal security chief Hans Egidi. The arrests followed wide spread search raids by federal police taken under authority of the act for protection of the constitution.

RING DISGUISED

Bluecher said the ring was disguised under the name "Institute for Economic Research" and had been operating for several months. He added:

"In the past year we have liquidated an espionage ring working for Poland and another working for Czechoslovakia. Now we have smashed a Soviet spy ring. Thus in the last year we have struck three dangerous Eastern secret organizations.

Egidi said that some West German industrialists were among the suspects arrested. He added, however, that they were not big-name industrialists.

WARRANTS FOR 43

He said that so far warrants had been issued for the arrest of 43 persons.

At least one of those arrested, Frankfurt food importer Erwin von Hazebrouck, was a member of the West German delegation at the Moscow economic conference April 1952.

Visiting Europe

LONDON—(CP)—A party of 31 students from Canada's National Defence College, Kingston, Ont., arrived by air today for a seven-week study of defence problems in the United Kingdom, continental Europe and the Middle East. The party was headed by Air Vice-Marshal C. R. Dunlap, commandant of the college. It included members of all three armed services and some civil servants.

Family Believes Son Dead, Find Him At YM

TORONTO (CP) — Harold Titus went to a suburban swimming pool today to report the death in a traffic accident of his brother-in-law, Grant Wyles, 15.

He almost collapsed when his supposedly - dead brother-in-law called to him "Hiya, Curly"

Titus learned Grant had spent the night at the home of a chum before coming to the pool where he was an attendant.

Young Wyles' relatives were notified of his death Thursday night after the boy's sisters "identified" a badly-battered body. Police said the boy killed on Highway 401 north of the city wore almost identical clothing and this lead to the mistake in identity.

Police still haven't identified the accident victim, hit while cycling by a car driven by David Cousins of suburban Willowdale. Cousins told police the bicycle hadn't any lights.

Mrs. Harry Wyles was overcome after learning her son is alive. When she arrived at hospital Thursday night officials refused to let her see the body because of her shocked condition.

Police said ticket stubs on the dead boy's body first led them to believe he was a member of the Wyles family. They called them and two sisters took only a "hasty look" at the body before identifying it.

UN Officers Authorized To Sign Pact

Communists Propose Full-Scale Reopening Of Armistice Talks

MUNSAN, Korea—(AP) — United Nations liaison officers go to Panmunjom Saturday with authority to sign an agreement which would start the exchange of sick and wounded Korean war prisoners April 21. The Reds have indicated they also will be ready to sign.

Gen. Mark Clark approved the final draft of the agreement which could clear the way to a truce in Korea. He authorized UN liaison officers to sign it.

The Communists proposed today that full-scale armistice talks be reopened to discuss their new plan for exchanging all prisoners of war —the last major barrier to a truce. The proposal was included in a "very important letter" delivered to UN negotiators at Panmunjom.

The text of the letter broadcast later by Peiping radio appeared to restate the March 30 proposal of Red China's premier for settling the last big barrier to a Korean truce.

Under the pact, the Communists say they will send home 120 Americans, 20 Britons, 15 other non-Koreans including Canadians, French, Turks, Greeks and Dutch, and about 450 South Koreans at the rate of 100 daily.

REPORT ON CANADIANS

(Although this dispatch used the word "Canadians" in the plural, the only Canadian on the list of prisoners given United States armed forces by the Reds is Gnr. John Jenkins of Hamilton, Ont. Canadian headquarters list 28 Canadian soldiers as missing.)

The Allies agreed to hand over 5,100 North Koreans and 700 Chinese at the rate of 500 daily.

The letter was addressed to the chief Allied negotiator, Lt. - Gen. William Harrison, Jr., from the Red delegation, North Korean Gen. Nam Il. Harrison is in Tokyo.

Contents of the letter were not disclosed.

However, a Communist spokesman said the proposal clarifies the Red position on exchanging prisoners and calls for reopening of the full-dress truce talks now.

Three Planes Crash In Nova Scotia; 2 Killed, 4 Escape

HALIFAX—(CPP)—A roaring mid-air collision claimed the lives of two naval pilots Thursday but four others escaped when they rode a crashing third plane to earth and clambered out of the burning wreckage. All four men aboard the Avenger which crashed near Gaspereaux lake, in the Annapolis valley, walked out of the woods today after camping overnight protected by a parachute tent. Flown to hospital here, they apparently suffered no serious injuries.

A few hours earlier another Avenger and a Sea Fury crashed in mid-air over the outskirts of Halifax and made a fiery death plunge, one across housetops into a wooded area and the other into Bedford basin.

One of the pilots was identified as Lieut. Robert C. O'Neil of Ottawa. His widow lives in Dartmouth, N. S.

The other was Lieut. F. G. Rice, 30, of Gravenhurst, Ont.

FIND BODIES

Both bodies were found, O'Neil's in the wreckage in the woods and Rice's by naval craft which used floodlights to search the basin, the wartime rendezvous for overseas convoys which forms the north end of Halifax's sheltered harbor.

The four who walked away from the blazing wreckage of their Avenger in the Annapolis valley crash were identified as: Sub-Lt. J. W. Paton, Montreal; CPO. R. E. N. Geale, Dartmouth; PO. P. Martin, England, and AB. M. Legare of Gatineau, Que.

It was the second mid-air tangle of navy planes this week, but the earlier one caused only damage and no injuries.

A Harvard and an Avenger brushed south of the navy's air arm base at Shearwater, across the harbor at Eastern Passage, but the pilots of both craft managed a safe landing.

The tail of one craft and the wing of another was damaged.

Eye-witnesses told of hearing a deafening roar and seeing a blue and white flash as the planes came together. Some said the pilots apparently struggled to ditch their craft away from heavily-populated residential districts.

"If they'd fallen where they collided," said Mrs. Evelyn Brown, "some homes would surely have been hit."

THREE PLANES (Continued on Page 2)

Costs Million To Fireproof Gov't Library

OTTAWA (CP) — It's going to cost $1,000,000 to renovate and fireproof Canada's historic library of Parliament whose thousands of valuable books were damaged by water and mould after a fire last summer.

Works Minister Fournier gave this information to the Commons Thursday as members considered his 1953-54 departmental estimates of $121,000,000.

There is a vote of $500,000 to start work on the renovation and fireproofing of the 80-year-old structure attached to the rear of the Parliament buildings.

But Mr. Fournier said the requirements of the job are so uncertain he did not think any contractor would tender a firm price. Much of the library will have to be reconstructed for fireproofing, but its interior and exterior will be preserved as far as possible.

NO DATE SET

The minister said he hoped to let a fixed-fee contract for the job but gave no indication when work might begin.

All Mr. Fournier's estimates were finally approved at the night sitting and today the house is to go into estimates for the department of citizenship and immigration.

The minister, keeper of the purse that finances the country's public works projects from bridges to dams and jetties, was the target of questions by many members. They asked about the progress of works in their constituencies and urged new ones.

The minister, sometimes gesturing and mopping his brow, and often smiling, parried with promises and explanations.

The minister told Gordon Fraser (PC-Peterborough West) that new headquarters for the National Film Board at Montreal will cost about $5,000,000. The building is to be located near the town of St. Laurent.

Would Extend Wheat Pact; Set Price $2.05

WASHINGTON (AP) — Extension of the present international wheat agreement—but at terms more satisfactory to Canada and the United States—has been recommended by a substantial majority of the 46 participating countries.

The proposed extension, announced Thursday night, would set a maximum price of $2.05 a bushel for wheat sold by participating exporting countries to participating importing countries. This is 25 cents above the present top price.

However, there was a prospect that Britain, the major importer, may withdraw. Its delegate to a conference called to draft terms of an extension said the British government could not accept a price above $2.

The agreement is designed to stabilize world markets by means of a system of export and import quotas and maximum and minimum prices.

EACH NATION HAS QUOTA

It gives each exporting nation a quota which it agrees to sell abroad at price terms set by the pact.

Likewise, it allots quotas which importing countries are obligated to buy at the same price terms.

The declared purpose of the agreement, set into operation four years ago, is to eliminate wide fluctuations in prices and to prevent cutthroat competition for markets.

The new price would reduce the U. S. subsidy about 25 cents a bushel.

Canada Model For World For Economic Development Of Country

TORONTO—(CP)—Eugene R. Black, president of the 54-members International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, said Thursday the way Canadians have developed their country provides a model which the rest of the world might observe to its own benefit. Mr. Black, addressing the Empire Club, praised the part played by Canada in world economic recovery and said "if the world consisted of 60 or 70 nations like Canada, there would be no necessity for a world bank."

"You have an enormously productive economy here, a skill and confidence that inspires you to invest in your own future, a way of doing things that has attracted large amounts of capital from outside."

INTERNATIONAL SOCIETY

"The bank," he said, "is an international society — a co-operative financial institution of 54 member countries. Our business is to make loans which will benefit our membership and which will be repaid."

Among the members Canada was geographically the largest and, from an industrial and financial point of views, one of the most important. Her investment in the bank runs to $325,000,000.

Mr. Black described some of the uses to which this country's investment has been put. "From the first," he said, "Canada was obviously in the creditor class, and from the first was able to export capital goods for projects financed by bank loans. Under our loans, some $70,000,000 worth of Canadian products have been exported to 15 of the bank's member countries.

Monty Presented With Ball, Bat

WEST POINT, N. Y. (AP) — A bat and ball were presented here to Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery—a baseball fan—and perhaps mindful that lend-lease had ended, he asked:

"Can you afford it?"

Coach Paul Amen of the United States Military Academy team assured him the budget could stand it. Amen presented the gifts Thursday as Montgomery was fulfilling his ambition to see a "baseball match."

Montgomery showed keen interest in the match between the academy first and second teams.

When a man bunted to the pitcher and started for first base, he asked why the pitcher did not throw the ball at the runner. Again, when a man on first tried to steal second, he inquired as to what was going on in "the right of way."

The deputy commander of the Allied powers in Europe will see his first professional game in Washington on Monday. He said when he arrived in the United States on March 27 that one of his goals was to see a "baseball match."

Wants To Extend Ban On Imports

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower took steps today to extend existing import restrictions on butter and other dairy products, some food fat and oils after June 30 when presently-used legislative authority for such limitations expires.

He directed the tariff commission to make an immediate investigation of imports of these products and recommend action for replacing existing restrictions.

(Canada already has protested formally to the U. S. against restrictions on U. S. import of dairy products.)

At the present time, imports of butter, dried milk dried cream, high fat malted milk compounds, peanuts and peanut oil, flaxseed and linseed oil are banned, and imports of cheese are restricted under quotas.

These controls are authorized by section 104 of the Defence Production Act which expires June 30. The Senate banking committee has said that it will not recommend extension of this section.

Telephone Call Saves 4 Lives

OTTAWA (CP)—A telephone call from a neighboring postmaster saved the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Marshall and their two young sons early today when fire levelled the Marshall home and business at suburban City View.

A 75-year-old, two-storey brick home and a greenhouse were destroyed. Damage was estimated at $25,000.

The Marshalls were awakened by postmaster William Hill.

Firemen blamed the fire on an overheated wood stove in the greenhouse.

Eastern Ont. Centres Left Without Power

SMITHS FALLS (CP) — Failure of hydro sub-station two miles south of here today paralyzed a large section of eastern Ontario southwest of Ottawa.

Both Smiths Falls and Carleton Place were without power all morning, and a number of factories were closed. An urban and rural population estimated at about 20,000 was affected.

The break came at 8:32 a. m. when an insulator on the sub-station's potential transformer failed, resulting in a spark explosion and a small fire which was brought under control by a crew at the station.

The failure temporarily affected such centres as Perth, Brockville, Arnprior and part of Kingston.

Allied Strength Slowing Kremlin

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (CP) The U. S. today told the United Nations that conciliatory gestures from the Kremlin are the result of the Western world's policy of strength and unity.

U. S. delegate Ernest Gross told the UN's 60-nation political committee that for this reason the West should not abandon its policy.

He expressed confidence that Western strength and unity would eventually persuade the Soviet government to change its policies completely.

"Most of us feel the time will come when the Soviet government will find it necessary to modify its policy. If so it will be because of our policy of strength and unity. We must not abandon that strength Gross deplored reintroduction of an omnibus policy peace package and said that the UN has already rejected all major points in it. He specifically regretted the raising of the Korean problem here at this time.

Takeoff Crash Kills 11 Aboard Plane

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — A Caribbean International Airways plane en route from Kingston to Grand Cayman crashed into the sea shortly after takeoff here today, killing 11 of the 14 persons aboard. Officials said an engine failed.

Among the dead were Wing Commander Owen Roberts, managing director of the air line, and three members of the crew. Two infants also perished.

Damage Heavy During Storm

CHATHAM (CP) — Gusts of wind up to 50 miles per hour caused thousands of dollars damage in Chatham and district Thursday night.

Nearly 1,500 telephones were out today and more than 400 householders were without hydro. The roof of the Canadian Leaf Tobacco Company warehouse was torn off.

The worst damage was in the heart of the city. About 45 feet of tarpaper roofing, boards, the sprinkler system and hydro were torn out of the tobacco warehouse. Rain poured through the opening, damaging nearly 600 barrels of processed leaf tobacco.

Three accidents were reported. A car crashed into a tree on a nearby county road. A second car went into the ditch on No. 40 highway. A third car was struck from behind.

Fraser Complains About Smoke

OTTAWA (CP)—G. K. Fraser (PC — Peterborough West) complained in the Commons Thursday about the cloud of dense smoke that issues from the government's central heating plant.

It covers Parliament Hill, he said. It even blackened the tablecloths of the parliamentary restaurant when the windows were left open.

Mr. Fraser wanted to know if Works Minister Fournier couldn't do something about it.

The minister replied that no one knows the answer. However, his department was experimenting with smoke abatement at one building to see what could be done.

Pose As Policemen Pair Rob Gardener

BRANTFORD (CP)—Lawrence Calleya, Brantford township market gardener, was beaten and robbed early today by two men who gained admittance to his home by posing as police officers.

Mr. Calleya told provincial police he was struck on the head and thrown to the floor. While one man held him, the other went through his pockets and stole about $200. Before leaving they tore the telephone from the wall.

Canadian Indians' Suit Stalemated In Vermont

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — A $1,000,000 land damage suit brought by Canadian Indians against the state of Vermont reached a temporary stalemate Thursday under a withering legal barrage from F. Elliott Barber Jr., the state's attorney-general.

The legislature, acting as a claims committee of the whole, dissolved itself without reaching a decision on the controversial 155-year-old case. Officials said another legislative meeting would be held in the indefinite future

Barber appeared as the state's only witness after a frail, 85-year-old lawyer, Roland E. Stevens of White Ricer Junction, and plump Mrs. Louise Poking Fire, wife of a tribal chieftain, prosecuted the Indians' appeal.

While the Indians, representing some 5,000 Caughnawagas of the Iroquois tribe sat in silence, Barber told them—and the legislature —that the state of Vermont has no authority to treat with foreign powers or segments of foreign powers.

REMNANTS OF TRIBE

The Indians are remnants of an Iroquois tribe that once lived in Vermont. They now live near St. Regis, Que., across the St. Lawrence river from Montreal.

Furthermore, Barber said, he was not certain the Indians present—some 200—were legally authorized to speak for the Iroquois confederacy which they claim to represent.

Barber cited a letter from Mrs. Elmer Green, secretary of the Six Nations people, which he said represents the true confederacy. He quoted her as saying she doubted the legality of the delegation to speak for the united tribes.

The attorney-general followed Mrs. Poking fire to the rostrum—and in the nick of time for the state of Vermont.

The legislature heard Mrs. Poking Fire, clad in tribal costume with her black hair hanging in braids, plead her peoples' case in a precise, sometimes quaking, voice.

She told the legislators to "let your conscience be your guide," and added the chiding warning that the Indians would "carry the case in our minds"—intimating that failure would bring the delegation back in future years.

Tangled In Parachute 2 Make Safe Landing

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A Royal Canadian Regiment paratrooper plunged between the cords of another jumper's 'chute Thursday and the two entangled men dropped to a safe landing at London city airport as spectators below held their breath.

Pte. W. E. Bateman, of Montreal jumped seconds after Pte. L. H. Floyd, of Petawawa went through the door of the RCAF Dakota transport. Seconds later he had dropped to about 750 feet, his boots brushed the top of Floyd's chute, then he went through the cords.

From that moment until the two hit the ground they were within arm's reach of each other, cautioning against any movement that might spill the air out of either chute.

Both men are experienced paratroopers, veterans of numerous jumps. Today they said "it was just an additional thrill that goes with the job.

South Koreans Drive Chinese Off Hill

SEOUL (AP) — Korean infantry stormed back the top of Texas hill on the central front today after Chinese Communists hurled three attacks against the key outpost and overran it.

The Reds threw an estimated 250 men into their latest assault against the strategic knob which has changed hands more than half-dozen times in the last week.

A South Korean spokesman said the first Chinese force which hit the outpost was wiped out.

South Korean troops finally pulled off the hill in good order, regrouped, counter-attacked and sent the Reds scurrying back to their own lines, the 8th army said.

LACHUTE, Que. (CP)—An armed man today held up the Caisse Populaire (Credit Union) here and fled with an undisclosed amount of cash.

Witnesses said the bandit escaped in an automobile bearing Ontario licence plates.

Manager Raymond Beaulieu declined to disclose the amount taken.

Heading Into Trouble?

Complications Over Far Eastern Issues

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States seems to be heading into a new period of trouble over critical Far East issues.

Some U.S. authorities think that is one reason the Communists have shown such interest in renewing talks about peace in Korea; that they hope to create a situation in which they can exploit differences of view within the U.S. and between the U.S. and its allies.

Authoritative officials recognize that, if and when the U.S. joins in a conference to make a permanent Korean peace and perhaps a broader Far East settlement, it will face troubles with friend and for alike.

Some consideration already is being given to the major issues. They include:

1. If there is peace in Korea, what attitude should the U.S. take toward the Communists on the mainland and Chiang Kai-shek on Formosa? The possibility of coming to terms with the Reds has not been excluded from the thinking of some key officials. There has been some talk about the possibility of treating Formosa as independent. But Chiang has committed himself to reconquer the mainland and he has had powerful support in the U.S.

2. If the Chinese Reds prove loyal to Moscow but seek to develop friendship with such countries as Britain and India, should the U.S. give Chiang all-out backing at virtually any cost? Britain, India and various other friendly countries recognize the Chinese Communists, not the Nationalists In the past they have appeared far more ready than the U.S. to do business with the Reds.

3. How far should peace in Korea be used to support demands for peace in Indo-China, which the Eisenhower administration has treated as part of the same Far Eastern pattern?

4. In Korea itself what kind of terms should be insisted upon for a peace settlement, as opposed to a military truce? The official United Nations policy is to seek unification of all Korea. It seems likely that initially the U.S. would go into negotiations maintaining that policy. But if the Reds will have none of it, some responsible persons believe this country could and should consider a more limited territory for the anti-Communist government of South Korea.

S. Rhodesia Vote Favors Federation Plan

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (Reuters)—Southern Rhodesia's 49,000 accredited voters, who balloted Thursday in a referendum which will determine the future of more than 6,000,000 persons, gave a decisive nod in favor of federation. Most of the voters stating whether they want Northern and Southern Rhodesia and Nyasaland to be federated into a vast new British dominion in central Africa — were white. Most of the people affected by the vote are native.

When counting stopped for the night the votes in favor of the federal plan totalled 20,178; there were 10,636 "no" votes.

The constituencies reporting were those around the larger cities, which were expected to say "yes." But even if the results from the country today are almost solidly "no" the "ayes" will have it.

80 PER CENT VOTE

The city-dwelling whites generally back the idea of uniting the area's 175,000 Europeans and 6,000,000 blacks under one government.

About 80 per cent of the electorate turned out. With over half the country's votes in, the urban districts of Salisbury and Bulawayo averaged 2-to-1 for the program.

In the back country areas, there is more opposition to the proposal. The Africans say they oppose it because they fear loss of political rights under a racial segregation set-up.

70 Rural Girls To Hold Achievment Day

Approximately 70 girls from nine centres in Peterborough will take part in the Junior Homemakers' Club's 17th annual Achievement Day to be held in the Normal School Saturday.

Cottons May Be Smart is the theme for the 1953 achievement day.

Club members will register at 9 a.m. and will take part in activities that will be conducted throughout the morning and afternoon. These activities will include judging of several classes of dresses made by club members and reports on this judging; and exhibits and skits and demonstrations on the day's theme. Also, during the day the club members will be required to work a buttonhole and sew on a button.

The club's year's work, which is reaching its climax in Saturday's activities, has been based on clothing. It has included projects and study based on the various aspects of clothing such as suitability of styles and colors; selection of materials and patterns and the making of a cotton garment.

SUBMIT DRESS

Each girl submitted a cotton dress and a record book of the year's work to Miss Jean Noble, home economist for the counties of Peterborough, Victoria, Northumberland and Durham, who is in charge of achievement day.

Miss Noble will be assisted by Miss Lulu Row, clothing specialist with the central office of the Women's Institute, Home Economics Branch of the Department of Agriculture, and Mrs. Ernie Clarke, home economist, of Newmarket.

Club members will be attending from Bailieboro, Belmont, Buckhorn, Hall's Glen, Havelock, Keene, Lakefield, South Smith and Warsaw.

"Let me mention major items only: $27,000,000 worth of electric power equipment to Brazil; $19,000,000 worth of railway equipment to India; $9,000,000 worth of transport and petroleum products to France; $4,000,000 worth of locomotives and agricultural machinery to Australia; $3,000,000 worth of lumber and wood products to the Netherlands; $3,000,000 worth of power equipment to Mexico, and $1,000,000 worth of railway stock to the Union of South Africa."

SEE SOME RESULTS

Some results of the lending were already visible. In the Australian state of Queensland, for instance, Canadian and U.S. tractors made possible levels of grain sorghum and wheat production that were not expected for another five years.

"Unfortunately," he said, "we are living on a globe where poverty and ignorance are the rule rather than the exception, where perhaps two human beings of three are just beginning to glimpse modern methods of production, modern science and modern medicine.

"The condition of these people is not the only reason, but it is one important reason, why our world is so deeply disturbed today, and why it offers such a tempting target to aggressors.

"It is one reason why Canada has joined other nations to erect international military systems for common defense. But if we are to get at root causes, there must also be international co-operation in the fields of economics and finance.

GIVEN CO-OPERATION

"Canada has already given this co-operation with her own loans in Europe, and with the fund she is wisely making available to the Commonwealth countries of south Asia under the Colombo Plan.

"Canada is also a vigorous partner in the World Bank. The task in which the bank is engaged is a formidable one. Improvements in standards of living and ways of life cannot be achieved overnight. Yet the possibilities and opportunities, opened up by modern technology in this century, are greater than they have ever been before.

"The bank can do much to help its member nations realize these opportunities. It can do much to help them achieve a decency and dignity in the conditions of life which are requisities to a peaceful and stable world. That is the central objective of our work, and from their participation in it, I think Canadians can take pride."

Early Alberta Wheat Man Proved Progressive Farmer

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta's first commercial wheat crop was grown in 1875 some seven miles north of Edmonton. The crop was taken on land farmed by William Cust, an Irish adventurer who drifted along with the California gold rush of 1849 and the Peace river fur trade before settling at Cutbank.

Today the land is in acreage farmed by Lloyd, John and Kenneth Crozier. Two years ago on summer fallow it yielded 100 bushels of oats to the acre. Another link with the past is an old granary built by Cust and still in service.

Cutbank's 1,040 acres were purchased in 1898 by David Crozier, father of the men now farming the land. David Crozier was born near Ottawa, raised near Stratford and reached Alberta via Kansas.

His son, Lloyd, who last summer spent his 52nd year on a binder—he first rode one when 13—still remembers Cust, who is buried at nearby St. Albert. "He always wore a bow tie," Lloyd said.

Cust lived in a log house with a pointed roof long before survey, of course, and he put up a rail fence to claim his property.

He also put up the granary of whip-sawn lumber, which has withstood the ravages of time. The granary, three storeys high, has a capacity of 15,000 bushels.

It was built into the side of a hill. The wagons were backed to the level of the second floor. Grain for the lower floor was poured through holes. That for the top floor was carted up in sacks.

In 1881 Cust brought the first self-binder to what became Alberta in 1905. The grain bundles were tied by wire. But even before that Cust got his name in the papers as a progressive farmer.

The Edmonton Bulletin reported in its issue of Dec. 6, 1880: "Mr. Cust has the contract for the Indian department flour at $7.50 for the Edmonton delivery."

In 1944 the Alberta wheat pool published a pamphlet, "Alberta's Pioneer Wheat Growers," from which is gleaned something of the character of Cust.

Quoting the late A. C. Fraser, former secretary of the National Dairy Council of Canada, who at the time he knew Cust was manager of the Edmonton branch of the Merchants' Bank of Canada, the pamphlet said:

"He (Cust) called on me one morning and said: 'Fraser, I am going to die soon. I have read my bible through twice this winter and I am ready as soon as I pay off my debts, and that I will do as soon as I can sell that mortgage. The sale is arranged as soon as I bring in the title and I will be back tomorrow with it.' Bill drove home to his farm, sat down to his evening meal, and died."

But Cust's land lives on. It is rich mixed farming land, the black soil running from eight inches to two feet. And there is more under it than old Bill Cust would ever have imagined. A while ago drillers struck oil on John Crozier's acreage.

Second Ship Stuck In Canal

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) —For the second time in two days, a freighter became stuck in the thick slush at the upper end of the Sault Ste. Marie ship canal Thursday and blocked passage through the international locks.

The 525-foot lake carrier John Sherwin, owned by Pickands, Mather and Company of Cleveland, stuck half way out the upper gate of the canal locks. Two and a half hours of jockeying finally freed her.

Captain Frank Peters pumped water out of his forward ballast tanks, backed as far as he could down the lock and took a run at the ice. The 9,550-ton vessel slithered through the floes to free water in the Upper St. Mary's river.

The freighter Henry Yates was freed from a similar predicament Wednesday after being stuck between the lock gates and the ice floes.

Peiping radio broadcast what it said was the text of the Communist proposal and it appeared to restate the points made by Red China's premier, Chou En - lai, March 30. The points included:

1. Let all prisoners go home who choose to return.

2. Turn over to a neutral country—to be named—all PoWs who are listed as not wanting to return to their homelands.

3. Let "our side" give explanations to PoWs "afraid to return home, thereby attaining a just solution to the question of repatriation."

Peiping quoted Nam as saying "the Korean and Chinese side does not acknowledge that there are prisoners of war who are allegedly unwilling to be repatriated. Therefore, the question of the so-called forced repatriation, or repatriation by force, does not exist at all, and we always have opposed this assertion."

Previously the Communists demanded the forced repatriation of all prisoners and the Allies insisted that no prisoner should be forced to go home against his will.

The Communist proposal was similar to the Indian plan approved by 54 of 60 countries in the United Nations Dec. 3 but rejected by the Reds.

Chou suggested that reluctant PoWs in custody of a neutral state could be told by their own people what their decision to refuse repatriation meant. He did not say what would happen after that.

Gen. Mark Clark, UN Far East commander, asked the Reds Sunday for full details of the Chou plan. This was one of two conditions he set for resuming full truce negotiations.

The Allies had expressed disappointment on the small number of prisoners to be returned by the Reds.

The Reds say they hold about 13,000 Allied prisoners, including 3,198 Americans, about 1,000 other non-Koreans, mostly Britons, and about 9,000 South Koreans.

The UN command holds 132,000 captured Reds. About 51,000 have said they would resist a return to Communist rule.

These lists were compiled in December, 1951. Both sides have taken more prisoners since.

The letter containing the detailed Red plan was handed to the chief Allied liaison officer, Rear-Admiral John Daniel.

The exchange operation will begin within 10 days after the agreement is signed and will be over within 20 days, although it is expected to require only 12 days.

The liaison group will meet at 11 a. m. Saturday (9 p. m., EST Friday) for the expected signing of the agreement.

Three Planes

Edwin Chamberlin, CNR employee at Rockingham said: "I was out in the yard when I heard the crash. I looked up and saw one plane go down in the basin. When she hit the water there were a lot of little explosions and she kept burning on the surface for quite a while.

"Then I turned around and saw a blaze in the woods. I guess that's where the other landed."

The plane which crashed at Gaspereaux lake, about 75 miles from here, was one of four en route from Montreal to their base at Shearwater, across the harbor.

Seek New Geiger Counter For Cancer-Killing Drugs

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—Scientists are seeking new kinds of "geiger counters" to discover new cancer-killing drugs.

Already there are some drugs which do some good, against some cancers. But other ones, undoubtedly far better ones, lie hidden somewhere among the thousands of possible combinations of various chemicals.

The problem is to find, accurately and fairly easily, any which possess activity against cancer growth.

Such screening and testing is already being done with some good results. But better methods of screening are wanted.

OUTLINE NEED

The need is something like this: If you have a great row of batteries, how do you tell which ones still carry an electric charge? A voltmeter tells you. The cancer scientists would like a voltmeter to tell which of thousands of chemicals carry a charge against cancer.

Or in another analogy, something that works like a geiger counter to tell what chemicals are hot or radio-active. If you can pick out the chemicals which do have some activity against cancer, you can then concentrate upon them.

This search, just started by the American Cancer Society, is one of the newest things in chemical warfare against cancer.

Chemistry has produced some drugs which slow down some cancers, which perhaps have even cured some human cancers, and given drugs which kill pain, but as yet chemistry is a weak third arm. Surgery and radiation are still the best cancer killers, especially when cancers are detected early.

12 SCIENTISTS AT WORK

The quest for the cancer voltmeters or geiger counters is being directed by 12 prominent scientists.

They have selected 25 chemical compounds, some of which are known to have activity against cancer, some of which have no activity. Top specialists will use these 25 as test objects in trying out various new methods of screening chemicals. Under study as measuring instruments are some kinds of animal cancers, bacterial viruses, acids made inside of cells, fruit flies.

It's hoped that one or more will prove good methods of telling whether an untested compound is worth development.

USE EVERY APPROACH

Meanwhile, science is trying every conceivable chemical approach in seeking drugs which will hit cancers. Often clues come from painstaking studies that find secrets of normal healthy cells, and subtle differences in cancer cells. Other times, a chance but intelligent observation leads to experiments.

It's slow, hard work. But prospects for really good drugs against cancer are looking up.

Demand More Aggressive Policy To Aid Blitz Areas In Britain

LONDON (CP) — A speedier, more aggressive policy of reconstruction is being demanded by parliamentary representatives of communities hard-hit by the Nazi air blitz of the Second World War.

Spokesmen for the more severely devastated areas ganged up on the government in a non-party Commons debate, pressing for a boost in the £4,500,000 appropriation allocated this year for re-building programs in 18 blitzed centres.

Ralph Morley, Labor member for Southampton, where more than 5,000 private dwellings were destroyed by German raiders, described the country's bombed-out towns as "the orphans of the storm." It was a matter of national honor, he said, that they should be treated liberally.

He charged there was general dissatisfaction with the total amount to be spent as well as the proposed method of allocation. In Southampton, little had been done about restoring the badly-damaged business district. Visitors to the port—one of the most important in Western Europe—must be left, he said, with a low view of Britain's post-war efforts at reconstruction.

SHORTAGE OF MATERIALS

Hugh Dalton, former chancellor of the exchequer and a minister of local government and planning in previous Socialist governments deplored the shortage of essential building materials. With wounds still gaping in city centres, he thought it was an odious suggestion that German airmen, even if part of the Western defence force, should be trained in Britain to drop bombs.

Speaking for the badly-mauled cities of London and Westminster, Sir Harold Webbe, a Conservative, said businessmen from abroad were amazed at the country's slow pace in restoring its industries and damaged plants.

Eight years after the end of the war, Sir Harold said, some 1,300 acres or nearly a quarter of the valuable square mile of business property, known as the City of London, was still completely derelict. The bomb-shattered area was strewn with heaps of weed-grown rubble, car-parking lots and other unsightly projects.

"What an advertisement this for British enterprise," he said. "In such conditions it is nonsense to appeal to industry to increase the export trade and save us in time of acute economic crisis."

MUST NOT BE FORGOTTEN

Replying for the government, Harold Macmillan, minister of housing and local government, said losses suffered by blitzed cities and the hardships endured by their citizens must never be forgotten.

The £4,500,000 allotment for 1953, he said, was primarily a preliminary target figure and represented double the outlay of work completed in 1950. Furthermore, more than 75,000 houses had been built in the blitzed communities during the years 1949-52.

"The government, however, has to strike a balance and keep a close watch on such priorities as food, employment, homes and defence," Mr. Macmillan said. "But I am prepared to do my best for the blitzed areas and be judged by the results."

Charge Man With Wounding After 3 Attacks

HAMILTON (CP) — David Stewart, 41, accused by police of going berserk and slashing his mother and father in the throat with a butcher knife, Thursday was charged with wounding.

Authorities said he will receive a mental examination.

Police say that after the slashing, Stewart dashed from his east-end home and chased a group of young children. One of the children two-year-old Lynne Foster, was cut and bruised when she was hammered with a rock.

Stewart's mother, Mrs. A. Gray Stewart, suffered a knife wound in her throat and her husband was slashed in the arm, hand and throat. The parents, both in their 70s, were released from hospital Thursday night. Earlier the condition of the Foster girl was reported as fair.

ROW OVER CHEQUE

At the hospital the father told police the attack started over a welfare cheque received by his son.

After the welfare officer left, David crumpled up the cheque and stuffed it in the stove, the father said.

"I pulled it out," he said, "It was still burning and I dropped it on the floor to put it out.

"He ran to the table for a knife and began to slash at his mother. I ran over to fight with him and he slashed at my nose."

Then, the father continued, David ran outside, picked up a stone, hit the little girl with it, and ran off.

Avenges Early Defeat Kingston Wins 32-28

KINGSTON (CP) — Avenging a defeat earlier in the tournament Kingston Collegiate and Vocational Institute defeated St. Catharines 32-28 in the last morning game today at the invitational basketball tournament at the Queen's University Gymnasium here. The win puts the KCVI team in the section A semi-final against Nepean of Ottawa to decide which school will meet the favored Niagara Falls Red Raiders, defending champions. St. Catharines was eliminated having suffered its first loss Thursday against Niagara.

Lansky was high scorer for both teams with nine points followed by mate Powers and Kingston's Hyndman with seven. Warren of KCVI was high man for KCVI in the second half with three field goals.

In C section this morning Perth knocked Deep River from the undefeated ranks with a 53-24 win while in B Albert College continued its winning streak with a 44-37 win over Brockville.

Counties Council Opposes Central Place For Hangings

COBOURG (ENS)—Reports of committees wound up the spring session of Northumberland and Durham counties council. For two years the counties council has been holding four sessions a year instead of three.

Apparently indicating a preference to be hanged close to home, the legislative-and-by-laws committee did not endorse a resolution from the counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry which had suggested a central place for hangings. County councillors have no marked aversion to accumulating mileage payments, and transfer to a central place for hanging did dangle the bait of mileage but, however, it would only be mileage one way.

Committee endorsed the resolution of Lincoln county that the tax burden imposed by education be relieved by Dominion subsidy. Also recommended was the rescinding of the prevailing tree cutting by-law, which is difficult to enforce and writing of a new by-law.

The property committee recommended that the redecorating of the health unit be left in the hands of a special committee.

The agricultural committee endorsed the resolution of Grey county and also a similar one from Ontario county urging a ban on the importation and sale of vegetable oils harmful to the dairy industry. This committee had recommended a grant of $100 each to the Durham 500 Bushel Potato Club and the Northumberland Cheesemakers association but when it was revealed that there had been no request for these grants this year, council amended the report to delete the grants in question.

REQUEST REFUSED

The Road and Bridge committee turned down the request of Newcastle village that Toronto St. in that village be taken into the county road system. An interesting situation developed when it came to the usual motion of the chairman that council adopt the report. In this case the chairman was Reeve J. Rickard, of Newcastle, and as he was in favour of this road being taken over, he declined to move a motion of acceptance of the report and somebody else had to do it for him.

The finance committee recommended payment of $78,420.72 for accounts passed and paid since the January session. The committee recommended that a grant of $6,050 to the family court, the same amount as last year. The same grant of $38,500 was authorized for payment to the health unit. Also recommended were pay increases to the county court reporter, county clerk-and-treasurer, counties councillors and county assessor, but the committee turned down a proposal that the counties pay a portion of the police court reporter's salary.

Malan Is In Firm Control Of Nationalist Party

By W. ALLISON FORREST
NEA Special Correspondent

CAPETOWN, South Africa — (NEA)—Dr. Daniel Francois Malan is a poker-faced Afrikaans who likes to take off his shoes and socks and wade in the sea—and refuses to go to race meetings.

But race headaches of another sort—white vs black—are Malan's battle-cry in his fight for re-election of his South African Nationalist Party on April 15.

If his party wins, he will consider it a clear-cut mandate to declare the "sovereignty of Parliament" and step up his war for complete white supremacy.

The rarely-smiling Prime Minister, nearing 79, has not backed down on the racial issue that has piled up national tension since last spring, when the Nationalists made separate voting lists for the colored. When the courts called the law unconstitutional, Malan rejected the decision. He created a High Court of Parliament, making Parliament superior to the courts.

That, too, was declared illegal. The decision angered Malan and led to riots by the natives when he tried to strike back with other measures. Now he is asking the electorate for a mandate.

7,500 ARRESTS

To deal with native hostility—last year passive resistance was common and 7,500 arrests were made—he has already asked Parliament for the power to rule by decree. In other words, he wants the right to suspend the laws and all civil rights in emergencies—in the interest of "public safety."

He will take no back-talk on the racial question. Another bill, introduced in February, makes anyone who protests a government law liable to five years imprisonment, a fine and 15 strokes of the lash.

Promptly dubbed the "whipping post law," the measure, in effect, permits the government to end free speech on racial issues. It is primarily aimed at the natives, but also hits white citizens, aliens and journalists—maybe even foreign press dispatches.

DR. DANIEL MALAN: Twenty years back to find a joke.

Despite his age, Malan firmly controls his party. Many observers wonder how he ever gained that control. He lacks a dominating personality, and is colorless and undramatic.

He is sombrely dressed, short, stout and pale. His beady eyes peer owlishly through thin-rimmed glasses, highlighting an expressionless face. But behind that cold, reserved manner is a shrewd mind, and to visitors he's charming and courteous.

Other than party members and a few university professors, he has few intimates. South Africans generally know much about the politician, little about the man.

DEEPLY RELIGIOUS

He's deeply religious and dignified. To answer claims that he has never made a joke, the State Information Office, had to go back 20 years to dredge up a vaguely humorous incident. What humor he does show is dry. But his deep, vibrant voice makes him one of the few orators in Parliament.

Maria Malan, his wife, is 29 years younger. He married her in 1937, seven years after the death of his first wife. Besides two sons by his first marriage, they have an adopted orphaned German girl.

Born on a farm near the remote village of Riebeck West, Malan showed none of the Afrikaans boy's usual love for the land. He turned instead to theology, studying first at Stellenborch, later in Holland.

By 1915, he was a fervent advocate of unity and the Afrikaans language. It won him appointment as chief editor of the Nationalist party newspaper. A few months later, he was presiding at a party congress and has maintained the leadership since. In the 1948 atmosphere of food and housing shortages, rising costs of living and racial issues, he shot into power.

The new government lost little time in pushing its policy of "apartheid" (racial segregation). The "Black Bogey" has been a popular Nationalist election cry. With the non-whites heavily in the majority, South African whites have a real fear of being submerged by them.

Since 1948, the Nationalists have been working with only a slight voting edge in Parliament. It wasn't enough to provide the two-thirds majority needed in last year's court battles. Hence the appeal to the voters to make Parliament superior to the courts.

Crowd Attends Auction Sale Dummer Farm

Cowbells that had been in the family three-quarters of a century or more brought $2 each at the sale of farm stock, implements and household furniture of Gordon Hamblin in Dummer township, near Warsaw, Wednesday.

That price was typical of buyers' rating of values, J. H. Miles, auctioneer, said.

"It was the biggest attendance at a farm sale in the twenty years of my experience here," Mr. Miles said, verifying reports that "the crowd looked like the Peterborough Exhibition."

His partner, Arthur Newmaster, who took a turn in the selling, said: "It started with a bang, and continued that way from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m."

The women of Bethel and Zion churches, selling refreshments, cleared $165.

A motor truck sold for $765, truckwagon $147.50, side-delivery rake about ten years in use $175; threshing machine and separator $1635; grade milk cows averaged about $170; beef cattle $165, and stockers 20c a pound.

About 1,000 people were there in the morning when Mr. Miles began with the furniture. The household goods brought strong prices. Some of them rated as antiques, attracting prices that surprised the auctioneers.

A branch manager he was widely known throughout the city and district.

For the last 12 years he has been employed in the office of the De Laval Co. in Peterborough.

He was a lifelong member and regular attendant of St. John's Anglican Church.

He leave his widow, the former Eva Mabel Moore; two sons, Gerald of Toronto and Kenneth of Montreal; two brothers, Harry and Roy of Peterborough; a sister, Mrs. E. L. Payne (Gertrude) of Peterborough; two grandsons, John and Robert, and a granddaughter, Christine.

Cobourg Weekly Ceases Publication

COBOURG (ENS) — "The Times," Cobourg's first photo-offset weekly, which came into existence a little over two years ago, has suspended publication. A nannouncement in this week's issue notifies the public of the final issue. The paper enjoyed considerable popularity within a few months of its founding and acquired a very good circulation in an unusually short time, reflecting the willingness of the reading public to have two weeklies in the town. However, the pace was not maintained and about three months ago the owners sold out to L. J. Dickson, of Ajax. Mr. Dickson already has a paper at Ajax and he has decided to confine his attention to Ajax and suspend publication of his Cobourg paper.

David Leeson

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — Funeral services were conducted here on Thursday for David Leeson, who died at his home on Front St. on Tuesday morning. He had been in failing health for the past year and was in his 81st year.

Blunt Talk About The Seaway

We make no excuse for referring repeatedly to the St. Lawrence Seaway. It is, or should be, of intense interest to our readers, for if the seaway is developed for navigation as proposed, it will bring Peterborough and her industries within twenty-eight miles of the sealanes of the world. Either Cobourg or Port Hope could be developed as subsidiary ports to handle seagoing traffic and goods. Even if they are not, export shipping charge to and from Peterborough should be reduced because Toronto would become an inland ocean port, and Toronto is considerably nearer us than Montreeal.

* * *

We are much more aggravated than Mr. Howe's careful but blunt words have expressed, because the United States, or to be exact, special interests in the United States, are continuing to block the project. We have no doubt, however, that in private Mr. Howe's anger is just as hot as ours. The tone of his address in New York Town Hall Tuesday suggest pretty strong feeling behind it. "The apparent unwillingness of your government to extend the small degree of co-operation required to enable Canada to proceed with this project puzzles us completely", he said. And a very small degree of co-operation is needed: all the U.S. has to do is to name a partner to join with Ontario on the power project in the International Rapids. New York State has asked to be named, and would share the cost of that special piece of development with the Ontario Hydro. As for the rest, Canada will do it alone and pay for it completely, without American money.

* * *

Mr. Howe made it perfectly plain to the New York audience that the St. Lawrence Seaway is and always has been a Canadian seaway, and frankly implied that Canada will resent any nonsense and further dilly-dallying from the U.S. "Every improvement," he said, "has been built and paid for by Canada from Lake Erie down. The cost of operating and maintaining the seaway is paid wholly by Canada. Nevertheless, ships of every nation may use the seaway without payment of tolls. An international treaty provides that, if and when tolls on shipping are imposed, they will bear equally on Canadian and foreign flag ships. Canada proposes to pay, on a self-liquidating basis, for improvements in the International Rapids Section. Why, then, should your country withhold its co-operation and thus delay completion of this vital Canadian transportation outlets? I must confess that I do not know the answer."

* * *

The seaway, for both power and transport, will serve Americans as well as Canadians. Will the majority of Americans continue to allow some special groups—Atlantic seaboard states and transcontinental railways for instance—to cut off their noses and spite Canada?

Canadian Oil For Canadians

Annual reports of petroleum companies operating in Canada are now being presented. One aspect of them which interests us is the amount of Canadian petroleum the companies are now refining and marketing, compared with imported oil.

Crude oil production increased 28 per cent. in 1952, to supply 32 per cent. of the Canadian needs. This is a very different condition from even five years before. The total Canadian production of petroleum in 1947 was little more than seven and a half million barrels, less than ten per cent. (in dollar value) of the crude and refined oil imported. One company alone—Imperial Oil—last year produced (net) three times as much crude oil as was produced by the entire industry across Canada in 1947. The proportion of Canadian crude oil which Imperial ran last year was fifty per cent. McColl-Frontenac reported an even higher percentage of Canadian crude in their production. It is interesting to note that Canadian refineries supplied 86 per cent. of Canada's requirements in 1952. This is partly due to pipelines moving more oil than ever before, and to new refineries and increased capacity.

For many years petroleum was our chief and most expensive import. That day has gone. The time is rapidly coming when petroleum will not even figure in the list of ten chief imports. Canada should become self-sufficient in petroleum and its products, even at the present high rate of gasoline and oil consumption.

Russian Standard Of Living

Price cuts in 125 articles of food and clothing were decreed by the Kremlin on the last day of March. This is part of a process which began in 1948 when the Soviet Union showed the first signs of recovery from the war. It is the sixth annual price cut.

Does this mean that the Russian people are now getting what they want at prices they can afford to pay? Perhaps the real prices (that is, in relation to the work they have to do for the money) are lower than real prices in the west? Have not dollar prices in the States, Canada, Britain and elsewhere been going up, not down, since 1948?

There is now plenty of food in Russia. There is more clothing, there are more pots and pans. These all cost less than they did. But the real cost is still much higher than in the west. It is an improvement relative to the condition in Russia, not an improvement over what western people have and can get for their labour and money. It is an improvement from zero. In 1945 the Russians had practically nothing. Now they have a standard of living comparable with what was possible in Russia in 1940, before the German invasion.

The standard in Russia should continue to improve (unless Russia involves herself in a major war). But it still has a long way to go before it can compare with the Western European Standard. One observer states:

> "There is now plenty of food, though some items, such as tea, coffee and butter are shockingly dear. But when it comes to clothing the pinch is still acute. It is not merely that clothing is fabulously expensive, so that Soviet workers, unless they are Stakhanovites with their high incentive bonuses have to work very much longer than their Western opposite numbers to pay for any given item. Clothing, because of its shoddy quality, is even dearer than it looks. During the past year hundreds of thousands of pairs of shoes were returned to the factories because they were considered unusable, even at the low standards of the Soviet worker. Those that are passed for sale are so shoddily made that they wear out in next to no time."

Edward Crankshaw, who knows as much about present Russian conditions as any westerner today, remarks in a despatch to the Examiner that while the Russian standard of living has advanced it has done so largely at the expense of the East European satellites, whose standard has been heavily depressed. He says that it does not reflect in any way the tremendous strides made in Soviet productive capacity as a whole, for the real achievement of the Stalin regime was the remarkable development of heavy industry. The rebuilding and five years plans since the war have been concentrated first on heavy industry. Light industry and consumer goods targets were not reached.

Mr. Crankshaw says that: "the slow increase of consumer goods and food in the Soviet Union is nothing to be proud of". If the people were given their share of the products of industry, now so heavily diverted to the sinews of war, not only the Soviet Union but the world as a whole would be a good deal happier.

Prisoner Exchange Starts

For years Communist words of peace have been heard sceptically by the West. It's not what they say but what they will do that maters. That has been the western response. Action, not words. Well, now we have the action. In an unbelievably short time an agreement has been reached on the first Red proposal, to exchange sick and wounded prisoners of war. The exchange is expected to start in ten days.

Even by ordinary diplomatic standards, this is fast work. According to the usual Russian and Chinese practice of negotiating, as we have witnessed it for the last several years, it is so fast that the West must be convinced that Russia and China now mean what they say when they talk of peace.

The next move is to negotiate the general prisoner-of-war question in Korea, the only stumbling-block to an armistice there. This could be followed by other very important and reassuring moves, at U.N., in Berlin, in Vienna; in fact, wherever Russia and the West have had conflicts.

We must not, however, be too optimistic. Even if Russia and the Communist world have decided that peaceful existence is possible side by side with capitalistic and socialist countries, and even if they are now convinced that the West is not going to make war on them, a great amount of hard bargaining still lies ahead. Nor can a decade of mutual suspicious, distrusts and animosities be wiped out over night. A decade? Centuries. There is an old German proverb which says the no Russian is any good unless he is first beaten. Russia has its own time-worn beliefs about the aggressive west. But a live and let-live policy is practically possible, if both sides believe it—even though friendship may be impossible.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Recently an Englishman was fined £3 and had his license endorsed for speeding in a built-up area: it was General Auchinleck, celebrated wartime commander. It would be interesting to see the cops try to pin something like that on Monty.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

AN OLD LADY died last Sunday, Easter Sunday, in Toronto. She was a great-aunt of Mayor Hugh Waddell and of Miss Mary Medd, and a sister of the late Mrs. B. F. Ackerman, but that is not the reason for mentioning her here. She was a first-generation member of a pioneer Peterborough family. Her name was Mrs. David Hutcheson. Her maiden name was Jane Eleanor Lumsden. She was born in a log cabin on a farm near Warsaw in 1857. She died April 5th, 1953. Her age was thus 95.

✧ ✧ ✧

JANE ELEANOR LUMSDEN HUTCHESON —She has one sister still surviving in precarious health in Toronto—was born on her father's farm east of Warsaw. Her father was Francis Thomas Lumsden, her mother Charlotte Lukey, pioneer children of this county.

Francis Thomas Lumsden was born in the city of Wexford, Ireland, January 4th, 1822, and came to Canada and Dummer township with his emigrant parents in 1831. He was then only nine years old.

Mrs. Hutcheson's mother, Charlotte Lukey, was born April 11th, 1833. She died October, 1915, and was buried in Peterborough. She was a daughter of Samson Lukey and Anne Rowe who emigrated from Lost-With-Iel, Cornwall, England, and settled near Warsaw in 1831.

Now to take this family tree back another generation: Francis Thomas Lumsden, father of the lady who died Easter Sunday, was the son of John Lumsden, born November 18, 1783, in Wexford County, and of Frances Allen, born in Wicklow—Ireland, of course. They are the roots of this notable and far-spread Peterborough family tree.

John Lumsden (Mrs. Jane Elizabeth Lumsden Hutcheson's grandfather and our Mayor's great-etc.-uncle) was present under the Iron Duke (Wellington) during the last campaign against Bonaparte and survived Waterloo. He served in the British army (as so many other Irishmen did with conspicuous gallantry and success—including the Irishmen Field Marshals Montgomery and Alexander of our own times) for 27 years. He came to Canada in 1831. He landed at Quebec in May, made short stays at Quebec, Brockville and Kingston, and thereafter moved into Peterborough county. He received a free grant of land in Dummer from the Government for services rendered as Paymaster of the 27th Regiment of Foot.

He located on his land, lot 16, concession 5, but after three years disposed of his holdings and went to Otonabee for a short while, and then to the village of Peterborough. Soon he moved to Cavan, then to North Monaghan and then back to Dummer — restless, gathering no moss, and creating no developed farm.

During the Rebellion of 1837 he and four sons took up arms and marched to Toronto, he being in command of the Dummer Company. He had five sons and two daughters: the Rev. William Lumsden, M.A., of Hamilton was the oldest; the father of the lady who died last Sunday was the fifth child.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS SON, Francis Thomas Lumsden, was born, as I have already said, in Wexford, Ireland. When he became adult he taught school for a while in Peterborough, and afterwards spent a year travelling in the States (New York, Ohio, Virginia, Kentucky and Pennsylvania).

He returned to Peterborough and teaching in the town for three more years, until 1852. Then he took a farm in Dummer (lot 11, concession 2 — 100 acres) where he worked and lived until his death. He built the large stone house on the right-hand side of the road as you drive into Warsaw. He was not, one must believe, a very successful farmer. From 1867 onward he was a salesman for pianos and organs, and in the seventeen years to 1884 his sales amounted to over $40,000. He married Miss Charlotte Lukey in 1852. At one time he was township treasurer and he was appointed a Justice of the Peace.

✧ ✧ ✧

NOW for his family, including the lady who died last Sunday.

He and his wife had the following children:

1. Francis Charlotte Lumsden, 1853-1935, who was Mrs. B. F. Ackerman, of the Ackerman leather and harness firm, and mother of the late Mrs. R. M. Waddell (mother of Mayor Hugh Waddell), and of Mrs. S. T. Medd, (mother of Miss Mary Medd and her brother Scott Medd, the painter who lives in England).

2. Anne Lukey Lumsden who became Mrs. Aaron Maguire. She was born in 1855 and died three or four years ago in Victoria to which she had retired. A son is Lawrence Maguire of Outboard Marine, and Mrs. Sam Fanning (Laura) of this city is a daughter. Mrs. Aaron Maguire's family was large.

3. Jane Eleanor, the subject of this extended note, who died this Easter Sunday and approved the government's universal old age pension plan. She married, late, David Hutcheson, a Lake captain, and left Peterborough to live with him at Port Huron. They had no children. He died long ago.

4. Henrietta Georgina, born 1859, died about 1930. She was unmarried, taught school and trained as a nurse in Ottawa and practised nursing in New York.

5. Mary Louise, born 1860. She lived mostly in Manitoba after her marriage to David Rose. (Tom Rose, the Peterborough-Otonabee dairy man is a connection in this long line). No relation of the Dummer Roses of early times, as far as I have been able to discover. (If any reader can inform me of this, I shall be grateful).

6. George W. F. Lumsden, born 1862. He lived most of his life, and died, in Manitoba. He had no sons, one daughter.

7. Elizabeth Maud Lumsden, born 1865. She became Mrs. Fred Eckworth, and is now the only surviving member of this family. She married, at about forty, Mr. Eckworth who was 20 years her junior and she has so far survived him 20 years.

8. John M. A. Lumsden, born 1868. He spent most of his years in Peterborough and his widow still lives here—Hunter Street, in Ashburnham. He died a decade and more ago.

9. Samson,—who died in infancy.

✧ ✧ ✧

TWO POINTS in this family history should be noted. The first is that only one child died in infancy, in a time when still-birth and death in infancy were common. The second is the longevity of the family. The daughter who died last Sunday was 95; others survived into their 70's and 80's, although actuarial tables doomed them in their 50's and 60's.

The person who begot this note, Jane Eleanor Lumsden, was considered a belle in her earlier days. The chief aim of the children seems to have been to leave the Warsaw farm, where what parental money there was came from other sources than farming, and to get out into the world of Peterborough. While in Warsaw all the family were interested in music which flourished there under the Thomas Choate baton (as described in recent articles in The Examiner by Richard F. Choate). In Peterborough, Jane Eleanor (who has just died) and Elizabeth Maud Eckworth, the survivor, were leading voices in George Street Methodist choir for years.

✧ ✧ ✧

JANE ELEANOR (Mrs. Hutcheson) displayed until recent months family characteristics: good features, an alert mind, and a perhaps surprising literacy, considering that the only formal schooling most of them had was the old one-room school at Warsaw. Mrs. Hutcheson read and commented vigorously on Churchill's memoirs of the war years, published since the war. One must remember that she was born in a log cabin, east of Warsaw, not in the later big house west of the village. Only Mrs. B. F. Ackerman, the eldest sister, went the limit of a year at a finishing school in Port Hope.

Until last August she was wonderfully active, then she broke her hip. Doctors pridefully put a pin in the 95-year-old bone and the old lady did manage to walk a few steps thereafter, supported by nurses.

Peterborough descendants include: W. C. Ackerman, Col. C. H. Ackerman, Lawrence Maguire, Mrs. Sam Fanning (nieces and nephews), and, of the next generation, Mayor Hugh Waddell and Miss Mary Medd (who, incidentally, is also directly related to the first white settler in Peterborough, Adam Scott, from whom her brother Scott Medd gets his Christian name).

COUNTRY NOTE: I forgot to say that a few weeks ago a dog invaded my flock of sheep. He worried them all and took a hunk out of one pregnant matron. The vet was called, chiefly to assess the damage. In this township there is a dog tax, proceeds of which are earmarked for compensation for damage which dogs do. The vet. is the assessor as well as doctor of wounds. So at least his fees are assured. Partner Gamma and I made a deposition before the township clerk, asserting that a dog of unknown ownership has affronted my ladies and assaulted one of them. I am worried lest miscarriages result. Sheep are awfully nervous, as well as awfully sheepish. Three of my matrons have yet to deliver: all they do so far is act coy and eat mash at $3.85 a bag. I want twins, not appetites.

ANYTHING CAN HAPPEN,

Vacation On Wheels

(WINNIPEG FREE PRESS)

THE British railways have come up with an ingenious idea. This summer the lines will put into service 100 "camping coaches," which may be rented by vacation parties up to eight persons for the equivalent of about $20 to $28 a week.

The party must buy at least six return fares from their home station to the point where they wish to have the car spotted for their vacation.

Each car contains beds for eight persons, in four-berth and two-berth compartments, a living room and a kitchen. It is equipped with crockery and various utensils and linen.

Cooking, heating and lighting are by coal oil "which may be bought from the station-master."

This is a type of service which might be considered by Canadian railways— if, as and when spare equipment becomes available for conversion for this specialized purpose.

There are many marvellous vacation spots in northern Manitoba and northern Ontario, to mention areas close at hand, where no camping accommodation is now available. Just imagine going down to the depot, chartering your camping car and instructing the agent to "Ship me somewhere east of Gillam . . . " — or Dryden, or Atikokan, or wherever may suit your fancy.

Sounds like a good idea.

And They're Hanging Rosenberg!

(Ottawa Journal)

Somebody wrote some months ago that with U.S. Senate committee megaphoning all sorts of military information to the enemy the Kremlin was just throwing money away by hiring American spies.

The truth of this statement has just been supported in a way that is shocking. From Washington the American Associated PPress proclaims to the whole world that "General James Van Fleet has told U.S. Senators that the Eighth Army hasn't enough ammunition to meet a Communist offensive in Korea."

Van Fleet, the AP says, gave his testimony to the Senate Armed Services Commitee on March 5, 6 and 10, and adds:

> "Most of it (the evidence) was kept secret until today when the group decided the public should have the full story."

And also the Communists.

Actually the spectacle we have here is that of members of the U.S. Senate who have been crying to high heaven against the danger of Red spies and who have been investigating almost everything and everybody, doing something which if a Communist did it would result in his being tried for treason, convicted and hanged.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Look upon Zion, the city of our solemnities: thine eyes shall see Jerusalem a quiet habitation, a tabernacle that shall not be taken down; not one of the stakes thereof shall ever be removed, neither shall any of the cords thereof be broken . . .

For the Lord is our judge, the Lord is our lawgiver, the Lord is our king; he will save us . . .

And the inhabitant shall not say, I am sick: the people that dwell therein shall be forgiven their iniquity. (Isa. 33: 20, 22, 24.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Blessed is the man whom thou chastenest, O Lord, and teachest him out of thy law . . .

Unless the Lord had been my help, my soul had almost dwelt in silence. When I said, My foot slippeth; thy mercy, O Lord, help me up. In the multitude of my thoughts within me thy comforts delight my soul.

Shall the throne of iniquity have fellowship with thee, which frameth mischief by a law? (Ps. 94: 12, 17-20.)

✧ ✧ ✧

For, behold, I create new heavens and a new earth: and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind. But be ye glad and rejoice for ever in that which I create: for, behold, I create Jerusalem a rejoicing, and her people a joy. (Isa. 65: 17, 18.)

Letters To The Editor

IS IT DEMOCRACY?

Sir: This letter is written with congratulations to an Alderman who had the courage of his convictions to bring before the public the two-sided faces of some who were elected as supposed to be representatives by the people, by at one time exclaiming their "down on" attitude to the public newspaper for anyone seeking a decent living wage, and then (not for print) wondering how they live on what they do get.

It seems not so many years ago these various aldermen and officials were hardly existing on certain wages, but they ran for office, were elected and before long, are prospering, branching out into real-estate, etc., buying property for a song, with many of the City properties bought not even listed for any of the general public to buy.

Some time past a column was entered in your paper with regards to the head of the City being a representative of the people, with all due respect to the person, how can this be? He was never elected by the people, but by acclamation not once but twice. There is also a rumor in official places that a certain gentleman is the next in line, by what? Acclamation. Is this true democracy?

I am not a believer in labour as many advocate, but I do want you to convey by paper my congratulations to the Alderman, who without the balance of the Council backing him up had the power of his convictions to speak and show the two-sided parts of a person, even if it was against the (future head of the City fathers) acclamation?

A BELIEVER IN DEMOCRACY.

Big Battle Waged On Beaches Between Sydney Girls, Officials

By LOUIS L. LECK

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—There's a battle on Sydney's golden beaches—a wordy battle so far—about several hundred of the city's prettiest beach girls.

Last month they held a surf carnival and life-saving exhibition to raise money for their surf clubs. They stepped right into official trouble.

Surf-board riding is a popular sport at the famous Manly and Bondi beaches. Throughout the summer the sands are crowded with visitors and an expert corps of lifeguards keep a sharp watch on swimmers and surf-board riders. Life-saving equipment is ready at regular spots along the beaches.

Following the carnival the Surf Life-Saving Association sent hasty "please explain" notes to all its officials who took part in the carnival.

"We are not in favor of women competing in surf carnivals," said Eddie Sier, association spokesman.

"Women are not strong enough physically to carry a heavy life-saving belt and line or to swim competitively in surf races. They endanger their lives and those of others when they do this.' The association is primarily a life-saving movement. Our officials are forbidden to act at women's carnivals."

The girls were angry and came right back.

Said 29-year-old Kay Marzol: "The men said 'Girls cannot run a surf carnival.' We showed them. We got twice as big a crowd as the men get and we raised £200 to help our men's club pay for a new building. You would think the association would thank us instead of making a fuss."

Replied Max Whitehead, 29-year-old beach inspector at Manly:

"Let them raise money another way. Girls aren't competent enough to carry out a decent rescue and they just can't be trusted in the surf. It's ridiculous."

"Girls should hold beach carnivals with march pasts but we should set standards for those who want to hold swimming races, and they should not have belts and lines. And we just haven't the strength to man surf boats," said Patricia Ryan, a young stenographer.

So far honors in the battle are even and the association has not yet taken disciplinary action against those members who were at the carnival, however most people who saw the display think that there will probably be more.

BATTLE OF THE BEACHES — When several hundred of the city's prettiest beach girls held a surf carnival on the golden beaches of Sydney, Australia, the Surf Life Saving Association promptly protested. The male members of the association said they were not in favor of girls competing in surf carnivals. The girls replied that they drew bigger crowds than the men and raised money to help the men's club pay for a new building. With banners flying the girls are shown in a march past at the carnival.

Dancing Bylaw Under Fire In Quebec City

QUEBEC (CP)—Roman Catholic lay movements fired a first blast Thursday at the city's new dancing bylaw — permitting dancing in night spots—but city fathers stood pat on their decision.

The powerful Federation of Sacred Heart Leagues, determined to force the council to kill the new measure, said in a protest addressed to city authorities that dancing is only an occasion to "disorder, debauchery and scandal."

It said the argument that more tourists would prefer visiting the historic capital if they could dance was all wrong.

"There are many other aspects to this city that should be seen, we are convinced," the statement said.

SECOND EFFORTS

The French-speaking Catholic Women's League, seconding the federation, said dancing offers "economic and moral" dangers to young people.

Although the bylaw is in force, not a single night-spot operator has applied to the police director for a $200 permit.

Operators have good reason to take their time before acting. There is a municipal election this year and they fear city fathers will switch back to Quebec's ban on dancing in night clubs and cafes if the flow of protests continues.

English-speaking Roman Catholic groups, a small minority in this city, say they are all in favor of the bylaw. So do English-speaking Protestants.

ABOUT

DRYWALL CONSTRUCTION

WITH

MECHANICAL TAPING

What Does Mechanical Drywall Taping Mean?

Just this. It is the only modern method which, with machine precision, guarantees a perfect drywall surface every time! Walls and ceiling joints (as well as corners) cannot be detected after decoration. This is a considered statement based on our experience with thousands of Canadian Homes.

Why Drywall Is a Success

Backed by the unqualified success of Mechanical Taping Machines in the United States . . . and more than ten years' research and field testing . . . this method is now being enthusiastically accepted by Canadian Builders. As fast as Master Operators can be trained, they are being posted to other centres in order to make this service available to everyone interested in faster, smoother dry wall construction.

Yep, the carnival barkers will be moving north as the circus and midway caravans wind up the winter season down south. The barkers have been practising their vocal chords, the fat lady her waddle, the girls, the girls and the girls their fancy high-stepping.

Practically every midway features somewhere along its line of sideshows their strong men. These circus giants who make Charles Atlas look like a midget will be working their weight-lifting feats and possibly taking on the local strong boys.

When the first news and pictures of the midways begin to appear sprinkled throughout the papers, two well-known Peterborough athletes recall fond memories of their experiences, posing as Happy Jack Jack Turner and Irish Bob Maloney, American strong men.

Very few people know that big Stan (How Are Things?) McBride and Cliff McInroy spent several summers not long ago touring with a midway through the Nickle Belt. But it's quite true.

It all started in 1943 when the McBrides and the McInroys spent their summer holidays in Haliburton. There they organized a regatta and were featured in the diving events. They also performed some weight-lifting feats and clown acts.

Their act caught the eye of Joe Pasternak of the Northland Shows and he became interested, finally offering them a part in the athletic tent on the midway.

Both men were at the peak of their weight-lifting years and were in top condition, big Stan weighing in at 190 (he's on a diet of thick juicy steaks and french pastries now, weighing only 240), and Cliff 180.

They kept in touch with Pasternak and then for the kicks they agreed to take a quick run of one-night stands through the north. In order to keep their amateur standing they were allowed to accept expenses only.

Stan and Cliff first worked along with the other midway weight-lifters, then they developed the old wrestling routine, the professional versus the home town brew.

The home-town lads never had the opportunity to face either wrestlers. It worked this way. Cliff would act as the midway professional challenging the home crowd champion. Then out of the ringside would rise big Stan, the home hero, urged on by well-wishers.

"We'd wrestle for five minutes," recalls Stan," then the home town boy would win by a whisker. Of course there'd have to be a return match. We really packed the tent for that night final."

Stan and Cliff took turns being professional and home town boys.

Whoever was the home town lad had to be quick getting into the ring before a real home town bruiser accepted the challenge of Happy Jack or Irish Bob.

They did have one big scare in Coppercliff. Before "home town" Stan could enter the ring, a six-foot five-inch 250-pound "Polish gentleman" accepted Irish Bob's challenge.

Irish Bob (actually Cliff) recalls, "I knew how I wrestled, I didn't know how he wrestled. I just prayed for help."

Promoter Joe squeezed up to the big fellow and finally edged him aside. He persuaded the fellow by the best possible means, namely $15, to melt back into the crowd.

One look at the Polish giant was enough for Stan; he started packing.

"Boy, I was halfway to Peterborough when they caught up with me," laughs Stan.

Later when in Rouyn, Happy Jack (Stan) was konked on the head with an apple thrown from the crowd. His fans gathered around the apple thrower and soon a first class brawl started. It ended up when the wooden horses under the makeshift ring were pulled out and the ring collapsed.

Those days in Rouyn, Coppercliffe, Sundridge, Sturgeon Falls, and Val d'Or were happy ones for Cliff and Stan.

Through the years both men have developed an enviable reputation in Ontario and Peterborough weight-lifting, diving and swimming. They also have a quality which few sportsmen have, showmanship.

Even though they are participating in sports, Stan and Cliff have kept their interests alive by working on various teams' executives. They also promote diving with the annual presentation of the McBride-McInroy trophy to the best diver in the public schools.

Harbert Leads Day's Golfing

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Husky Chick Harbert, who has come close to a lot of golf titles but never took a big one, provided the one sure thing in a day of confusion as the 17th Masters tournament began Thursday.

Harbert fired a four-under-par round of 68 over the spacious Augusta National course and watched it stand up all day.

Defending champion Sam Snead teetered on the edge of disqualification for a moment before some confusion about his score card was cleared up. Snead settled for a one-under-par round of 71, which left him in a four-way tie for sixth place.

Actually, Sam scored a 70, matching the totals of 1951 winner Ben Hogan and Milon Marusic of Herkimer, N.Y. But his playing partner, Byron Nelson, put down a four on Snead's card for the 18th hole instead of the birdie three Sam shot. Snead signed the card without noticing, and when the error was discovered it was ruled that his score had to go in the books the way the card showed.

Harbert posted his round of 33-35—68 early in the day. At the windup it was just enough for a one-stroke lead over Ed "Porky" Oliver and big Al Besselink two other long-hitters in the pro ranks.

Sell Sportsmans' Park To St. Louis Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Browns Thursday sold one of their biggest assets, Sportsman's Park, to their National League rivals, St. Louis Cardinals.

Purchase price of the 30,808-seat ball park was $800,000.

It is the first big money deal made by the Cardinals since they were bought by the wealthy Anheuser-Busch brewery interests last February.

Previously, the Browns had leased the use of the ball park to the Cardinals. The present lease was to have expired in 1960.

August A. Busch, new president of the Cardinals, said in announcing the deal that the Browns have signed a five-year lease for use of Sportsman's Park under Cardinal ownership at an annual rental price of $175,000.

UE Soccer Club Re-entered In E. Ont. Loop

The Peterborough UEW soccer club has again entered the Eastern Ontario League and expects a heavy schedule as five or six more teams will probably be taken into the circuit this year. UEW has twice in the last two years won this league and taken Ontario intermediate honors.

The local club is now training each night to get legs and muscles in shape for the summer, a full practice being called for this Saturday at two p.m. in Morrow Park. It is open for any players interested.

UE has its first game of the season, an exhibition match, with Toronto Nationals on Saturday, April 18, at three p.m. in Morrow Park. League matches commence the following week, according to information received from club secretary Bill Allan.

CAHA Under Fire Over Houghton

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association was on the receiving end of verbal blasts today over amateur hockey's latest flare-up. However, the CAHA returned the fire.

The cross-country broadside was let loose Thursday over the CAHA's refusal to allow Lethbridge Native Sons to use all-star defenceman Mid Houghton as a medical replacement during the Western Canada Memorial Cup playoffs.

Frank Boucher, general manager of New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, parent club of the Native Sons, the Lethbridge Chamber of Commerce, Mayor A. W. Shackleford and Senator W. A. Buchanan (L—Alberta) all voiced their protest to the second vote ruling.

CAHA President W. B. (Baldy) George of Kemptville, Ont., gave the rebuttal.

Native Sons, who lost three regular defencemen through injuries for the remainder of the season while winning the Western Junior Hockey League title, were granted Houghton after a CAHA vote. But, after he played only one game as a replacement, the CAHA conducted a second vote among its branches. Houghton was ruled ineligible.

Boucher charged Thursday that the CAHA was "incompetent" and was "ruining" hockey.

"I have been connected with hockey for more than 30 years but I have never heard of a decision that annoyed me more," he said. "It was a sickening decision, one which could only have been made by a body as lacking in integrity and common sense as the CAHA."

In Kemptville, George told Boucher—in effect—to stay on his own side of the fence.

BETWEEN SEASONS — With hockey, basketball and other winter sports drawing to a close, baseball, softball, soccer and lacrosse teams are beginning workouts. Bright sunny days have allowed summer sports to be started early. Scrub games are played daily now on playgrounds; Rog Grant (top photo) prepares a healthy swing while catcher Garry Quinlan and Umpire Grant Simmons watch for the ball. The youngsters such as Gloria Jacobs and Diane Rowe switch from ice skates to roller skates.—(Examiner Staff Photos).

Peterborough Ball Entry In Lakeshore League To Be Known As "Liflocs"

Peterborough's young baseball club will be known this year as the Liflocs. At an executive meeting Thursday night in the YMCA the club decided upon Liftlocs as the club's name after the Lift Lock, one of the city's best tourist attractions. The Liftlocs will begin workouts Monday night at six p.m. under Coach Howie Dalton. The first few nights will be devoted to exercises and running, and to fellowship, letting the boys get acquainted. Later, they will start throwing the ball around.

GOOD PLAYERS

This year, the Liflocs are relying upon last season's Young Petes for the club's foundation. Players such as Don Bigford, Jerry Frizzelle, John Cupoli, Gary Kearns, Murray Byrne, Rog Wilson, Phil Elmhirst, Ken Pammett, Lawrence Foley and Bryan Young are expected back.

But the executive emphasize that anyone interested in playing junior baseball is welcome to the workouts. Several from the minors, such as Doug Baptie and Dave Colt, will likely try out.

This year, the Liflocs are importing four or five players from district towns and cities. So far the club is planning on several from Port Hope and Cobourg, and possibly several others from Oshawa.

SELLING TICKETS

The club officials are counting on financial support from the baseball fans. This year, they're following a plan similar to the Orfuns' football club by selling booster tickets. There tickets will go on sale within a week at $5 for the season's 16 home games.

R. Holman, former Cobourg Galloping Ghost football player, now living and working in Peterborough, attended Thursday's meeting. He took an active interest in minor sports in Cobourg and was heartily welcomed by the junior club, so much so that he was appointed to the executive.

The club also welcomed D. A. McGillis and Hugh Campbell to the meeting.

Remember When

England defeated Glasgow 2-0 in an international soccer match at Glasgow five years ago today as a multitude of 134,000 fans jammed Hampden Park. The victory gave England the international soccer championship for the season, but the Scots came back to win 3-1 the following year.

Fred Dufton Re-elected To Head Ghosts

COBOURG—Fred Dufton, the main spring behind the Cobourg Galloping Ghosts, ORFU "B" titlists in 1952, was given a resounding vote of confidence here last night as the ghostly crew and their executive returned him to the post of president without a single dissenting vote.

Dufton has been the moving force behind the Ghosts since their beginning in the early thirties.

Last year the Cobourg crew were on the verge of folding when midsummer meetings viewed with gravity the soaring costs of running a football club and the necessity of importing good players. Dufton staged a one-man stand to keep the team going and it was beaten out only by the Peterborough Orfuns who went to the Canadian Intermediate "A" final in the West.

The return of Art West as coach of the Ghosts, forecast early this winter, was officially endorsed by the meeting and West will start the team off in summer training early at Kiwanis Park here.

The executive disclosed that a number of Ottawa intermediates of last year are expected to move here with the new Ordnance Depot which has commenced operations this month.

Other officers elected to the Ghost slate are vice-president Dr. W. Wright, secretary-treasurer, J. Redmond. Directors of the club are: W. Andrews, J. Buchanan, R. Graves, R. Carlson, R. Castle, P. Currelly, R. Drew, G. Harden, Dr. T. Hawke, E. Haynes, F. Hempstead, W. Holland, C. Johnston, J. Koyle, H. Lucas, L. McCarthy, J. Mitchell, J. Newton, J. Rolph, Dr. I. Shaw, W. Spencer, G. Montreal Making Good Start, Downs Bruins 4-2

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL—(CP)—Montreal Canadiens, bidding for the Stanley Cup hockey honors they last won in 1946, got away to a good start Thursday night by defeating Boston Bruins 4-2. It wasn't a game that will go down in the records as a masterful exhibition by either team. But it was an interesting playoff spectacle and the surprise element was a much Boston's lack of sharpness as Canadiens' domination of play. Most fans—and Canadiens—figured the Bruins were hot for this one, particularly after they shunted the tough Detroit Red Wings out of the semi-finals in six games. However, they ran cold on most scoring rushes and lacked the fire that carried them to the previous series.

The victory gave Montreal a one-game lead in the best-of-seven series. The second game is scheduled for Montreal Saturday night. The teams then move to Boston for games Sunday and Tuesday.

GET EARLY GOAL

Canadiens spotted the Bruins an early goal, usually a disastrous situation for the Montrealers against the defensive play the Bruins are wont to rely on with a goal in hand, plus offensive spurts that might produce another goal.

In the National Hockey League season, Canadiens learned from bitter experience—three wins in 14 games—that the Bruins, given a goal, almost have to be ground into the ice before they will surrender it.

But it was a different story Thursday. Goalie Jim Henry of Boston was peppered with 37 shots against 20 on rookie goalie Jacques Plante of Montreal.

Dickie Moore, Ken Mosdell, Floyd Curry and Maurice (Rocket) Richard scored for Canadiens.

Rookie Bob Armstrong scored the first goal of the game and winger Johnny Peirson scored the Bruins' second goal when his team was trailing 3-1.

TWO REASONS

Boston's performance might be attributable to one of two things: No practice since they disposed of the Red Wings last Sunday or the loss of centre Milt Schmidt for the game.

Schmidt was injured Sunday. There is no doubt that the playmaking of the 35-year-old veteran was missed.

Coach Lynn Patrick started Real Chevrefils at Schmidt's position, then, later in the game, scrambled his lines several times. Chevrefils was on left wing with Woody (Porky) Dumart, another veteran centre.

Coach Dick Irvin of Canadiens also did some line juggling when centre Billy Reay aggravated an ankle injury in the first period and did not return.

HAVE GOOD GAMES

Plante and Henry turned in creditable games. Each time Plante was beaten, his team was shorthanded. He was injured in the first period when struck in the groin by a puck fired by defenceman Hal Laycoe, but came back after a rest.

Canadiens outshot the Bruins in every period. In the second period the Bruins had only two soft shots on Plante.

Armstrong's goal came on a Boston power play. Armstrong caught the corner of the net from 40 feet out on a rush with Fleming Mackell and Laycoe.

Moore's goal, tieing the score before the first period ended, was unassisted. He shot toward the goal crease from the end boards and the puck caromed into the net off Henry's skate.

Mosdell and Curry, with the only goals of the second period, put Canadiens ahead to stay. Mosdell scored from close range on the rebound of a shot by Eddie Mazur, and Curry's goal came from almost the same spot when Calum Mackay passed out after taking Dollard St. Laurent's long forward.

Peirson gave the Bruins hope halfway through the third period when he tipped in Mackell's angle shot from the side of the net. However, Richard added the clincher a minute later.

Dutchmen Fly Forward From Toronto

OTTAWA (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen are bringing a forward by plane from Toronto in time for tonight's second meeting with Smiths Falls Rideaus in an effort to even their best-of-seven Eastern Canada senior hockey finals.

Coach Bobby Rafferty said that Don Rope, former Toronto Marlboro star who missed the opener studying for law exams at the University of Toronto, will be here in time for the second game.

That is the only change Rafferty plans to make in the team which dropped a 6-2 decision to Rideaus Wednesday night.

Coach Hal Dewey plans to go along with the same lineup, though Alf Webster may see action. Dewey doesn't regard his team as the underdogs in the series to decide the East's entry in the Allan Cup finals.

"I think we'll get better as we go along," he said.

BETTER AS TEAM

"I've seen individuals play better during the season, but I thought our club played better as a whole than they did at any time during the season."

Rafferty showed the same confidence in his Dutchmen, and credited their poor showing in the first game to "the tough playoff grind we have been through."

"We've put that first game behind us," he said, "and are looking forward to the second meeting."

NO INJURIES

Neither team picked up any injuries in Wednesday night's game, other than the usual bumps and bruises.

Clare Martin, rugged Kitchener defenceman formerly with Chicago, Boston and New York in the National Hockey League, is playing with a broken thumb.

Smiths Falls' Gordie Scott, who scored two goals in the opening game, broke one of his skates Wednesday night and must break in a new pair in time for tonight's game.

Pirates Murder Yankees With 10-5 Win Over Raschi

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

Pittsburgh Pirates, probably some of the most harmless buccaneers ever to hoist the skull and crossbones, were enjoying a hearty laugh today after meeting the conquering New York Yankees.

They not only conquered the world champions, they humiliated them in what one New York writer described as a battle between the worst and best major league teams without being able to tell which was which.

The score at Forbes Field was 10-5 with eight fat Pittsburgh runs coming off the high-priced slants of Vic Raschi, one of the prides of the Yankees.

Ralph Kiner, Cal Abrams and Danny O'Connell slashed home runs off Raschi before the right-hander took cover after seven innings. In all, the Pirates got 13 hits off Raschi and two more off relief man Tom Gorman.

ON SHORT END

Philadelphia Athletics pitted their best against their intercity rivals' best at Portsmouth, Va., Thursday and came out on the short end as Robin Roberts pitched a five-hit shutout for the Phillies and won 4-0. Bobby Shantz gave up only two hits and struck out seven in the five innings he worked for the Athletics, but he gave up the first of the Phils' runs and was charged with the loss. Roberts struck out seven in going nine innings for the first time this spring.

Rain ctu short major league baseball's return to Milwaukee after a 50-year absence. New Milwaukee Braves got in only two innings against their former city rivals, Boston Red Sox, and were trailing 3-0 when a drizzle stopped the proceedings.

Cincinnati, which announced that it intends to be called the Redlegs instead of the Reds this season, belted five home runs off Ned Garver and defeated Detroit 13-3 at Columbus, O.

At Kingsport, Tenn., New York Giants picked on Bobby Feller for seven runs in the first six innings and outlasted Cleveland Indians 7-6.

Writers Choose Yanks, Dodgers To Meet Again

NEW YORK (AP)—The world champion New York Yankees and National League defending champions, Brooklyn Dodgers, rule as overwhelming favorites to meet again in the World Series next fall in an Associated Press poll of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Of the 142 experts voting, 105 selected the Dodgers to become the first National League champions to repeat since the 1943 St. Louis Cardinals successfully defended their title in '44. While their following was not as great, the Yankees still drew 87 first place votes to capture their fifth consecutive American League flag. Runner-up Cleveland was named on 48 first-place ballots.

EDGE OUT GIANTS

Philadelphia's Phillies edged out New York Giants for second place in the National although they received only 14 first-place votes to 18 for the Giants. Strong second-place backing enabled the Phils to pile up 886 points to New York's 873. The Cards, with five first-place votes, were picked for fourth place with 809 points. The Dodgers' point total was 1,090.

Only eight teams received top recognition, four in each league. Chicago White Sox, picked to finish third in the American, drew six first-place votes and Detroit's Tigers, a solid choice to remain in the cellar, received one surprising vote to finish on top. In the point total, the Yankees had 1,069 to 1,008 for Cleveland and 890 for Chicago.

Football Cup Filled, Use Champagne

LONDON (CP)—The football association cup, Britain's most coveted team trophy, will be charged with 11 pints of champagne—one for each of the victorious players—at the close of the final at Wembley Stadium May 2.

More than 2,000,000 soccer fans have already attended the long-drawn elimination series and some 100,000 more will swarm into Wembley bowl for the duel of the last two surviving clubs, Bolton Wanderers and Blackpool.

The cup the Queen will present to the winners is the third edition of the original, offered as a prize when the competition was inaugurated in 1871. The first trophy, valued at £25, was stolen from a shop-window in Birmingham in 1885, when Aston Villa, six times winners of the cup, were the holders. The second reproduction was presented to Lord Kinneard in recognition of his services to the sport, and is still in the family's possession.

The present trophy was produced at a cost of £50 in 1911, but the football association requires winning clubs to insure it for twice that amount. It was made by silversmiths in Bradford and by a novel twist of fortune it was first won by Bradford City who defeated Newcastle United, successful finalists for the last two years.

When the tankard was entrusted to the safekeeping of Portsmouth during the last war, the club loaned it for exhibition purposes to raise funds for a local hospital. Throughout this period the cup was closely guarded by Portsmouth police and as an expression of gratitude for a job well done a club official filled it with 11 pints of beer. But when it was collected next morning it was discovered that the beer had not been touched. Drinking beer on the premises was against regulations.

Later Portsmouth deposited the trophy in the vaults of a bank. During a heavy bomb attack by German night raiders the bank was hit and it was feared the cup had been destroyed. The following day it was learned that the bank manager, Jack Tinn, a lifelong soccer fan, had taken the cup home with him as a precautionary measure. He sat with it in the basement of his house until the "all clear" was sounded.

RED-HOT ROOKIE—Jacques Plante, a gangling, 24-year-old rookie who had played in only three National Hockey League games in his life and never in a Stanley Cup series, scored a shut-out and permitted only one goal in his second game when he was brought in by Montreal Canadiens to replace regular goalie Gerry McNeil. Canadiens defeated Chicago Black Hawks 3-0 and 4-1 in the last two games of the semi-finals and Thursday night in the first game of the finals downed Boston 4-2. Plante, a native of Mont Carmel, Que., played with Montreal Royals of the Quebec Senior Hockey League before moving up to Buffalo of the American Hockey League this season.

British Board To Recognize Randy Turpin-Humez Fight

LONDON (AP)—Britain's Boxing Board of Control announced Thursday it would recognize the Randy Turpin-Charles Humez fight as a world championship contest, an act which may torpedo the formation of a world boxing organization.

The BBBC stipulated that the winner of the June 9 fight in London must agree to defend his title against the American champion within 90 days if called on to do so.

In New York, Bob Christenberry, chairman of the New York state athletic commission, said American boxing authorities will not recognize the Turpin-Humez winner as world champion.

"There's no change in our position," said Christenberry. "I have just discussed the matter again with George Barton (president of the NBA) and we certainly will not recognize the Turpin-Humez winner as world champion.

"We expect Paddy Young (of New York) and Bobo Olson (of San Francisco) to meet for the American championship and we'd like the winner to fight the Turpin-Humez winner for the world championship."

Gilliam, 2 Others Get Dodger Contracts

WASHINGTON (AP)—Jim (Junior) Gilliam and two Brooklyn farmhands were officially signed to Dodger contracts Thursday as the National League champions returned one player to their Montreal farm and released three others.

Besides Gilliam, the Dodgers brought up pitchers Johnny Podres and Bob Milliken, both righthanders. Podres, who had a 5-5 record at Montreal last year, has been the Brooks' spring pitching sensation. Milliken, a returning serviceman who performed last for Montreal, also has looked impressive in exhibition games.

Gilliam is hitting only .240 but has been spectacular in the field and apparently has won the regular second-base job away from Jackie Robinson. He batted .301 at Montreal last season and was voted the International League's most valuable player.

Hornets Clip Cleveland 5-2

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bob Sabourin scored two goals Thursday night as Pittsburgh Hornets defeated Cleveland Barons 5-2 for their first victory in three starts in the playoff for the American Hockey League's Calder Cup.

Andy Barbe, playing in a plastic helmet to protect a fractured jaw, scored what proved to be the winning goal for the Hornets. It came at 19:44 of the second period.

The Hornets, beaten twice at Cleveland, took the lead on a first-period goal by Danny Lewicki but Bob Bailey squared it for Cleveland at 7:15 of the second stanza. Frank Mathers sent the Hornets ahead again at 18:25 and then came Barbe's clinching goal.

Fred Glover scored Cleveland's final goal in the third period, sandwiching it between Sabourin's markers.

LINCOLN DOWNS, R.I. (AP)—Anthony DeSpirito, leading jockey in the U.S. last year, was injured in a three-horse spill at this track Thursday.

He was taken to hospital in a semi-conscious condition.

DeSpirito, whose 390 winners last year set a world record, was riding a horse named Ten Per Cent when it and two others went down as they neared the first turn in the race.

Disqualify Horse Doping Charged

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—Tarien, which won Saturday's Doncaster Handicap, was disqualified Wednesday because of doping. The horse, a favorite, was backed by £300,000 by the bettors.

The Australian Jockey Club, which announced the decision also disqualified Cromis, an unfancied runner which won the Sires Produce Stakes.

Swabs of both horses taken by jockey club experts proved positive. Their findings created a sensation on the Australian turf.

Reports said that the criminal investigation department is expected to be called in.

Besides winning huge sums in the Doncaster Handicap, Tarien was coupled in a "double" with Carioca, winner of the Sydney Cup on Monday, and made killings for bettors.

Dukes Beaten By The C's In TVL Playoff

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS). — Defeating Wellington Dukes by a 9-5 count in Belleville last night, Campbellford took a 3-1 lead in their best-of-seven TVL hockey finals. A crowd of 1,139 viewed a hard, but clean contest, kept well in check by Referees Maurice Walsh and Jim Cromble. The next game is listed for Belleville next Tuesday night, and a win for Campbellford would give them the title.

Eady was moved back on defence for this game for the C's and he and Simpson were probably the pick of the team, though the whole club clicked well from goal out. Goyer shone for the losers with three goals and an assist, the Dukes battling hard to the finish.

Campbellford counted the lone marker of the first period when Blake scored at 4.25 on Eady's pass. Penalties went to Payne, Simpson and Hurst in this initial inning.

PILED IT UP

Campbellford banged in three in the middle heat, Craig, Simpson and Eady tallying, with an assist apiece going to Payne, Wilson and Jeffs. The Dukes got one back, York going through on a play with Hurst and Goyer. The penalties were taken by Pace, Cousins, Hatfield, York, Hurst and Payne.

In the third, play was wide-open, Campbellford scoring five goals and Wellington four. The latter team saw Goyer tear in to blink the light three times, with Cousins getting the other. Scott and Johnston had an assist each, and Hatfield aided on two. Simpson tallied twice for Campbellford, singles going to Cole, Blake and Eady. Wilson helped on a pair and Pace earned one assist. Wilson had two penalties in the third, with Cousins, Eady and Simpson each thumbed off once.

2 Africans Sentenced To Death For Slaying

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—Two Africans were sentenced to death in strife-torn Kenya today for the slaying of Kikuyu tribal chief Waruhui last October. A third accused was acquitted.

Waruhui, who opposed the fanatic Mau Mau secret society's campaign to drive the white man from this British East Africa colony, was shot as he drove through Nairobi, Kenya's capital.

4 Arbitration Boards To Hear Disputes

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — Buffalo Bisons Thursday night appointed Fred Hunt as general manager of the American League team for the 1953-54 season.

Hunt, a native of Brantford, Ont., was named general manager of the club toward the end of last summer, but—the owners say—not in time to keep the team from winding up the season in last place.

Hunt has played hockey with the Bisons, New York Rangers and Hershey Bears. He coached the Bisons for part of the 1951-52 campaign.

Former Citizens Of U.S. Speak To Kiwanis Club

In recognition of Canada-United States goodwill week, the Kiwanis club Thursday at their weekly luncheon meeting had two former U.S citizens, Jack Lewis and Dennis Fitzgerald speak on Canadian-American relations.

Dennis Fitzgerald was born about 30 miles south of the Canadian border and said that in the early 20s the American people as a whole had little interest in Canada, "a strip of barren country to the north of them."

The only contact the American people had with Canadians was what they saw of them in border cities and U.S. people who ventured into Canada on their holidays found Canadians to be very conservative individuals both in manner and dress and were usually better informed about the U.S. than they were about Canada.

Interest, however, heightened after the advent of the First World War. When motor cars came into use many tourists started to come to Canada. With the coming of the Second World War and closer relationship with one another's governments and Americans and Canadians working side by side on the Alcan highway, both countries moved together.

SOUTHERNER

Jack Lewis, a southerner by birth came to Canada in the late 20s and also said the only Americans to know a great deal about Canada were the people in the northern states. Northerners had very little contact with the mid-western and southern states in those days. They, like the Canadians, were quite conservative and did not have the hustle and bustle about them as did the northerners. What ideas they did have about Canada, were obtained second hand from the north.

Mr. Lewis felt that there was no great resentment between Canadians and Americans. Americans today have a friendly attitude toward Canada and do not envy a country because they are well satisfied with their own.

U.S. citizens now realize that Canada is much wealthier than they had believed. In the last few years Americans have proven their belief in the future of Canada by investing over eight billion dollars in industry in Canada. Said Mr. Lewis "this is Canada's century."

Robs Room Mate Youth Goes To Jail

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A Sarnia youth was sentenced to three months in jail when he pleaded guilty in city court today to theft of clothing from his room mate in London April 3.

John Bruce Rummerfield, 17, was arrested in Sarnia Thursday.

William Allison said clothing valued at $75 and a suitcase were gone after Rummerfield left their room.

Naval Ball

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Naval Officers Association of British Columbia announced the annual Trafalgar Day ball this year will be held Oct. 23. All B.C. debutantes will be invited to be presented to Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Clarence Wallace.

Fraud Charges Are Withdrawn

Two charges of false pretences against Maitland J. Carter, 30, 112 Stewart St., were withdrawn Thursday.

Carter was charged with having obtained a 1939-model car valued at $452 from Nicholas Peconi and $15 cash and $6 worth of gasoline from Garnet H. Johntson, proprietor of the Eastport Service Station, by means of worthless cheques.

Defense counsel James Dunn submitted a transcript of account and a letter from the manager of a Toronto bank showing a credit balanced in favor of the accused of the time of the transaction. He said that payment had been stopped on a cheque from a Montreal automobile dealer which had been endorsed by the accused, who was in hospital at the time and was unaware that payment had been stopped.

Mr. Peconi, who appeared in court, requested withdrawal of the first charge and consent was given by Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, who also requested that the second charge be dropped.

Magistrate W. R. Philp told Mr. Peconi that withdrawal of the charge would not prevent a civil action in the matter later.

Bible College Graduates Told World Their Parish

"Behold I have set before you an open door and no man can shut it."

With this quotation from the Bible, the Rev. Walter E. McAlister told members of the graduating class of the Eastern Pentecostal Bible College that "the world is your parish." He encouraged them with "God makes us equal to any responsibility that may fall to our lot in the work of the ministry."

Mr. McAlister, who is superintendent of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada, delivered the baccalaureate address Thursday night at the first evening of the two-day graduation ceremonies of the college.

He urged the 27 graduates to be Bible preachers. "Put much of God's Word into your message," he said.

Taking his text from 2 Corinthians 3:6, he said being a minister is not having the ability to deliver an intellectual discourse nor to follow a beautiful ritual but to offer a ministry that is "motivated by the power of the Holy Spirit."

"As ministers of the New Testament," said Mr. McAlister, "we should remember . . . our own absolute insufficiency, apart from God."

MUST HAVE GOD

The speaker said men can do many things with only human ability, "but . . . you can never make a success of the Christian ministry by the exercise of human ability. In this New Testament ministry, you must have God, or fail."

God provides everything that a minister requires, Mr. McAlister told his audience. "What unlimited resources we have! For our preaching we have the inexhaustible resources of God's Word."

God has also given His ministers resources of power, he said. He quoted Jesus as saying "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me because He hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor." The power of the Holy Ghost makes it possible for a minister to cope with any demand made upon him.

The student choir of 115 voices sang two selections: The Holy City, and The Mystery of Grace. The Choral Radio Group sang Torchbearers Chorus.

Tonight at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, the 27 graduates will be presented with their diplomas and Theunis Botha, grandson of South Africa's famed Gen. Louis Botha, will deliver the valedictory address.

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP) — Four arbitration boards will soon hear disputes in north western Quebec between the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) and mining companies.

The mines are Noranda, Quemont Waite Amulet and Normetal.

Patrick Burke, United Steelworkers representative, said today that the union has been asked to name nominees to boards who will hear the cases at Waite Amulet and Normetal mines. Previously, boards were announced for disputes between local unions and Noranda and Quemont mines.

Mr. Burke said the union is asking for wage increases, paid holidays, a 40-hour week and overtime, premiums for afternoon and night shifts, statutory holidays, seniority, pension and welfare plans and checkoff of union dues.

Wesley Mason Dies In Lindsay

LINDSAY (ENS). — Services were held this afternoon from the McArthur funeral home in Lindsay for Wesley Mason, prominent Lindsay citizen for many years. Mr. Mason was also well known in his home district of Marmora, Stirling, Madoc and in Haliburton.

Wesley Mason was born at Springbank, Hastings County, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Royal Mason. Shortly after his birth, his family moved to Marmora district, where he was educated.

His first job was on a farm near Springbank and later he went with a cold storage firm in Brockville. Then he learned the trade of cheese making and was employed at factories in Stirling, Rawdon township, and Madoc township.

After a serious accident while working, which kept him from employment for several months, he went into the hotel business at Springbank and worked for the J. M. Greene Music Company in Peterborough. He managed the Campbellford store for the firm and then came to Lindsay in 1914 to managed the store here.

Driver Admits Was Drunk, Jailed 7 Days

David Ellis, 38, 49 Lafayette Ave., was sentenced to seven days in jail for drunk driving and fined $25 and $2.50 costs for failing to report an accident when he pleaded guilty to both charges in police court Thursday.

The charges arose out of two accidents which occurred on April 3, one on the road to Lakefield and the other just south of the Grove school in Lakefield, where Ellis drove around a curve on the wrong side of the road for 200 feet before crashing into a fence and a tree, according to evidence of Chief Constable D. P. Morris of Lakefield.

Magistrate W. R. Philp ordered the car impounded for three months but released it on posting of recognizance that it would not be operated on the highway. Defense counsel W. B. Gordon applied for release of the car, which belongs to Ellis' wife, on the grounds that the owner wished to have it repaired for resale to pay off the indebtedness to the vendor.

Mr. Gordon made a plea for suspended sentence on the charge of failing to report the first accident, which was described by Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, QC, as a minor one.

Ellis had been taking capsules for lead poisoning contracted at his work in Oshawa, Mr. Gordon explained. He had had a drink with a fellow employee after working 10 or 12 hours and then had driven home to Peterborough. He said Ellis didn't remember anything that happened from the time he went down the long hill at the junction of Highways 28 and 7A until after the accident.

"He drove all the way from Oshawa to Peterborough without any difficulty," Mr. Gordon said. "This leads me to believe that it wasn't altogether liquor which caused his condition."

Nervous Bandit Holds Up Post Office

HAMILTON (CP) — A youthful, nervous bandit held up a branch post office in Strathearne Survey today, taking $12 in cash and a handful of postal money orders.

Police said the bandit was about 24 and "looked like a university student."

After grappling with elderly Mrs. Pearl Davis in the store, he ran out and got into a new model car. Witnesses said there was a "pretty blonde girl" about 17, waiting in the car.

William Barrick

Pallbearers at the funeral of the late William Barrick on Thursday afternoon were Donald Wood, Jack Donoghue, Robert Goodfellow, Robert Gibson and Allan and Fred Warren.

Mr. Barrick, who lived at 483 Arndon Ave., was a resident of Peterborough for 27 years and one of the eight original employees who started with the Johnson Outboard Motor Co. He died Tuesday, age 42.

The funeral was at the Kaye funeral home with the Rev. C. G. Boyd of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church officiating. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

File Civil Suit From 4 Firms

TORONTO (CP) — Crown counsel T. N. Phelan said the city of Toronto received identical tenders Thursday from four of the five rubber companies who have pleaded guilty to charges of operating a combine in restraint of trade and of fixing prices of their products.

He made the statement Thursday as the trial of the companies—Goodyear, Dominion, Gutta Percha Dunlop and B. F. Goodrich—continued before Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven. The firms each face a maximum fine of $10,000 and a court order is being sought by the Crown to prohibit the continuation of the combine.

Mr. Phelan said the prices quoted were for fire-fighting equipment and were substantially higher than a fifth tender from an American company. He said: "If this is not a continuation of the offence, I don't know how to describe it."

His remarks were made after John D. Arnup, counsel for Dominion Rubber, wound up arguments for the defence. Mr. Arnup had said the "Crown asks your lordship to assume that the crimes are going to be repeated."

Picked Paintings

HALIFAX (CP)—The Nova Scotia Society of Artists is presenting a week-long art exhibit in the public library here starting April 13, when 100 of the original 300 entries will be displayed. Among judges is Ted Campbell, director of the Vocational Training School at Saint John, N.B.

Same Tenders Against Oil Firms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U. S. government announced Thursday it will file a civil suit here against major oil companies, charging them "with violation of anti-trust laws through an international oil cartel."

The justice department declined to say how many firms will be named defendants, but indications were that as many as 20 might be involved, including giants of the industry here and abroad.

There were also indications that the Eisenhower administration favors dropping a criminal case against the alleged oil cartel now pending before a federal grand jury in the District of Columbia.

Attorney-General Herbert Brownell said the decision to start civil proceedings was reached after consultation with the President, other members of the cabinet, and Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff. He said the suit will be filed within the next three weeks.

Canadian Force In Germany Find People Difficult To Become Friendly With

(After 2½ years as Canadian Press staff correspondent with the Canadian forces in Korea, Bill Boss has spent three weeks in Germany with the 27th Canadian Brigade. In this story, one of a series, he describes relations between the Canadians and the German people, and the efforts being made to improve them.)

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HANNOVER, Germany (CP)—The soldier in Canada's 27th brigade here leads a narrow life, restricted during the day by training, at night by his uniform and always by his lack of contact with the German civilian.

German officials insist the local population has only friendly feelings for the Canadians. But they stress Hannover's character, known throughout Germany as "stur," which means something like "forbiddingly correct."

Police president John Westphal said: "There is no animosity on the people's part. It's just their way. Here we take weeks, months, even years, to make a friend. But the soldier can't wait."

RESENTS OCCUPATION

Hannover has a socialistic aversion to armies of any kind. And there is resentment against the 1945 defeat and a respectful dislike of the British occupiers, with whom the Canadian soldier is linked.

Germans don't believe that Canada is paying her way in Germany. They believe the 27th brigade, like the British force, is paid for by the German taxpayer.

Individual Canadians are making yards in making friends with the Germans. So far 103 have obtained conditional permission from their commanding officers to go ahead with marriage plans. An average of five a week make preliminary enquiries and many courtships are under way.

LOTS OF ENTERTAINMENT

Entertainment abounds in Hannover. The 478,000 inhabitants support a municipal opera which gives nightly performances, two symphony orchestras, a municipal theatre with plays that also change nightly, a ballet company, and about 180 night spots, most open until 5 a.m.

The British Army operates three cinemas, two clubs in downtown Hannover, and a full range of canteens. The Canadian Army operates a club for sergeants and provides transport downtown and back for soldiers.

Were the brigade a typical wartime cross-section of Canadian manhood Hannover would be suitable.

But many of these soldiers are men whose educational level averages half-way through public school. They have no intellectual resources.

More than a fair share have been "bad apples" who are being weeded out but not before they have lowered the local prestige of the Canadian soldier.

A relative minority have won the Canadian soldier here such a label that a decent German girl's reputation is gone if she is seen with one.

"CIVVIES" THE ANSWER

This reporter's notebook is replete with quotations from commanding officers and clean-cut boys who say the only answer is permission to wear civilian clothes.

Then they would disappear into the German population when off-duty and be free to form for themselves the associations they normally would. The bad actors still would get into trouble, but the majority would be able to operate free of the inhibiting influence of uniforms.

One medical officer, discussing the soldiers' drinking and sexual interests, noted that, with all licensed brothels in Hannover out of bounds, the soldiers are restricted to the more than 2,000 DP street-walkers.

There is a strong educational campaign to show the soldier the menace implicit in VD, even when cured. But the rate continues at about 288 a thousand a year.

The medical officer said the comparable British figure was 1.3 a thousand.

"I would consider the United States Army figure of 45 to 50 a thousand a reasonable normal for Canadians."

FAMILY LIFE

"With a Canadian society, provided by the wives and families of the married men, the tone would be improved," said this officer. "The single men would settle down to decent standards and the married men would have their normal outlet.

"Alcoholism is another root problem and indicates the urgency of teaching men to drink properly. Germans ask us whether drinking isn't allowed in Canada."

Defence Minister Claxton suggested in Germany last December that means be sought to foster relations between the troops and the civilians. He suggested a German-Canadian committee to work out a program.

Lt.-Col. G. M. C. Sprung, commander of the 1st Canadian infantry battalion, represents Brig. John Pangman on the committee, which sits with representatives of Minister-President Knopf of Lower Saxony.

INTERESTING CANVASS

Sprung canvassed the brigade for activities which the men would like to share with Germans.

In a force of almost 7,000 the canvass showed interest in cycling (100), fencing (50), gymnastics (100), swimming, rowing and yachting (100), Tennis (90), excursions and lectures (160), music (100), chess (two) and photography (50).

The hope is that as the program gets going more will show interest.

Meanwhile, doing a first-rate job of public relations are gunners of the 79th Field Regiment, RCA, at Hohne, about 30 miles north of Hannover.

They have adopted an orphanage with 80-odd children not far from their barracks. They visit the children every week-end, take up collections for them every payday, and manage to have a party for each boy and girl in the institution as his or her birthday comes up.

New Federal Building For Hamilton In '53

OTTAWA (CP)—Works Minister Fournier said Thursday work will begin this year on a new $3,500,000 federal building in Hamilton, to house various departments of government.

He gave the firm reply after T. H. Ross (L—Hamilton East) chided the minister for having it on the plan for some time and doing nothing about it.

Mr. Fournier said the site on the block bounded by George, Caroline and Main streets, was bought from the Hamilton board of education.

CBC Starts Broadcast Of Coronation At 5 am

OTTAWA (CP)—The CBC will start broadcasting the coronation at 5 a.m. EDT June 2. The program will be rebroadcast later that night.

A. D. Dunton, chairman of the CBC board of governors, also told the Commons' broadcasting committee Thursday that some CBC announcers will work with the BBC on the coronation shortwave broadcast.

Drowned In Creek

RUTHERGLEN, Ont. (CP)—Max Champagne, 18, of nearby Eau Claire was drowned Thursday when his 1929 model car plunged into eight feet of water in Sparks creek. A passenger, Antoine Bellaire, 22, of Rutherglen escaped when he jumped from the submerged car and grasped some brush growing from the bank of the stream. Bellaire said Champagne lost control of the car as they approached a bridge. Rutherglen is 20 miles east of North Bay.

SHOPPING IN GERMANY — Three Canadian wives admire a silver teapot in a German handicrafts shop in Hannover during a shopping tour. Left to right: Mrs. Dorsey Reed, Toronto; Mrs. Joan Howey, of Leaside, and Mrs. Peggy Murray, of Edmonton and Ottawa. A medical officer with the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade at Hannover, commenting on the life led by Canadian troops in Germany, said: "With a Canadian society, provided by the wives and families of the married men, the (moral) tone would be improved. The single men would settle down to decent standards and the married men would have their normal outlet."

Gets Stuck In Mud Mute Boy 7, Saved

CHELSEA, Mass. (AP)—Donald James of Toronto, seven years old and mute for three years, was mired helplessly in a city dump for two hours Thursday before he was rescued by workmen who found him by accident.

The youngster was treated for immersion and exposure at Memorial Hospital where his mud-caked clothes had to be cut from him.

The terrified youngster was on the verge of drowning when his plight was discovered.

The boy was reported missing by his mother, Mrs. Marjorie James, after he failed to appear for lunch.

Investigation showed he had crawled beneath a fence surrounding an old claypit now used as a dump, made his way down a steep bank and got stuck in the mud.

The Regiment will parade at the Armouries from 0900 to 1630 hrs. 12 Apl. 53.

Order of dress will be battledress, beret, web belt, boots and anklets.

Lunch will be provided.

Commanding Officer,

DO YOU OWN A CAR?

If you own a car, we would like to tell you about a discovery.

About five years ago, the Manager of Bardahl Manufacturing Corporation had been driving a '39 model car. Noticing a leak in the radiator he took the car to a garage for repairs. At the time the Bardahl Manager had been working on a rust preventative for the cooling system. When he received his car back, he put some of this into his radiator. After driving the car for several weeks he noticed the radiator still leaked. Returning the car to the garage he reported the trouble. Later that day the garage operator phoned to ask Mr. Tennant what on earth he had put in the radiator. The garage owner went on to explain that when he drained the radiator the water was so thick with dirt it would hardly pour. The rust preventative prepared by Mr. Tennant had removed rust, scale and dirt untouched by the popular brand of chemical cleaner used by the garage owner.

The garage owner immediately placed an order for their own use. Since then hundreds of thousands of motorists across Canada and the United States have tried this Bardahl Rad Conditioner.

If you own a car you should try it, for if your car is old you'll be positively amazed at the dirt, rust and scale it will remove; if your car is new, Bardahl will keep the radiator in new, tip-top condition.

Bardahl keeps radiators clean . . . eliminates rust formation which can insulate a motor causing harmful overheating, and it also lubricates and stops squeaky water pumps. And when you think most of us spend about $25.00 every year washing our cars and yet neglect a more important part of the car—that is, the radiator—well, it's really worth it to buy a can of Bardahl Rad Conditioner at 80c.

Airport Contract Criticized Sharply

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons defence committee ran into trouble Thursday over a perennial trouble-maker—cost-plus contracts.

As members moved into that phase of defence expenditures, R. J. Johnson, president of the government-operated Defence Construction Ltd., stoutly defended his action in not calling for tenders for seven contracts estimated to be worth $5,485,000 at the RCAF's big Goose Bay, Labrador, airport 550 miles northwest of St. John's, Nfld. All seven contracts were given to the Terminal Construction firm.

His defence was made against statements by E. D. Fulton (PC—Kamloops) that there is no way of knowing how much less the work might have cost the country because no effort was made by DCL to find out what other contractors would ask for it. He suggested that the way to find out would have been to allow contractors to bid on tenders.

Mr. Johnson said he could not definitely prove the construction job would have cost the government less if tenders had been called instead of assigning the work to Terminal Construction on a cost-plus basis.

Hotel Liquor Licence Suspended In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—All liquor licences of the downtown Prince George hotel were suspended Thursday over the staging of what the Ontario liquor licence board called "improper and indecent entertainment."

The suspension, effective next Monday, will apply to the entire premises.

The board took exception to some of the entertainment put on by the Novelaires, a three-man combo group.

New St. Peter's School Blend Of Modern, Traditional

Unlike most recently-built schools, St. Peter's elementary school for boys is not a one-storey building spread out over a wide area.

Instead, its three storeys of yellow brick and limestone rise from the ground in the imposing manner of traditional public buildings —an impression heightened by the graceful two-storey entrance with its three ornamental doors flanked by five massive pillars.

The overall effect of an exterior view of St. Peter's is one of solid academic dignity, befitting its location and its use as a centre of learning An extreme modernity would have clashed with the sedate architecture of surrounding buildings such as St. Peter's cathedral

HAS SPACE AND LIGHT

This is not to say that St. Peter's school is not a modern building. It meets the principle demands of modern architecture for space and light. The wide corridors, spacious windows and light-colored walls are a far cry from the gloom and stuffiness of earlier buildings.

Costing about $600,000 the L-shaped building has a frontage of 177 feet on Reid St. and 122 feet on Brock St. Contained in the fot of the "L" bordering Brock St. are the gymnasium and auditorium. The longer wing contains the 11 classrooms, nine of which have been in use since September. Architect of the new building was James H. Haffa, MRAIC, and the general contractor was George Hardy Ltd., Toronto.

The first sod for the new building was turned by Monsignor J. J. O'Brien on July 8, 1951, in a ceremony conducted by the Most Rev Gerald Berry, Bishop of Peterborough. On January 10, 1952, Bishop Berry laid the cornerstone, following an address by John G. McCarney, chairman of the Peterborough Separate School Board.

The school has accommodation for approximately 385 boys. Its students formerly studied in four different schools. Grade 1 pupils used to be in the old limestone school at Hunter and Rubidge Sts. Grades 2 and 3 were in St. Mary's, a girls' school. Grades 4 and 5 were in St. Peter's High School and grades 6, 7 and 8 were in St. Alphonsus'.

FACILITIES FOR BOYS, GIRLS

Although the school is primarily for boys, its facilities are used by both boys and girls from the high school as well as those of elementary school age.

It contains a library, manual training room, principal's office, three teachers' rooms and a medical room. The bright, airy class rooms contain movable desks in keeping with recommendations of modern educators who object to a fixed seatingarrangement for teaching every subject. The home economics room is equipped with sewing machines, a fully-outfitted kitchen, dining room furnishings and facilities for teaching up-to-date good grooming to the young ladies of tomorrow.

The gymnasium, which measures 115 feet by 55 feet, has a basketball court 84 feet long and 45 feet wide, with three sets of baskets for practices and courts for badminton and volley ball. Above the floor level is a six-foot oval track with a circumference of 260 feet.

The gymnasium can be subdivided and there is shower and locker accommodation for both girls and boys.

LARGE AUDITORIUM

Above the gymnasium is the lofty auditorium which comfortably seats an audience of 886. The large stage is well-appointed with complete lighting equipment from a bank of dimmers in the wings. A short stairway leads from the wings to a flying gallery off which the dressing rooms are located.

The auditorium not only serves the school but is an asset to the whole community. It recently proved itself more than adequate for a performance by members of the opera school of Toronto's Royal Conservatory of Music.

Principal of the school is Sister Lucretia who, for 36 years, specialized in Latin and taught English and art, as well as serving as unofficial vocational guidance director at St. Peter's High School until her retirement from teaching duties last December. As principal of St. Peter's school she does no teaching but serves in a supervisory capacity.

ST. PETER'S ELEMENTARY SCHOOL will officially be opened today, although it has been occupied since September. The school (top), costing about $600,000, has 11 classrooms, nine of which have been in use since school started last September. Principal is Sister Lucretia (right) who, for 36 years, specialized in Latin and taught English and art. As principal she does no teaching but serves in a supervisory capacity. —(Examiner Staff Photos).

Discover Drug Against Cancer

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

CHICAGO (AP)—Discovery of the first drug stopping the speedy and almost-always fatal black cancer, melanoma, was announced today.

It works only for a time. But it has banished this dread cancer in one human for at least a year, and has helped a few others.

Until now there has not been any drug or treatment, except surgery at the earliest signs, which has had any effect upon melanoma. This dark cancerous growth starts somewhere on the skin, then spreads inside the body.

The drug is nicknamed tepa, an abbreviation, for triethylenephosphoramide. It is a relative of a drug which improves the appearance of textiles. "Cousins" of this drug also show good effect against black cancers in mice, even apparently curing them. Tepa is an entering wedge against this form of cancer.

This step in chemical warfare upon cancer was reported to the American Association for Cancer Research by Drs. Sydney Farber, Virginia Downing, and Majib Abu-Hydar of the Children's Cancer Research Foundatiin and department of pathology, Harvard Medical School.

At 8.15 p.m. the Most Rev. Gerald Berry will bless the school and the opening ceremony will begin at 8.30 p.m. in the auditorium that seats 886 persons.

After the singing of "O Canada," John G. McCarney, chairman of the Peterborough Separate School Board, will welcome the visitors. Greetings are expected from Mayor Hugh Waddell, from the Board of Education — chairman Stanley R. Adamson and K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools—and from J. C. Walsh, assistant supeirntendent of elementary education for Ontario.

ENTERTAINMENT

Joseph C. Doyle, separate school inspector, will make a few remarks and then there will be a pause for entertainment. Helen Hajnik, formerly of Peterborough and now living in Toronto, will sing a few selections.

The program calls for an address by Premier Frost and the the official opening. The Hon. Harold R. Scott, minister without portfolio, is scheduled to introduce the Premier.

Gordon K. Fraser, MP for Peterborough West, has also been invited but it is not yet known if he can leave Ottawa where Parliament is still in session.

The final address of the night will be by Bishop Berry. And the program will finish with the singing of "God Save the Queen."

INSPECTION BY PUBLIC

St. Peter's will then be thrown open for inspection by the Peterborough public. Principal of the new St. Peter's, which has eliminated the use of four other schools for the education of Roman Catholic children, is Sister Lucretia.

Financing of the $600,000 school is partly by debentures and partly by funds from the Episcopal Corporation of Peterborough. Debentures have been issued for $430,000 and the rest is made up of funds controlled by the Corporation and handled in its name by Bishop Berry.

It is estimated that the Department of Education will give a 22 per cent grant on an approved portion of each of the annual debenture instalments which are spread over 20 years.

Drunk In Charge Of Truck, Jailed

Allan Lewis, 42, RR 4, Peterborough, was sentenced to seven days in jail Thursday for being drunk while in charge of a truck, which was ordered impounded for three months by Magistrate W. R. Philp.

Defense counsel Robert Carley said that the conviction would be appealed.

PC William Scott gave evidence that he discovered the truck about 2 a.m. March 28, parked at an angle across London St. about 75 feet east of Reid St. He said he found Lewis sitting behind the wheel with the keys in his hand in a drunken condition.

Bruce McConnell, 221 London St., said he and the accused had each consumed three quarts of beer on the afternoon of March 27 and had then driven to Chemong. They returned to McConnell's apartment about seven o'clock and had coffee and sandwiches and two pints of beer. He said the accused was sober when he left him at 10 o'clock.

Mrs. Nina Boyer, who lives in the apartment below McConnell's said that Lewis was sober when he was talking to her husband later that evening.

Mr. Carley submitted that police evidence as to Lewis' condition had not gone so far towards intoxication as in other cases. He objected to PC Scott giving his opinion as to Lewis' condition and contended that the only evidence given in the matter was that Lewis was unsteady on his feet and smelt of alcohol.

5,700 Apply For Ford Jobs

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — More than 5,700 persons, most of them from the Hamilton and Toronto areas, have applied for jobs in the last month at the huge Ford of Canada motor plant, now nearing completion on the outskirts of Oakville.

About 75 per cent of them are now working at other jobs.

The attractive auto industry wages, among the highest in Canadian manufacturing, are bringing them to this town at a rate of 200 to 300 a day.

Many, whether they seek jobs on the assembly line or clerical posts, are due for disappointment. The total working force by the end of 1953 will be only 2,500. However, an eventual high mark of 4,000 is planned when production reaches its peak.

The bottom rate for a Ford employee with eight weeks' service is $1.49 an hour; the average hourly rate at Windsor, Ont., where Ford has its present plant and where there is a high proportion of skilled men, is $1.61.

Rheumatic Fever Campaign Launched

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—A country-wide preventative campaign against rheumatic fever was launched today.

It is the first large-scale effort to put into general use evidence that recurrences of rheumatic fever can be prevented by daily use of penicillin or sulfa drug.

The plan is to have some 4,000,000 Americans, most of them school children, receive a dose of one of the drugs every day for a period of years.

The various state and local heart associations pledged themselves to the effort at the annual meeting of the American Heart Association.

Salt Mine Lies Underneath Small Village

MALAGASH MINES, N.S. (CP)—A man-made lake eight times as salty as the sea lies 400 yards under this quiet village on Northumberland Strait.

Although the water's buoyancy would prevent you from drowning, it's not for swimming. Salt is produced there and it provides many of the village folk with employment.

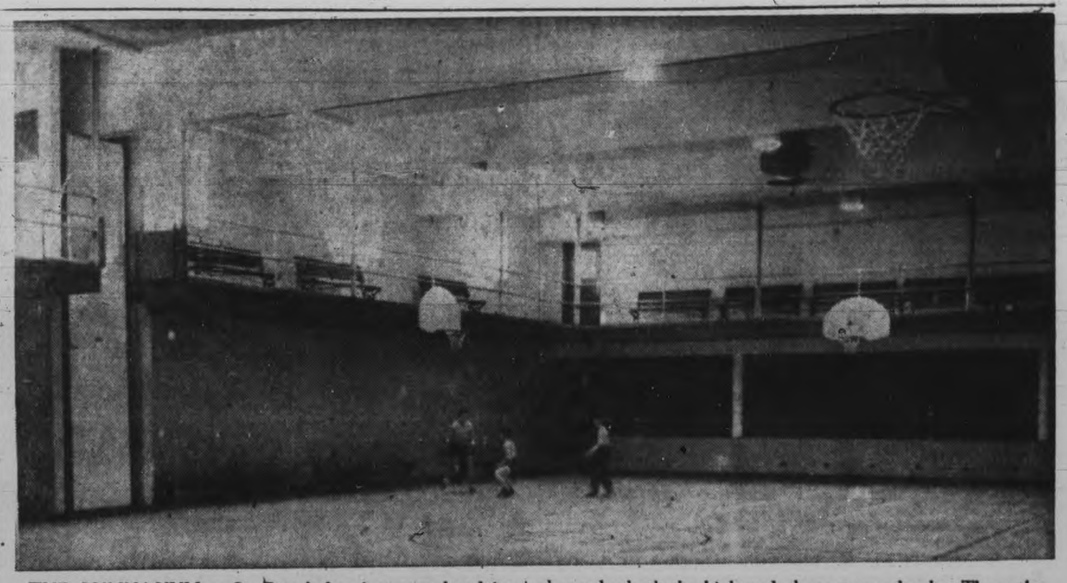
The cold, sparkling mine has huge 150-foot-high caverns where salt has been mined. The roofs, unlike coal mines, are not supported by wood and steel beams. The salt supports itself.

Salt seams, which twist and turn in unpredictable paths, range from 75 feet to several hundred feet in thickness. Rock salt is brought up from the chambers to crushers and, after processing, is bagged for market.

USED TO CURE FISH

This salt is used primarily by fishermen for curing fish. Table salt is a different story.

Fresh water is pumped over walls of pure rock salt, depositing salt crystals into a lake which gleams and sparkles as millions of dancing light beams are reflected by the crystals. The brine is then pumped back to the surface where the water evaporates in the wind and sun leaving pure salt crystals.



Drilling for water in 1912, Peter Murray was the first to realize there might be salt under his farm.

PURE ROCK SALT

Five years later, George W. MacKay and A. R. Chambers of New Glasgow bored holes in search of salt. They found a seam of pure rock salt 79 feet thick. And from that finding arose the Malagash salt mine.

Today the mine shaft goes down 200 feet. Tunnels branch out for 1,200 feet and extend 1½ miles underground. The mine is situated on nine square miles of property.

Other people in the Malagash district reap a livelihood from small farms or the waters of Malagash bay where some of the country's best lobsters are trapped.

Gamma Globulin Cuts Number Of Polio Cases

CHICAGO (AP) — Gamma Globulin, a substance obtained from human blood, can cut to one-eighth your child's chances of coming down with polio.

This was shown today in a final report from a team of doctors who made tests involving some 55,000 children during the 1951-52 polio epidemic.

The doctors said gamma globulin gave temporary but "highly significant protection against paralytic poliomyelitis."

A total of 104 cases of paralytic polio occurred in the children studied. A total of 31 cases occurred in the group which received the substance compared with 73 in a group of similar size which received harmless and inactive gelatin solution.

However, the second week after inoculation showed the greatest contrast. Only three cases occurred in the children inoculated with gamma globulin compared with 24 cases among those given gelatin.

School Children Have Ringworm Epidemic

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Raymond Smith of the Hospital for Sick Children said Thursday that a "black lamp" examination of Toronto school children has uncovered a "mild" epidemic of ringworm.

Dr. Smith said the black lamp is a filtered ultraviolet light which makes the fungus that accompanies ringworm fluorescent and easily discernable.

He said the current outbreak was worse than the outbreak in Toronto five years ago. He said, however, that it in no way approached the serious outbreak at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., in the fall of 1950.

Dr. Smith said the current method of combatting the outbreak is by x-ray treatment. "Under x-ray the hair falls out and the infection is over."

Iranian Communists Wait For Signal From Moscow

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst

The Communists might have tried to take over Iran last July during the bloody rioting. They didn't and many were surprised.

They might have tried at the end of February, but again they didn't.

The Tudeh (Communist) party is biding its time and waiting for word from Moscow. There must be fear in Moscow—fear that an engineered coup in Iran might lead to a third world war for which Moscow is unready.

The Communist party takes no important action in Iran without orders from across the border.

This is one of the most important weaknesses in the party which is the strongest organized political force in Iran today. It lacks Iranian leadership. Financed and supported by Moscow, it seems powerless to act without outside help.

In the event of war Iran likely would be taken over quickly but in this nervous time of official peace the Communists seem unready and unwilling to try to push the country behind the Iron Curtain by internal means.

However, both the Russians and the Tudeh are building toward the day when Moscow could take a gamble or seize a golden opportunity. The death or overhrow of aged Mossadegh, for example, could be a signal for violence and chaos in which the Tudeh might spring to power.

Beyond Iran's borders, exiled Communist leaders, schooled and directed by Moscow, operate the Tudeh party. Tribesmen under renegade Iranians train with Soviet supervision against the possibility of invasion.

Inside Iran the U.S.S.R. has an elaborate espionage network, dominated by an embassy in Tehran four city blocks square. The U.S.S.R. has an equally large "summer" embassy in the mountain suburbs, staffed the year around. It has an elaborate hospital in Tehran, Soviet-staffed, the largest in Iran. It has a large commercial section apart from the embassy and a big information centre.

Into the embassy new men are imported every week as "typists" or "translators." An official Iranian source expresses belief the Soviet embassy brought in 200 men in this way in the last year. These, he said, included teachers for about 200 cells in Tehran to instruct in such things as the street fighting tactics which have shown up in the outbursts of bloody rioting.

The Soviet hospital, generally viewed as an important spy centre, is expensive with the most modern facilities, and definitely not a charity institution. It is the only good hospital in town.

The institution began as a military hospital in 1941 during the Soviet occupation. After the war it was headed by Prof. Barouian, an Armenian who, Iranian sources say, headed the spy ring in Iran and outranked the Soviet ambassador. Barouian was recalled in 1949. The hospital likely is under embassy supervision now.

The Tudeh party is supposed to be illegal and underground, but that is a farce. Its newspapers are published regularly and Tudeh activities are as open as it is possible for a "clandestine" party's activities to be.

In Moscow is Reza Radmanesh, Tudeh secretary-general.

A mass kidnapping operation in 1950 took many other leaders of the party across the border into the U.S.S.R. They were spirited away from the prison where they were incarcerated after an attempt on the life of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi.

The entire political picture in Iran is steeped in intrigue. One of the leading intriguers is Ayatullah Kashani, a Moslem priest of the Shi'ite sect who apparently has ambitions to be the leader of all Islam through a revival of religious fanaticism in Iran. This aged, wily mullah has his own small army of bullies to keep his adherents in line. Kashani has big support among the petty merchants supports Mossadegh.

The communists are not averse to linking up with a fanatical religious element. They did so last July in rioting which cost 200 lives, and apparently again in February. The mullah's boys and Communists were linked by official sources in the 1951 slaying of Premier-Gen. Ali Razmara. They also were connected with the attack on Ahmed Qavam, pro-Western premier who was ousted at the time of last July's rioting.

This is the kind of alliance the Iranian Communists will make in their drive toward power. If the National Front crumbles they will be ready to use their allies in a strike for power. Then they would get rid of the mullah Kashani first of all.

Recruiting Cost $43 Each For Every Man

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence department said Thursday the money spent on recruiting advertising in 1952 averaged $43 for every recruit obtained by the active and reserve forces.

In a statement, the department took exception to a Canadian Press story saying it spent an average of $161 for every recruit who represented a net gain in strength in the armed forces. This was based on the fact that a government reply tabled in the Commons said $2,193,000 was spent on recruiting ads. In the same year, the strength of the three regular forces rose a net total of 13,000—to 101,000 from 88,000.

The department said any such comparison should be made not to net gain but to the total number of recruits—29,141 for the regular forces and 21,335 for the reserves. If only regular force recruits were considered, the average would be $70. If both regular and reserve recruits were considered it would be $43.

These figures indicated that the regular forces discharged 16,000 men in 1952 or more than half of the total recruited.

Hell interesting Place Great Engineering Feat

MITLA. — I visited Hell, 20 miles from Oaxaca, a city totally unlike any other to be found in North America. For this was a sacred city built by the Zapotecs and the name given it was Hell or Repose of the Souls. There is no resemblance to Monte Alban built by the same people and it has no counterpart anywhere.

* * * *

This sacred city was inhabited by priests and it was a City of Death where the priests and kings were buried. A strong fortress on a hill overlooking the great city was garrisoned by special troops. The servants and the common people lived on the outskirts or beyond Mitla.

* * * *

It is a city not of pyramids but of low walls enclosing narrow courts. The amazing mosaic fretwork of the walls is in its originality and perfection, a wonderful effect of mural decorations. The mosaics are not made up of small bits, as is the case in most such work, but are stone tiles, which while taking their place in the design continue the construction of the walls. It is estimated that more than a million such stone tiles were placed. The stone work was so perfect that no mortar was used and it is almost impossible to see the joining. The angular and severe geometric designs consist of about 15 different patterns.

* * * *

The ruins consist of four principal palaces with lesser ones surrounding them. Each has a patio in the centre and three have rooms on all sides excepting the west. The palaces are reached by wide steps and under many of them are tombs. All the passages and doorways are rectangular. There are no arches.

* * * *

HALL OF COLUMNS

One of the most spectacular rooms is the Hall of the Columns where the builders set up six massive monolithic columns which enabled them to make a room 125 feet by 23 feet. There were no windows. The light and air could only enter from the patio around which it was built. The walls are wider at the top than at the bottom. One of the stone lintels over the doorway weighs 30 tons and is in a solid piece. No one knows how it or the six columns were put into position. Each of the columns is a single stone.

* * * *

From the steps of one of the biggest palaces, the high priest and king would watch special events and dancers in the large courtyard. Everyone had to go down steep steps sideways because they could not turn their backs on the throne. Originally, the whole sacred city was painted a rosy red color, their color of mourning, and frescoes can still be seen where it has not faded. It must have been a magnificent spectacle in its day.

* * * *

Tombs are in the form of crosses and one which is believed to have been that of a king is a very large one. You had to go down several steep steps then crawl on your hands and knees for 12 feet with a candle before entering the tomb proper. There are wonderful designs on the walls. The tombs which have been opened were believed looted by the Spaniards and many of the buildings were destroyed and their stones used for Spanish churches. On the site of a big temple, the Conquerors erected a large church.

* * * *

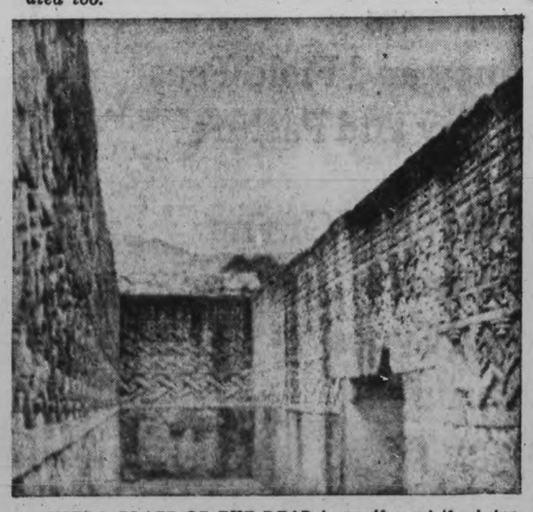
There is another cruciform chamber under the big palace which contains another big monolithic column, called "the column of death." There is a belief that you can tell how many years you will live by embracing it and then measuring the remaining space with your finger tips.

* * * *

ENGINEERING SKILL

The skill and engineering used in erecting these buildings is even more remarkable when one remembers that the builders had no metal tools. The Zapotecs who used this city first were known as "the builders." The Mixtecs who came later and continued to use it as a sacred city were known as "the jewellers" and did the fine gold and jewelry work which has been discovered both here and at Monte Alban. In a few of the remaining frescoes you can see traces of the plumed serpent, representing their god Quetzalcoatl.

* * * *



Mitla perhaps still remains a place of bad luck for the intruder. While there I got some dust in my eye and ended up with a badly scratched eyeball. Within about six hours it became so bad I had to have a doctor and it was two days before the eye became normal again.

* * * *

In the adjoining village, the hotel manager has built up a fine collection of articles in a little museum. There are gods, utensils and many other interesting things used by those earlier races and it is worth seeing. The Zapotec sign of divinity is the upper lip of the tiger and you will find that symbol on many designs on temples and on images of gods.

* * * *

I was especially fortunate in my companions in Oaxaca. I was accompanied by a medical student from the university, Jacob Robles, who has an amazing knowledge of the history and background of his state and a very deep love and understanding of his people. Our driver, Francisco Castro Martinez was fun and co-operated too.

MITLA, PLACE OF THE DEAD is another of the interesting archaeological finds near Oaxaca. The angular and severe geometric designs shown above have about 15 different mosaic patterns. There is a continuous sculptured design, perfectly matched and at that time there were no metal tools available. In certain places these miniature stone tiles are cut so exactly they require no mortar to keep them in position. —(Cia Mexicana de Aviacion Photo)

High Again

Cloudy skies over the Peterborough area today kept the mercury steady throughout the morning. The thermometer registered 49 from morning until noon. But clearing skies allowed the sun a chance to warm things up again. Thursday the temperature was the same—59—as it had been the day before and once again was among the highest in Canada. London at 60, Montreal at 61 and Windsor at 65 were warmer. The frigid spot in the nation was Edmonton where the mercury read 34.

Board Engages 20 Teachers For City Schools

Twenty teachers have accepted positions on the Board of Education staff, W. B. Gordon reported Thursday night.

Eleven of them will teach at the public schools and the others will complete the staff at Kenner Collegiate.

The list for public schools: James Edwards, two years' experience; Rodger Hendren, three years' experience; and Miss Marilyn Hamilton. Also 10 Normal School students: Evelyn Goheen, Marion Bigelow, Erma Burris, Marie Sharpe, Elaine Spence, Joan Walden, Dorothy Stinson, Evelyn Doherty, Isabel Cruickshank and Alfreda Jenkins.

MOST PROMISING

(One of the trustees quoted Principal Leo Copp as saying that this year's graduating students at the Normal School are "the most promising in the history of the school.")

Joining the staff at Kenner Collegiate: Robert Wright, mathematics and science; Miss Elaine Moore, girls' physical education and other subjects; Miss Margaret Rodger, art, English and science; Raymond Curry, commercial subjects and social studies. (These five are now attending the Ontario College of Education).

A. F. Vogt, for seven years director of music at Cornwall Collegiate, will teach music and mathematics at Kenner Collegiate. He has nine year's secondary experience and spent four years in the meteorological service during the Second World War. He is a graduate in Honor Mathematics and Physics, and he has a specialists' certificate in mathematics, physics, vocal and instrumental music.

Miss Muriel Atkins, now teaching at Orillia Collegiate, will also join the Kenner staff. She has had four years' experience.

Police Proposal Wages Denied

A proposal of the bargaining committee of the Peterborough Police Association regarding police working hours and salaries has been turned down by the Board of Police Commissioners.

This was revealed Thursday afternoon by the board chairman, Mayor Hugh Waddell, who announced that there would be a joint meeting of the committee and the police commissioners on Wednesday, April 22, to discuss a counter-offer by the commission.

Details of the committee's request and the commission's counter-offer were not revealed.

The joint meeting has been delayed for two weeks during the absence from the city of County Judge John de N. Kennedy, a member of the three-man commission. Magistrate W. R. Philp is the other member.

Junior Choral Group Going To Port Hope

Fifty members of the Junior Choral Group of St. Paul's Church are going to Port Hope on Sunday morning to lead in the service of praise at the Presbyterian Church there. It is believed to be the first time a junior choir composed entirely of girls has gone from one of the churches in Peterborough to an outside congregation to lead in the service of song. The St. Paul's group was organized three years ago and has had some outstanding successes. Gwen Craw is the director.

The group, along with the Boys' Choir, are presenting a concert in the church on Friday, April 24, and as guest soloist they are bringing Robert Rudan of Toronto, a violin scholarship winner.

Youngster Knocked To Road By Car

A three-year-old boy received slight brush burns when he was knocked to the road Thursday after running into the path of a neighbour's car.

City police constable Robert Menzies investigated.

PCVS Wins Praise, Criticism In Report Of Inspector

Praise and some adverse criticism were mixed in a report on the Peterborough Collegiate Institute by G. L. Gray, secondary school inspector. It was read to the Board of Education on Thursday night. Mrs. Anne Rowell drew the attention of her fellow trustees to a complimentary reference by Inspector Gray on last year's Upper School examination results.

"The Upper School examination results of last year were very high, and successful students, their parents and teachers are to be heartily congratulated," said Inspector Gray. "At the time of our visit Professor McAndrew, Registrar of University College, Toronto, spoke to the Senior Assembly on the value of university training and paid an unusually high tribute to students from Peterborough who, over a period of years, have distinguished themselves at the university."

"That's very complimentary said Mrs. Rowell. "The pupils may certainly take a bow."

ROUND OF EXAMINATION

The annual inspection of PCI was March 4 and 5. Inspector Gray was accompanied by Inspector A. H. McKague. They visited classes of teachers new to the staff or holding interim certificates; also classes Principal C. S. Browne singled out for observation. Staff members were interviewed on modifications in courses and other matters relating to their work.

Inspector Gray also favored the policy of preventing over-specialization among the staff. His comment was as follows:

"We are interested in the Principal's policy of assigning to individual teachers classes from two or more departments of this composite school. This calls for adjustments for teacher in methods and content in order to meet the differing aptitudes and interests of the students taught. It can prove to be an exacting challenge but, well-handled, it can help to knit the school into an organic unit since teachers become more conscious of the over-all problems of the composite school."

Counselling of students by Grade IX teachers was praised by Inspector Gray.

"A meeting which we attended with interest was that of the form room teachers of Grade IX who are counsellors to their own forms," he said. "We felt that the discussion revealed a sincere interest of the teachers in the welfare of the individual pupil."

BELOW STANDARD

Washrooms and shower-rooms were sharply criticized.

"We find the washrooms and shower-rooms far below the standards in other schools," Inspector Gray's report continues. "We are of the opinion that such things as broken plaster, dirty walls, old fixtures and inadequate ventilation in the washrooms and musty, unsightly shower-rooms invite carelessness on the part of pupils. In our opinion they call not for repair, but for replacement."

"We're aware of it," said Charles Huffman, chairman of the board's property committee, "but we haven't come up with a solution. "I might say, though, that I agree with Mr. Gray: they should be replaced not repaired."

Mr. Huffman added that he did not think there was anything in the budget to cover such an expenditure.

Another criticism by Inspector Gray: Geography texts are insufficient for the classes using them.

A commendation:

"The library continues to be one of the most effective centres of the school. The circulation of slightly over 12 books per pupil for the year 1952 is very high. We learned that Miss Genevieve Fowler has given valuable assistance in setting up the library at Kenner Collegiate Institute."

Inspector Gray also said that physical education should be under the direction of two teachers in both the boys' and girls' divisions.

"The services of Miss Audrey Hustwitt as Girls' Physical Education teacher will end in June," he observed. "Whenever the arrangement can be made, the boys' and girls' programs should be placed under the direction of two teachers in each division. Not only is the work too heavy for one teacher, but, in the event of resignation, there is a serious break in the continuity of the program."

Principal Browne said he realized that the program is too heavy for one teacher and they are trying to get a replacement for Miss Hustwit. He would also like to get a helper for Mr. Goulding but at present there is no man qualified on the staff.

A FORMER resident of Peterborough, Leading Seaman Thomas John Cullen of Halifax has been selected as a member of the naval component of the Canadian Armed Forces contingent to the Coronation. The unit will be made up of 129 officers, men and Wrens of the RCN. Leading Seaman Cullen is a brother of Mrs. Charles Collins of 540 Monaghan Rd. S.

Two Cars Collide

Involving William McTeague of 570 Gilchrist St. and Lawrence Smith of 170 Perry St., a minor accident occurred Thursday on George St. near the intersection of Sherbrooke.

Smith was driving south on George when he passed a double-parked car near the intersection. Pulling back into his own lane, he collided with McTeague's vehicle which had stopped in the line of traffic at the stop light.

Damage was estimated at $40 to McTeague's car alone.

Take $900 Worth Copper Wire In 2 Robberies

Thieves during the hours of darkness Wednesday night broke into the warehouse of Lawrence Salvage on Erskine Ave. and stole a quantity of copper wire valued at $300. This makes about $900 worth of copper wire stolen from salvage companies in the city in the last 10 days.

On April 1 a similar theft from Hyman Albert and Co., 343-347 Bethune St., netted the breakin artists wire valued at $600.

City police are investigating.

The theft at Lawrence Salvage was discovered at 10.30 a.m. Thursday by Jack Burfield, foreman.

Three oil drums and three boxes containing wire were taken from the unlocked warehouse.

IN FROM RAIL TRACKS

"They must have come into the yard from the spur-line railway that runs by near the warehouse," said Joe Lavack, manager. "They couldn't have come in from Erskine Ave. on a truck because two of the workmen sleep in a shack in the yard, and the truck would have to pass it. The men would have heard the noise."

Each of the tightly-packed drums weighs about 300 pounds. And Mr. Lavack's theory is that they carried away the wire in sacks until the drums were light enough for two or more men to carry. Some sacks are missing and their contents—bundles of rags—were dumped on the floor, lending plausibility to this theory.

"One or two men couldn't have done it," said Mr. Lavack confidently.

At the Albert warehouse on Bethune St. the thieves broke a lock on a side door and removed copper bars and a large amount of cable wire packed in drums. Most of the wire is scrap from the Utilities Commission.

Another quantity of wire, that had been left to cool off in a tub after the insulation was burned from it, was also stolen.

The thieves removed their heavy loot the hard way. They dragged it 75 yards across the yard, in a southerly direction, toward a pile of baled tin. After hoisting the copper over this obstacle they hauled it over a coal pile on the Conger Coal property and dragged it across the Conger yard. They broke the gate of the coalyard and loaded it in a car.

The breakin was reported early on April 1 by Congers who noticed the damage to their gate.

Shirts Supplied To Police Said 'Shoddy'

Shirts supplied to the Peterborough police and fire departments last year were described as shoddy goods by City Clerk E. A. Outram at Thursday afternoon's meeting of the police commission.

In a letter to the commission Chief Constable John Thompson said that many of the shirts supplied to the police department last year would not stand a second washing. Although some of them had been replaced by the supplier, they had been of the same quality as the original lot and not all the members of the department had been successful in obtaining replacements.

When the supplier was informed of the poor quality of the shirts, the chief constable said he was told that the police commission should have tendered for broadcloth shirts.

Appearing before Thursday afternoon's meeting of the police commission, Chief Thompson said that most of the shirts had shrunk when washed and that none of them had lasted more than six months. Some of them had shrunk so badly that some members of the department were wearing shirts bought in 1951.

Mr. Outram said that the same problem had occurred in the fire department.

"We thought we were getting good shirts," he said. "There was no thought of skimping."

It was decided to inform the manufacturer, William A. Deacon, of the condition of the shirts before tenders were called again this year.

Rim Shoots Off Wheel Injures Man

Clayton Connolly Repairing Tire, Skull Fractured

Victim of a bizarre accident near Indian River Thursday, Clayton Connolly of RR 10, Peterborough is in St. Joseph's Hospital today, suffering from a skull fracture.

Connolly was inflating a tire on his truck when the rim blew off, striking him in the forehead which was only inches away at the time. He was rushed to the hospital by John Ormerod, operator of the service station where the accident occurred.

Describing the accident later, Ormerod said Connolly had come into the station to inflate a tire he had just repaired. After repairing the tire, however, Connolly had evidently replaced the rim incorrectly.

When the air pressure became too high, the rim shot out, smashing into Connolly's head. Mr. Ormerod, standing only a few feet away, rushed over to the injured man's aid.

"His head was caved in so I put him in the car, phoned for a police escort and shot him right into the hospital." Though bleeding badly, Connolly remained conscious.

The rim had struck him just above the eyes. "An inch higher," Mr. Ormerod said, "and it would have killed him."

The accident victim's condition was cited by hospital authorities today as "satisfactory."

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

Final Federation Of Agriculture Dinner This Season at Hastings Town Hall Tuesday, April 14.... Peterborough Jersey Club's Barn Meeting Saturday, April 18 at the Bamforth-Kelly Farm in North Monaghan....Junior Farmers' Formal Dance at Club Aragon Thursday, April 16.

Peterborough Jersey Club's barn meeting Saturday afternoon April 18, will fix attention on the good Bamforth-Kelly herd in North Monaghan.

The program will include the judging of three or four classes of Jerseys selected from the herd. Prizes are being provided for the winners. Bill Raine of Brampton, manager of the widely known Bull herd, is coming fo this event. His talk will go into details of preparation of cattle for the show ring. That is to be one topic. Springville YPU will provide coffee and doughnuts.

Like many other dairy cattle breeders throughout the country, Bamforth and Kelly's capacious and tidy barn hadn't much spare room throughout the winter just ended.

That was part of the effect of the exclusion of Canadian cattle from the U.S. market during the 1952 period of quarantine against the foot-and-mouth outbreak in the west. The herd of between 60 and 70 head came through the winter in fine condition, and will be ready for pasture with no let down between seasons. Between 25 and 30 are milking.

James Cook, manager of the herd, said he had let them out for at least half an hour daily all winter. The fresh air exercise did them a lot of good, in his opinion, as expressed yesterday. "We had very little trouble since they came off the grass last fall." He said he was especially pleased by the fit appearance of the young cattle.

As Jersey breeders of the county know, there is a lot of Don Head breeding in the Bamforth-Kelly herd. The senior sire is the four-year-old Don Head Royal Spotty's Basil, and the junior sire is Don Head Rajah Tiller, eighteen months old.

Mr. Cook said that before he came to the farm, one of the first bulls bought by Bamforth and Kelly was Frontenac Peer's Basileus.

"One thing I can say about his cows," Mr. Cook remarked, "they are all high testing, right up around 6 per cent, and the milk yield is good."

He was herdsman for Lord Eldon's Jerseys near Tiverton, in Devonshire, before coming out to Canada.

Naturally he likes the B-K herd, and is happy about their response to the winter program.

Swine Prices Up 25%

Seventy head of purebred swine averaged $100.50 at the annual show and sale in Calgary last week. This average price was 25% higher than at the sale last year.

Total receipts were $7,037.50. The average for 61 head a year ago was $75.67. Top price for Yorkshire boars was $290. Twenty-three head of bred sows averaged $113.81, and 26 open gilts $81.73. The average price for 18 Yorkshire boars was $112.63, and for three Tamworths $90.83.

Dinner At Hastings

Peterborough Federation of Agriculture has the co-operation of the Chamber of Commerce of Hastings village in the final Federation dinner of the season. It will be in Hastings town hall Tuesday April 14, beginning at 6.30 p.m. Max Humphries of Asphodel has been active in promoting this event which takes the Federation into the southeast corner of the county for the first time.

The series of local dinners throughout the county during the last two winters has carried the Federation and its purposes into the rural communities. Breadth of canvass of support extended, for example, within recent weeks from Springville to Hastings, across country.

Asphodel interest was recently indicated by a proposal to organize a township branch, but the local people decided to give this idea some thought through the summer, leaving decision to some time in the autumn.

O. J. W. Shugge will be the speaker at Hastings dinner.

1,136 Beef Bulls Sold

Calgary's annual bull sale disposed of 1,136 head of the three beef breeds for a total of $675,489, averaging $595.88, as compared with the average last year of $714.62.

Herefords were predominant with 818 head bringing $529,595 for an average of $647.43. At the 1952 sale there were 589 Herefords totalling $453,656, or an average of $770.06.

The offering of Shorthorns was 165 head totalling $67,420 or an average of $475.19. In 1952, Shorthorns to the number of 172 sold for $93,570, or an average of $536.40.

Aberdeen-Angus breeders sent 152 head to the sale. Their receipts were $64,480, averaging $443.55. A year ago, 92 head of the black cattle brought $64,285, or an average of $698.75.

Biggest sale in point of value was recorded in 1951 when a total of 720 bulls sold for $816,375, and an all time high average of $1,119.86.

Reduced prices were expected in view of lower prices for commercial cattle. The sale held up remarkably well in spite of the large consignments of the three breeds.

Another Dinner Success

Peterborough Holstein Club's dinner at Brookside Pavilion Tuesday night brought out a capacity crowd. The after dinner speaker Dean R. O. Hurst, retired head of the Ontario College of Pharmacy, delighted the large audience with his practical philosophy of living, interspersed with whimsical humor, that made a deep impression. Henry Sharpe, president of the Holstein Breeders Association, was chairman. Tom Hamilton of Toronto entertained as comedian, the dinner provided by the women of St. James United Church was thoroughly enjoyed. Jim Doris of Otonabee played for the concluding dance.

Billions Of Steaks

Meat production in the U.S. will have to be expanded to about 25 billion pounds a year by 1961 if meat consumption is to be maintained at a yearly level of 140 pounds a person. The population is increasing at the rate of two to two and a half million people annually. In other words, every day there are 7,000 more persons to eat three meals a day.

To reach the consumption goal of 175 pounds of meat per person by 1961, production would have to equal nearly 32 billion pounds annually, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Meat production in 1952 totalled about 22½ billion pounds.

Middlesex Proposal

Middlesex Federation of Agriculture decided last Saturday to request two-fifths mill levy through taxes instead of the one-fifth mill which is received at present to finance the organization.

T. L. Teeter said "the Federation has been trying to do a big job on a shoestring."

"The Toronto office is greatly understaffed," said president Robert Thompson. "It is underpaid compared with what they could earn in private business." And Wm. Stewart: 'The time has difinitely come when we either fold or go on to bigger things."

If the increased mill rate (two-fifths of a mill) was passed by the townships, the rate would be set on the 1953 assessment, and the Federation would feel the benefit in 1954.

Ross Parsons moved a vote of thanks to the "local members of the Legislature" who recently supported the Federation in the battle against coloring of margarine, and the importation of vegetable oils.

The Ontario Federation received last year one cent out of every hundred dollars of net income earned by Ontario farmers, as mentioned by Roy Jewell in the London Free Press.

"If all county Federations of Agriculture doubled their levy as Middlesex hopes to do, and double their contributions to the Ontario Federation, Ontario farmers might pay as much as two cents out of every hundred dollars of net income. Farmers who belive organization is necessary, and the Federation represents a good start in that field, will not object to increasing their support."

"In looking over the membership of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture and statement of receipts for that body, we note what appears to be a situation which poses a question. Forty-three county units contribute more than three-quarters of the budget of the Ontaio Federation. Thirty-three commodity groups make up the remaining quarter. We wonder whether a commodity group paying $50 toward the Federation warrants equal representation with a county paying $2,500."

Juniors at Norwood

Ken Best reports a full attendance of Norwood Junior Farmers at their monthly meeting Wednesday evning at Norwood High School. There were 30 boys and 20 girls. Miss Jean Noble conducted the girls' affair and Gordon La Plante spoke to the boys about Maple Cattle Breeders' Association and its work in this area.

THESE 2 HOLSTEIN BULLS each sold for $9,000, highest price for a Holstein in Canada since the fall of 1951. Ragwood Rag Apple Revelation (left) was purchased by Martin Bros., Buenos Aires, and Houckholme Re-Echo Champion (right) by W. F. Young, Terrace Farm, Titusville, N.Y. Both were sold in the sale of the herd of S. B. Roman, King, Ont. which brought an average of $784, highest dispersal sale average in Canada since 1950. Spectators at the sale were Libby Gardon (left) and Joan Haughian, Toronto. Revelation is a brother of both Grand Champions at the Royal last fall, while Champion is a son of the Canadian Champion yearly milk producer, Re-Echo May Burke which Norman McConkey sold to John Houck of Brampton.

Shorthorns For Maple Unit From Pimmett And Cadesky

Maple Cattle Breeders' Association have recently bought two Peterborough Shorthorn bulls for their artificial breeding unit. One of them is from the M. H. Pimmett & Sons herd at Indian River, and the other from Louis Cadesky's Louada Manor Farms in Harvey township Both prices were substantially in four figures.

Lorne Pimmett mentions some of the background of "Strathore Duthie Marshall", the Maple selection from that herd at Indian River in Otonabee township.

"Breeders will recall that 'Marshall' was shown as a junior bull calf in 1951 along with Strathore Duthie Violet when she was Supreme Champion at the Royal Winter Fair.

"When paired for the class of two calves they stood third at the Chicago International, right behind the $16,500 reserve grand champion and his $5,000 sister. Among other winnings of Strathore Duthie Marshall was reserve junior champion at Peterborough and junior champion at Lindsay.

"He was being held back to head up our 1953 show herd to substitute in it for our Louada Barnone, the 1951 CNE grand champion and the 1952 Royal reserve grand champion which we plan to retire from the show circuit."

Mr. Pimmett remarked to the Examiner Wednesday that representatives from the Maple Cattle Breeders have been visiting and inspecting every good herd of Shorthorns during the past winter.

SEES COUNTY RECORD

"Their committee agreed that 'Duthie Marshall' fulfilled their requirements more closely than any other bull offered them," Mr. Pimmett said. "I thing he is probably the highest priced beef bull ever sold out of Peterborough county, and also the highest price Shorthorn sold to an artificial breeding unit."

"Needless to say, we are highly pleased that one of our production has been chosen for the improvement of Ontario herds."

"Among our other sales recently is 'Strathore Marshall' maternal brother of 'Duthie Marshall', to one of the oldest established Canadian herds, that of White Brothers, St. Mary's, Ontario. They are brothers of H. R. White, secretary of the Canadian Shorthorn Association."

"And, among recent visitors we had Raymond Duer, manager of Kiskapoo Farms, Kenosha, Wisconsin, which is one of the outstanding new herds in the States.

Mr Duer was one of the many breeders who made tempting offers for 'Duthie Violet' after her triumph at the 1951 Royal. He was accompanied by Mrs. Duer and by Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Donaldson of Louada Manor Farms. They made a tour of most of the noted Shorthorn herds in the province."

G. W. Keffer, secretary-manager of the Maple Cattle Breeders, paid tribute here this week to the complishment of Lorne Pimmett in bringing the Strathore herd at Indian River into wide prominence.

GAINS FOR PETERBOROUGH

"He is still just a young breeder, but he has been doing an outstanding job, and he deserves the commendation he has been receiving," Mr. Keffer said. "I also consider that Mr. Cadesky is doing a great deal for the Shorthorn breed with his herd at Louada Manor Farms. He has certainly been putting Peterborough county high up in the Shorthorn fraternity of this province. We feel that we have made two strong selections in acquiring the Cadesky and Pimmett bulls, and we are glad to get two sires of their quality for our unit from this county, partly because we have a large supporting membership from the area."

The Cadesky [illegible] that is bound for the Maple stud [illegible] Calrossie Diplomat which [illegible] imported in dam several years ago. The sire was Calrossie Cupbearer and the dam Calrossie Augusta Aileen. The dam was bought for Louada Manor Farms in the fall of 1950 at the Calrossie sale at Inverness, Scotland.

Cupbearer's sons, about 10 of them, brought a high average price at the Perth sale. Diplomat and Marshall will likely be removed to Maple next week. They are Peterborough county Shorthorns for delivery to one of the primary artificial cattle breeding units in Canada.

Alberta Farmer Buys Holsteins

John Bailey of Bailey Bros., Clover Bar, Alta., has recently purchased in York County, Ontario, 18 head of Texal bred Holsteins. His home herd now consists of over 100 head of Texal bred cows since he had previously bought three bulls of this bloodline from George C. Jackson, of Downsview, Ont.

Most of the cattle just purchased were from bulls in the Maple District Cattle Breeding Association, and all of them were in calf to bulls from this unit. Contributing to the shipment were Watson Bros., King, Fraser Gee, Gormley, Thomas Stobbart, Weston, Lewis Nicol, Gormley, Glenn Atkinson, Schomberg, Jackson Bros., Downsview, R. James Darlington, Maple, and Whittaker Bros., Downsview.

The cattle were bought by J. D. Darlington, sales agent for the York County Holstein Breeders' Club. Mr. Darlington reports that there is a brisk demand for cattle and that prices are stiffening with the better cattle bringing good returns.

Says Spring Show Promoted Seeding Of Quality Grain

A substantial increase in the purchase of top quality seed grain for sowing this season is credited by Stuart Bowman, district seed inspector for the federal Department of Agriculture, to the Central Ontario Spring Show that was held here nearly a month ago.

"Demand for seed grain has been exceptionally heavy," Mr. Bowman said yesterday. "Most of the district dealers have just about sold out everything, and in my travels during the last few weeks I was told by some of them that they could have disposed of a lot more. I feel sure that this livelier interest in sowing good seed stems right from the Spring Show. I think it contributed quite a stimulus to the grain industry of the district counties."

That filip was apparent during the Show and especially at the closing sale of the grain exhibits.

"It was the best sale we ever had," Mr. Bowman said, "and the whole business seemed to pick up a stronger spirit that has remained in effect right to the present. It was the after-results which were most encouraging. Jim Brown of Newcastle estimated to me that he could have sold another 1,000 bushels of barley if he had the stock. Master Feeds of Lindsay said they had sold more good seed grain than ever. Garnet Rickard, Robert Armstrong, and others all the way from Uxbridge to Peterborough have reported this same experience.

SWITCH FROM TOMATOES

One factor that has created extra seed business has been the closing of tomato canneries in Northumberland. As reported in the news the other day they are not operating because they had a considerable surplus of the 1952 pack. Farmers who were counting on tomatoes evidently have switched to barley.

As to registered seed I had only two or three lots left to seal this week. In oats, Beaver and Lorain have been the most active sellers. I have been told of instances of oats being cleaned and graded and then over-sold."

"One of the last of the growers reporting some spring grain still on their hands was Clarence Mann. He told me he had some, but I don't think it was any large quantity."

Some of the dealers said they had to send to western Ontario to get extra seed for the demand they were facing. Most of the registered seed was No. 1, and as for the No. 2 it was down in grade mainly for color. The commercial seed was chiefly No. 1.

Durham county interest was most conspicuous, Mr. Bowman said. And, in that area quite a lot of seeding was under way this week.

John Cruikshank of the Hampton area had sown most of his spring crop since Good Friday. The only blank spot was the wet corner of a field.

"I saw others sowing on Wednesday this week," Mr. Bowman said.

Stuart Bowman is close to the production front of the seed grain industry in these parts, and it is his opinion that the Spring Show amply justified itself this year. Promoters of the show have the hope of building it up as a permanent seed outlet for farmers, and in largely increased volume.

Audience Of 600 Enjoys Legion's Minstrel Show

Songs that Jolson made famous and old time vaudeville acts were the background for the minstrel show "Darky Daze" put on Thursday night by the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Legion, in the PCVS auditorium before a crowd of more than 600 people.

Though all amateur talent and comprised mostly of Legion members of the minstrel troupe have been hard at work for the past month under the direction of Homer Lundy. The show, produced by Hose Vinette, was loudly applauded by the appreciative audience.

The show opened with the chorus singing Darky Days and Oh Those Golden Slippers. The chorus was made up of about 20 men in white shirts wearing black bow ties and the eight minstres who acted as straight men were Homer Lundy, who played the part of the minister; Ray Young, Rollie Johnston, Hose Vinette, Tony Burns, Joe Lowery, Reg Mongraw, Bert Jones, and Roy Springham as the master of ceremonies.

MINISTER'S LECTURE

The next number on the program was a darky minister, played by Homer Lundy, lecturing to his flock about vice and playing cards who ends up throwing dice with them. This was followed by the chorus singing Hear Them Bells and followed by two minstrels narrating about a meeting they had just been to.

There were several solos sung by Joe Lowery who offered I Been Working on the Railroad, and Dick Astley sang When You Were Sweet Sixteen, and Ray Young, supported by the chorus, sang Are You From Dixie? Next on the program was Tony Burns who sang old-time favorites that Al Jolson made famous, such as Mammy, Sonny Boy and Rosie.

Bert Jones was next on the show and gave his rendition of the old famous sof-shoe dance.

Following the third act there was a Spike Jones number, made up of violins, banjos and a piano-accordion. Gordon Minty did a solo on his banjo much to the appreciation of the audience and was followed by Rollie Johnson who did a song and dance routine.

The show was brought to an end with the chorus and everyone joining in and singing Highways are Happyways. The group was accompanied by Bill McMillan, Ted Nash, Mrs. Evelyn Foster, Jim Abraham, Joe Stewart, Gord Minty and Mac Dowsett.

The show will be presented again Saturday evening in the PCVS auditorium and again next week if successful. All proceeds will go to the Legion welfare fund.

WE WERE BROKE...

BUT WE TACKED A COLLEGE DEGREE RIGHT INTO OUR BUDGET-PLAN

Well, I simply mean that young Doug is going to get what I've always missed. I'd have a better job in my company today if my family had been able to give me a college education.

It happened a year ago. Maisie and I had just about given up the idea as hopeless. Doug had just started high school, which meant a good deal of expense, and then he fell desperately ill with rheumatic fever. Our debts had us crippled.

Then one day, when I was cashing my pay-cheque at the bank, I happened to get into conversation with the Accountant — chap called Heney Baldwin who goes to our church ... and before I knew it I was pouring out my troubles.

He asked me a few questions about my job, my salary ... if I had any securities or life insurance. I told him I had no bonds left, but did have a bit of insurance I took out when we got married.

Pretty soon — to my surprise — Baldwin came up with what seemed like a solution to my immediate problem — how to meet my pressing bills. Something I'd never thought of — my 15-year old insurance policy had quite a good cash surrender value, which Baldwin said was first-class security for a personal loan.

"But how am I going to pay off a loan?" I asked. "We seem to need every cent I earn just to make ends meet."

"You can probably do better than that, I think ... if you really want to," said Baldwin, "But," he added, "you've got to have a real budget-plan to do it."

Next thing I knew he was telling me how to go about it. Told me some things about money management I'd never thought of before ... and he gave me one of the bank's booklets called "Personal Planning" outlining his ideas in detail.

Next day, Maisie and I pulled out of the doldrums for the first time in months. Hopefully, we went to the B of M together and saw Heney Baldwin. Got a $300 loan fixed up, and right then and there opened a joint account.

Boy, that account's been working overtime ever since ... first paying bills with the loan we got, and then getting regular deposits — not just to pay off the loan, but to really save money.

We were mighty relieved to get that bank loan a year ago, but I think we're more thankful for what we learned when we were in a jam — that we really could save dough if we made up our minds to it and got a really practical budget-plan working for us.

Personal Planning has given us that ... and let me tell you that boy's going to college — for sure.

Saving is the only way to move ahead of your worries, and stay ahead. And — sometimes — borrowing at the B of M is the best way to save. Find out how to save despite today's high prices. Ask for your copy of "Personal Planning" at your neighborhood B of M branch. It's yours for the asking.

You can't go "ALL-OUT" if you feel "ALL-IN"

These days most people work under pressure, worry more, sleep less. This strain on body and brain makes physical fitness easier to lose—harder to regain. Today's tense living, lowered resistance, overwork, worry—any of these may affect normal kidney action. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. Then backache, disturbed rest, that "tired-out" heavy-headed feeling often follow. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's stimulate the kidneys to normal action. Then you feel better—sleep better—work better. Ask for Dodd's Kidney Pills at any drug counter. 53

COULDN'T WAIT—This tired old building beat wrecking crews to the punch when it collapsed to the street in a cloud of mortar dust, torn timber and broken brick. The unoccupied, three-storey structure, in Montreal, was due for demolition later this week in line with the city's plan to widen Dorchester Street. Electrical wiring ripped by the collapse set the rubble ablaze.

Changes In Commonwealth

LONDON (CP)—When Canada proposed in 1937 to set up her own diplomatic missions in France and Japan, the private secretary of the late King recorded "that this had rather taken His Majesty's breath away."

At that time, labor member Patrick Gordon Walker told the House of Commons, it was still a "very novel idea" that a Commonwealth country should be represented by an ambassador from elsewhere than the United Kingdom. Now it is fully recognized that the British ambassador represents only the United Kingdom and not other members of Commonwealth.

Gordon Walker, one-time Commonwealth relations secretary in a Labor government, recalled this incident in discussing the constitutional development of the Commonwealth. He was speaking on second reading of the royal titles bill, which changes the Queen's style and titles to conform to recent Commonwealth decisions. The bill was given second reading by 278 to 55.

IMPORTANT LANDMARK

Gordon Walker said the bill may come to be an important landmark in Commonwealth history, recognizing as it does the idea of the "divisibility" of the Crown. This was the first time this idea had been fully accepted in a formal document.

"The idea," he said, "is that the Queen is equally Queen of each of her realms, that she acts only on the advice of her ministers in each of the realms, and that in a certain sense there are seven Queens and not one Queen, or, at any rate, seven Crowns and not one Crown."

The Labor member then illustrated his point on the way the Commonwealth has evolved by referring to the time in 1937 when it was thought unseemly for Canada to have her own ambassador in France and Japan. He did not give further details.

In stressing the divisibility of the Crown, he said Britons must remember that the Crown means different things in different places. "There are differences, for example, between the feelings of many French-Canadians or Afrikanders and those of the great majority of people of British stock."

Today the Crown could be a unifying factor only if set free "to find its own national and emotional levels throughout the Commonwealth."

Gordon Walker suggested that the Queen's personal staff should be drawn from all Commonwealth countries and that she should spend longer periods of time in other Commonwealth countries.

When the Queen is away a governor-general might be appointed for the United Kingdom, instead of a regency council, thus recognizing formally the equality of all Commonwealth members.

One British newspaper, the right-wing Evening Standard, commented favorably on this suggestion. It added that if such a governor-general were appointed the Duke of Gloucester might well be a logical choice.

Higher Grants Promised School Board

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—Ratepayers in the Lakefield District High School area will be saved a total of $3,226.05 as a result of a visit to Toronto by a delegation to interview C. Cunningham, supervisor of grants and K. Rendall, supervisor of transportation for secondary schools, Clerk Harry T. Hill informed members at a meeting of the Board, at which he presented a complete report on the amounts of grants that might be expected.

In March the reeves and clerks of the member municipalities of the Lakefield District High School met with the Board, the secretary-treasurer and E. Humpage, auditor, for a discussion as to costs of the school in 1952 and estimates for 1953. It was felt that the district was deserving of higher grants, and as a result Edwin Everett, Board chairman, Reeve Norman Wilson of Burleigh and Anstruther, Reeve Gordon Fitzgerald of Smtih, Reeve W. C. Grant of Lakefield and clerk Harry T. Hill were appointed to look into the matter.

As a result of an interview with Mr. Cunningham, they succeeded in having Lakefield put into the 85% division for grants on approved costs of schools. Previously this grant had only been 75%.

The department informed the delegation that the approved cost of debentures was $27,702.87, on which they will receive an 80% grant; tuition fees to other boards $5,131.45 and approved transportation, on which an 80% grant will be paid, $17,823.00. They were allowed $100 per school section for the 29 sections in the Lakefield district.

The average daily attendance for grant purposes was clarified and figured at 199.96 pupils, on which a grant of $120 per pupil will be allowed. The text book grants will be approximately $328.14 which brings the grand total to $67,749.19. This amount is $7,749.19 more than the grants in the Board's estimate.

NO EXTRA AID

During the interview with Mr. Rendall re transportation, the delegation was informed that no additional assistance could be obtained. Actual cost of transportation for 1952 was $22,331.39. As the department approved of only $17,823.00 for grant purposes the remaining $4,508.39 must be borne by member municipalities.

Continuing his report, Mr. Hill reported maintenance costs were shared as follows: Smith 30.76%, $7,382.40; Lakefield, 23.21%, $5,570.40; Harvey, 16.90%, $4,056.00; Dummer, 12.58%, $3,019.20; Burleigh and Anstruther, 9.79%, $2,349.60; Chandos, 5.02%, $1,204.80; Douro, 1.74%, $417.60. The debenture debt is distributed in the following manner, Smith, $7,804.20; Lakefield, $5,888 51; Harvey, $4,288.44; Dummer, $3,190.98; Burleigh and Anstruther, $2,483.32; Chandos, $1,272.35; Douro, $441.33.

The meeting was presided over by chairman Edwin Everett and principal J. E. Stephens reported attendance for the month of March as 183 with average 169.99%.

General accounts authorized for payment amounted to $201.88; fees to Victoria County DHS Board $519.75. Transportation costs were as follows, Roy Brown, $508.20; F. S. Coyle, $440; C. Dewdney, $88; C. Hilker, $132; S. Pearson, $1,166; M. Reddick, $325; TSA, Burleigh and Anstruther $233.46.

Repairs Made Alarming To MP

OTTAWA (CP)—Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) said Thursday "it is disturbing" to find that within the first two years of the completion of the $600,000 prime minister's residence in Ottawa, repairs and alterations must be made.

He made the comment in the Commons after Works Minister Fournier explained the upkeep of the home on the banks of the Ottawa river totalled $8,820 last fiscal year, including more than $5,000 for improvements and alterations.

Another $10,950 is included in this year's estimates for upkeep of the big stone structure, rebuilt in 1951 as permanent home for Canada's prime ministers. Prime Minister St. Laurent is its first official occupant.

Both annual figures include heating, lighting, char services, water and the like as well as improvements and alterations.

Will Face Suspension If U.S. Laws Broken

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario securities commission in a new statement of policy said Thursday that Ontario brokers and dealers will face suspension if they offer securities in the United States in violation of U.S. securities laws.

The new policy follows a recent U.S. order—regulation D—permitting a simplified form of registration for offerings of new Canadian issues of $300,000 or less.

The commission said: "It is not in the public interest. . . to permit an offering of securities to be made from Ontario in violation of the U.S. securities laws while the practical merits of regulation D are being tested."

Authorities Decide Bones Not Human

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Bones found Tuesday in Westminster township by two hunters were not human, zoologists at the University of Western Ontario concluded Thursday.

But there is still some doubt as to what animal they came from.

Professor A. W. A. Brown, head of the university zoology department, said he felt any statement should come from the police. He said there was "no cause to worry" but didn't elaborate.

Police said he zoologist told them the bones might be from a bear ut recommended further tests.

Cattle Ranching Moving To South Seas

WASHINGTON — Cattle and cowboys soon may be as typical of the balmy South Sea Islands as coconuts and coral reefs.

Across the Pacific, from Tahiti to wild, battle-scarred New Guinea, beef cattle production is growing. Ranches are spreading and equivalent of "yipee-hi-yi" is heard in both Polynesian and Micronesian.

Interest in cattle, which runs from livestock replenishing programs for war-torn islands to large-scale ranching, centres around new crossbreeds htat combine the best features of Asian and European animals. Although non-sweating European cattle are raised in the Pacific they do not always thrive in the hotter climates. Asian cattle are often too lean for best beef.

The Santa Gertrudis cattle developed on Texas' King Ranch, first new breed developed in a century, hold considerable promise for the Pacific, ranchers believe. This fixed cross between heat-and-disease-hardy Brahman or Zebu cattle and meat-heavy British stock has been introduced on Australia's dry hot plains.

Although land tenure problems have slowed some ranching ambitions in New Guinea, cattle are being imported there from Australia in large numbers. New Guinea has the area and high country suited for ranching.

Not only are cattle grazed among the palms of coconut plantations, a favorite and practical method of cattle raising throughout the South Pacific, but promising grazing lands have been discovered on New Guinea's parklike plateaus and in rich valleys.

French-controlled New Caledonia, also a land of mountains and plateaus, has more than 100,000 head of cattle. It supports a meat cannery, and the population eats lavishly of beef. The French are trying cross-bred cattle on the flat coastal lands of Tahiti, which, like other cool islands of French Oceania, has extensive grassy highlands.

Cattle thrive on such island groups as the New Hebrides, Solomons, Marianas and Samoa. Land is scarce in Samoa, but 3,000 upland acres have been developed for ranching, and cross-breeding experimentation is in progress.

Year-round pasturage could make the Fiji Islands a flourishing cattle country. Texas cattlemen who recently visited Fiji asserted that the islands could support a million cattle.

Trustee Defends Present Generation

TORONTO (CP)—George Webster, East York school trustee for the last 26 years, Thursday decried critics who maintain the present generation as being inferior.

Mr. Webster, who was presented with the lamp of learning by the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, said that people who say boys and girls are irresponsible, won't work hard and make sacrifices don't know what they are talking about.

The presentation made to Mr. Webster is awarded by the teachers each year to someone outside the classroom who has done outstanding work in the field of secondary education.

Sinkiang or Chinese Turkestan is said to be China's richest region for strategic minderals.

Seek Prohibition Against Picketing Retail Places

OTTAWA (CP)—A prohibition against picketing retail places of business was sought Thursday by the Canadian Restaurant Association in a submission to a Commons committee studying a revision of the Criminal Code.

The 1,200-member body, supported by the 32,000-member Canadian Retail Federation, urged the committee to write the prohibition into the code because retail businesses are particularly vulnerable to picketing since they deal directly with the consumer.

The request resulted from a 1951 decision of the Supreme Court of Canada which the CRA argued affirmed the right of unions to picket premises where no strike or dispute was in progress or where the employees belonged to no union.

WANT SAFEGUARD

G. J. Gorman, Ottawa lawyer representing the CRA, said that was the effect of the decision of the Supreme Court of Canada in refusing an injunction to Aristocratic Restaurants of Vancouver against picketing by local 28, Hotel and Restaurant Employees Union (AFL).

George S. Hougham of New Westminster, B.C., a member of the CRA delegation, said the association really wants some safeguard to ensure that picketing will not take place until provincial laws for conciliation and arbitration had been followed.

Don Brown (L—Essex West), chairman of the committee, said the matter would be given full study before the committee acts.

Old White Lie Is All Part Child's Nature

LONDON — (CP) — Dr. Robert Shields, a London county council psychotherapist, has warned British parents not to get too tough with junior if his imagination occasionally runs riot, or he tells the odd white lie.

It's all part of a child's natural development, said Dr. Shields, father of two youngsters. He suggested it was a mistake to adopt a pompous attitude or impose strict disciplinary action when a tot comes in from play with stories of having just returned from fantastic adventures.

"Why rob a child of his gift of imaginationu" the doctor asked. "It's like asking a poet to be a chartered accountant."

Dr. Shields said it was also bad practice to separate an ailing mother from her child. Ultimately, medical authorities would have to take notice of the effects of separations and open hospital wards to the little child whose mother is a patient.

His advice also included the following:

1. The only child is lonely. Parents should keep their doors open for other children to come in and play.

2. Stop telling children that a friend is a dirty little boy or girl, that the dog has fleas and that unclean hands carry germs. This limits the child's activities and gives it an exaggerated fear of illness.

3. Nail-biting is only a passing phase. Left unobserved, or pleasantly discouraged, it will disappear.

4. Give the child a cot in a room of its own, if possible. It is not necessary to encourage relatives and friends to croon over the sleeping cherub. There is plenty of time for that when the child is awake.

5. Don't dress twins alike. Help develop them individually. They will keep together, defend each other and stay close naturally.

Predictions Of Iranian Failure Not Fulfilled Two Years After Seizure

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst

Two years ago, Iran nationalized her oil. There were dire predictions that this would lead to national bankruptcy, that the Communists would soon dive in and take over, that the Western world would sorely miss the loss of the oil.

None of these things happened.

Those who forced the nationalization are astonished that they did not win the quick victory they expected. All hands are astonished that Iran continued on with relatively little shock to her economy. The Western world was surprised to learn it could get along without Iranian oil. The Middle East was astonished that the Communists did no more than they did.

The Iranian situation is still dangerous. Much of the danger lies in the possibility that Iran's oil crisis might be nearing a settlement. This might have the effect of relieving tensions between Iran and the West but would hardly be taken lying down by Russia and its satellite Tudeh (communist) party in Iran.

Part of the incredible strength of Premier Mohamed Mossadegh, leader of the national front government, lies in the oil crisis. It has given Iran an outside enemy—the British—as a unifying force which keeps the government together and retains mass support.

On the stooped shoulders of the weeping Mossadegh rest the power and responsibility to keep communism from engineering a situation where the country will be ripe for the plucking.

Settlement of the oil crisis might bring the country more evil than good.

If the Iranian government wins a clear victory in its case before the Rome court on the case of the 5,000 tons of oil on the tanker Miriella, it could stand off the British indefinitely in the Anglo-Iranian dispute.

But if Iran sold a great deal of oil, that might tend only to strengthen the old feudal system. By selling just a little, Iran can keep on her feet and still have the oil situation to keep the government in control.

Despite propaganda to the contrary, Iran is not "on the verge of bankruptcy." The loss of the oil revenues did have the effect of cutting Iranian imports and halting needed economic development but only a small section of the country's 20,000,000 people was directly affected.

Iran cannot be compared to any Western country. About 80 per cent of the population is agricultural. The people follow the leader, whoever happens to be in power. The villages are poor and primitive and accustomed for years to having landlords do their thinking and acting in a feudal society. They live off the land.

For this vast section of the population, bankruptcy is a meaningless term. To them the only important thing is the crop, and there has been a succession of good crop years.

Iran's imports have fallen off 50 per cent since the oil crisis. The oil revenues had paid for such imports. But Iran in the last year exported 60,000 tons of rice 20,000 tons of cotton and quantities of dried fruits, nuts, dates, sheepskins and animal fats. Thus, oil has simply been the icing on the economic cake. Only on paper does Iran's economy depend on oil.

When imports dropped off, the law of supply and demand set in. Most vital imports are paid for by Iran's exports and meanwhile the 40,000 workers remaining at the Abadan refinery are paid by borrowing from reserves.

The oil crisis has affected the 1,000 men—a pyramid of power—among whom the government reins pass back and forth. Mossadegh has attempted to broaden the base of this pyramid and seems the only leader available now who can appeal to mass sentiment. He seems the only one able to deal with foreign representatives, and in a land of intrigue he is a masterful intriguer.

But Mossadegh's national front is not a political party at all. In fact, it is little else than the personal power of the premier.

At the same time he has many enemies—formidable ones like the speaker of the Majlis (parliament), the ambitious and unscrupulous Ayatullah Kashani, and, far from the least, the Communists.

Mrs. W. R. Parnell Given Cheque

SPRINGVILLE (ENS). — The WMS met at the home of Mrs. O. Dunford on Wednesday afternoon. Cards of thanks were read from several who had been ill and had been remembered.

Mrs. Morgan Cullen invited the society to meet at her home in May. Mrs. Dunford, who is Red Cross convener, gave the financial statement and presented Mrs. W. R. Parnell of the Salvation Army with $10 and two heavy quilts.

The allocation of $225.00 was accepted. Mrs. Larke gave a paper on Stewarship. Mrs. Al. Stevens was in charge of the program and introduced Mrs. Parnell, who took as her topic the Cooking School. In closing, she stressed the point that all the receipts for Christian living were found in God's word, the Bible. She was assisted in her talk by several of the ladies.

Mrs. Bowles moved the vote of thanks to Mrs. Parnell and to the hostess. Mrs. Larke closed the meeting with prayer.

Many People Worried About Depression

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Recent suggestions that there may be lessening in the threat of war of one degree or another, seem to have raised a fear of severe business recession—perhaps even depression or collapse.

This is a testimony to the fact that the depression of the 1930s burned a memory into the consciousness of this generation which is still vivid.

Some say depressions always follow wars and that in due course one will follow the last war They say that the big depression which followed the First World War started 11 years after the war's close, and that we now are only eight years past the Second World War.

Countering such arguments are the records of what seems to have been learned and of what has happened.

By standards of 25 or 30 years ago, for instance, we had in 1947 the makings of a severe recession. We didn't get it because countries had learned that such a recession must not be permitted to occur.

Only that compulsion made the United States, with isolationism still strong, put into effect the extraordinary Marshall Plan of assistance to Europe.

The plan made sense economically, but international political compulsion was the deciding factor in bringing it into being.

Similarly, today, when one envisages the possibility of economic depression, one must also envisage its international consequences. If one envisages these, it is difficult to think that any severe economic recession will be permitted without heroic efforts to prevent it.

None of this means that economic laws don't and won't operate. They will. But the circumstances in which they operate don't necessarily remain the same, though bold thinking may be required to see that they don't remain so

The old saying that "what goes up must come down" doesn't mean that we always come down to the same level. If it did, we would periodically go back to living in caves.

Report Dulles Source Of Stories

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two radio commentators Thursday night named States Secretary Dulles as the point of origin of a number of recent newspaper stories on U.S Far Eastern policy.

A story on Korea and Formosa published by the New York Times was denied by the White House Thursday, leading Senator William Knowland (Rep. Calif.) to call for an investigation as to where it originated.

On separate CBS broadcasts, commentators Eric Sevareid and Bill Costello said the stories had their origin in a background session which Dulles held with a number of correspondents.

Each said he was not present at the session.

"There must be by now many hundreds of persons in Washington who know the source of the stories," Sevareid said. "It was the secretary of state, himself . . .

DISCUSSED PROBLEM

"Mr. Dulles discussed the whole problem of post-armistice Korea and Formosa; he specifically authorized that state department thinking on these matters could be printed, conditioned only by the familiar restriction against naming the source."

Dulles could not be reached for comment on Sevareid's broadcast.

The New York Times said in a Washington dispatch Thursday that the Eisenhower administration is willing to accept a boundary at the waist of the Korean peninsula, some 80 miles north of the present battle lines. The same dispatch said the administration was considering the possibility of a United Nations trusteeship for Formosa with a Formosan republic as its ultimate goal.

Later, White House press secretary James C. Hagerty issued a statement saying the Eisenhower administration (1) has never reached any conclusion that a permanent division of Korea is desirable or consistent with decisions of the UN, and (2) has given no consideration to a UN trusteeship for Formosa.

STITTSVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Four-year-old David Martin was killed by an automobile Thursday night as he crossed Highway No. 15, returning from a forbidden trip to a bonfire. His father, George Martin, said he had four times refused the boy's requests to go to the bonfire across the highway from his home.

Consider Possibility Of Inquest In Deaths

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Provincial police inspector R. L. Taylor said Thursday that he will confer with assistant Crown attorney A. E. Shepherd on the possibility of an inquest into the deaths of an Ailsa Craig mother and her two children Good Friday.

In Toronto high ranking officials said investigation of the poison deaths of Mrs. Alvin Lewis and her daughters, Shirley May and Mildred Jane, likely will be closed in the near future as murder and suicide.

They said police are satisfied Mrs. Lewis administered the poison to her children and then took her own life.

Plan To Spend 3 Million On Radio Service

OTTAWA (CP)—A. D. Dunton, chairman of the CBC board of governors, said Thursday the publicly-owned corporation plans to spend about $3,000,000 to improve facilities and radio service in many sections of Canada.

He outlined for the Commons broadcasting committee a series of projects, including a new transmitter for station CBN in St. John's Nfld., at an estimated cost of $450,000.

1. New studios for the CBC at Winnipeg costing an estimated $1,100,000.

2. A new outlet in Moncton, N.B., for the French network at an estimated cost of $450,000.

3. A new $300,000 transmitter at Sydney, N.S., to improve service in Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and parts of Newfoundland.

5. Studio facilities in Saskatchewan costing $75,000.

6. A series of low-power radio relays north of the Great Lakes in Ontario, in the British Columbia and Alberta interior and in Quebec and New Brunswick.

These would cost an estimated $60,000. Those in Ontario would be at Red Rock, Chapleau, Beardmore, Longlac, Geraldton and Jamestown.

DOROTHY DIX:

Girl Decides Not To Wed But Will Keep Presents

DEAR MISS DIX: My son, a graduate of an out-of-town college, met a girl in the college town and they fell in love. After graduation, he enlisted in the Air Force, and the young couple decided to postpone their marriage. We gave them an engagement party, when the girl visited here, and did everything to make her feel welcome. She got many gifts and her family and friends also sent gifts. The boy returned to camp, and about a year later something went wrong and the engagement was broken. Although both made attempts, at various times to fix things up it was finally decided to call off the marriage. Originally, she said she would return the ring and divide the gifts, but apparently she has changed her mind about this, since she is returning nothing at all. What is the procedure for getting things back in a case like this? Also, please caution young folks about becoming involved too hastily with people they scarcely know.

JOHN L.

REASON TO BE THANKFUL

ANSWER: You should be very grateful that the ill-advised engagement was cancelled. The loss of presents, ring, etc., can be charged off to a bad experience from which no permanent injury resulted. The first step in recovering whatever gifts should be returned to your son is to write the girl, or her parents, and tell them what you want. If no response is made, consult a lawyer, but I think the recourse to legal procedure would be rather costly.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Do you think it is right for my friends to discourage me from marrying a man I love dearly? I am 15, and he is 23. He drinks occasionally, but not when I am with him.

TROUBLED.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Bravo for your friends! This is one of the cases in which interference is for the best. Since your mother has apparently, for some reason, not seen fit to break up this dangerous friendship, I hope your friends will be able to influence you to do so.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Is it right for an engaged woman to accept dates from another man? I am 34 years old, and engaged to a woman 29. I work nights, and have discovered that she goes to dances and other places of amusement with another man.

PERPLEXED

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: She is definitely wrong! An engagement should be as binding as any other contract, and since it is a pledge of loyalty, all outside dating is precluded. Break the engagement, is my advice!

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am the mother of grown boys. When I come to town, which is once or twice a year only, why should I have to stay with my son? He expects me to spend an evening at his house—a whole day in fact! He offers to drive me wherever I want to go, and is very kind in that respect, but I like to stay at my mother's and spend just a few hours at my son's.

K. C.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Whoops! I could scarcely believe my eyes when reading this letter. With most mothers complaining that they get no attention from married sons, it's rather a switch to find a reverse problem. Naturally, you are entitled to spend your time in the city as you wish, but I hope you turn down the boy's invitation tactfully.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have an acquaintance who is constantly reminding people that he would never be the first to speak to someone with whom he had quarrelled, nor would he apologizs—even if he were in the wrong.

A. L.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The stubborn, determined refusal to admit wrong, or apologize, is the sure sign of an immature, boorish, inconsiderate and selfish person. Any person of intelligence is willing to concede taht he may sometimes be wrong. The ability to make or accept an apology is the true mark of a gentleman or lady. Many marriages would never reach the divorce court if an admission of fault, or an apology, had been made at the right time.

JUST DROPPED IN—These two Peterborough girls, Sheila Cowan (left) and Donna Marie Balmer talked their way into seeing a rehearsal of Milton Berle's television show and were given a warm welcome by all the company. The girls with their chums, Alma Shaughnessy and Margaret Chretien, had the time of their lives when Milton Berle (shown with the girls) arranged for a visit to the Latin Quarter night club and paid their way.

Four Local Girls Get Welcome From Milton Berle

Four Peterborough girls off to New York on a holiday at Easter got the thrill of their lives when they sudenly found themselves guests of Milton Berle, television star, at the Latin Quarter night club.

The girls, Donna Marie Balmer, Sheila Cowan, Alma Shaughnessy and Margaret Cretien, who all work in the same industrial plant office, started off badly. Their reservations for visits to night clubs and other attractions were mixed up and it looked as if they would miss out.

However, they learned that Milton Berle's rehearsal studio was on one of the top floors of the hotel they were staying in. Two of them, Donna Balmer and Sheila Cowan, decided to go up for a visit.

They were told that the show was rehearsing and they could not be admitted. But Milton Berle's brother, Tom, heard their wheedling and after consulting the TV comedian, took them in to see the rehearsal.

MET EVERYONE

They made just as big a hit with Milton Berle and his guests stars as he did with them. Besides Berle, they met Caesar Romero, Larraine Day and Arthur Murray and his wife and the Show's dancers.

They told the TV crew about Peterborough and Donna Balmer described the tourist lodge Indian Head Lodge, operated by her mother, Mrs. Ernie Balmer, 663 Water St Milton Berle appeared very interested and said he just might fly up for a holiday during the summer.

When Berle learned of their mix-up in reservations, he called up the manager of the Latin Quarter on the spot and arranged a reservation for them. The four girls went along and had the time of their lives. They found out that their bill had also been taken care of by the television star.

Nobody can speak too highly of Milton Berle to suit the four girls from Peterborough.

MRS. A. KENNETH FAGGETTER, the former Miss Lura Tyler, pictured in her bridal gown. She is daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Grover K. Tyler, formerly of Peterborough, now of Weston Baptist Church. She will live in this city.

Faggetter-Tyler Wedding

The Weston Baptist Church, tastefully decorated with ferns, palms and standards of pink snapdragons, white gladioli and Easter lilies, was the scene of an informal wedding on Saturday afternoon, when Lura Gertrude, only daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Grover K. Tyler, was united in marriage to Albert Kenneth Faggetter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Faggetter, of Brandon, Manitoba. The Rev. Mr. Tyler was formerly minister at Park St. Baptist Church, Peterborough.

The bride, gowned in a floor-length dress of pink blush satin with full overskirt of tulle and lace bodice and bolero with matching cap and finger-tip veil and carrying a bouquet of pale pink roses and gardenias centred by a delicate pink and mauve orchid, ivy and small white flowers, entered the church on the arm of her father, who also performed the wedding ceremony, assisted by the Rev. M. F. Morden, of Mount Dennis.

Mrs. Edward Storey, of Peterborough, as matron of honor, wore dusty rose taffeta and carried a nosegay of white chrysanthemums and pale pink roses. Miss Shirley Faggetter, sister of the groom, and Mrs. Broadus Tyler, sister-in-law of the bride, acting as bridesmaids, wore soft green taffeta and carried nosegays of white 'mums and deep pink roses. The groomsman was Mr. William Hancock, of Kitchener, while Mr. Broadus Tyler and Mr. Edward Storey were ushers.

Mrs. George Swan played the wedding music and accompanied Miss Nellie Gaverluck, who sang "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte and "O Perfect Love."

Following the wedding ceremony, a reception was held in the Sunday school hall of the church. The bride's mother, dressed in dusky rose crepe with matching hat and gloves and wearing a corsage of pale yellow sweetheart roses, received the guests. She was assisted by the groom's mother, gowned in powder blue crepe, with pale pink accessories and corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to Washington, D.C., the bride and groom donned matching suits of blue-grey worsted and the bride wore red accessories and a corsage of red sweetheart roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Faggetter will make their home in Peterborough.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Use Tomato Juice In Place Of Water In Boiling Fowl

By JOAN BARBERIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

There's a file marked "women" in our desk drawer and if you thumbed through it, this is what you'd find:

A press release, on pink paper, from the federal department of agriculture concerning tomatoes. It says, in part:

"In the olden days, tomatoes were considered poisonous but we can thank an Italian engraver, Michael Phelix Corne, for proving they were not.

"He lived over 100 years ago in the city of Newport on Rhode Island. To prove this luscious fruit was not poisonous, he ate some in front of a crowd. When he did not succumb, he of course proved his point.

"Visitors to the city can see the home of that daring man."

It goes on to recommend canned tomatoes with fowl:

"Next time you prepare a fowl for boiling, cut it up and use canned tomatoes or tomato juice for the liquid instead of water."

HOUSECLEANING HINT

The next paper in our file is from a Chicago soft water institute and deals with spring cleaning. It suggests:

"For rugs and upholstery, use moderately warm soft water with plenty of suds. Dip a brush into the suds, not the water, and lightly brush the top of the fabric. Rinse with a clean rag wrung out in soft water."

Next in the file is a report from the Institute of Edible Oil Foods, in which Mrs. Gordon Kerr, president of the Ontario Council of Women, says:

"The women of Ontario want to be free to buy colored margarine as they are free to buy colored butter.

"Most dairy butter is colored. Butter made from winter milk, admittedly less nutritious than summer butter, is colored. Is this not misleading?"

Skipping a postcard from New York, we find in the women's file a copy of a speech by Dr. W. A. Cochrane of Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children.

He recommends: "An extension of post-natal services to include advice on family planning."

At the end of our file is a report saying the 1953 Canadian Cancer Society objective for Greater Toronto is $160,000 and that about 1,500 persons die in Toronto each year from Cancer.

SILK AND ACETATE combine to give a luxurious look to this "after five" dress. A full skirt is caught to a tiny waist by a wide cummerbund. The interesting bodice is pleated all-round in tulip-pointed pleats.

FABRICS are news and this sleek dress of silk pebble cloth provides a new note. The fabric in this two-piece dress has a dull satin finish and there are pockets at the hips. The bolero has a stiff, stand-away collar.

Needed 2 Canes For ARTHRITIC PAIN

"Five years ago when I went to the country I could get about only with the help of two canes," writes Mrs. J. A. Mowry, 219 Newman St., Saint John, N.B. "I suffered greatly from the pain of arthritis and rheumatism. This miserable pain bothered me for many years—until I heard about T-R-C's. T-R-C's gave me the great relief I had longed for. This year, as I go to the country, I do not need canes—thanks to T-R-C's."

Don't suffer needlessly when you can get longed-for relief from Arthritic or Rheumatic pain with Templeton's T-R-C's —Canada's LARGEST-SELLING proprietary medicine specially made for such conditions. Only 65c, $1.35 at druggists. T-850

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Home Made Soup Recipes

Question: A gentleman from India was recently a guest in my home, and before leaving, asked me if I could send him recipes for various kinds of soup, which he could take back for his wife to make when he returns next year. . . he mentioned vegetable soup, beef broth, chicken soup, pea soup. They would have to be made without such conveniences as electricity or pressure cookers, etc. . . .Marjorie I.

ANSWER:

VEGETABLE SOUP

Three tablespoons butter or beef drippings or chicken fat, ½ cup each finely diced carrot, turnip and celery, 1 tablespoon chopped onion, 1½ cups finely chopped potato, 4 cups boiling water (or clear beef or chicken stock), 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 1½ teaspoons salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Saute the carrot, turnip, onion and celery in the butter or fat until just slightly browned. Add potatoes, cook gently 2 minutes longer then add water or stock. Cover and simmer 1 hour, adding water to keep quantity up to 1 quart. When ready to serve add parsley and seasonings.

(A beef bone may be added to this while it is simmering which makes it Vegetable Beef Soup.)

BEEF BROTH

(a flavoured soup stock)

Two-lb. soup bone—half beef, half broken bone, 6 cups cold water, 1 small onion, ½ cup each chopped carrot and turnip, 4 cloves, 6 pepperberries, 1 bay leaf, ½ teaspoon marjoram, 1 spray parsley, 2 stalks celery, 1½ teaspoons salt. Soak the meat and bone in the water in cool place overnight. Simmer 2 hours, then add vegetables and seasonings and cook 1½ hours longer. Strain through moistened cheesecloth. Chill. Skim off fat.

FAVORITE CHICKEN SOUP

One quart chicken stock, 2 whole cloves, 2 stalks celery, 2 sprigs parsley, 1 onion, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 cup chopped, cooked chicken, 1 cup bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons butter (or instead of crumbs and butter add ½ to ¾ cup cooked rice), 1 quart rich milk. Obtain the stock by boiling a fowl, straining the liquid, chilling it and skimming off fat. Add the seasonings and onion to the stock and cook them together for 15 minutes, then strain. Add chicken. If used saute crumbs in butter and add to stock. Add rich milk, or mixed milk and cream to stock, heat through stirring constantly and serve. Sliced cooked okra may be added if available.

SPLIT PEA SOUP

Soak 1 lb. dried split peas in 10 cups cold water, overnight, in cool place. Add a 2-inch cube of fat salt pork, 1 tablespoon chopped onion, ½ cup finely chopped celery and leaves, 1 bay leaf, 2 teaspoons salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper and simmer covered until peas are very tender and cooked to a mash. Strain if deshired. If not, fish out the bay leaf and cut up the salt pork. Taste for seasonings. If soup is too thick 2 cups milk or water may be added.

QUESTION: I would like a recipe for old-fashioned bread pretzels. Mrs. E. J. W.

ANSWER: I'm puzzled about this request. Ordinary pretzels can only be made commercially for they require an oven temperature of 700 deg. Fahr. and I do not have nor can I locate a recipe for Bread Pretzels. These must be something made from bread dough in the shape of pretzels and baked at a high temperature. Can any of our readers help? If so I shall be glad to hear, and will print the recipe.

Question: In appreciation of your kindness for the creamy scrambled eggs recipe I am sending a cookie recipe which has been a favorite in our family for years.

SCHNECKEN

Yukon Ready To Take Title "Nickel Capital"

EDMONTON (CP) — Yukon citizens are talking about taking the title of "Nickel Capital of Canada" away from Sudbury, Ont., following recent claim-staking activity in the White River area, about 250 miles northwest of Whitehorse.

Don Taylor, prospectors' representative on the Whitehorse Chamber of Mines, said here today that nickel prospects for the Yukon are "extremely good." Five major finds had been reported in the last year.

Last October George Prudham, federal mines minister, reported as Vancouver that remarkable ore widths were indicated by exploration following a "spectacular nickel-copper strike west of Kluane lake," about 150 miles west of Whitehorse.

The state of Virginia is the third largest tobacco producer in the world.

Living Costs Drop In Seven Cities

OTTAWA (CP) — With lower prices for food and cigarets, living costs decreased during February in seven of the nine regional cities, the bureau of statistics reported today.

Declines were registered at St. John's, Nfld., Halifax, Saint John, N. B., Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver, while slight advances were noted at Saskatoon and Edmonton.

Among food price changes, decreases occurred for most cuts of beef and pork while increases in egg prices were general. Potato prices were lower in all centres except Edmonton. Saskatoon reported an advance in the price of bread.

In all cities except Edmonton, where higher fares were reported for local transit, the miscellaneous items series showed a sharp drop due to decreeases in cigaret prices. Rent indexes moved up fractionally in five cities, and an increase in coal prices moved the fuel and light index at Vancouver slightly higher.

Farm Forums Re-name Sutton

Wellington Sutton of Otonabee was re-elected chairman of the Ontario Farm Forums at their convention Thursday in the Royal York Hotel, Toronto. The attendance was around 475 with a broad representation from the counties and their Forums. About 20 were present from Peterborough.

Guest speaker at the noon luncheon was Wilson M. Gemmell, manager of the Royal Bank in Peterborough.

"I thought he did exceedingly well," Mr. Sutton commented today. "I heard quite a bit of discusion of his theme during the rest of the day."

Vice-chairman is James Bird of Codrington in Northumberland, and second vice-chairman is John Day of Lambton county.

Chairman of the luncheon was the honorary president, James Powers of Bruce county.

Average contributions from the Forums was $21.43 as compared with $20.38 last year. Consensus of the winter's broadcasts was quite favorable, Mr. Sutton said.

Reeve Denies Bookie Charge

TILLSONBURG (CP) — Reeve Lawrence W. Smith denied Thursday that Alex R. Walker, former CPR ticket agent convicted of theft and forgery involving more than $15,000, had given him large sums of money to be turned over to a bookie for racing bets.

Reeve Smith, chairman of the Tillsonburg police commission, was answering a statement which Walker gave to police in which the reeve was named as a contact man.

In a statement of his own Mr. Smith said he was led to believe that Walker was doing business with John Seto, an alleged bookie.

"Regarding Seto, it is my belief that he was not at any time a bookmaker, but that he used to phone bets to a relation of his," the reeve's statement said.

"Mr. Walker did leave sealed envelopes with me marked 'John Seto,' and likewise, Seto left envelopes for me for Walker. I permitted this as a favor when the parties could not contact each other conveniently. . . I presumed they contained money to settle their betting accounts and not make bets."

U.S. Refuses Grant 2 Visas

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (Reuters)—The United States told the United Nations Thursday that it has found it impossible to grant visas to Mrs. Rae Luckock of Toronto, a Canadian representative of the Women's International Democratic Federation and national president of the Congress of Canadian Women, and Jan Dessau of France, representing the World Federation of Trade Unions.

They had applied for permission to enter the U.S. to attend UN meetings in New York.

J. J. Wadsworth, U.S. representative to the economic and social council, told the council that the U.S. found it necessary to invoke the right to safeguard its security.

"It's the silliest thing that ever was," Mrs. Luckock commented. "It's a terrible state of affairs. There's no justice at all."
